Rail Strike Called But Talks Resume

Hundred In Local

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

One hundred locomotive engineers will walk off their jobs here Monday noon if the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers strike.

"We are 100 per cent behind our senior officers," said Belleville local chairman C. A. Guest this morning.

Officers of the Belleville local spent this morning preparing for strike action. They gathered at Engineers' Hall on Pine St. to appoint strike captains and begin efforts to secure a strike headquarters on Station st. opposite the CN station.

Mr. Guest said his local has received assurances of backing from other railway employees' unions in Belleville. Support, he indicated, would come from the locomotive firemen, trainmen, and non-operating groups employed in the Belleville yard.

About 500 railway employees other than engineers, will be affected here by the strike. CN officials are conferring now to determine how essential services can be maintained and how non-crew personnel can be used in the event of the strike.

Rideau area general manager George Van der Water said his staff is "investigating the feasibility of continuing truck service, for example."

CN employees thrown out of work as a result of the strike will receive no wages or salaries while off the job.

Trains Halt On Prairies

The Canadian Pacific Railway announced Wednesday night that westbound transcontinental passenger trains would be halted here.

The Canadian National Railways said their passenger trains which left Toronto and Montreal Tuesday were also to be stopped here.

Westbound trains from Montreal and Toronto were to be cancelled today as well as eastbound trains from Edmonton.

The railways said, in a joint statement, they will "continue to handle freight traffic prior to the strike deadline."

However, they had been forced to place an embargo on freight shipments to areas in Western Canada already affected by work stoppages.

Monday Set As Deadline

MONTREAL (CP) — Negotiations resumed at 1:30 p.m. EST today in a renewed attempt to avert a strike of railway locomotive engineemen called for noon, local times, Monday.

The announcement of the resumption of the talks was made by Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey.

Representatives of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers would meet with CNR officials at 1:30 p.m. and later with representatives of CP Rail.

Sitting in on the talks will be Bernard Wilson, assistant deputy labor minister.

Mr. Mackasey said his department is prepared to do "everything possible" to arrive at a settlement.

Unless a settlement can be reached, Canada apears headed for its second national railway strike in five years following the decision Wednesday by the brotherhood to call its 7,000 members off the job Monday.

The walkout would paralyze all traffic by CNR and CP Rail, including freight, passenger and commuter service.

Non-ops Agreement Reached

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's major railways and 56,000 non-operating employees today reached a contract agreement which Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey hopes will exert pressure on 7,000 locomotive engineers scheduled to strike Monday.

"I'm sure the engineers appreciate the fact that they have assumed a new responsibility . . . to the point where it would be ridiculous to strike," he said.

Bernard Wilson, assistant deputy labor minister, would be attending the talks between representatives of the engineers' union and the two major railways, the CNR and CP Rail.

Mr. Mackasey left for Ottawa immediately after the news conference to attend a cabinet meeting.

The agreement with the non-operating employees provides for pay increases of eight per cent and seven per cent in a two-year contract, as well as improvements in job security, sickness and vacation benefits.

Members of the eight non-operating railway unions—including dispatchers, clerks, porters, signalmen, communications and maintenance-of-way employees —would receive the first eight-per-cent increase retroactive to Jan. 1.

The seven-per-cent boost would take effect Jan. 1, 1972.

The settlement was in line with an agreement reached last December by the railways and seven shop-craft unions representing 20,000 employees.

NON-OPS

The announcement of the resumption of the talks by the nation's two major rail carriers that they "have no alternative but to take immediate steps to suspend operation," CNR adjusted its schedule for transcontinental trains to ensure that passengers are not caught in mid-trip when the engineers walk off.

Some businessmen-reacted to the news that the brotherhood's negotiating committee had broken off contract talks with both railways with predictions of serious economic problems and possible price increases.

Albert David, division manager of Dominion Stores in Quebec and eastern Ontario, said food prices could rise because of the extra cost of using trucks to transport products.

Meanwhile, Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey was reported to have flown from Ottawa to Montreal for first-hand talks with mediators William Kelly and Arthur Gibbons.

Work stoppages by engineers in British Columbia and parts of Alberta during the last week have already resulted in major layoffs by factories depending on rail service and at least one Conservative party member has warned in the Commons that work disorders could spell disaster for the grain export market.

Stan Korchinski (PC—Mackenzie) said it might be impossible to meet export commitments.

Before the talks broke down Wednesday, Mr. Mackasey told the Commons he considered it premature for him to participate in the negotiations.

The government ordered workers back to work after a seven-day national rail strike in 1966.

The brotherhood broke off talks with the CNR after only 10 to 12 minutes of discussion Wednesday and with CP Rail after 30 minutes.

The talks resumed Tuesday after about 80 B.C. engineemen began booking off in protest over the delay in working out a new settlement to replace a previous contract that expired nearly one year ago.

CP Rail operations in southern Alberta were halted Tuesday night when 45 firemen and engineers stopped working at Red Deer.

Brotherhood spokesmen refused to comment on the breakdown of talks except to say that salary remains the major issue.

Under the previous agreement —which expired March 15, 1970, with CP Rail and last April 30 with the CNR—engineers were

CAPT. R. H. AITKEN, First Officer, aboard Yukon flight UN 5233 kisses his aircraft at Trenton this morning, followed by other members of the crew at the end of a routine journey from Cyprus. It was the final flight for 437 Squadron's Yukons, retiring now after a decade of worldwide service.

Flight from Cyprus Ends Decade of Yukon Service

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Flight UN 5233 came to an end here today bringing the close to 10 years of Yukon service.

It was a routine flight to return troops from Canada's United Nations contingent in Cyprus but it was the last for seven of an original dozen Yukons that served with Trenton's 437 Squadron.

In the next few days, the four-engined turboprops will be moved to Saskatoon to await sale by Crown Assets Disposal Corp.

Two hundred servicemen at CFB Trenton were directly involved with flying the Yukons, many more handled the servicing.

Commander of today's flight, Capt. R. A. Adam, will soon begin to "fly a desk". Others who served with the Yukons have either faced transfers, retraining or retirement.

Commander of 437 Squadron, Lt.-Col. J. W. Wynn, expressed regret that retirement of the aircraft had this corollary for the personnel.

However, he said "we can-

Tate Trial Lawyer Found Dead

VENTURA, Calif. (AP) — The mystery of the disappearance of Ronald Hughes, a lawyer in the Sharon Tate murder trial, has been solved with identification of his body, found in a creek in a rugged wilderness area.

But the cause of Hughes death may never be known because of the body's advanced stage of decomposition, said Deputy Coroner Merle Peters.

The body was positively identified from dental charts Wednesday after being discovered last weekend by two fishermen.

Peters said an autopsy showed no signs of violent death —no skull fractures, knife wounds or bullet holes. Nor did he suffer a heart attack, the coroner said.

The 35-year-old lawyer disappeared after setting out on a weekend camping trip. He had been representing Leslie Van Houten, 21, one of three women tried with Charles Manson in the seven Slayings. All four are condemned to death Monday.

Power Failure Hits Hospital at Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — A power failure affecting both regular and some emergency systems was reported in at least one wing of Toronto General Hospital today.

Toronto General officials declined immediate comment but police and spokesmen for other nearby hospitals said no patients had been evacuated.

Early reports had said the power failure at the city's largest hospital caused the transfer of patients in oxygen tents, artificial kidney machines and other emergency equipment to nearby hospitals.

But spokesmen for Toronto Western, Mount Sinai, Women's College and the Hospital for Sick Children said no patients had been admitted from Toronto General.

A city police spokesman said that to his knowledge there had been "no evacuations" although ambulances had been ordered to stand by in the event such transfers were necessary.

The police spokesman said he understood the regular power system had failed before midnight and that the trouble in the emergency system was confined to one emergency generator. The hospital would not say how many patients were in the building.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A storm now west of Lake Michigan is moving towards Ontario. Freezing rain was reported early this morning in parts of eastern and Northern Ontario. Showers are expected to develop as warmer air begins to invade the district. A few thunderstowers will likely form across the lower lakes. Temperatures will climb to the 50s in much of southern Ontario. Friday, windy and colder weather will return as temperatures fall in some cases from 10 to 15 degrees below today's maximums.

Pakistan Army Attacks Five Cities

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — Pakistan military forces have launched an all-out offensive against the followers of East Pakistan secessionist leader Sheik Mujibur Rahman in five cities and towns of East Pakistan, All-India Radio reported today.

And in Islamabad, Pakistan, a foreign office spokesman said today armed Indians have infiltrated the border areas of East Pakistan. He said the authorities in East Pakistan are "fully alive to the needs of the situations and are taking the necessary steps to meet it adequately."

All-India Radio, quoting reports reaching Calcutta from the eastern province, said the Pakistan army, navy and air force offensive is aimed at Mujib's headquarters in the capital of Dacca, the port city of Chittagong and in Comila, Rangpur and Bogra.

The reports quoted by the radio said the offensive was intensified following the arrival of more troops from West Pakistan.

The radio quoted another report reaching the Indian border town of Shillong, saying the West Pakistan army early today launched a heavy attack on the East Pakistani area around Chittagong.

Heavy gunfights between West Pakistani soldiers and East Pakistani riflemen were reported south of the Cherrapunji hills, the radio said.

Delayed reports reaching Kishanganj on the Bihar state border said the town of Dinajpur, in East Pakistan, was recaptured by Sheik Mujib's followers Wednesday, All-India Radio reported.

There was no confirmation here of London reports that Sheik Mujib, leader of the outlawed Awami League, has been arrested and flown to Lahore in West Pakistan.

The Indian government was reported pursuing diplomatic efforts to focus world attention on what it called "the massacre of innocent people" in East Pakistan.

Informed sources here said the Indian government was in touch with the United States and the Soviet Union both here and in Washington and Moscow.

Both houses of the Indian Parliament unanimously passed resolutions Wednesday expressing sympathy with the people of "east Bengal."

A Lahore radio report, monitored here today, said the Pakistan government took a "very serious view" of the Indian Parliament's declaration of solidarity with the people of East Pakistan and said this was "blatant interference in the internal affairs of Pakistan."

Radio Pakistan said Wednesday night, peaceful conditions have been restored and East Pakistan is preparing to resume normal economic activity.

But it admitted for the first time that large numbers of refugees have fled from East Pakistan—presumably to the west—and now are asking for facilities to return.

The radio also said the situation is returning to normal in Chittagong, repudiating Free Bengal Radio claims that the port had been wrecked.

Farm Market Move Goes to Committee

TRENTON (Staff) — Market farmers here have been joined by downtown merchants in a bid to stop the town parking authority from moving the market from its present location.

A resolution by 18 farmers protesting the proposal was presented to Chamber of Commerce manager Jack Wilson at a meeting last night called to talk over the issue.

In their resolution, farmers say since 1861 the "tradition and custom of patrons coming to the market place" has been established . . . . if the location is changed it would work a serious hardship upon us."

Big surprise of the evening came when Maup Feyen, a baker whose shop faces the old square, entered the Chamber boardrooms to present a petition of protest from 35 merchants who do not want the market moved either.

Included on the petition were names of representatives of large department stores, a supermarket, a drug store, jewellery store and sports goods merchant.

Over the years, another marketer, Ernest Seeds, said market enclosures have been ripped off the sides of the old market building (now the police station) and tables used by the farmers have broken down. These, he said, have been taken to the dump rather than repaired.

"We would like to see a better place for the farmers." Mr. Wilson told the assembly.

He explained that on a new riverside market shelters would be provided "and music would be piped in."

One farmer said he would stop going to market if there was music.

Improvements suggested by the parking authority were welcomed by the farmers but they recommend the changes be made at the present market square site. "This would improve the image of Trenton Market," the resolution contends.

"I think it is nice they want to do something for the farmers . . . . but a horse likes to go back to its own stall," Mrs. Heissler remarked.

The parking authority proposal would permit a few marketers to remain at the old square site — two cookie sellers and a flower lady — with others being shifted over to Front Street.

"Is your wife going to go to one place to buy cookies and another for corn?" Ernest Seeds asked Manager Wilson.

Mr. Seeds maintained the market should not be split up this way and mentioned that he knew the late Senator Fraser would not have liked this idea. Others said that if he was alive he would sign the petition.

"We all have the same goal — we all want to improve the market so let us form a committee to do it," said Paul Heissler.

Jack Wilson agreed that if the market stays it should be improved.

A motorconer to Trenton and a market patron, Mrs. Alice Barr, was one of a few market customers not present for the meeting. She called the move idea "rather shortsighted" and reminded farmers "customers are voters."

The committee was formed at the meeting's conclusion and it will meet soon with the parking authority.

Committee members include market customer, Mrs. Barr, the Heisslers, Charles Anderson, Will Ferguson, Mrs. Joan Jones and chairman James Palmer.

Mr. Wilson told the committee it may make use of the chamber boardroom for its meetings.

New Farmers' Grants Arouse Local Interest

The availability of provincial grants of up to $1,500 to farmers who want to improve their farms so they may act as hosts to vacationing urban people will be of interest in Hastings county.

This is the feeling of Wayne Martin, assistant agriculture representative for Hastings, who said there was at least one farmer in North Hastings who was definitely interested.

The announcement of the grants was made in Toronto this week by Hon. William Stewart, minister of agriculture and food.

The announcement also said farmers will be eligible for a $5 grant for each dead or diseased elm tree they remove to a maximum of $500.

Mr. Martin felt the $5 grant for removal of dead elms would encourage farmers to remove the trees.

He said the dead elms were not only unsightly but were also a definite hazard to farmers when doing farm work.

Also, changes in the capital grants program to farmers, effective today, will boost maximum grants to $3,000 from $2,500, with a maximum of $6,000 now being available when two or more people form a farming partnership.

Ray Pender, who looks after the capital grant program at the agricultural office in Stirling said the new grant maximums would open up a lot of past grants which had gone to the previous limit.

Mr. Pender said there had been "considerable activity" in the capital grant program in the county and this week's announcement means farmers who have already taken advantage of the grants will now be eligible for more money.

Mr. Martin said that a talk on farm vacations by an Odessa woman at last winter's farm conference in Belleville had sparked considerable interest in the idea of city folks spending their vacations on the farm.

He said, however, that as far as he knew the Maynooth area farmer was the only one actively considering the venture.

In his announcement, Mr. Stewart said increasing numbers of city dwellers are spending vacations on farms and this is a potentially important source of new farm income.

To be eligible for the grants, the husband - wife team must have attended a training course or be considered "capable of hosting vactioners, and must make a long term commitment to the program.

Grants will be on the basis of 40 per cent of the cost of the facilities.

Bank Managers Attend Dairy Farm Seminar

Trends in dairy production, feed crops, management of a dairy herd, housing systems, dairy farm management, milk marketing and quotas and financial procedures on a modern dairy farm were discussed in Peterborough recently at a seminar sponsored by the Agricultural Department of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

Speakers included specialists from the Ontario department of agriculture and food and the Ontario milk marketing board.

The objective of the seminar was to familiarize managers of Commerce branches in an eight-county area with the latest developments in dairy farming, related technology, and management methods.

A spokesman for the Commerce explained that rapid changes in agriculture make it essential for bankers who serve farm communities to keep up to date. He said that with cash crops, will be held by the bank in Chatham in April.

Among the Commerce bankers who attended the seminar in Peterborough were F. L. McVicker, Bloomfield; R. H. Bonnet, Brighton; E. R. Palmer, Picton; D. L. Lindsay, Tweed, and I. B. Hayes, Belleville. Mr. Hayes served as discussion leader for the seminar session covering dairy farm management.

Cancer Fund Campaign Target $19,500

The 1971 Canadian Cancer Society campaign continues during today and continuing throughout the month, has as its local goal $19,500.

The society has announced that its branch members; Stirling, Deseronto, Madoc, Tweed, and Marmora are respectively, seeking $1,100, $1,200, $800, $1,000 and $700.

Commenting on past response to the campaign in the rural branches, Mrs. M. Walker, secretary for the Deseronto Branch, summed up the results, "We have always had remarkable co-operation from the citizens," she said.

"In our projected figures for 1971," said Les Lennox, president of the Belleville unit, "more than half of the society's entire budget will be spent on research."

He pointed out that the Canadian Cancer Society will spend more than $1 million on cancer education with the objective of teaching people how to prevent cancer and the necessity of reporting unusual symptoms which could be associated with this disease.

Another $1 million will be spent on direct services to cancer patients. These could be in the form of "small comforts such as flowers and gifts to patients in hospital, to providing such necessities as drugs, housekeeping services, home nursing care, free transportation to clinics, cancer dressings and prostheses," continued the Belleville Society head.

Work of the Canadian Cancer Society has not been in vain, according to Dr. Ken Douglas, medical advisor to the Belleville unit.

"There's plenty of proof that people have become more aware of cancer and report it early," said Dr. Douglas, giving credit to the society's cancer education programs.

Commenting on the improved research, the doctor said, "20 years ago, just 43 per cent of all women who contracted cancer of the breast were alive and well after five years after their disease was discovered. Now that figure has gone up to 58 per cent, and it's rising all the time."

Similar improvements in the areas of tongue, mouth, uterus, skin and prostate cancer have been noted.

To alert the public and provide a reasonable method of detection, the Canadian Cancer Society has outlined seven safeguards.

They are: have a regular medical checkup; don't smoke cigarettes; check by the dentist for unusual conditions; bowel examinations by the family doctor; avoid excessive exposure to sunlight; and for women, regular breast self-examination and Pap tests.

The objective of the campaign for the whole country has been set at $6,770,000. Ontario's goal is $350,000.

Nose-counters Making Rounds

It's municipal nose counting time in the two counties of Hastings and Prince Edward and in Belleville and Trenton.

Since March 22 enumerators from the regional assessment office in Trenton have been going their rounds in Belleville.

The nose count is also on in Trenton with enumerators there commencing work this week.

The count will start in Picton next Tuesday and in North Hastings a few days later.

Allan Smith of the Trenton regional office said that a total of 147 enumerators — 80 per cent of them repeaters from last year — have been hired to make the rounds in the two - County region.

The information being sought is statistical, including the name of each household occupation, the municipality in which he or she is employed, age, sex, whether a public or separate school supporter, marital status, citizenship and whether the householder is an owner or tenant.

Also being checked are new mailing addresses and any changes from last year in the number of persons in the household.

Certain planning information, such as the number of autos and the number of available parking spaces, is also being asked at each residential household.

To prepare the enumerators for their job, the Trenton office conducts two-day schools following which the enumerators commence their rounds.

At the Belleville school, held March 17 and 18 at the Kinsmis Centre, 40 persons took instruction. These enumerators will do assigned areas in Belleville, Deseronto, and in Tyendinaga and Thurlow townships.

Move It! Performers Selected Last Night

After auditioning well over 100 acts and deliberating till the early hours of Wednesday morning, Roy Higgins and three other judges chose 25 acts to participate in Move It! the youth talent production to be held on April 14.

Mr. Higgins remarked that originally they had intended to select only 20, but so many acts were of such a high standard that they put in five more. He emphasized that the ones who were not chosen were eliminated only because they couldn't possibly be fitted in, and not because they didn't show potential.

The groups and individuals selected from Belleville were The Belle Airs, Bill the Lizard, Colin Brown, Lisbett Christensen, the Eric Dunlop Blues Group, The Four Spirits, The Bad Guys, Shelagh Granville, Patricia Green, Lyn Grenke, Richard Grills, Marilee Jones, Lorne Lamothe-less, Luftmenche, Mark Metzus, Milton McCrystal, Moira Folk Singers, and Tigger and Mike. Others from the area who will perform in Move It! are Marie Brain of Corbyville, Pat Donavan of Trenton, Bob Defoe of Foxboro, David McBride of Campbellford, Roger Sabo of Brighton and Brenda and Stephen Wilson of Hillier.

Mr. Higgins said that rehearsals will begin in the near future and although awards will be given to individual acts, his personal goal is to produce an all - round great show.

The show will be opened by Gordie Tap of Cousin Clem and Hee Haw fame who will fly in from Nashville for the occasion. He will also present the awards.

The show will open with a dance routine using the Move It! theme, choreographed by Lorne Loveless and executed by eight girls. The music for the dance will be composed by one of the selected groups.

Tickets for Move It! are selling well under the convenership of Mrs. Jane Haslett. Adult tickets cost $2 each and student tickets are $1.25.

Here . . . Catch!

Vicki Bateman, a producer of tonight's Daughter of Purple Penguin folk night at Loyalist College, decided to share her load of boxes evenly with Randy Gray. Randy didn't quite make it, but the set, a silhouetted picture of a city at night, was complet ed. Talent from Toronto, plus local performers, will provide an evening of folk song and poetry. Advance tickets have been sold for $1, admission at the door 8:30 tonight, will be $1.75.

Council Debates Material Costs

Does rainsoaked sand and gravel cost the city more than would dry materials?

This was the question raised at city council Monday by Alderman Ben Corke who wondered if there should be a clause in purchase contracts calling for "dry" materials.

He felt if such was the case the city could stand to save money.

He said if purchase contracts called for dry materials there would have to be some sort of a test done to determine moisture content and suggested the cost of testing could more than balance out any saving resulting.

The alderman's inquiry came during the consideration of tenders for the city's annual supply of pit-run gravel, stone chips, traffic line paint, emulsified asphalt and petroleum products.

In most instances, prices quoted were slightly higher than last year, although Alderman Corke noted that in one case the price was lower.

When the tenders for petroleum products came up for consideration Alderman Donald Soutter asked whether in view of possible price increases over the next year, contracts carried an escalator clause.

City purchasing agent Douglas Wright felt tender prices were "firm" but several councillors were of the opinion there may be an escalator clause in case wholesale prices increased.

Mercury Contamination Clouds Pickerel Run

The annual spring pickerel run in the Salmon River at Shannonville will be under way in another two weeks, but it is still not clear whether band members of the Mohawk Indian Reservation will be able to safely exercise their time - honored fishing rights.

Mercury contamination of the pickerel in the Bay of Quinte may have made many fish unsafe to eat as a steady diet.

Mohawk Band Chief Earl Hill said today it would not be known until after the pickerel run commences whether reservation Indians could safely eat the fish caught during the annual spawning run.

He said laboratory tests had been arranged for by reservation medical officer of health Dr. Clare Brant on fish caught at the commencement of the spring run.

In the meantime, however, the Indian band council is going ahead with the appointment of game wardens to act on the reserve should the pickerel be found safe for eating.

If the mercury level in the pickerel is found to be higher than the acceptable limits, it is expected that a form letter warning of the danger will be sent out to band members.

Although pickerel are now out of bounds for the white man until the opening of the fishing season in May, Indians by right may spear pickerel on the reservation during the spawning run.

Fishing in the Bay of Quinte was thrown into a tizzy last October when it was announced by the department of lands and forests that fish in the bay were mercury contaminated.

A spokesman from the lands and forests office at Napanee said today that all fish in the bay were found to have been mercury contaminated, some species to a higher degree than others.

Most highly contaminated were "piscivorous" fish — those that eat other fish — east of Amherst Island.

To soften the blow for tourist operators, officials last fall said that while the fish could not be safely eaten there was nothing to stop "fishing for fun".

After the fun of catching, the suggestion was that the fish be thrown back into the water.

But "fishing for fun" with a hook and line as compared with spearing is an entirely different kettle of fish.

If pickerel in the bay are unsafe to eat, one Shannonville resident notes, there would not be much point in the Indians "fishing for fun".

The cost of spearing equipment comes high and after a fish is speared there is little point in throwing it back into the water.

For some reason fish in the upper reaches of the bay show a lower mercury content than those east of Amherst Island and sport fishing has continued in the Belleville area, with still no apparent effects on persons eating the fish.

But with a steady diet of fish it is felt there could be danger.

Officials say that the bigger fish generally have the highest mercury content.

At the same time, however, tests taken a year ago at the mouth of the Salmon River showed that rock bass had a high mercury content.

Fish caught commercially in the bay — carp, bullheads and yellow perch — are tested for mercury contamination, and if they contain more than the accepted one half part per million mercury, are not allowed to be sold.

But the testing is a complicated laboratory procedure, and the proper equipment is needed.

And to further complicate matters for the average fisherman, not all fish of the same species have the same level of mercury contamination.

Blood Clinic Over Top

PICTON (Staff) — Conveners of a Red Cross blood donor clinic held here Tuesday are "in the red." A quota - breaking 241 pints of blood were donated, including several pints of special blood such as B RH negative requested for operations in Toronto hospitals. Last year the clinic fell 38 pints short of its quota of 200 pints.

A spokesman for the donor clinic remarked that volunteers lined the steps of the Anglican Parish Hall where the clinic was conducted for 30 minutes before it opened. Among the 209 persons who volunteered to give blood were 50 students from Prince Edward Collegiate Institute. The clinic recorded 19 new donors. Red Cross workers were assisted in conducting the clinic by members of the Prince Edward Women's Hospital Auxiliary. It was financed by the cancer, polio and tuberculosis division of the IOOF lodge, Picton.

Manhattan Trip Is Recounted

The $40 million experiment, conducted by the tanker Manhattan has proved that it is feasible to transport oil from the northern shores of Canada and Alaska by sea.

But a pipeline would be more economical if the ensuing ecological problems could be solved, says an oil company official.

Maurice Crompton, Ontario public relations officer for Imperial Oil Ltd., addressed transportation of oil at the Quinte Chapter of the Society of Industrial Accountants' recent meeting. His speech emphasized transportation development in Canada's northland.

George Thompson, Belleville manager of the Bell Telephone Company in Belleville will address the accountants April 19.

Natural Resources

Two subjects of pressing concern to Canadians are northern development and protection of the environment. The two are related closely and recent statements by Government spokesmen are indicative of this.

In an address in Dallas, Texas, for instance, Indian Affairs and Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien said that one of the main motivating forces behind the Canadian government's desire for development of northern areas was the presence of the Eskimo and Indian people.

Said Mr. Chretien: "These people want a higher standard of living . . . One of the best ways of doing this is to encourage oil and mineral exploration and development, so that these opportunities will be available to our northern people on their own ground."

However, the minister sounded a note of warning. "Those of you," he said, "who think of boomtime wages and massive overtime as necessary adjuncts to northern operations will wonder about that, but I am speaking of permanent northern residents, particularly Indian, Eskimo and Metis peoples. These northerners often find it hard to make a place for themselves in northern operations. Northern operators must go a great deal more than half way in seeking solutions to this. There is nothing in the north in an operation which imports its machinery and crew, sends the total payroll back home to the South and then leaves the North with only a scar on the landscape to show they were ever there. . ."

It will be a long haul, we imagine, before such a stage of development in the north is achieved, but the Government seems to have the right ideas in moving toward that goal. The Indian population in particular may not agree entirely, but few would argue with the need for controlled development which puts the native people's interests first.

Environmental questions of course are now the preserve of Fisheries and Forestry minister Jack Davis, and he outlined the work of the new Department of the Environment in a recent speech in Saskatoon. It is made up of two parts, one concerned with protection of renewable resources such as fish, game and wildlife, the other with management of soil, water and air. The department, he said, already has a staff of 10,000 employees, including engineers, economists, biologists, ecologists, administrators and field men. More than 80 per cent of the personnel are scattered across Canada, in research establishments in a dozen centres. And according to Mr. Davis, he has also been urging the provincial governments privately to set up similar departments and agencies in the provinces.

Thus it may be seen that combating the enemies of nature, curbing pollution and so on, is a very big effort, with an annual budget of $180 million. In Dallas Mr. Chretien spoke of "scars on the landscape," and we all know what he meant. In fact, no Government department by itself can hope to conquer this thing on its own. It will take the cooperation of us all, each playing his own part in the fight against pollution and in the maintenance of our natural resources.

Soul Concert

There was this church congregation and it was not a church service as such but rather a "soul concert." There were all sorts and conditions . . . a middle-aged man, his wife and small daughter, well-dressed businessmen and elderly matrons, bearded young men and sweet-faced teenage girls, hair down to their shoulders in the contemporary style.

Many held candles and the leader of the rock band explained at the outset what it was all about, that the musical theme was "We are all in it together" and that Negro singer Tobi Lark would lead the performance. It was like the sensitivity training thing we hear so much about, only we suspect, much more restrained, and in better taste.

The faces of the people reflected their response to the haunting beat of the music and the compelling magnetism of the singer and her song. Young and old they were being lifted out of themselves and inspired in a manner no drug could accomplish. It was spirituality at work and there was among them, for the space of 30 minutes at least, an inner radiance that few perhaps had experienced before.

And afterwards the priest said it: that the message that should be taken away was the sense of belonging and community experienced in this coming together in his church. Not always easy maybe, but then life cannot always be lived on a high plane. At least we can be grateful for such rare moments of uplift.

Where did all this take place? St. Paul's Catholic Church, Toronto, and it was presented on CBC television Tuesday night. For television viewers too, it was a moving experience.

Government 'Tinkering' with Economy

Bank Chiefs at Odds with Ottawa Over Fiscal Policy

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA—The feeling comes through these uncertain Ottawa days, and while it may be vague of definition and difficult to document, you can not shake the unease that something is terribly wrong on Parliament Hill.

Things have to be politically and economically out of joint to have the heads of Canada's chartered banks and members of the federal Cabinet feuding.

Not fighting just here at home, making a private family affair of it, a domestic dispute, but out there in public for all the neighbors to see and hear.

The banking chiefs have been down to New York telling the American investment and financial community that the federal Government is "scaring the daylights out of business."

And the bankers have not been alone.

Many segments of the Canadian business, industrial and financial structure — the jobmakers upon whose investment and managerial expertise opportunity and prosperity are built — have been upset by the federal Government's tinkering with the delicate balance wheels of the economy, and have said so.

The Cabinet — none of them businessmen with the exceptions of Communications Minister Eric Kierans and Treasury Board President Charles Drury — now has taken to slanging the bankers and businessmen.

So it is not an honest difference of opinion between what the Government calls the "private" and the "public" sectors of the economy.

Maybe so.

Except that if the "private" sector runs in the red it makes neither profit nor payroll.

But if the "public" sector operates at a deficit — as it routinely does — it simply borrows or prints money, or raises taxes, frequently doing all three, with seldom a worry about making it into the black and meeting a payroll.

The Government seems to think the economy functions in two different worlds, failing to realize they are interlocking.

And when the gears do not smoothly mesh, there is friction, wear and tear, depreciation and even damage to everyone's financial well-being, with rising unemployment and increasing welfare costs providing the evidence.

So the bankers warn the American investment community—whose confidence and cash are so essential to Canadian growth — that the Government is "scaring" business half to death with its continual tampering with the economy.

Verbal guns blazing, Finance Minister Edgar Benson, a former university lecturer, Revenue Minister Herb Gray, a lawyer, and Consumer Affairs Minister Ronald Basford, an - other barrister — none of them businessmen — fire back that the bankers are making "sneering derisive remarks about Parliament."

On that basis the feud might be seen as a standoff except that the bankers at no time mentioned Parliament.

But more and more, the Government's own top men have been switching sides in the dispute, backing business against the administration.

What is more, doing it publicly.

Latest of the Government's own very key men, a member of the federal elite, to turn on it is Dr. O. M. Solandt.

Eminent scholar, scientist of international recognition, business executive of proven performance, seniormost civil servant, an altogether outstanding Canadian of impeccable credentials as a Man-of-Government.

He has been chairman of the federal Defence Research Board, senior executive of the Canadian National Railways, and currently chairman of the federal Science Council of Canada.

And what has he been saying?

Just this:

"There simply is no understanding or co-operation be - tween government and industry: the Cabinet just is not interested, does not care

"And below the level of the Cabinet is a strata of senior civil servants who are strongly, even radically anti-industry, especially against successful industry."

And while Dr. Solandt did not identify them, leaders among the anti-industry sector of the federal Civil Service, are some of the senior heads of the federal Finance Department.

They have been in the department all their working lives.

They have never been out in the competitive world of - day world. They have never had to make a buck, turn a profit, meet a payroll. Doing business any way except by federal fiat is foreign to them. So they are hostile to free enterprise.

Authors of the White Paper on Taxation, they have staked the reputation of their department - al professional lives on it—and that is what is making it so dicey for Finance Minister Benson to disregard much less disown their financially disruptive initial version of it.

The others, four of them:

Potential terrorism, the language problem, foreign investment guidelines now in the drafting, and the Canada Development Corporation's bureaucratic invasion of what until now has been the "private" sector of the government-troubled economy.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

April 1, 1971 . . .

All Fool's Day is said to have originated when King Charles IX of France changed the calendar 397 years ago today—in 1574. Originally the new year began on April 1 and people observed it by giving presents and visiting friends. But with the change of the start of the new year to Jan. 1, folks used April 1 as a time for playing practical jokes—a practice that persists to this day.

1955—The revised Criminal Code of Canada went into effect.

1906—Brig.-Gen. W. D. Otter was appointed chief of general staff of the Canadian Army—the first Canadian officer to hold this position.

1868—Edmund Rostand, the author of Cyrano de Bergerac, was born.

1815—Bismarck, the architect of the 19th century German Empire, was born.

Threat of 'Ecological Disaster'

Salt, Mercury, Lawsuits and the Environment

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The indiscriminate use of salt to remove snow and ice from highways, streets and to lay dust, may cause an ecological disaster to our environment, if it has not already done so.

People who have studied geology, geochemistry and ecology have known for many years that mercury becomes readily soluble in alkaline solutions.

I do not have an analysis of the salt used by the various Governments in Ontario, but an analysis of similar material used in Ohio and Michigan show (grams per liter) sodium chloride 84.30; calcium chloride 14.34; potassium chloride 0.114; magnesium chloride 5.36; barium chloride 0.343; strontium chloride 0.257; sodium iodide 0.004 and magnesium bromide 0.115.

The occurrence of quicksilver minerals is by no means confined to any certain kind of deposits or to any given age or epoch of metallation and is mostly found at very shallow depths.

As to form and structure, the ores occur in irregular and "chambered" veins and brecciated zones, often as a "stockwork" of minute seams, or as disseminations in more or less porous rocks. Much of the rock and structure in Ontario, especially around the Great Lakes, is a favorable home for quicksilver deposits.

As the residue from the salt that has been spread on the roads and streets meanders on its way to the sea, much of it passes through the rock structure, perhaps many hundreds of feet below the surface, where it comes in contact with the quicksilver minerals, they become soluble and are carried on out to the creeks, rivers and lakes via springs and underground waterways.

Many fish like to feed where small creeks and rivers enter the lakes, much of the water in these streams is fed from springs that emanate from underground sources, this may be where they get contaminated with mercury. It is well known by geologists that many quicksilver ore deposits have been formed by springs fed by ascending waters.

It would seem the Government is ill-advised to take court action against some companies for mercury pollution. They should clean up their own back yard first and work with others to solve the problem.

Where is the mercury coming from that is in the fish which are caught in waters where no industrial waste is known to enter? Perhaps The Department of Highways could answer that one.

Salt will not melt snow and ice if the temperature is below 10 degrees above Zero and we have plenty of that in this country. Salt makes ice and very dangerous driving conditions.

The Ontario Government can never prove that the mercury found in fish caught in Lake St. Clair, the Detroit River and Lake Erie came from the Dow Chemical plants in Ontario and Michigan. Mercury has no doubt been coming into these waters for millions of years from natural sources and frighten the living daylights out of people with multi-million dollar lawsuits will only worsen the whole mess.

I might add at this point, another reason mercury in salt should not be put on the roads and streets, I have been told by automotive people that corrosion caused by this salt is doing close to $2 billion worth of damage to cars, trucks and other vehicles every year in Ontario.

Ancient Rome knew the destructive power of salt many centuries ago. When her armies finally conquered Carthage they burned the hated city to the ground and, not content with that, they spread salt on the land where it had stood. Have you seen Carthage lately?

What are the men that have been allowed to hold public office by bigger salaries doing about this vital pollution problem?

The message, learned from many past events, says loud and clear that when man interferes in the balance of nature, effects never thought of occur. And when we interfere on the vast scale that we have, we had better have some good answers ready or we are in for a very rough ride.

Perhaps Ralph Nader will hear about our salt problem and come to our rescue. He has made hay on lesser issues.

Mayor Requests City Definition

A request for a definitive study to ascertain what is the ideal-sized urban community has been called for by Belleville Mayor J. Russell Scott.

The request was made in a personal brief presented yesterday by Mayor Scott to the special Senate-Commons Committee on Canada's constitution in Toronto.

He said the matter should be studied from geographical, population density, political, social and other points of view, using the knowledge not only of experts, but tradesmen and people in all walks of life.

Mayor Scott noted that as result of studies carried out by municipal city managers, it was felt that in cities over 150,000 population there was a loss of identification of electors with their representatives and that there was a loss of first name police communication in centres of more than 100,000.

Also in the larger centres, psychiatrists found problems increased and there were increased difficulties in maintaining adequate service to customers and patients by tradesmen and family physicians.

The Belleville Mayor said it was apparent that many elected representatives are concerned about regional development studies and proposals as presented by Ontario government officials.

Locally, a new Quinte area planning board had been organized for a community stretching 30 miles from Shannonville to Brighton and taking in Belleville and Trenton.

"I have a great many misgivings about what we are doing and, in fact, whether we have the machinery to control the kind of development studies and proposals as are presently being put forward by the federal government over regional planning for large municipalities.

The shop-craft group, representing tradesmen such as machinists, electrical workers, plumbers and sheet metal workers, also settled for increases of eight per cent and seven per cent over two years.

The shop-craft settlement brought the hourly rate for top mechanics to about $4.30 from $3.58 after two years.

There was no immediate estimate of the hourly increase the agreement would give non-operating employees, who now earn an average of $3.20 an hour.

The agreement reached early today after a all-night bargaining session must be ratified by the membership of the non-op unions.

Dick Smith, chairman of the non-op bargaining committee, told the news conference that the ratification vote will be taken by mailed ballot. Results were expected in "no more than four weeks."

In addition to the pay increases, the non-op settlement provided for:

—Company-paid life insurance of $4,500 for each employee, up from the present $3,000.

—Weekly indemnity benefits of about $80 a week, up from the present $66.

—Medical and surgical payments by the railways of $11.50 a month for married employees and $5.50 for single employees, except in Quebec where a flat payment of $10 a month will be made for each employee.

—Three weeks of paid vacation after eight years instead of 10 years.

Final Touchdown

The frequent landings of Yukons at CFB Trenton made a familiar sight that will no longer be seen. When this one touched down on the tarmac today, it brought an end to an era of Canadian aviation history — the final Yukon flight.

No Inquest in Fire Deaths

PICTON (Staff) — No inquest will be held in connection with the deaths of Mrs. Michael McGrath, 42, and her daughter Nancy, 13, who died yesterday when fire gutted their Cherry Valley home.

A spokesman for the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police said yesterday that preliminary reports from Bellevville General Hospital, where the victims' bodies were taken after being recovered from the fire ruins, showed asphyxiation as the cause of death.

Two other daughters, Colleen, 18, and Patricia, 19, escaped from their burning home to call for help. Michael McGrath, who holds a supervisory position with the Brinks Express Company, was in Toronto when the blaze broke out shortly after 1 a.m. Wednesday.

Picton Fire Chief Leonard Trip said today that the McGrath home was insured but no damage estimate has been made. He added that the cause of the fire is still undetermined. An investigator for the Ontario Fire Marshal's office, H. S. Renardson, is examining the ruins.

It has been established that Trip commented that he exthe kitchen, located in the back portion of the house.

Yukons' Service Ends

not accommodate them all and that's part of service life."

For those who remain with 437, about 150, the last few days have been tinged with nostalgia.

"It was a real workhorse ... we will never have a feeling of happiness that it is going," Col. Wynn said.

One of the Yukon pilots Capt. Kenneth Harvey, who has now moved on to flying the 707 jets, says "the good old days have gone ... but we have stepped up a few notches with the 707."

"We have to keep up with the changing times," he concludes.

Commissioned in 1961, Yukons began making six flights a week to Canada's former NATO base at Marville, France in January 1962, replacing North Stars previously used for transport duty.

They supplied Canadian Forces of UN peace-keeping assignments in the Middle East, Cyprus and Kashmir and Canada's representatives on the international truce commission in Indochina.

They delivered food and medical supplies to victims of civil war in the Congo and Biafra, a fire in Brazil, and earthquakes in Turkey and Pakistan.

"Even though it was old, it always came through for us", says Capt. Harvey. No period of Yukon service, perhaps, has been more distinguished than that of the past few months when the planes supported the land element during the Quebec crisis and airlifted more than 400,000 pounds of relief supplies to cyclone - battered East Pakistan.

Canada's Yukons were a familiar sight at airports around the globe and logged about 63 million miles in their decade of service.

The planes were a distinctly Canadian product, built by Canadair in Montreal as a modified version of the UK's Bristol Britannia.

Modifications were numerous and parts were unobtainable in many areas of the world. Thus, the practice was adopted of carrying a large kit of spare parts on many distant flights.

With the Boeing 707s in universal use, this problem will no longer have to be faced. The Boeing also has advantages of speed and load capacity.

Many airports used by Yukons will be out-of-bounds to the 707s because their runways are not large enough.

Flight engineer, WO Edward Ruth, who test flew the Yukon says "I guess I have a soft spot for the Yukon. It was just outstanding across the board."

He emphasized that it was "completely Canadian — we built it, we made it fly — now, it is a phase of life gone by."

Rail Strike

Earlier talks in the dispute broke off last week after a three-man conciliation board reported it was unable to reach a wage settlement.

R. A. Gallagher of Winnipeg, conciliation chairman, suggested an increase of eight per cent the first year and seven per cent in each of the next two years of a three-year contract.

Marc Lapointe of Montreal, the brotherhood representative, proposed a 12-per-cent increase in the first year and an additional nine-per cent raise in the second year of a two-year agreement.

Management representative, A. William Cox of Halifax, recommended raises of 6.5 per cent the first year and seven per cent in each of the remaining years of a three-year contract.

All suggested retroactive settlement and decided not to deal with other issues because of their technical nature. These would be ironed out after a wage settlement was reached, they felt.

Murder Brings Prison

Calley Wins Battle for Life, Now Will Fight for Freedom

FORT BENNING, Ga. (AP) — His fight for life won, Lieut. William Calley turns now to a battle for freedom from life in prison, a sentence that can be tempered only by reviewing authorities.

Calley, 27, was spared the death penalty Wednesday by the same military jury which convicted him Monday of the murder of 22 Vietnamese men, women and children during the My Lai massacre three years ago.

The sentence will be subject to automatic review through a procedure that could take at least a year and possibly as long as five years.

After exhausting its remedies within the military judicial system, to as high as the U.S. Court of Military Appeals, the defence would have recourse to civil courts.

President Nixon could at any time pardon Calley or reduce his sentence, although there has been no indication he would do so.

At the Western White House in San Clemente, Calif., presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Wednesday that the president's office had received thousands of telegrams and telephone calls since the verdict against Calley was announced. He said the messages were about 100 to 1 against the conviction.

At Fort Benning, Calley's civilian defence lawyer, George Latimer, said: "Lieut. Calley was relieved when the court martial sentenced him to life—he got the best of two terrible penalties."

There were two verdicts available to the jury—death, presumably by hanging, or life imprisonment. The life sentence carries the possibility of parole after 10 years.

The sparing of Calley's life was expected to ease to some degree the nationwide furore over his conviction.

It took the jury of six combat veterans 13 days to convict Calley. They deliberated his sentence a total of five hours, 48 minutes.

Calley stood rigidly at attention as the verdict was read.

He breathed a deep sigh when he heard the words, "to be confined at hard labor for the length of your natural life." It meant he would not hear the death sentence.

U.S. Parole Board Rejects Hoffa's Appeal

WASHINGTON (AP) — James Riddle Hoffa's 13-year reign over the giant Teamsters union appears all but ended after the U.S. parole board denial of his appeal for freedom.

Hoffa, serving consecutive sentences totalling 13 years for jury tampering and mail fraud, will retain the title of union president for several more months, but Teamsters sources said he will almost certainly be replaced at the union's July convention in Miami Beach, Fla.

Hoffa will not be eligible for parole again until June, 1973, when Fitzsimmons, or some other successor will have had nearly a year to consolidate a hold on the union presidency. Presidential terms currently are for five years.

Hoffa at the last Teamsters convention in 1966 managed to rewrite the union constitution to make it virtually impossible for other union leaders to oust him.

But the parole denial appeared to dash Hoffa's last hopes of retaining control of the union after more than four years in prison.

The parole refusal Wednesday crushed Hoffa's pledge to the union's members shortly before a federal marshal whisked him in handcuffs to the penitentiary in 1967: "I'll be back, God willing, sooner than our enemies would have you believe."

The board didn't divulge its vote nor its reason for denying parole.

A parole would have almost certainly put Hoffa back in the driver's seat of the world's largest, richest, most powerful labor union, in the view of most Teamsters sources.

The cautious manouvring of Teamsters leaders for control of the $1,000 million two-million-member Teamsters' empire now is expected to move into the open.

Under Fitzsimmons, the union had begun a slow drift away from Hoffa's tight national control to a more decentralized operation with increasing roles for the 12 other vice-presidents.

While Hoffa still has union supporters and may continue to exercise influence, the parole denial evidently will accomplish something a host of opponents, including the late president John F. Kennedy, the late attorney-general Robert F. Kennedy, congressional investigators, other labor leaders and even some of his own union members, were unable to do—get him out of office.

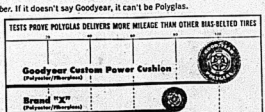
Goodyear Polyglas Tires mean value. The very best in mileage, traction, safety and riding comfort.



Enthusiastic customers report their Polyglas tires lasting up to 45,000 miles. And they say that's twice as long as any tires they've had before.

That's what we mean by Goodyear value. The lasting value you get with Polyglas tires. Goodyear value starts with the know-how and experience of the leader in the tire industry. Goodyear uses the best materials, and an exclusive method of bonding the tread to the fiberglass belt. Other manufacturers make polyester/fiberglass bias-belted tires. But only Goodyear makes the Polyglas tire.

Goodyear engineers ran Polyglas tires for 40 million test miles at our proving grounds, and have kept improving their long-wearing qualities. That's why we say Polyglas tires can deliver more mileage than other bias-belted tires.

Compare. Dollar for dollar, Goodyear Polyglas tires are your best buy. But beware of imitations that cannot duplicate the long mileage and lasting value you get with Polyglas tires.

Douglas Fears Canada to Get Worst Features Of Parliamentary and Presidential Systems

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is in great danger of getting the worst features of both parliamentary and presidential governments, New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas told the Commons Wednesday.

Committee-of-the-whole debate dealt with a section of the government's reorganization bill that would allow the cabinet to name up to five new ministers and supporting departments without consulting Parliament.

Debate on the bill was scheduled to continue today.

Mr. Douglas said that even under the presidential system of government the president does not have the authority to allocate powers and duties unless they are based on statutes provided by elected representatives.

"In the United States," he said, "a cabinet minister has to be ratified by Congress. The department over which any cabinet minister presides is based on statutes passed by Congress.

"He exercises powers which have been approved and passed by Congress."

In Canada, control of the purse strings had largely passed out of the hands of Parliament, with spending estimates going to committees and no House control except a possible vote without discussion.

"We are now asked to go one step further and give the cabinet the stupendous powers to set up departments of government with sweeping powers."

Asked by Treasury Board President C. M. Drury whether he would prefer a presidential system, Mr. Douglas said he was not suggesting that.

"What I am saying . . . is that we are in great danger of getting the worst features of both.

"We are going to get the presidential system without the controls and power which are available to the United States Congress."

Earlier in the debate, there were cries of shame from the opposition benches when former prime minister John Diefenbaker had a roaring speech cut off because an unidentified Liberal member refused the unanimous consent required for him to continue.

Mr. Diefenbaker had been working over a theme he developed during second-reading debate on the bill—that by providing for new ministers and new parliamentary secretaries the bill was providing patronage to keep government members in line.

In addition he said the government would lose a vote on the bill if a Commons standing order preventing members from voting on questions which involved their own pecuniary interests was applied.

He rose to say it had appeared to him that there had been no negative voices, but Deputy Speaker Russel Honey said he had heard one.

Steve Otto (L—York East) said the purpose of the bill is to make some sense of what remains of Parliament.

Mr. Diefenbaker walked out when Mr. Otto said the Parliament members had been talking about no longer really existed. "It is an Alice-in-Wonderland Parliament."

Parliament had been designed for a rural, sedentary society, and would have to change, perhaps to "a compromise between Parliament as we know it and a republican system."

Murder Study Planned

OTTAWA (CP) — A special committee will be established within the next few weeks to carry out a broad study on the subject of murder, Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer said Wednesday.

He made the disclosure as members of the Commons justice committee questioned him about government policy on capital punishment.

The cabinet has commuted three death sentences since a trial abolition in late 1967 limited the death penalty to cases in which on-duty police or prison guards were slain.

Mr. Goyer said in an interview special committee will report to him before the five-year trial ends Dec. 29, 1972.

Harmony Study Club Presents Pupils' Program

The Harmony Studio Club met on Saturday, at the home of Mrs. E. Veley, Holloway St.

Mrs. Veley welcomed pupils, parents and newcomers, including in her welcome the reasons for having a Studio Club. She stressed that in music studies a high standard must be maintained. Pupils aim to improve and by performing for the group they strive for perfection.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by Mrs. J. Trudeau, Mrs. Noakes in her treasurer's report showed a balance of $31.75.

Mrs. Veley announced that she hoped to have two more meetings during this year. A meeting cancelled Feb. 20 due to inclement weather resulted in a lengthier program than usual. It included examination work and grade work for promotions.

A program was presented by the pupils from the various grades and those taking part included: Judy Persade, David Place, Elizabeth Trudeau, Mary Lynn Atkinson, Carlene Martin, Marie Deline, Elizabeth Shorey, Christine Atkinson, Lori May, Helen Keskula, Ann McGregor, Lynn Bailey, Penny May, Beverly Lewis, Anne Keskula, Debra Grass, Carolyn Lewis and Gwethelyn Purdy.

At the conclusion Mrs. Veley thanked all the pianists then presented certificates for theory 4, Cheryl Cretney and Grade 5, Gwethelyn Purdy.

Refreshments were served and a social time was enjoyed.

TRIPLETS — Triplets (from left) Andrew, Albert and Leonard bring to four the number of boys in the large family of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew LeBlanc of Halifax. Multiple births run in their family, with five sets of twins on Mr. LeBlanc's side and two sets in his wife's family. The boys now tip the scales at 12, 11 and nine pounds. (CP Photo)

Multiple Births Run In Le Blanc Family

HALIFAX (CP) — With a family of five girls and a lone boy, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew LeBlanc of Halifax thought it would be nice to have another boy.

Their thought was tripled into reality with the birth last fall of three healthy boys. "We wanted another boy and hoped for one," said Mrs. LeBlanc, "but three — a complete surprise."

The boys, Andrew, Albert, and Leonard, now are five months old. The first two months were spent in hospital incubators as they weighed four pounds, seven ounces; two pounds, six ounces and two pounds, four ounces respectively at birth.

Mrs. LeBlanc, a petite woman just under five feet, said she gained 32 pounds during pregnancy but never suspected triplets. It was probably a good thing that she did not know because "I almost fainted when they told me."

Multiple births run in the family, with five sets of twins on Mr. LeBlanc's side and two sets on his wife's side. The couple also has 14-year-old twin girls as well as a 16-year-old girl and twin girls 12, 8, and 6. The other children were "terribly excited" about their new baby brothers.

"The twins are very helpful with feeding and changing the babies, and a great help with the wash," said Mrs. LeBlanc.

Caring for the triplets means an extra financial burden for Mr.LeBlanc, a tavern waiter in the city. The Red Cross Corps, an organization of women volunteers, supplied extra layette necessities, and a Montreal manufacturer of milk formula sent 100 tins of the mixture.

Mrs. LeBlanc said they are trying to gain more help from national baby food companies.

The boys now tip the scales at 12, 11 and nine pounds, and are being "spoiled" by their brother and sisters, while their father is "tickled pink," said Mrs. LeBlanc.

U.C.W. Meeting

HOLLOWAY STREET UCW

"Far Away Missionaries," was the theme of the talk given by Mrs. Grace Duncan to members of Holloway Street UCW at the March general meeting.

Mrs. G. Dobbs presided and Mrs. Jean Hamelick and Mrs. F. Henderson were in charge of the devotional and program.

In her talk, Mrs. Duncan dealt with the Memorial Hospital in Lamoure which is about 36 miles north east of Edmonton. The speaker went there as a dietician after graduating as a home economist in 1950, and remained there until 1960. Lamoure is a prairie town with some 600-800 persons, most of whom were Ukrainians who engaged in farming. Six miles to the west was a German settlement.

The first medical doctor, a Dr. Smith first began talking of a hospital back in 1901 and through a great deal of effort and hard work, this became a reality in 1912. A grant from the Methodist Home Missions Board supplemented their own funds.

A Dr. Archer was the first one in charge of the hospital and worked tirelessly for its success. This missionary hospital, although small is comparable to many, much larger ones. In 1923, it was the only small hospital in Canada to be accredited. (Meaning it had a window with set standards.) They have their own training school and in 1960 a nurses' home was built. By 1965 many improvements had been made, among which was their own clinic, set up in the basement of the hospital. An auditorium was also built and a window was installed and dedicated to the much loved Dr. Archer for his untiring work. This was done under the auspices of the United Church.

Mrs. Duncan concluded by saying that while she was in charge, each department was drastically cheated for expenses, as grants were covered by the government and had to come within the budget if at all possible. If really inadequate and a request is made, a donation is given from UCW funds and is just one of the home missions where UCW helps.

Mrs. F. Henderson introduced the film, "Penzatii Pathways", which was most informative and showed how the Canadian Bible Society spreads the good news in South America. It showed how one man from Uruguay working alone carried the Scriptures to all parts of the country. Also the wonderful results shown from his labor of love in his fellow man.

Literature and supplies are distributed any way possible by planes, trucks, carts and other means. One group takes them to the jails. South America has the largest increase in population in the world today and Brazil is the fastest growing city — so the need is great.

Mrs. Dobbs conducted a short business period during which time it was decided to buy lilies for the church for Easter. Members were invited to attend the Presbyterial trip to Five Oaks and tentative plans are underway for a spring tea. A walkathon by the young people is coming and the support of the UCW group will be appreciated.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Ken Parks' group.

Island Fishing Town Enjoys Unprecedented Prosperity

BURIN, Nfld. (CP) — Most Newfoundland communities reported chronic unemployment this winter, but this old fishing town of 2,000 on the island's south coast has enjoyed unprecedented prosperity.

And it's all based on fish, brought in from the banks off Newfoundland the year round, processed, frozen and shipped to United States markets. Burin was always a fishing town, but only in recent years have fishermen been earning good cash wages and come to appreciate what the enormous sea and other fish species mean to them in terms of prosperity.

Built on the salt-cod fishing industry, the old town has been modernized.

All the old-time schooners and most of the small inshore fishing boats have been replaced by a fleet of modern stern draggers that supply one of the most up-to-date fish-processing plants in North America.

Young fishermen who sail on the modern ships are earning up to $7,000 a year. Cooks, engineers and captains of the boats make double and treble that amount. Their fathers were lucky if they made a few hundred dollars in a fishing season.

Joseph Moulton, manager of the Burin fish plant, said: "The plant now is working on a two-shift system. New buildings to accommodate extra production units are being built, and this will provide another 100 jobs."

Mayor Don Hollett, son of one of the old-time fish merchants, said there has been no winter unemployment in the area "and during he coming months there could be a labor shortage."

In addition to the program of expansion at the fish plant, a $500,000 student hostel for the town's vocational school is being built and four new classrooms and a gymnasium-auditorium are to be added.

Other projects include a new school under the department of regional economic expansion and extension to an existing school that will mean a total of 27 extra classrooms this year. Several new houses will also be built and the town hopes to extend the water and sewer system.

Burin, one of the oldest towns in the province, was first settled by French and other foreign fishermen. The name Burin is a French word meaning an engraving tool. Other places in the vicinity bear such names as Lamaline Loup and Spanish Room.

Burin is one of those Newfoundland settlements where historical documents are almost non-existent, but the English navigator, Captain James Cook, who made a survey of the island from 1763 to 1767, included it on his map. A hill overlooking one of Burin's two good harbors is named Cook's Lookout.

During the days of the American privateers in the 1770s, Burin was fortified at several strategic points. Old cannon, cannon balls and other war relics have been found. One mound of elevated earth and rock that overlooks the settlement and the Atlantic beyond bears the name "Man-o'-War Hills."

The history of Burin in recent times reads like that of many other Newfoundland settlements. Fishermen had good and bad seasons and fish merchants made and lost fortunes.

The town enjoyed prosperity during the First World War but after 1918 came a slump in fish prices. Then in 1929 the area was hit by a tidal wave with considerable loss of life and destruction to fishing premises. The catastrophe also affected the fishing grounds and fish were scarce for several years. Then came the Depression of the 1930s.

Most people were down but not out, and when the United States began building bases on the island after the outbreak of the Second World War fishermen left their boats and went to work for wages. When work ended on the bases things were different in the old fishing town.

The present prosperity began in the 1940s when Fishery Products Ltd., a St. John's, Nfld., firm engaged in processing and freezing cod and other species, built a plant in the area.

Today Burin is one of the better-off settlement in the province island. There are scores of new automobiles and plenty of money in the people's pockets. Many who were born in houses put together for a few hundred dollars now live in homes worth up to $40,000.

Women's Institutes

MELROSE WI

MELROSE — Mrs. D. McLaren District Director of the Women's Institute was present at the recent meeting of Melrose WI when 17 members present at the home of the secretary Mrs. R. Clarke.

Following opening procedures a short business period took place with various euchre parties discussed. It was noted that a sum of $9.50 from the last party would be added to the funds. A thankyou note was also read from Mrs. A. Long who had been confined to Belleville General Hospital.

In speaking to the members Mrs. McLaren told of the district officers' meeting which she attended and explained some of the changes that would be made regarding conveners for the coming year. It was felt that the problem of pollution would be one of the group's main concerns.

A nominating committee was appointed at this meeting and included Mrs. D. McLaren, Mrs. H. McAvoy and Mrs. J. Sherman. A slate of officers will be brought in at the April meeting to be held at the Township School with Mrs. Don McFarlane as hostess.

In the discussion period mention was made of the Rock Festival which is planned for this summer on a farm in the vicinity of Queensboro. A number of the members presented their views of this event, all of which were dissenting and it was decided to send a letter to municipal council voicing protest from the Melrose W.I. They will also ask that action be taken to prevent further plans towards the holding of such an event.

Program convener was Mrs. G. McLaren who called on Mrs. B. Badgley to give a paper on public relations near and far. She also spoke on the United Nations using material from the pamphlet, "What you should know about the UN". Mrs. C. Hagerman gave a reading. Mrs. D. MacFarlane conducted a contest on jumbled kitchen utensils with Mrs. H. McAvoy and Mrs. E. Badgley the winners.

Family Honors Couple on 40th Anniversary

RAWDON — Mr. and Mrs. Francis Reid, fifth concession of Rawdon Township were honored Saturday evening in Springbrook Orange Hall on the occasion of their 40th wedding anniversary.

The couple were married at the Rawdon parsonage on March 14, 1931 by the late Fred G. Joblin.

Their children were present with them to mark the event and these included: Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Reid, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Reid, Mr. and Mrs. Roly (Joyce) Kleinschmidt, Mr. and Mrs. B. (Jean) Hare, and Mr. and Mrs. Allen (Marion) Warren, Ivan Reid and Mr. and Mrs. Wayne (Judy) Whitman.

The program consisted of a mock wedding and dancing. Later a supper was served in the banquet room.

Mr. and Mrs. Reid are members of the Bethel United Church and Mrs. Reid is a member of the UCW there.

The honored guests were the recipients of numerous cards and gifts.

Presentation Held

RAWDON — Well over 100 persons from Mount-Pleasant-Rawdon convened at Island Park recently and presented Carleton and Irene Potts with gifts on behalf of the community.

Mrs. Marguerite McMullen and Mrs. Garth Joslin conducted assembly singing. The evening was spent in playing crokinole and other games and the committee in charge served a buffet lunch.

Mr. and Mrs. Potts formerly lived on the fourth concession of Rawdon before they developed Island Park.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Mary Gives Readers Two Unrelated Recipes

By MARY MOORE

Two totally unrelated recipes are my contribution today. One is all purpose hermits which, if I know you, you will gobble up. The other is for German mustard.

This German mustard improves with aging and does not require sealing or refrigerating. Ideal to have on hand to serve with Ham or as one of the accompanying sauces for Beef Bourguignonne.

ALL-PURPOSE HERMITS (Easy; about 4½)

½ cup margarine
1 cup dark or light brown sugar (packed)
1 egg
½ cup strong coffee
1 1-3 cups stirred but unsifted all-purpose flour
¾ tsp. cinnamon
¼ tsp. cloves
1½ cups chopped fruits and nuts (any combination you have on hand — peel, currants, raisins, dates, walnuts, almonds)

In beater bowl cream together margarine and brown sugar. Beat in egg then beat in all remaining ingredients. Drop from wet teaspoon onto buttered cookie sheets at least 2" apart and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. 10-12 min. Watch them. Do not burn one. (These keep well if 12-year-old Gary does not find them.)

GERMAN MUSTARD (tasty)

½ cup dry mustard
½ cup sugar
¼ cup vegetable oil
½ cup horseradish
¼ cup vinegar — preferably cider

Mix together dry the mustard and sugar. Stir in oil, horseradish and vinegar until you have a smooth blend. Spoon into little 4-6-oz. jars, cover with Saran and lid and store at room temperature. It is recommended that you allow this to mellow for 3 months but it did not last that long here.

NOTE: If you plan on using it for fondue suppers I would advise you to double the quantities.

Ann Landers Wife, Husband Enjoy 'Playing Girl Friends'

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last May my husband asked me if he could wear one of my housedresses while painting the kitchen. He said it would be more comfortable. I said, "O.K." He did look awfully cute and I told him so. Ever since that time he has been wearing my dresses and wigs and makeup when we are alone. He has asked me to call him Linda when we "play girl friends," as he calls it.

I can truthfully say I don't mind. The only thing that bothers me is that he is prettier than I am. If we went out in public together he would get more whistles. Yesterday I read an article on sex deviates. It said men who enjoy dressing up in women's clothes are transvestites. I do not consider by husband abnormal. He is very manly in every way. He just happens to enjoy playing this little game. Is there anything wrong with it? I'd like your opinion. — HAPPY WOMAN WHO LOVES HER HUSBAND.

ANN LANDERS

* * *

DEAR WOMAN: My opinion is of no consequence. The only thing that matters is what you think, and apparently you think it is just fine. If you and your husband enjoy "playing girl friends," it's nobody's business. Just make sure the doors are locked and the shades down. And say hello to Linda.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a secretary who shares a lovely apartment with two airline stewardesses. Last night the lights went out suddenly. We knew it was a fuse because two of us were ironing, the electric coffee pot was on, and when I plugged in the mixer to make cookies the whole place went dark.

It went down and told the landlord. He very nicely said he'd put in a new fuse if I would accompany him to the basement and hold the flashlight. To make a long story short, he made a pass at me in the stairwell and I belted him in the chops. I cannot get him to serve of him — with his lovely wife sitting upstairs in the living room!

This morning we received a note saying the rent would be raised $40 a month. What should we do? — SAD TRIO.

* * *

DEAR TRIO: Write him a note saying you are not April Fooling — that if he is serious about the raise you'll be glad to discuss the matter with his wife — in detail.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a boy 16 and miserable. I have terrible acne. For two years I've been going to a dermatologist but the acne is no better. My dad is sick of paying bills and I am sick of looking at myself.

The other day some kid mentioned "sandpaper surgery." Can you tell me what it is? Will it help me? Is it expensive? Is it dangerous? Please, Ann, check this out with your experts and let me know. — BARNEY FROM BOISE.

* * *

DEAR BARN: Sandpaper surgery (or abrasive planing) will not help a person who has active acne. It is useful only after the acne has been cured. This surgery removes the top layer of skin and with it the blemishes, pitting and scars. Planing is not dangerous when done by a competent dermatologist. In incompetent hands, however, it can be a mess. But this is true of any surgery. The price varies, depending on the doctor. A top-notch dermatologist in Washington who serves as one of my principal consultants charges $600. The operation can be performed in the doctor's office but it is advisable to have it done in a hospital.

Remember this procedure is not for active acne. In your case, perhaps your doctor should try some type of radiation — ultra-violet or x-ray.

Successful Living

Behavior Stems from Family Rows

By DORIS CLARK

Why does Dottie stammer or stea1? Should we blame her, or something that happened to her in the past? It is hard to see what part the rest of us play in the behavior of our small girls and boys.

Psychologists tell us there is sometimes a surprising connection between parental rows and childish delinquencies.

Picture the distressing effect of having your two special grown - ups shouting in anger at each other. Your whole world topples — you are fine — and it leaves you unnerved. Perhaps shaking inwardly. Certainly not able to function in any integrated way.

Is it any wonder if such a child cannot talk straight? Or think clearly about what is right and what is wrong? When you add to this the desperate need he feels for his mother's attention and reassurance, you can see why he might turn to something quite jarring, like stealing from her purse — even if this brings about a spanking.

Better to have unhappy attention than none at all. Or so he sees it.

* * *

Dear Doris: Our son, a student in engineering, is fond of flying. He has managed to pay for a pilot's license and has acquired his night rating. He would like to go on for a commercial license.

He would rather have flying for a career than anything else. Where do the chaps get started? Would you have information about what courses into train students? — Up In The Air.

Dear Up: I made a special inquiry of Air Canada when I got your letter. They suggest:

1. Have your boy continue with his flying and obtain his commercial license through the flying club which is located near you. With that he will be in a position to apply to an airline.

2. The airline will then arrange to test him, and if they like him and need pilots (and the demand fluctuates) he can get training at the airline school. Air Canada has this type of school in Montreal, and graduates get their transport licence.

His required medical examination could be done at the flying club. Such things as heart, lungs, blood pressure, eyes are examined with great care.

* * *

Dear Doris: Please send me the information about "Concerns".

My wife and I both recognize the harm of the drug, alcohol, so never used it. But we both wonder why so many people, even non - drinkers, think it necessary to serve it.

And why so many hosts are insulted when we ask for ginger ale or some such. At a tea party no one seems to mind if someone prefers coffee. — Pass The Teapot

Dear Teapot: Far too many people lean on alcohol to make them sociable.

The hostess with the mostess is, still offering orange juice — in fact has a couple of glasses on the same tray, and makes no comment at all when a person sleets juice instead of liquor.

Let a Canadian second worker in on your difficulty. Doris may be able to save the day for you.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "I know you would like to watch TV, but it will waken the baby. The least little noise seems to disturb her."

Father: "I'm almost afraid to breathe since we brought her home."

Even babies who are extra sensitive to noise, as some are, will learn to tolerate normal household sounds in a few weeks. However, if the family tiptoes and whispers all the time, the baby may not become accustomed to sleeping through routine noises.

Mother: "The doctor says the baby is an unusually light sleeper, but she soon will learn to sleep through normal noises."

Father: "I'll keep the TV turned low."

Any Child-beating Suspicions Investigated by Welfare Dept.

EDMONTON (CP) — A pretty 1½-year-old girl was brought into a doctor's office suffering from massive bruises, a broken leg, a broken arm and a large swelling on the side of her face.

The mother said the little girl had fallen downstairs, but the doctor was doubtful that these injuries had occurred naturally. He admitted the child to hospital, where he found out from her records that she had been in hospital before with concussion—said to have been caused by a fall from a crib.

The doctor called the Alberta social welfare department, which began an investigation into a possible case of child-beating.

Dean Melsness, provincial director of child welfare, said this might be a "typical case of the battered child syndrome." And instances of child-battering are common enough so that typical case histories can be drawn up for study.

The cases are used in medical, nursing and social work courses because beatings of children are common enough to warrant medical and social work personnel being trained to recognize signs of symptoms in time to try to prevent them from leading to death or permanent injury.

In the case Mr. Melsness was describing, the mother broke down and admitted that she had beaten the child.

"This isn't typical," Mr. Melsness said. "In most cases the parents would attempt to deny it and most cases would have to be taken to court—provided the doctor was willing to testify."

But this case is intended to show why the beating took place.

The social worker referred the woman to a psychiatrist. He found out that the little girl was the middle child of three. Two boys, four years and six months old, completed the family.

The husband and wife lived in a four-bedroom house in a suburb of a large city. There were no financial difficulties.

But since the birth of the last baby, the woman had not been able to cope with the care of the three small children and all the housework. She got increasingly tired and short-tempered. She felt she never got out of the house.

She could keep the little boy occupied with television and the baby was placid and behaved well.

But the little girl would cry and demand attention.

"I told her to stop," said the mother.

When the 18-month-old girl didn't, the mother picked up a hairbrush and began hitting her. Then she lost control and just kept hitting and hitting.

"I didn't mean to hurt her, though," she said.

The psychiatrist found through questioning that the mother's own childhood had been full of rejection and hurt. She had been rejected as a child. Her parents had been extremely strict, spanking her frequently with a piece of board kept for that purpose, and keeping her locked up.

This history of rejection in the offending parent's own childhood is fairly common, Mr. Melsness said.

In this case, the husband was shocked. He had been unaware of any problem on the part of his wife.

In other cases, Mr. Melsness said, the other parent often knows about the beatings, but won't say anything about it.

This little girl returned to her family from hospital, with the department's social worker continuing to visit regularly. The mother continued to see the psychiatrist. The little boy was started in nursery school.

"This has given the woman a chance," Mr. Melsness said. "Left alone and unattended, there would have been the possibility that she would destroy the child. Now it gives a more severe beating another time."

He thinks it is important for health and welfare personnel to have a high "incidence of intervention" in cases of childbatterings.

"It's better to catch the home situation early and cure it and cure the parent than to have to eventually take the child or all the children away from the home."

He'd like to see small, community mental health agencies that could fill the gaps. But the trouble is that there aren't enough good agency workers to go around.

KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Exactly How IUD Works Not Known

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am a mother of two fine children. Although I am not, my husband and I have decided a boy and a girl are sufficient to complete our family.

I still believe the Pill is the best and safest way to prevent fertility. Regretfully, however, I'm giving it up on my doctor's advice. He says that my having had a severe attack of phlebitis during my second pregnancy is reason enough for not taking it any longer.

As I'm not temperamentally suited to using a diaphragm the doctor has suggested that I have an IUD inserted. But he hasn't explained just how this intra-uterine works. Can you help? — Mrs. J.

COMMENT: It's likely he didn't explain because the medical profession does not know exactly how it prevents pregnancy. One suggestion is that the presence of the plastic device in the uterus over-stimulates muscular contraction in the uterine tubes. This hastens passage before fertilization can take place.

What it comes down to, Mrs. J. is that the choice of a contraceptive agent should really be left to the combined judgment of doctor and patient. After discussing the problem the obstetrician or gynecologist will decide which method will be most effective and acceptable. Women who rely upon their own judgment often discover that the method they have chosen is less effective than they hoped.

* * *

For Mrs. M.: Neither the drugs you mention nor hormones increase the size of the breast. Do not take them "on your own." Do not rely on the advice of your well-meaning friend. Depend upon a professional friend's tips on longevity.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: If you were giving tips on longevity, what would they be? In other words, what's the best way to stay healthy? — Mr. G.

COMMENT: Good hereditary probably ranks first in importance. If your mother and father lived into their late 70s and 80s and your grandparents and uncles and aunts were long-lived, then you have a good, solid base on which to build a long life.

But of course there are other factors. Do you go about killing yourself with bad habits? For example, are you too tense? Too unhappy in your work? Do you smoke?

A study by Dr. Erdman B. Palmore of Duke University indicated that two important keys to longevity are satisfaction in one's work and a general attitude of happiness. Ranking after them is abstinence from tobacco.

Does your physical makeup and way of life fit this formula, Mr. G.? If so, there's a greater likelihood for longer life.

* * *

For Mrs. U.: Ordinarily, undescended testicles are not a formidable problem. As your own doctor has suggested, there's time for your five-year-old to wait before undertaking any specific treatment. Later on, sex hormones may hasten the descent of the testicles into the scrotum. If by the age of 10 (or earlier) such treatment hasn't been successful, then operation will accomplish the purpose.

* * *

For Mrs. Y.: According to Dr. Frank C. Coleman, president of the American Association of Blood Banks, approximately 25 per cent of all blood transfusions now go to cancer patients.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Mediocre Always at Best

Thoughts at Large:

We save our highest regard for the person who thinks more of others than he does of himself — why then do we idolatrize our own countries, which always put their self-interest ahead of others?

* * *

Those who tend to be disappointed when their favorite author or athlete or actor fails to make a hit should keep in mind Maugham's observation that "only the mediocre man is always at his best."

* * *

A "change of scenery" would be a satisfactory prescription for a neurotic patient only if he could leave himself behind.

* * *

The idea of "democracy" has escaped just far enough to convince us that we have no social superiors, but not far enough to persuade us that we have no social inferiors.

* * *

Back at the dawn of civilization, if we are to believe Hesiod and Homer, people were expressing a yearning for "the good old days" — which is nothing more than an unadmitted desire to return to the womb.

* * *

Intelligence does not consist of making fewer errors than stupidity makes, but in refusing to codify them into a system, and then justifying them as "standard operating procedure."

* * *

Erotic love between the sexes is possessive, but parental love must convey the gift of freedom; and whenever parental love is possessive, it indicates an ungratified erotic love on the part of the parent, who is transferring to the child an illicit share of the conjugal relationship.

* * *

True eloquence is never a matter of words, but always of ideas; this is the chief distinction between the orator and the prophet.

* * *

Most people confuse "efficiency" with agitation and fail to understand Thoreau's remark "The really efficient laborer will be found not in a crowd his day with work, but will saunter to his task surrounded by a wide halo of ease and leisure."

* * *

Cybernetics can free men from the necessity of doing dull, dehumanizing and repetitive jobs; but it cannot guarantee that their escape into leisure will not be just as deadening in a different way if the boredom of triviality is not replaced by the passion for creativity.

* * *

If we track a mighty river down to its source, we see the tiny trickle from which it sprang — and so it is with our unhappiness, if we have the courage and perseverance to follow it to its source.

When we label a person, the designation often tells more about us than about him.

Cents-off Promotions Opposed

TORONTO (CP) — Two leading supermarket chains said Wednesday they have set deadlines after which they will not accept cents-off promotions from their suppliers.

Harry Guest of Loblaw Groceterias Co. Ltd. said "an ultimatum" had been issued but specified no date.

Ed Harvison, public relations director of Dominion Stores Ltd., said: "We have a deadline — in the near future — a definite program to eliminate the cents-off promotions."

Spokesmen for Oshawa Wholesale Ltd., which includes Food City, and Steinberg's Ltd. and Miracle Food Mart both said they have encouraged suppliers to stop the cents-off promotions.

Vern Barber, general manager of Oshawa Wholesale, said such promotions confuse the consumer who is unsure whether the deduction has been made on the shelf or will be made by the cashier.

Mr. Barber said that such promotions also mean that "the regular stock has to be set aside until the cents-off labelled goods are sold."

Canadian-made Label Proposed

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford said Wednesday he will consider introduction of a label that would clearly identify Canadian-made goods.

He agreed in the Commons to a comment by Marvin Howe (PC—Wellington-Grey-Bruce) that consumers now are confused when they try to distinguish between Canadian and foreign goods.

Mr. Basford said the idea of a label to end this confusion was a good one. His department had been concerned about this matter for some time.

BOTTLE GIMMICK

SASKATOON (CP) — An anti-pollution gimmick created by six Saskatoon high school students was a statue made of 5,000 non-returnable soft-drink cans and bottles. The statue was eight feet wide and eight feet high. The cans were collected from the streets around Nutana collegiate.

Civil Service Indians Sought

OTTAWA (CP) — The Indian affairs department plans to hire 300 Indian university and community college students for summer work this year as part of its drive to attract Indians into the public service.

Two years ago, the department established a recruitment program "to increase the numbers of Indian people either occupying decision-making positions, or having the potential to rise to responsible levels."

As of Jan. 1 this year, the number of Indians employed by the department climbed to 1,114 compared to fewer than 700 two years earlier.

Counting the 653 Indian teachers employed in all regions, this meant that 28 per cent of the department's 6,238 employees had Indian status.

One of the vehicles used to increase the number of Indian employees was an order-in-council passed by the cabinet allowing the department to set aside 25 learning positions for Indians only.

Science Report Reaction Is Mixed

TORONTO (CP) — Reaction has been mixed on a report by a special senate committee on Canadian science policies, says an independent monthly science journal.

Science Forum had asked Canadian scientists and engineers to send comments on the senate report which said the Canadian science policy has led only to failures.

One letter to the magazine, from Dr. John Doldak, associate professor of engineering at Carleton University, said the report did not clearly recognize that the fundamental failure of Canadian science policies has been "our inability to transmute knowledge into marketable products and processes."

Donald S. Scott, vice-president of the Canadian Society for Chemical Engineering and a professor at the University of Waterloo, wrote:

"The Canadian Society for Chemical Engineering considers that the first volume of the report of the senate special committee on science policy could be a milestone in the development of a rational approach by the Canadian government to technological and economic planning."

Dr. Harry E. Gunning, head of the chemistry department at the University of Alberta, said in his letter that the senate report was written in such a way as to alienate many first-class scientists engaged in basic research.

Foreign Investors Assailed

TORONTO (CP) — A national official of the Progressive Conservativi party said Wednesday continued foreign investment in Canada is harmful to the country's growth and "will be catastrophic by the end of the '70s."

Edwin A. Goodman, Toronto lawyer and organization chairman of the party, said dividends, interest, royalties, license and management fees and service charges collected in Canada by United States companies have exceeded their new investment in all but two years of the 1960s.

Mr. Goodman, a sponsor member of the Committee for an Independent Canada, told the Association of Ontario Land Economists that U.S. companies use their retained earnings and money borrowed in Canada to purchase Canadian businesses.

"In short, we are not only selling ourselves but we are providing the money to the purchasers as well."

Britain Ends Tight Money

LONDON (CP) — Britain relaxed its tight-money policy today and lowered the Bank of England's lending rate to six per cent from seven per cent.

Before the cut the Bank of England's rate had been the second-highest in Europe. Only Denmark has a higher level at eight per cent.

The British bank rate had stood at seven per cent since April 15 last year. Today's move was seen as a bid to stimulate Britain's flagging economy which has resulted in nearly 800,000 unemployed.

Today's cut brought interest levels down to their lowest since the 1967 monetary crisis which led to devaluation of the pound.

The bank rate is the key to lending rates throughout Britain.

Today's cut, coming only two days after the budget had freed industry from some of its crippling taxes, should give a renewed impetus to industrial expansion by making capital for development cheaper to borrow.

Industry will benefit from the cut almost immediately but for the man-in-the-street it will, like many of the budget changes, be a delayed benefit process.

The cut in the rate indicated the start towards some easing in credit controls. Time-buying interest rates should also come down benefiting such consumer sales as autos, domestic electric appliances, furnishings and other goods. This will call for greater production and a bigger labor force.

Farmers Can Get Grants for Holiday Homes

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"Either my crystal ball is out of order or you're going to be the first lady astronaut to land on the moon."

Loan Ceiling Raised

TORONTO (CP) — Increases in loan ceilings and further financing to tourist operators was announced in the Ontario legislature Wednesday by Trade Minister Allan Grossman.

The two-part program will provide incentives to tourist operators to enter off-season recreation fields and assist smaller operators to obtain funds for financing improvements to current facilities.

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario farmers who want to improve their farms so they can act as hosts to city people wanting a country vacation will be eligible for up to $1,500 in provincial grants, Agriculture Minister William Stewart announced Wednesday.

He told the Ontario legislature this innovation and other changes in the capital-grants program to farmers became effective today. Changes in the grants program were hinted at in the speech from the throne Tuesday.

The maximum grant per farmer for capital works will be raised to $3,000 from $2,500 with a maximum $6,000 available when two or more persons form a farming partnership, he said.

The program was set up for 12 years in 1967 for farmers who make an annual income of at least $3,000. Grants have been used to construct buildings and for drainage, water supplies and removal of fences.

Farmers will also be eligible for a $5 grant for each dead or diseased elm tree they remove to a maximum of $500 in addition to the maximum $3,000 for capital works.

For some years Ontario has assisted municipalities in removing trees suffering from Dutch elm disease and this extension will provide, the same aid to farmers.

The other new classification for which the department would make available grant funds was 'farm vacation hosting."

Mr. Stewart said increasing numbers of city dwellers are anxious to spend vacations on farms and he sees this as a potentially important source of new farm income.

Capital grants will be made available to bring the farm home up to a suitable standard to receive guests.

Mr. Stewart said that to be eligible for such grants, the husband-wife team must have attended a training course or be considered "capable of hosting vacationers" and must make a long-term commitment to the program.

Grants will be on the basis of 40 per cent of the cost of the facilities to a maximum of $1,500.

In addition, the department has added a number of other items eligible for 40 per cent grants—maple syrup structures, bulk milk tanks and livestock scales, for example.

RC Trustees Asked to Call for Anti-PC Vote

TORONTO (CP) — A resolution asking Roman Catholics to vote against Ontario's Progressive Conservative government will be presented to the provincial convention of separate school trustees this week.

The convention, which opened today, will consider the resolution from the Carleton Roman Catholic school board, asking that it allot funds for a publicity campaign "to inform the separate school ratepayers of Ontario that there are two political parties in Ontario which support the extension of the separate school system to Grade 13."

The Liberal and New Democratic Party opposition have favored tax support of separate schools beyond the present Grade 10 level but the government has declined to extend the present support.

Dr. N. A. Mascini, president of the Ontario Separate School Trustees Association, said a professional survey conducted for the OSSTA showed that more than 50 per cent of the 2,000 persons interviewed favor extension to Grade 13. Only 27 per cent of the respondents were Catholic, compared with the provincial ratio of 33 per cent.

Davis to Give Details

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis said Wednesday he will disclose details today of his government's new program to provide 130,000 jobs through building 30,000 dwelling units.

He made the statement in the Ontario legislature after questioning from Opposition Leader Robert Nixon and Stephen Lewis, New Democratic Party leader.

Mr. Lewis asked that he disclose the amount of money that would be provided by private industry and the Ontario and federal governments under the $500 million plan that was announced in Tuesday's throne speech.

Mr. Davis said his reply today "would include all of those items."

When questioned at a news conference on the job program Tuesday, the premier said reporters would have to wait for the budget April 26 for details.

TORONTO (CP) — Roman Catholics, despite increased pressure on the provincial government, still lack any formal reply to their brief requesting extension of provincial financing to Grades 11, 12 and 13 in the Catholic separate school system.

Ontario Education Minister Robert Welch Wednesday night remained firmly noncommittal on the question before he addressed more than 500 attending the annual conference of the English Catholic Education Association of Ontario.

The separate schools presented a brief to the government in May, 1969, asking that support be extended beyond the present Grade 10 cutoff point.

Lasso 4 with Atrazine gives season long control of annual grasses and broadleaf weeds

Last year Lasso 4 was a brand new herbicide and we made a lot of promises. Now the promises have been proven.

Lasso 4/atrazine will not damage your crops or ruin your rotation plans because there is less carryover.

Lasso 4/atrazine controls both broadleaf weeds and grasses (including crabgrass, fall panicum and barnyard-grass) in corn.

Lasso 4 is available from your local farm supply dealer.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, APRIL 1, 1971

By Maurice Switzer Sports Editor

Every Montreal Expo fan in the country is probably praying for the hasty disappearance of the three inches of snow currently quilting Jarry Park.

There's one exception. Jarry's head groundskeeper Jolse Veal wants that insulating blanket right where it is, at least until warmer temperatures become more regular.

"We've removed 4,000 truckloads of snow, and in some places we still have snowbanks 20 feet high that have to be removed," Veal was saying Tuesday. "But we've had the field down to three inches of snow for two weeks.

If the remainder was cleared now, the field would freeze, he explained. The cover is needed until the mercury remembers which way is up. "If we had two days of 50 degrees, we could play a ballgame next Monday," Veal ensured.

Les Expos, currently worried more about sunburn than chilblains, won't hold their head groundskeeper to his promise. They'll settle for Tuesday, April 13 when they play their home opener against New York Mets.

One of the Mets' 1969 World Series' heroes — outfielder Ron Swoboda of nosedive fame — became an Expo Wednesday in exchange for 22-year-old pasture-roamer Don Hahn. Another one-time Met — infielder Ron Hunt — figures big in manager Gene Mauch's plans for "81 in "71", which means a .500 season.

Hunt, acquired from San Francisco Giants, plays a stingy second base, and has been batting at a .400 clip in the pre-season grapefruit league. The two big league veterans should bolster a youthful Montreal lineup that surprised everyone, including themselves by surpassing Mauch's quota of-70 wins in their 1970 sophomore season.

Better Than Larsen

Some of the Expo youngsters haven't been doing too badly themselves as the Montrealers bob around the .500 mark from their West Palm Beach home training base.

Carl Morton, whose 18-11 record last year earned him National League top rookie honors, wowed everyone with a 5-2 four-hitter over the Atlanta Braves last week, dispatching 32 batters in a mere two hours and five minutes.

That made the prize carrot-top the first major league thrower to have a full game in spring training. But more astonishing was Morton's nine-inning total of 85 pitches, a dozen fewer than Don Larsen used to perfect-game the Dodgers in the 1956 World Series.

The Braves were impressed. Enough as to keep Hank Aaron on the field after the game for extra batting practice after Morton made him pop to the infield twice and ground out in his other appearance.

Morton, incidentally as popular as fellow redhead Rusty Staub in Montreal, may be given the first Jarry Park pitching assignment: April 13.

Draft Blowing In

At the moment, Montrealers are more concerned with hockey, and are hoping Wednesday night's 6-3 trimming dished out by Boston to the hometown Habs was not a premonition of things to come. The two teams meet in the NHL's "A" quarter-final playoff series next week.

If not a series with the boisterous Bruins, the Habs do have the upcoming overage junior draft to look forward to some degree of delight.

They own the first selection of a brilliant crop of exciting juniors, courtesy the last-place California Golden Seals. The Seals are the NHL's runaway rotten apples, having won 20 games in 76 tries. That earned them first junior draft pick, which they long ago swapped for another pensioner to add to their youth program.

And what a choice the Canadiens have. In this corner we have Guy Lafleur, who scored 130 goals, and also found time to collect 78 assists for Quebec Remparts. Some scoff at the calibre of the Quebec junior league, but 130 goals wouldn't be bad pickings if you play nd for the St. Pierre and Miquelon Sardine Oilers.

Someone suggested this week that Lafleur would be the logical choice to step into the Number 4 sweater of Jean Beliveau, who may be humming the first bars of his swan song. Lafleur wears the same number on his Remparts jersey.

Seconds Not Bad

The Habs could opt for Richard Martin, who scored a paltry 71 goals for the Montreal Junior Canadiens in the less generous of the OHA Junior circuit. And there's Marcel Dionne, who prefers to win scoring championships by sitting out a few weeks to give the other guys a fighting chance.

None of the early draft grabbers are overlooking Trenton native John Garrett, who has just won his second OHA Junior A top goaltending award in as many seasons with Peterborough Petes.

Garrett was rated among the top six junior prospects in a recent survey of NHL scouts. One birddog said goalies are rarely taken too seriously in the draft since most of them mature later than other players.

He made an exception of Garrett, who he regarded as one of the fastest puck-stoppers he had ever seen.

But as usual, the cream of the junior hockey crop will run through the fingers of such powerhouse franchises as Pittsburgh and Oakland, whom the system was designed to benefit.

As long as draft choices can be traded, the rich will get richer, and the poor will lower Hockey Night in Canada ratings.

Lions Left

TRENTON — The Trenton Lions Club midget all-stars remain as the lone local standard bearers in OMHA "AA" playdown action as the Trenton Junior Ranks Juveniles were eliminated by Owen Sound in the deciding game of their semi-final series last night.

Owen Sound and Trenton were forced to play a fourth game in what was originally slated as the best of three series when the teams each won a game and the third contest ended in a tie.

Owen Sound picked up a 5-4 win Wednesday night to give them the series win.

Debbie Twiddy of Centennial Secondary School practices her routine for the intermediate balance beam competition at the Bay of Quinte girls' gymnastics meet to be held at Centennial Saturday. Over 80 girls will be competing for the right to represent the area in the COSSA championships.

Girl Gymnasts Find Loneliness A Problem

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

The "loneliness of the long distance runner" really doesn't have much on the frustration of the floor performance or the pain of the parellel bars.

Five months of hard training could end in a Bay of Quinte championship or nothing but bruises at the girls' gymnastic championships this Saturday.

"It takes a long time for a performer to work into shape so she can accomplish things that she was able to do the year before, let alone add some new additions", notes Centennial girls' gymnastics coach Mrs. Connie Williams.

"It's a sport for the individual and you have to work harder because you aren't able to depend on your teammates", she adds. 'With girls a lack of confidence is often a big factor and they miss things in a competition that they can do easily in practice."

For aproximately 80 girls in the Belleville area, Saturday will be the testing ground of their months of training.

Competing in the Bay of Quinte COSSA championships will be students from all city secondary schools as well as those from Picton, Trenton, Napanee, Madoc and Cloyne.

The four events that will be contested in the meet are the balance beam, uneven parallel bars, vaulting and floor exercises.

Picton will be out to defend the team title which it won at last year's event and the top individual performers in each event will get a chance to perform at the Central Ontario championships against the winners from the Peterborough and Oshawa areas.

The meet will be held at Centennial Secondary School and will run from 9.30 a.m. — 3 p.m. Saturday. Admission is 50 cents and spectators are welcome.

Peewees Mash Madoc

Rollins peewees mashed Madoc last night to the tune of 10-3 in an OMHA exhibition bout.

Twin Attack Made On Ten-year Jinx

There will be a twin attack on a ten - year jinx in tonight's fourth round of play in the Quinte Curling Club's closing event.

While no skip in the history of the event has managed to repeat as a winner of the Northern Electric Trophy for the first event, two previous champions still have chances for an encore performance.

Last year's champion Bill Henderson and '67 winner Dave Brown remained in the running for top spot with wins Wednesday night.

Rounding out the field of seven still in contention for the championship are skips Bill Hipwell, Dave Brown, Bill Spinelli and Bill McPherson who have each won two games and Finlay McCorquodale who has recorded three consecutive victories.

The field of 36 rinks will be thinned tonight with the losers being eliminated from further competition.

Last year's over-all champion Millie Smith will be seeking a repeat performance in the City Association Women's 10 Pin Tournament this weekend. Competition will be held for teams, doubles and singles in the two-day event with the top ten pin bowlers from Belleville and Deseronto taking part.

Softball Strikes Sarnia

There may still be some snow in the air, but there's also the occasional hint of a softball or two.

This weekend marks the 49th annual meeting of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association, with the 1971 edition taking place at Sarnia's Village Inn.

Convention activity gets under way at noon Friday, and concludes with a softball clinic at 9 a.m. Sunday.

One of the busiest persons in attendance will undoubtedly be Belleville's Cliff Belch, OASA secretary.

Ford's Idea Better

It looked very much like the final game of the House League semi-finals series Wednesday night between Eric Watkins Texaco and the OSD Kicks would go into overtime, but Ford had a better idea.

Then Ford of Eric Watkins tallied an unassisted goal with only 19 seconds remaining in the game to give his team the third and deciding game of the series.

Rick Mundorff earned the shutout for the winners who will meet Arthur A. Sills in the championship game Saturday at 6 p.m.

Smiths Set Standard

One group of Belleville women will be definitely attempting to "keep up with the Smiths" this weekend, at least as far as the tenth annual City Association Women's 10 pin Tournament is concerned.

In last year's event Millie Smith won the over-all trophy as well as competing on the top team and first place doubles combination while Barbara Smith took the honors in singles competition.

Over 50 Belleville and Deseronto bowlers will be attempting to unseat last year's champions when play gets under way Saturday.

The team event will be held Saturday at the Brunswick Bowl at the Belleville shopping plaza with the singles and doubles play taking place Sunday at the Lucky Strike lanes in Deseronto.

Each team will consist of five bowlers and there will be 11 squads rolling for top team honors.

The three team sections will get under way at 1 p.m., 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. Saturday, with singles and doubles action commencing Sunday at 1.30 p.m., 4 p.m. and 6.30 p.m.

With Their Record, Bruins Can Be Biased

By NICK FERRIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

"I suppose I'm prejudiced, but I think our line has to be perhaps the greatest in hockey," Ken Hodge said Wednesday night in one of the year's best understatements.

Hodge had just collected three assists to set a season record for points by a right winger—104—as Boston Bruins dumped Montreal Canadiens 6-3 in National Hockey League action.

In other play, Toronto Maple Leafs and Detroit Red Wings skated to a 2-2 tie, New York Rangers nipped Chicago Black Hawks 4-3, Buffalo Sabres walloped Pittsburgh Penguins 6-4, California Golden Seals beat Minnesota North Stars 4-1 and Vancouver Canucks and Los Angeles Kings played to a 3-2 tie.

Hodge's three points enabled him to break his previous mark of 103 set by Gordie Howe, veteran Detroit Red Wing winger, two seasons ago. Hodge has 42 goals.

Esposito, who sets an NHL record for most goals in a regular season each time he gets a goal, reached his 70th and 71st goals for 145 points.

The Canadiens, who meet the Bruins in the Stanley Cup quarter-finals starting April 7, jumped to an early lead when John Ferguson scored with the game just 59 seconds old.

Esposito scored less than four minutes later with the Canadiens two men short and Dallas Smith at 13:04 with the Bruins a man short to give Boston the lead they never lost.

Howe, nearing the end of his 25th NHL season, holds records for the most goals—785—and most assists—1,023—for regular-season play, as well as many others.

The Red Wings led 2-0 after 40 minutes but the Leafs came back to tie the score with goals by Jim Dorey and Dave Keon in the final period.

Eddie Shack notched three goals at Pittsburgh as the Sabres built up a 4-0 lead going into the final period, then beat back a Penguin rally.

The Golden Seals banged in two goals in the first period and two more in the second before Minnesota broke Gary Smith's shutout midway into the final period.

Wayne Maki fired both Vancouver goals at Los' Angeles. Going into the third period with the score 1-1, Mike Byers put the Kings out in front at 13:30, But Maki tied the game 17 seconds later with his 24th of the season.

Kelly Blames Spirit

PITTSBURGH (AP) — For this season, Pittsburgh Penguins are dead—out of the playoffs. Coach Red Kelly lays most of the blame on a lack of team spirit.

"I didn't realize what the problem was exactly or how deep it was until mid-February," Kelly said. "But I hoped it would change.

"We arrived last year because of team work," Kelly said. "But this year it was apparent that the club was going to struggle from the start."

"We'll probably go down in age pretty much next year," Kelly said. The average age of the Penguins this season is just over 30. Because of a rash of serious injuries, which Kelly refuses to use as an excuse for the Penguins' woes, at least six rookies have seen action.

"Team spirit is a fine instrument we're tuning. There's not much time for the lack of it. It can get out of tune so fast and become discordant."

Only April Fools Bet Against Russians

GENEVA (CP) — Only an April Fool or a senile bookie would bet against the Soviet Union winning the 1971 world hockey championships as they near the final whistle, but a little luck and a lot of goals could put the silver and bronze playoffs up for grabs.

The Soviets have 15 points from eight games and a goals total of 69 for the 18 against. Czechoslovakia has 11 points from eight games in which they have scored 35 goals and given up 16.

The Czechs look good to capture the second-place silver medal in the six-country playoffs, although either Sweden or Finland has an outside chance to sneak in if the Czechs fall apart in their last two games. Czechoslovakia's comfortable goals margin would have to be overcome, too.

The Swedes, upset 2-1 by lowly West Germany Wednesday, have the toughest going in their quest of the third-place bronze medal.

Giacomin Will Save Celebrating Until Monday

The veteran goalie refused all congratulations Wednesday night after New York's 4-2 victory over Chicago gave the Rangers a substantial 10-goal lead over the Black Hawks in the race for the Vezina Trophy.

The Vezina goes to the team allowing the fewest goals during the regular National Hockey League season and the only time New York has ever won it was 1928-40, the last time the Rangers won the Stanley Cup.

"That's nice," said Emile Francis, the coach. "Maybe history will repeat itself."

Even Francis seemed satisfied that with a 10-goal cushion and only two games to play, the Vezina was safe. But not Giacomin.

"See me Sunday," said the goalie. "That's when I'll celebrate. No, make that Monday, when I wake up."

The Rangers conclude their regular season this weekend with games Saturday in Montreal against Canadiens and at home Sunday against Detroit Red Wings. But Giacomin is running scared. That's because he has a long memory.

"About five years ago, we came down to the final day leading for the Vezina runner-up by six goals," he recalled.

"Chicago was playing here on the last night and they beat us 8-0. We finished third, two goals behind the Black Hawks.

The Vezina is worth $1,500 to the winning team's goalies, meaning $750 apiece to Giacomin and his swing man, rookie Gilles Villemure.

Detroit Party Set for Saturday

DETROIT (AP) — Gordie Howe will be given a delayed 43rd birthday party at Detroit Olympia Saturday. It will be held prior to the Red Wings' final game of the National Hockey League schedule.

Howe, winding up his 25th season as a Red Wing, will be given some awards in brief ceremonies before the game with Chicago Black Hawks. Mrs. Jack Adams, wife of Detroit's late general manager and coach, will make the presentations.

Howe also will receive the most valuable player award from the Detroit chapter of the Professional Hockey Writers Association.

He received a standing ovation that lasted about one minute.

"To the greatest of right wingers from one who knows something about skating on thin ice, congratulations on your birthday and your 25th anniversary in NHL," the telegram said.

Earlier in the day, Howe made several public appearances including one at city hall where Mayor William Dennison presented him with a pair of cufflinks and a pin for his wife, Colleen.

TORONTO (CP) — Gordie Howe, in his 25th National Hockey League season with Detroit Red Wings, was honored on his 43rd birthday Wednesday by Toronto Maple Leafs—the team against which he scored his first NHL goal in 1946.

In the brief centre-ice ceremony before a crowd of 16,483, Howe's former teammates Norm Ullman and Paul Henderson, traded to Toronto by Detroit in 1968, also congratulated the Detroit captain.

Expos Swap for Swoboda

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ron Swoboda was always popular and sometimes controversial in a New York Mets uniform.

After he contributed to the 1969 World Series victory over Baltimore Orioles, Swoboda's stardom nose-dived like his head-first catches and the outfielder never hid his displeasure about manager Gil Hodges.

Well, he's not complaining anymore after his trade Wednesday to Montreal Expos.

"I can tell you he's happy now, Montreal Expos general manager Jim Fanning said after acquiring Swoboda and minor league Dick Hacker for outfielder Don Hahn.

Montreal manager Gene Mauch is happy, too.

After Swoboda's .400 average and hard-to-believe catches helped clip the Birds, Hodges continued to platoon the right fielder in the 1970 season. His bench-sitting sparked several Swoboda outbursts, including the baseball cliche: "Play me or trade me."

Swoboda, 26, a right-handed hitter who has been with the Mets since 1964, has a lifetime batting average of .242.

In another trade, Montreal sent outfielder-infielder Jimmy Qualls to Cincinnati Reds for outfielder Stan Swanson. The Expos also trimmed their squad to 29 by sending infielder Angel Hermoso and pitcher Bob Reynolds to Winnipeg Whips of the International League and placing pitcher Jim Britton on the disabled list.

Minnesota Twins released two well-known and injury-plagued right-handers—Dave Boswell and Luis Tiant. Boswell, 36, plans to try out with Detroit Tigers and Tiant, 30, with Boston Red Sox.

Frank Howard delivered two mammoth homers Wednesday as Washington Senators took a 6-5 victory over Baltimore. Both clouts cleared the 70-foot fence 380 fee away in left-centre field.

RON SWOBODA

St. Louis Cardinals scored six unearned runs in the sixth inning and went on to a 12-2 rout of Pittsburgh.

Vida Blue allowed five hits in six innings as Oakland Athletics ripped California Angels' B team 6-3.

Tommy John pitched eight shutout innings and Rick Reichardt knocked in four runs with two homers, leading Chicago White Sox to a 17-1 rout of Detroit.

Pete Koegel's double broke a 1-1 tie, highlighting a three run fourth-inning outburst, as Milwaukee Brewers downed Cleveland Indians 4-3.

Winning pitcher Juan Pizzaro's two-run triple highlighted a five-run eighth as Chicago Cubs whipped San Diego Padres 8-3; Greg Garrett allowed only three hits in six innings as Cincinnati Reds beat Kansas City Royals 3-0 and Jim Bunning checked Minnesota on one run in seven innings as Philadelphia Phillies stopped the Twins 4-1.

Elsewhere, Cesar Cedeno collected a triple and two doubles, driving in two runs, as Houston Astros swamped New York Yankees 9-3 and southpaw George Stone gave up just three hits in six innings as Richmond of the International League topped the parent Atlanta Braves 7-6.

Willie McCovey homered in the fifth inning, as San Francisco Giants topped Los Angeles Dodgers 8-1.

Ali Adds It Up

CHICAGO (AP) — That $2.5 million Muhammad Ali got along with a defeat by Joe Frazier in their heavyweight title bout doesn't rest that way in Ali's bank book.

"I was paid $2.5 million, but the white man in Washington took $1.5 million from me the next day," Ali told a student audience at Chicago State College.

"New York State put a lien of $300,000 against each of us, and that left me $620,000. Then, I had to pay my trainer, sparring partners, expenses, hotels, airplanes and everything, so I came out with about $450,000.

"Then I had to buy my home, furnish it, landscape it, and take care of my mother, father and brother . . . and when I break it all down, I'm almost busted."

Ali, who got a $1,500 fee for his hour-long speaking appearance, told the audience: "There will be a rematch."

THE INTELLIGENCER

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For April 2 —

Your birthday today: Greater responsibility and more authority come your way this year. You may be called upon rather abruptly for unusual service beyond your formal training. Today's natives have acute intuition dealing with matters which can be brought to completion within short periods or cycles.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): You will have to budget your time today to avoid embarrassment. Take a complete change of pace this evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Unusual requests come to you now, some of them urgent. Let some more serious than surface appearances indicate.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Old problems, nuisances are subject to sudden solutions. The key may be supplied by strangers unaware of what they suggest or inspire.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): You can make good use of all the help that comes your way, so extend the invitation generously.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Restless as you are, just going somewhere won't solve any thing. Take a holiday if you can contrive it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Watching others with special knowledge or trained aptitudes reveals something worth knowing. Follow examples of strongly successful people.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Your intuition is keen where material benefits are concerned, likely vague or insensitive on most other matters.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 — Nov. 21): Now your timing improves. If you deserve a greater reward for what you do, ask for it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Life presents a softer, lazier side. It's up to you to resist temptation and put in a full day's work.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Leave your plans flexible, to include more help or to reach out to help somebody without upsetting your basic program.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): What you hear is out of context or incomplete. Act only where you have very good confirmation of facts and figures. Plans and budgets show rather hopeful developments.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Making changes casually is easy but apt to generate more confusion later.

Canada's Final Space Study Satellite Races Into Wild Blue

LOMPOC, Calif. (CP) — Canada, with a big assist from the United States, made it four in a row Wednesday to close out its special space study of the ionosphere, a blanket that affects everything from radio reception to man's ability to live.

A big U.S. Delta rocket lifted the fourth and last satellite, designed and built in Canada for the special ionosphere studies, into a near-polar orbit so perfect that it had Canadian scientists almost ecstatic.

Early checks on the satellite proved it had achieved the desired circular orbit about 750 nautical miles above the earth's surface and that all the basic systems aboard were functioning.

These included extension of the big information-gathering antennas—one 240 feet long and the other 50 feet in length—that are the heart and soul of the satellite. They work on additional information to back up and extend that gathered by the predecessors.

The satellite was launched from the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration western test range here. Liftoff was at 6:57 p.m. PST.

Once it was determined that ISIS was going to make it into proper orbit, it got an official name change to ISIS II. This made it the fourth in a Canadian-designed and Canadian-built series of space snoopers that started in 1962 with Alouette I.

The successors were Alouette II and ISIS I. All are still reporting data back to earth stations.

The program was planned in advance to cover an 11-year cycle. This would take care of the sun's cycle of quiet and violent activity, as far as sunspots and radiation are concerned, from a start in late 1963 through 1973.

Going on results from past performances, which have generated interest in several countries ranging from Norway to Japan, Canadian scientists are understandably excited.

The program has brought wide response and every bit of excess information is welcomed by the Canadian team that first decided the ionosphere was worth detailed examination.

There were worries Wednesday that surface winds, rising above 25 m.p.h., could delay removal of the gantry, the support structure from which late-stage checks are made.

But the winds died down in the late afternoon and things became favorable for launch within the 45-minute "window" for the satellite to go off and achieve its planned orbit.

When it finally did blast off, it was 27 minutes behind its earliest possible time but still well within the 45-minute period. In fact, as one Canadian scientist admitted later, if it had gone at the first optimum moment after the window opened, it would have wound up in a less satisfactory orbit than the one it finally achieved.

The liftoff came just after the sun had set and it hit up the coast for miles as the rocket roared away spewing a rosy glow.

First checks on the performance of the space craft came from Johannesburg, South Africa, where the word was that the final stage of the rocket had burned completely and that the spin on the satellite appeared to be right.

This was double-checked when the satellite first bove into sight over the north pole and was monitored by an Alaska space tracking station. But the real confirmation came when it once again passed by the western test range here and earth-bound scientists were able to make a thorough check of all the basic engineering systems aboard.

It will be five days before the scientists begin turning on the experiments aboard the satellite and two weeks before it is in full operation but the Canadians making up the scientific crew are willing to bet their collective lives the satellite will perform as planned.

BC Ad Ban Will Apply To 'Imports'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The head of a major magazine distributing company said Wednesday he has been advised by the attorney-general's department that the forthcoming ban on liquor and tobacco advertising in B.C. will apply to magazines printed outside the province.

James Grubb, manager of Vancouver Magazine Service Ltd., said he was told the ban, which goes into effect Sept. 1, definitely includes material coming into B.C. for distribution.

During debate in the legislature preceding final approval of the legislation Tuesday, opposition members repeatedly asked Attorney-General Leslie Peterson how the law would be applied to advertising in out-of-province journals.

Without giving a clear-cut explanation, Mr. Peterson said:

"I think the provisions-in this particular statute must be read in the light that the province can only legislate within its own jurisdiction."

Mr. Grubb said if the government is able to enforce the ban, it would virtually wipe out the magazine sales business in B.C.

He said readers would be forced to obtain out-of-province magazines by subscription through the mails.

"In other words," he said, "publishers in Eastern Canada would earn extra profits at the expense of earnings and jobs in B.C."

4,590 Students In Default

OTTAWA (CP) — Since the student loan plan was begun in 1964 there have been 4,590 defaulters, the Commons was told Wednesday.

In a written reply to questions from Alfred D. Hales (PC—Wellington), Finance Minister Edgar Benson said the defaulted claims totalled $4,369,501 to the end of 1970. In addition, death claims involving 506 students totalled $558,022.

A collection agency, employed in 1969 to recover the claims, collected $46,500 in 1968-69; $85,409 in 1969-70 and $259,800 in six months to Dec. 31. The firm charges 20 per cent of the amount of principal and interest recovered.

Rail Freight Is Embargoed

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's major railways clamped a country-wide embargo on all freight shipments effective noon today, 72 hours before the deadline for a nationwide rail strike.

The action was taken as negotiators for the CNR, CP Rail and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers resumed closed-door talks in an effort to head off a strike by 7,000 engineers set for noon Monday.

Railway spokesmen said the freight embargo is in effect a notice to shippers and connecting carriers of the threatened disruption of service.

"We're trying to spot our equipment as best we can, so as to be in a position to get rolling again as quickly as possible," a CNR spokesman said.

Neither union nor management bargainers would comment on progress before today's session got under way at about 10:15 a.m.

Neither side appeared encouraged, however, by a bargaining session Thursday that lasted a little more than four hours.

"I CAN'T ... para 4—and eliminating lead 62 which superseded

CNR negotiator K. L. Crump said he didn't know whether a settlement could be reached before the strike deadline of noon, local times, Monday.

Salary has been the main issue in the negotiations to replace the last contract which expired a year ago. Engineers earned an average annual wage of $10,650 under the previous agreement.

House Votes To Extend U.S. Draft

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The Nixon administration emerged victorious today over doves in the House of Representatives who tried to end the draft and ban the use of draftees in Indochina.

A series of dovish amendments was scuttled Thursday night as the House voted to extend the draft for two more years, boost military pay and include non-resident aliens in the draft if they stay in the United States for more than two years.

The draft continuation vote, 253 to 99, followed a string of White House victories over anti-war congressmen who want to trim presidential authority over the use of the selective service system.

"Woos that Eskimo here, this penguin there, and take the pipeline through here!"

Mackenzie Pipeline Possible

VANCOUVER (CP) — Energy Minister J. J. Greene says the Mackenzie Valley may become a pipeline route even if U.S. companies go ahead with plans for an Alaska crude line and a tanker shipping route.

He said the first line to be built would be a gas line—since gas cannot be transported in tankers as oil can and since there is not the same problem with permafrost thaw as there is with an oil pipeline.

Mr. Greene, in an interview following his address Thursday to the Pipe Line Contractors' Association of Canada, said an oil line from Canadian arctic wells would only be built if far-larger petroleum resources than exist on the north slope of Alaska are found.

The minister said the Mackenzie Valley route is still being considered as an alternative to shipping Alaska crude oil in tankers.

Hiring Safari Pared to Bone

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Applications are flooding in for teaching positions with Hastings county board of education, 800 for 60 vacancies.

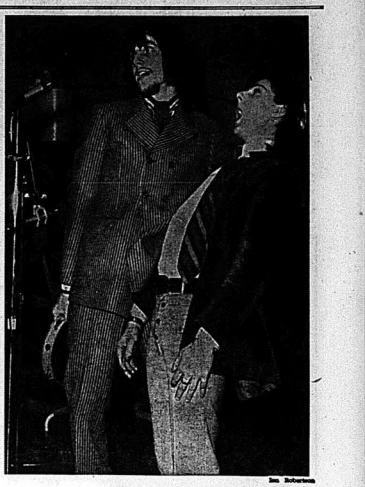
For the first time in years, it's a buyer's market for boards. Most, but not all, interviews will be conducted in Belleville instead of in Toronto. One hiring team has been sent to Toronto to pick up experienced teachers, primarily for two schools, Moira and Bayside. But most teachers will be coming to the board this year, instead of the other way around.

Interviewing begins tonight at Centennial Secondary School and continues Saturday morning.

Teachers will travel here at their own expense. As a result, hiring expenses are expected to go down 80 per cent from the high of about $22,000 a few years ago at the peak of the teacher shortage.

Six hundred have applied for the 30 replacement positions open in elementary schools. Because enrolment in elementary schools will climb by only 200 pupils this year, no additional teachers will be required to augment existing staff.

Because of the opening next year of Bayside Secondary, the board is after 30 additional secondary school teachers. It has a wide choice — 200 teachers have applied for the jobs



The number of secondary school teachers required to replace those who will resign is not yet known. In view of the tight job market, teachers who intend to move on to positions with other boards are waiting until they are sure of employment before they submit resignations. But board officials expect the turn-over rate to be much lower this year.

Last year the board employed 646 elementary school teachers, 127 newly hired during the spring. Ninety-one of the 496 secondary teachers were newly hired last spring.

From the applications received here, board officials deduce that experienced teachers will be staying put this year. Most applications are coming from recent graduates of teachers' colleges and colleges of education. All other factors being equal, the board is trying to give preference to Hastings county residents. One hundred elementary school applicants have been invited to interview tonight and tomorrow at Centennial, but the remaining 500 applicants are free to come to be interviewed if they wish.

"There are bound to be a lot of disappointed people," says Robert Horwood, associate superintendent in charge of teacher hiring. "It seems too bad that people who have spent a long time preparing for a profession won't be able to practise it."

Administration's mood is sympathetic, and so every qualified applicant will be granted an interview. It is director of education Eric Runnerve's opinion that all new-comers to the profession deserve to be received with courtesy by the old pros, even if there's no hope of offering them jobs.

East Pakistan Rebels Still Resist Troops

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — The Press Trust of India and All-India Radio reported today that fierce fighting is continuing in strife-torn East Pakistan, but official Radio Pakistan maintained that the region is calm.

All-India Radio reported that West Pakistan Air Force planes strafed Sunamganj town in the Sylet district of East Pakistan Thursday night and that 300 West Pakistani troops surrendered in Jessore town on the Indian border.

It said the town has been taken over by supporters of Sheif Mujibur Rahman, earlier reported arrested by Radio Pakistan in the East Pakistan capital of Dacca.

Quoting what it described as reliable sources in East Pakistan, Press Trust said Sheif Mujib's "freedom fighters" captured the towns of Dinajpur, Rangpur, Bogura, Kushtia, Mymensingh and Sylhet.

West Pakistani troops are surrendering unconditionally in these areas and grim fighting is continuing in Dacca and Rajshahi, the sources said.

Israeli 'Dove' Likes Sadat Plan

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Deputy Premier Yigal Allon of Israel gave a favorable response today to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's new proposal for reopening the Suez canal.

He warned, however, that "we must arrive at the kind of legal arrangement that will not weaken Israel's defence setup in the Sinai desert."

"Egypt has made a proposal for reopening the Suez canal to international shipping without reaching a full peace treaty, and we should be ready for such a partial treaty," Allon told an Israeli journalists' luncheon.

Egypt's Middle East news agency reported today that Sadat, in a restatement of his position, would agree to a new extension of the ceasefire and reopening of the canal if the Israelis pull back from the waterway and withdraw from part of the Sinai desert. But he said Egyptian troops would move into the territory vacated by Israel, a point that is certain to be strongly opposed by hawks in the Israeli cabinet. Allon is known as one of the main doves in the government.

Solar Station Shelved in Favor Of Space Plane

HOUSTON (Reuter) — Plans for a permanent multi-manned space station have been shelved as a result of the Unites States space agency's decision to go all out for a reflyable space plane called the shuttle.

A space station, the most ambitious project dreamed up by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, now is at least 15 years away, probably longer, NASA officials admit privately.

"I can't envisage, the way things are going today, that we are going to be able to build a shuttle and a space station in parallel," astronaut chief Donald K. (Deke) Slayton told space reporters recently.

Present plans call for the shuttle to start operational service in 1979 after a two-year test period.

Nixon Frees Calley from Stockade

FORT BENNING, Ga. (AP) — On Monday Lieut. William L. Calley's future was at stake. Tuesday his life was at stake. Wednesday he was spared. Thursday he faced life in prison. Today he was back in his quarters with limited freedom.

By order of President Nixon, Calley was taken from armed custody behind the barbed wires of the post stockade Thursday and returned to his bachelor quarters.

Only a day after he was sentenced to life imprisonment for murdering 22 Vietnamese civilians at My Lai, the boyish-looking lieutenant was ordered released by the president pending the completion of a full review of his conviction by an army court martial.

The presidential order was not a legal step, said White House press secretary Ronald Ziegler. In response to questions, the press secretary said the president was aware of widespread pro-Calley sentiment that has been expressed in thousands of telegrams to Nixon. But Ziegler added that the action "was taken at the president's own initiative."

Under the president's order, Calley was granted the status of an army officer confined to quarters under "light guard." He can go to the laundry, to a movie, to church; but always—even in his quarters—an armed military guard must remain with him.

Calley cannot leave the post without permission. He cannot talk to reporters. He will be allowed the visit of friends. He will not be allowed, however, the privileges of the officer's club or to attend official social functions at the post.

Three hours after the dramatic intervention by Nixon, Calley walked from the stockade to a waiting car. Blinking from the glare of television lights, he was taken to his quarters.

Calley had been kept in the stockade under heavy guard since a six-man military jury convicted him Monday on charges of murdering unresisting Vietnamese men, women and children at the Vietnamese hamlet March 16, 1968. He had been charged with 102 killings.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Colder weather is returning to Ontario as an early spring disturbance rotates slowly across the southern part of the province. Temperatures will be dropping steadily today in many locations reaching the 20s tonight in the south. Rain and drizzle in eastern Ontario will change to snowflurries later today. On Saturday chiefly sunny and cold weather is expected across the lower lakes. Daytime high temperatures in the southern regions are predicted to range from 35 to 40 both today and Saturday.

Loose Dogs A Concern

Five people in this area have recently been bitten by dogs and one of the dogs was definitely found to have rabies, according to a report from the Hastings and Prince Edward counties health unit. At present four people are being given anti-rabies injections.

The veterinarian of the health of animals division and the medical officer of health are greatly concerned about the frequent recurrence of dog bites in the district.

The public is warned to rigidly adhere to the regulations and bylaws that forbid dogs to run loose unattended. The owner of a dog which has bitten a person is liable to be prosecuted. Persons bitten by dogs should report to their family doctors immediately.

Purple Penguin Show An Interesting Blend

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

What promised to be an interesting but unexceptional evening of folk songs and poetry provided by local guitar artists and a smattering of virtually unknown imported talent, last night proved to be a better than expected blend of artists.

Purple Penguin, an oddly appropriate name for Loyalist College's annual folk night, was a disappointment only in the size of its audience. But those who did attent, and a random head-count indicated the crowd to be in the neighborhood of a hundred or so, gave little thought to the size of the audience.

Musical talen on the local scene, whether it be folk, country, rock or classical, ranges from surprisingly good to under-the-shower class.

However, this range, on the whole, didn't come into effect in the dimly - lit setting provided for the Penguin participants. Self-conscious t h e y may have been, but once on the stage, the performers delivered an excellent show.

Returning to the campus, former student Ian Tuck was backed up by a duo known as Doug and Peter, from Trenton, delivered folk favores of today with a well - blended rhythm.

Backstage rehearsing can provide the only basis for comment of the performances of foursome Pat, Donovan, Joanne and Steve, and folk-artist Donna Hutchison, but if their pre-stage music is any example of their music, the crowd was in for an appointed. A little on the remorseful side, the foursome's contribution was another in a plaintive songs was much more than adequate.

One sour not in the evening's entertainment was a local poet's attempt at poetry. Some members of the crowd were turned off by the questionable taste of Wally Keeler, whose choice of words, might well have been considered over - colorful, to say the least.

Modern poets and song - writers tend to flavor their messages, but we might have hoped for something a little less tasty.

The cherubic grin of Ottawa - based Frank Morrison may be resigned to make the listener sit up and take notice, and in this, he is successful. A difficult performance to describe, he joins Jim McIntyre, another Ottawa performer, on stage as a duo known simply as Harold.

Vaguely remembered from a now - defunct group called The Townsmen, who made the high school circuit in Ottawa, these amiable kooks have a package unlike anything since the days of Spike Jones and his City Slickers.

Having been described as a non - folk group, young audiences might tend to shy off, but with no basis for worry, a ridiculously - funny series of songs on such subjects as bones - made wise and foolish, eum, kept the crowd in stitches.

The songs are simple, the messages are virtually non-existent. These lads simply entertain but their entertainment is definitely not simple.

". . . chunks of apple, bits of grass, they made the lights go dim—
HAHA . . . ha ha . . . HAHA
HAHA . . . "

Nonsense? Well, maybe, but Mr. Jason's HAHA Juice is a song drawn from a real-life character.

And then, if these two humorists weren't enough, La Trouve (Loosely translated, an odd name for an odd couple, melted the past semblance of somberness that might have lingered over the college-age crowd.

Paul K. Willis and his mindsidekick Michael Boncoeur, emerge on stage, with props of a coffin (hence the name Grotesque) to literally explode on the audience.

What better way to inform the audience of a part being played than by advertising. Such was the case with a brief skit concerning a secret agent bent on protecting the morals of the sidekick. The method, employed by Willis, in something resembling a German uniform, appropriately labelled Gestapo Agent, was to demoralize the victim with a rendition from the Valley of the Dolls.

Cups usually experienced in shows such as this, a fate experienced by the two previous Purple Penguins, were well-filled by the evening performers, a blue feather in the caps of producers Dianne Harvey and Vicki Bateman.

Coffee and Song..A Blended Mix

Dark shadows and a spotlight or two provided the right setting for last night's third annual folk night at Loyalist College in Belleville.

Parks Board Declines Food Stand Operation

Despite prospects of a $10,000 annual profit for the first creation - Arena Committee from the operation of its own canteens, the Belleville Parks Board still has no desire to get into the food catering business.

This was again stressed yesterday when board members met to discuss tender forms for leasing of canteen operations at Zwick's Island, the city fairgrounds, and at Alemite Field to private enterprize.

At their last meeting board members agreed that the canteen operations for the three sites be advertised, but yesterday Alderman Donald Sotter, chairman of the Recreation - Arena Committee pointed to the success of his committee's canteen operation at the arena and at the Ben Bleecker Auditorium and suggested there was too much money involved for the parks board to turn down.

Unaudited statements for the recreation committee's canteen operation showed a profit of $1,891 for January and $1,432 for February. Ald. Sotter said the net profit in nine months operation had been $8,000 and could amount to $10,000 for the full 12-month period.

But Parks Board chairman Ald. Paul Russell said he was personally against the board getting into the food catering business and other members indicated they had not changed their minds from the earlier decision.

Vice-chairman Robert Phillips said however, that he would be prepared to again take a look at the matter following a suitable trial period by the recreation committee in their operation.

As a result of yesterday's meeting it was decided to call tenders for operation of the canteens at Zwick's Island and Alemite Field on a three-year basis, with the contract term for the fairgrounds canteen to be for one year. The successful bidder will operate the canteens at all three locations.

Also, the successful bidder will have the right of refusal to operate a mobile canteen at the fairgrounds, and possibly at soccer pitches or other specified park locations.

Authority was also given for the purchase of two new trucks which would be used in any possible river cleanup operations under the student employment program. Board members were advised the trucks were needed even without the student work program.

Mayors of Week Receive Gifts

This year's seven "mayors of the week" representing the seven higher sests of learning in the city, were honored by city council Monday.

The seven students — two girls and five boys — were presented with cuff link and tie bar sets by Mayor J. Russell Scott.

In making the presentations at the outset of council proceedings, Mayor Scott said he hoped the tokens of appreciation would assist students to remember their periods at city hall.

He also hoped the gifts would encourage the students to keep up their interest in civic affairs and possibly take an active part in civic administration in later life.

Education Policy Flayed In Liberal Resolution

TRENTON (Staff) — Representatives of the Prince Edward - Hastings Liberal Association have announced adoption of an education policy paper that lashes out against the credit system in the schools, a lack of adequate testing methods and a general Americanization of education in the province.

The resolution states that "students produced by our system lack the self-reliance, self - confidence, and willingness to work which are the product of meeting challenges and proving oneself in meaningful competition."

With the stripping of competition from the system, it says the students, "are being artificially sheltered and is allowed "to stumble through a series of fleeting successes."

"The credit system allows the student to follow the path of least resistance unless the student in exceptionally determined and gifted."

The policy paper contends "a true preparation for life will let them experience both success and failure." Such experience, the paper states, is denied "in a system that tries to please everyone and test no one."

Ontario, it says, has adopted an American behavioralist form of education but points out that U.S. schools are torn by riots.

The new policy paper recommends a return to "traditional policy" with greater powers going to the principal and "little red school house" morals and discipline.

Home Recipe Plan Takes Off Ugly Fat

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this at home for yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just a few of your drugstore and ask for Nanex. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoonful twice a day as needed and follow the Nanex Reducing Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; 1 pound of unsightly fat and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips calves and ankles just return the empty bottle, for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. Smokers' Course Offered

Has tobacco addiction got you down and do you really want to quit smoking?

If so the Women's Christian Temperance Union, Belleville Branch, wants to help and suggests that smokers try the five - day plan that works.

The organization is sponsoring the showing of two films nightly for five days next week, April 5-9 at Centennial Secondary School auditorium. Admission is free and there will be doctors in attendance to answer questions. The films will be shown at 7.30.

Managers To Meet

The Canadian Institute of Management, at its June 23-26 national convention in Ottawa, will discuss management's viewpoints on three major themes.

Of major concern at the workshops will be the problem of keeping Canadians working 12 months of the year; second topic for discussion will be the problems of bringing labor and management closer together; and the third subject at the workshops will be the issue of foreign ownership in Canadian business.

The 1971 convention of the 5,000 - man CIM will be held at the Skyline Hotel, Ottawa. More than 800 are expected to attend the bilingual affair.

Saved by Hardhat

Plant worker at Wilson Concrete Products Ltd., J. F. Napoleon St. Pierre, West Moira Street (right) and Clifford S. Neill, plant personnel manager and safety co-ordinator, are seen with safety hat which saved Mr. St. Pierre from possible death or serious injury. Mr. St. Pierre is holding a short steel lifting bridle which fell nine feet, struck his hard hat and knocked him to the floor. Mr. St. Pierre's safe work practice and wearing of safety equipment has earned him membership in the Industrial Accident Prevention Association Crown Club.

Local Cancer Campaign Preparations

Art Show At Kente

AMELIASBURG (Special)—An art show displaying the results of classes in water color, sketching and oil painting at Rednersville Public School, will be displayed at Kente Public School here on Saturday, April 17, from 7 until 10 p.m. and Sunday, April 18, from 2 until 4:30 p.m.

The classes in art, conducted by Mrs. Donnah Cameron are an extension of adult night school classes presently being County schools.

TEMPORARY STREET CLOSING

Herchimer Avenue between Station Street and Southview Avenue will be closed to through traffic commencing Friday, April 2, 1971 for approximately two weeks. It is recommended that Victoria and Bleecker Avenues be used as a detour.

Construction of a sanitary sewer necessitates the above noted temporary closing. We apologize for any inconvenience caused.

W. C. Purcell, P. Eng.,
City Engineer.

Apple Growers Meet Next Week

Apple growers from the Quinte and Lake Ontario regions are invited to attend a meeting of the Ontario Apple Marketing Commission to be held Tuesday April 6 at the Canadian Legion Hall in Trenton.

The pricing commission will meet in the morning with the marketing division session to commence at 1:30 p.m.

Harold Bonter, Ameliasburg apple grower and marketing commission director for district 8, said the new policy of holding commission meetings in centres outside Toronto, was an attempt to gain more active participation on the part of growers.

"Local growers will turn out at a meeting in Trenton, where they would not drive to Toronto," Mr. Bonter said.

Tuesday's meeting in Trenton will be the third held under the new policy with earlier sessions being held at Woodstock and Collingwood.

District 8 of the apple growers association, for which Mr. Bonter is director, takes in from Trenton to Gananoque and north to the Ottawa Valley.

Non luncheon will be served at the Trenton meeting with a period to be allotted for open discussion at which time growers may make suggestions and answer questions.

Commission directors will arrive in Trenton April 5 and will attend a retirement banquet in honor of Morley Webster, fruit and vegetable extension specialist for the Ontario department of agriculture and food at Brighton.

Business has also begun to dig in its heels, with Western Canadian rain farmers expected to be among the hardest hit if the brotherhood's 7,000 engineemen walk off the job.

Hopes for a settlement were re-kindled with the announcement hours before talks resumed Thursday that the railways had reached a contract agreement with eight unions representing 55,000 non-operating employees.

Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey, who attended the Montreal news conference at which the announcement was made, said he hoped the settlement would bring pressure to bear on the locomotive engineers.

Later, in Ottawa, he told the Commons that all elements for an agreement with the engineemen were "in place."

Outside the House, the labor minister said it would be a matter of "judgment and opinion" whether the government could permit a strike to occur.

An emergency Commons debate on the threatened strike has been considered a distinct possibility.

A walkout Monday would tie up all traffic on the national railways, including freight, passenger and commuter service.

Parliament ordered 120,000 striking non-ops and trainmen back to work after seven days in the last major strike in 1966.

At present, only the running trades—the 7,000 engineers, about 20,000 trainmen and 3,000 firemen—are still in a position to walk off.

The non op contract announced Thursday is similar to an agreement last Dec. 18 affecting 22,000 railway shop-craft workers.

If ratified, these settlements will bind 78,000 members of 15 unions under contract until the end of 1972. This group represents machinists, electrical workers, plumbers, clerks, porters, signalmen, communications employees and others not directly involved in operating trains.

Sugar Bush Open Weekends

Heavy labor requirements have always been a factor in the production of maple syrup.

There is still plenty of work involved in the tapping, sap collection and boiling down operation, but modern day technology is gradually changing the picture.

Five years ago Cyril and Isabella Shaw were the first maple syrup producers in the county to switch to plastic tubing for sap collection.

And this year they have changed to oil heat for the evaporation process with oil burners replacing the piles of slabs formerly used to keep the fires burning. The Shaw's tap more than 2,000 trees and have two oil-fired evaporators, plus a gas fired "finishing" pan.

This weekend, April 3 and 4, and also on Easter weekend, the Shaw's are holding open house at their sap shanty in conjunction with a pancake dinner served in the Madoc township hall from noon until 4.30 on all four days.

The township hall is two miles north of Eldorado on Highway 62 — the Shaw farm two miles to the west.

Record Breaking Calf

This 168-pound Holstein bull calf, born March 18 at the farm of Richard and Jerry Chapman, Cooper, is believed to have established a record for birth weight. The calf was born to a 1,600-pound cow bred through Eastern Breeders. Garth Chapman, nephew of the owners is seen with the two-day-old calf which almost doubles his weight. Several weeks ago a 158-pound Holstein was born north of Napanee.

Student Tourists

Here we are into April and the countryside is still weighed down with a surfeit of snow. But then, can anyone imagine a blizzard in the Mediterranean? That is what the Centennial secondary school cruise students encountered when entering the Bulgarian port of Varna recently.

That the students received the kind of education impossible had they stayed at home was evident from an account of their experiences. One aspect of their tour is worth comment, for they encountered the kind of prejudice and atmosphere that one associates with the old days of empire and with the story settings of numerous Somerset Maugham novels. But we wonder can the young Canadians claim to be entirely free of prejudice themselves? They were upset, for instance, by the attitude of the English crew toward the Pakistanis who did the menial tasks on board ship. "The matrons called middle-aged men 'boy,' said one. It was degrading."

Perhaps so, but then you can hear the same term used in addressing Negroes in the deep south in the United States, and a similar arrogance of attitude. And do Canadians not exhibit similar prejudice toward the Indian people who are native to this country? If we notice them at all that is, let alone behave on a friendly and equal basis with them.

A pity too that the students should return from Istanbul only with the impression that it was poor and dirty and notorious for its pickpockets, hard-sell merchants and vendors. The historic Turkish city must have something better to offer than that, both among its citizenry and urban surroundings.

Let us remember once again that a balanced view is necessary to the complete picture of any given environment or situation. Too often we may be prone to emphasizing only one aspect — the worst — and being prejudiced ourselves as a result.

Calley Verdict

The guilty verdict, and life sentence imposed on Lieut. William Calley have been greeted by a storm of protest in the United States and beyond. He had been accused of the premeditated murder of at least 22 South Vietnamese civilians during the massacre at My Lai three years ago.

At the same time there must be countless other Americans who agree with the findings and sentence, and who are of the opinion that justice has been done. That a massacre of unarmed villagers — men, women and children — did take place is undisputed. Calley and a number of others were involved and more than 100 villagers died in a hail of bullets.

But if Calley is guilty, what of the entire war situation in Southeast Asia, and the conduct and policy of U.S. and allied troops there, not to mention the Communist enemy? Were there some extenuating circumstances? The fact, for example, that Calley's unit had taken losses in the area, and because of this the men were naturally keyed up, tense and angry. And significantly, into that they were engaged in a "search and destroy" mission.

Calley's interpretation of "search and destroy" at the time of My Lai is clearly a key factor. And if he is in the position he is today, there must be others in the entire echelon of command then and now who must share his guilt.

But whatever the orders, and their interpretation, there remains the issue of personal responsibility in such a situation as My Lai. If any enemy combatants were encountered on that occasion we never saw it mentioned. Why then should defenceless people be gunned down? There is the argument that as many or more have been killed in bombing raids, but can it be said this is as deliberate a thing as firing an automatic rifle point blank into a group of civilians?

Orthodoxy Prevails... Although

Ripples of Change Are Evident on the Soviet Scene

By CY FOX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The 24th congress of the Soviet Communist party is producing a variety of clues as to the direction being taken by Russian policy at home and abroad.

The reported differences of opinion within the Russian hierarchy are barely discernible through the general atmosphere of unanimity usual at party conferences.

Yet they definitely appear to exist and they affect both the conduct of foreign affairs and the handling of ostensibly undramatic issues on the home front.

Delegates at the Moscow congress are tough minded members of the party apparatus who can be expected to favor a rigorous approach to any expressions of fundamental dissent by intellectuals in Russia.

Yet the degree of toughness varies. And there is diversity, too, in the attitude of party officials towards the question of how far the Communist system should be changed so as to incorporate some degree of financial incentive for Soviet workers.

Some orthodox Communists oppose significant concessions to the capitalist principle that men work harder if offered the prospect of making profits for themselves.

Before the congress began, Brezhnev himself was reported to favor raising wages as a means of spurring workers to greater efforts. But those of his comrades thinking more on lines of established Communist practice reject this in favor of reliance on a well-developed proletarian conscience which they believe can be appealed to by authorities seeking higher productivity.

Along with these topics for Communist controversy has gone debate over the extent to which Russia can reduce its emphasis on developing that pillar of the traditional Soviet economic approach, heavy industry.

Brezhnev and his partner in the collective leadership, Prime Minister Kosygin, have had to compromise with party spokesmen more committed than themselves to the old economic ways.

There is evidence as well that in foreign policy the Russians are adopting a line somewhat less unacceptable in at least one respect to their giant rival for domination of world communism, China.

Moscow's call for a disarmament conference involving the globe's five nuclear powers follows similar suggestions from Peking.

Moreover, Brezhnev and Kosygin will find no respite in Eastern Europe from their foreign-policy problems. Communist Poland is still trying to recover from a near-upheaval among its workers last year and Romania is maintaining its maverick flirtation with China despite past frowns from Russia.

Pressure on Church Economics

Vancouver Sun

To everything there is a season, and for every activity under heaven it's time. A time to plant and a time to uproot: a time to pull down and a time to build up. — Ecclesiastes

Although it didn't fire half its national office staff before Christmas, as the Episcopal version of the Church of England did in the United States, the Anglican Church in Canada is in what its top administrators call a financial "crunch." This year, the church's 28 dioceses will receive almost $400,000 less from head office than had been originally budgeted. Dioceses and parishes have been told to tighten their belts accordingly.

The irony is that in terms of real estate and physical holdings our ma jor established churches are immensely wealthy; the "billion-dollar assets" of the fountainhead Church of England so impressed one commission appointed by the British government that it called for them to "be nationalized for the public benefit."

The further irony is that a number of factors prevent the church from readily converting its richest physical assets, high rent district property occupied by places of worship, to needed operating capital. Some, by virtue of their size, classic beauty and history, are public treasures and thereby inviola ble. Even the more modest downtown churches provide a sane relief from the sky-blotting towers of materialism, and for organized religion to join the materialists, if it can't fight 'em, is a concession today's threatened churches may ill afford.

Then, too, there's the question of obligation to the community posed by the churches' acceptance of tax-free status, where this applies. Is it right for the church to capitalize on this privileged position for a coup in the marketplace? Is it unfair competition to secular industry which not only must pay taxes but does but its proportion of those unpaid by the church?

Although it may be a cathedral in no more than name, and although its history is short as Vancouver's history is short, Christ Church Cathedral offers a case in point. Since it was dedicated in 1935, the value of the property it occupies at the northeast corner of Georgia and Burrard has risen to a reported $2 million from an original purchase price of $2,500. It is an oasis in an ever-rising canyon of concrete. Like all Vancouver churches, it has been exempt from civic taxes since 1928. And it is operating at a steady loss.

Can it be transformed into a revenue - producing skyscraper and retain piety too? Will the community at large, which has both an emotional and an indirect financial stake in this landmark, transfer its affection to a "little high-rise around the corner"? Will the city, or its agencies, or some other deus ex machina, arrive in the nick of time to save Christ Church Cathedral from what some call a fate worse than heresy.

Or is the church — as suggested by its choice of rationale, abridged from Ecclesiastes, and displayed like a masthead on the planning committee's informational pamphlet — simply more responsive to the "season" than, it seems, is much of the community, much of its own congregation?

Mammon might tell in the high-rise, but he will be supported in the built-in or adjacent church, "leadership in experimental worship," a studio with hospitality suite for visiting clergy, psychiatric counselling, group premarital training and, ah, "necessary parking for a worshipping community".

There is more, of course, to the biblical passage quoted by the practical men of the church, to weep, a time to mourn, a time to keep silence and to speak. And it is these reasons which seem applicable to those who value space, and a sight of God's sky, more than amply funded social servicing, and who are crying, "Is nothing sacred?" Because it's all too easy to sympathize with both viewpoints, a deus ex machina at Georgia and Burrard had better be ordered up right away.

The Nixon Administration's Increasing Credibility Gap

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — It may seem premature, but a great deal is being said and written on whether or not President Nixon will seek re-election in 1972. He himself isn't saying a word.

The speculation comes to a head at a time when Nixon's popularity, according to various polls, is at an all-time low despite a wide range of schemes to improve his image.

In the view of many observers, the majority of the American people simply do not believe Richard Nixon any more and Congress, as has been amply demonstrated, does not respond to his leadership and won't bow before the prestige of the office he holds.

It isn't a personal thing.

Hardly anyone, it seems, doubts Nixon's sincerity; no one is without sympathy as he carries the intolerable burden of office, weighed by the Indochina war, unemployment and inflation.

It is simply that many Americans have become wary of any administration.

Lyndon Johnson, elected by the greatest landslide in United States history in 1964, was driven out of the White House a few years later by what was termed his lack of credibility over the then Vietnam war.

In almost a replay of those days, Nixon and his spokesmen are insisting that they "have a plan" for getting out of Indochina; that "the plan has been implemented."

While the administration calls the pullback in Laos an "orderly withdrawal" and "mobile manoeuvring," for instance, men in the field and the television eye daily tell Americans it is a rout.

Although Nixon promised a surplus of $15,000 million, he eventually produced the worst red-ink budget in generations. While he touts glowing pictures of schemes to "turn the economy around," unemployment and inflation go on apace.

Evidence of the new mood — and strength — of the American public was the Senate vote last week virtually killing the multi-billion-dollar supersonic transport plane. Nixon had again put his prestige on the line, publicly advocating a favourable vote and privately phoning and writing wavering senators right up to the 11th hour.

What happened was that the American public was against the idea and rebelled. As one long-time SST supporter, Senator Clinton P. Anderson (Dem. N.M.) put it: "I read my mail," which was running heavily against the scheme. As some observers read it, taxpayers will not take on the financial burden of such projects, while also paying for the war, when the government is saying it cannot help bail out bankrupt cities and cannot provide adequate funds as broader health care for lack of money.

In a campaign to win broader popular support, the man who has been called "a very private president" has stepped into the limelight—summoning a handful of women journalists to his office for tea, appearing on a television show to chat about daughter Tricia's impending wedding, engaging in a two-hour television conversation with commentator Howard K. Smith.

But he didn't unbend much—he admits he's unusually stiff-necked for a politician—and the over-all message was pretty much the same. Indeed, by the time he got to the fourth program, many in the country were no longer even listening. The audience was cut and said to be unusually low for a presidential appearance, many having tuned in to old movies appearing on the competing networks.

The thing seems to be that it isn't Nixon as a person that has the voters upset, it is his war policy—as was the case in Lyndon Johnson's disaster.

All Nixon talk of a "generation of peace" and the war to end wars just doesn't carry much weight.

The American people, writes James Reston in the New York Times, "are passing judgment not on personality but on policy and they obviously don't like what they see."

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

April 2, 1951

At the regular meeting of the executive committee of the Belleville Red Cross Branch, Judge Anderson gave an interim report of results of the recent campaign in Belleville and a progress report from places in the surrounding district. A communication from headquarters stated that Belleville is among those places where a blood donor panel is to be set up in September in readiness for the Mobile Blood Donor Clinic which will visit in October. The chairman for the meeting was the newly-elected president, Mrs. W. C. Mikel.

A panel discussion, Radio and School on the Air, will be broadcast over radio station CJBQ by a group of Belleville Collegiate students who visited the United Nations headquarters in New York. Lt. Reid Scott accompanied the students will act as chairman.

Two Governments and Banks to Spend $500 Million on Ontario Housing Units

TORONTO (CP) — A breakdown of the approximately $500 million that the Ontario government expects will be spent on housing financed with government involvement this year shows that the federal government will provide about $210 million, the Ontario government about $225 million and five chartered banks a total of $100 million.

Allan Grossman, minister of trade and development, told the legislature Thursday government financing should result in about 30,000 new units. He said later about 20,200 of those would be started this year—only 4,100 more than last year.

He said the government estimates that total starts this year will be made on 85,000 units, about 8,400 more than last year.

Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, asked if the minister was aware that in 1968 then-treasurer Charles MacNaughton had said in the budget that Ontario needed 80,000 new housing units a year to stay even with the demand.

Mr. Lewis said Paul Goyette, head of the Ontario Development Corp., has said that Ontario is now short 65,000 and that this means a total of 155,000 housing units are needed this year.

Mr. Grossman replied by saying that the 76,000 units started last year was a record and that this year's estimated 85,000 could well be exceeded.

At a news conference later, Mr. Goyette and Mr. Grossman produced figures that show the province will provide about $92.9 million in "new" money—money that was not left over from last year.

Mr. Goyette said the importance of the announcement of the government's plans for housing made in the speech from the throne Tuesday is a shift to increased government financing for privately-owned homes, compared to its concentration in the past on subsidized rental housing for low-income families and senior citizens.

However, he said he wanted to emphasize that there will be an increase in the number of units of subsidized housing this year.

A person who wants to build a privately-owned dwelling may be able to take a first mortgage representing 75 per cent of the cost from one of five chartered banks that are providing $20 million each for this purpose.

The Ontario government has made $20 million available for second mortgages, so a home buyer may be able to borrow up to 20 per cent of the cost from the province.

He would be expected to make a down payment of at least five per cent himself.

Mr. Goyette also said there will be more emphasis in the HOME program on single-family dwellings rather than condominiums, at least outside the Metropolitan Toronto area.

Some communities, such as Sudbury, need "other types" of dwellings, he said.

This means government financing is expected to provide about 4,000 more units this year than last.

Mr. Lewis asked in the house where the land will come from for OHC, CMHC or private developers.

Mr. Grossman said:

"There are all kinds of builders and developers who have land who will come forward.

In a statement later, Mr. Lewis said the program, which has been called the economic cornerstone of the speech from the throne, is "a travesty compared to the need."

"The housing program is nothing more than a very minor extension of what went before—a mere 8,400 units beyond last year."

He also questioned Mr. Grossman's statement that the housing construction could be expected to produce one year's work for 132,000 persons.

Housing Standards High

TORONTO (CP) — Private industry has been priced out of the low-income housing market by demands for high standards by both consumers and government, the president of the Ontario Urban Development Institute said Thursday.

Patrick A. Saunderson told the institute's annual meeting that private industry "has been in no position to satisfy the requirements of the low income earner."

He said construction material taxes, rising interest rates, rigid municipal construction standards and an insistence on quality "by people who have no obligation to relate standards to cost," are factors responsible for costly housing.

The institute is an organization of individuals and groups involved with land and property development and urban development and renewal.

Mr. Saunderson said it is impossible for any group to build low-income housing "without considerable subsidy."

Pensioners To Keep More

TORONTO (CP) — Needy pensioners staying in homes for the aged will receive an additional $10 a month in their "comfort allowances," Thomas Wells, minister of social and family services, said Thursday.

CMHC May Aid Private Developers

TORONTO (CP) — The federal government's Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. will consider helping private businessmen assemble land for development, a corporation authority said Thursday.

C. E. Locke, regional supervisor for Ontario, told the annual meeting of the Urban Development Institute, a group of developers, builders and civic authorities:

"We are interested in any proposal that you might have in that area."

The corporation has in the past helped provincial authorities assemble land.

P. A. Saunderson, president of the institute, questioned the advisability of government entry into the development of new towns.

He said governments should not limit the size of cities.

No Date Is Yet Set For Teachers' Parley

TORONTO (CP) — Education Minister Robert Welch said Thursday no date has been set for a planned meeting between himself and teachers' representatives in an effort to head off a threatened strike by the province's secondary school teachers.

"We're trying to arrange something," he said in comments on his statement in the legislature Wednesday that he was willing to meet with the teachers' representatives.

Last week, 300 delegates to the annual convention of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation approved a motion asking their executive council to formulate some form of action Monday, May 3 as a protest against provincial restrictions on spending by school boards.

The executive council has not yet met to decide whether such action would take the form of a one day walkout, a prolonged strike or a rotating strike.

G. P. Wilkinson, president of the OSSTF, has said the strike threat might be dropped if Mr. Welch can show that the quality of education will not be hurt by the spending ceilings.

Manitoba Car Accident Victims To Get $50 A Week If Disabled

WINNIPEG (CP) — Premier Ed Schreyer revealed details Thursday of Manitoba's public auto insurance plan which is to come into effect Nov. 1.

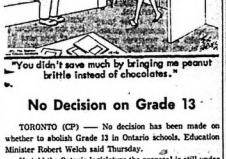
While many facets of the plan have been made public earlier, new details include a rating system based on the year and model of a vehicle and a lifetime disability payment of up to $50 a week for an accident victim.

Provision of a lifetime disability payment with no upper time limit for permanent and total disability is far in excess of standard benefits offered by private insurance companies, Mr. Schreyer told a news conference.

He said there will be three rating districts for the province: Metropolitan, for drivers in Greater Winnipeg; rural, for drivers in the rest of Manitoba south of the 53rd parallel; and north, covering Manitoba north of the 53rd parallel.

Within these districts, vehicles will be rated on "a sophisticated basis," with separate rates published for each model and year, moving away from the existing system of flat rating determined by a vehicle's wheel-base.

In addition to the lifetime disability insurance, Mr. Schreyer confirmed that the basic package which Manitoba drivers will purchase from the government will consist of $50,000 third-party liability insurance, $200 deductible, all perils, death benefits to a maximum of $10,000, medical benefits to a maximum of $2,000 and benefits up to $5,000 for dismemberment, disfigurement determined by a vehicle's age.



All benefits and the $200 collision and comprehensive will be based on the "no fault" principle.

The public insurance corporation also will offer supplementary coverage options, in competition with private insurance companies.

These options will include reduction of the deductible all-perils amount to $100 or $50 and an increase in third-party liability coverage to $100,000 or $200,000.

Actual rates for a particular make or model of vehicle will not be made public until tabled in the legislature later this month.

No Decision on Grade 13

TORONTO (CP) — No decision has been made on whether to abolish Grade 13 in Ontario schools, Education Minister Robert Welch said Thursday.

He told the Ontario legislature the proposal is still under study when asked about it by Ian Deans (NDP—Wentworth.)

Catholic Trustees Will Not Turn to Political Action

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's separate school trustees decided Thursday to take no political action against the provincial government after being assured they would get an answer in two months to their demands for extension of provincial grants to separate school systems.

Dr. N. A. Mancini, president of the Ontario Separate School Trustees' Association, told the association's annual conference that "some kind of answer" could be expected from the government on the extension demand, "perhaps in the next 30 days, and almost surely before May 26."

The association's first formal demand for extension of public support to Grades 11 through 13 of the separate school system was made in a brief May 26, 1969.

After Dr. Mancini's statement, delegates withdrew a motion calling on the conference to back candidates who supported extension of the separate school system in the next provincial election.

Impossible to Get Actual Figures On Number of Child Beatings

By GLENNIS ZILM
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A six-month-old boy spent 54 days in hospital last November with fractures of every rib, a broken right leg, a burn on the left leg, head injuries and possibly permanent damage to an eye.

And the sad—perhaps tragic part is that he wasn't in a car accident or hit by a train.

A court, deciding he probably had been beaten into this state by his parents, made him a ward of the court.

"It's impossible to get actual figures on the number of baby beatings in Canada," said Mary Van Stolk, an Edmonton author who is writing a book on baby-battering. But she believes that in the age group from one to 10 years, child beatings are probably the major cause of death, ranking even above accidents.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press showed there are few figures available, and those that are probably indicate only the tip of the iceberg.

For example, in Ontario, where there is a fairly good reporting system, 364 cases of child battering were reported in 1969. But many provinces don't keep records and unless a case is taken to court it is impossible to isolate the records.

A former official of the department of health and welfare estimated 2,000 children each year are killed or permanently maimed through battering by their parents in Canada.

Authorities in all provinces agreed that cases of child-battering cut across all social patterns. Beatings can happen in any type of home, rich or poor; the parents may be in any age group or either the father or mother or both parents may be involved.

But there are some common factors.

Most authorities agree that adults who beat children are mentally sick. The parent or parents need to be treated themselves and punishment is not the answer.

"The reasons parents or others mistreat children are varied, but invariably include mental illness, anxiety produced by marital strain, fiscal problems, inadequate preparation for child-rearing and lack of understanding and appreciation of child behavior," said Betty Graham, director of child welfare, Ontario department of social and family services.

"It can be because of a neurotic and depressed situation, which could cause the frustration level to become very, very low," said Eugene A. MacDonald, director of child welfare for Prince Edward Island. "It could be people not so neurotic who are just overwhelmed with problems and tensions and comes the last straw."

"You get terribly complicated relationships between parents and children," said Mona Robinson, head of the family services for the Children's Aid Society in Toronto. "A lot of parents tend to be hostile anyway. Some of these studies indicate they are children as things rather than as people."

Miss Robinson said studies done in the United States show that parents who have infants usually are under great stress.

Dean Melmess, director of child welfare for Alberta, said that a mother who might have managed to cope with one or two children could lose control with three babies close together. She begins to see only one who cries and it becomes a habit.

Only Ontario—which pioneered the way with legislation in 1966—British Columbia, Nova Scotia, Newfoundland and Alberta have laws requiring persons aware of child-beating to report them to welfare officials. Quebec has a bill in the works.

"The major problem in helping such children is the fact that people are reluctant to certify that damage has occurred because of battering," said J. S. White of Ottawa, a program director of the Canadian Welfare Council.

All authorities agree that many cases are not reported.

Mrs. Van Stolk said studies in the United States have shown there are about 10 cases of child battering for every one that is officially investigated.

"And for every child that dies, there are likely 100 who are mistreated without official awareness."

Because of the lack of statistics, authorities don't know whether child-battering is increasing.

Joseph Messner, executive director of the Ottawa Children's Aid Society, believes there is no increase in the number of beatings but that more of the cases are being reported.

The worst cases usually come to the attention of officials through hospitals or doctors. But because parents usually don't admit to beatings, they offer seemingly rational explanations—"He fell downstairs" or, "She fell out of the car."

Sometimes, neighbors or relatives and, occasionally, teachers will report suspicious bruises and indications that a child is being mistreated.

Only extremely rarely will the other parent—if both are not involved—complain, said Mr. Melmess.

What is done depends largely on where the child is when the case is reported, he said. If, as is usually the case, the child is in hospital, he is kept there.

The welfare or social development department makes some arrangement to have the child made a ward of the court or province. A court hearing usually is required.

If the child is at home, he said, the department investigates and what is done depends largely on how willing the informant is to testify.

"The department and the courts can move quickly, but the complaint often are pretty nebulous and won't stand up."

Better preparation for parenthood was suggested by most authorities as part of the solution to child-battering.

"A young mum is just gone home from hospital and is expected just to turn on the mothering and know how to do it," said Margaret-Ann Smith, acting director of social service at the Hospital for Children's Hospital. "She just doesn't."

Kathy Glass of the Vancouver Catholic Family Service said prevention is the answer. Education of young persons on family life and family responsibilities would help.

Miss Glass said one theory about child beatings is that the parents themselves were abused or beaten—either physically or emotionally—by their parents. If this theory could be broken, the incidence of child beating might diminish, she said.

A justice department lawyer in St. John's, Nfld., said the public needs to be more aware of the enormity of the crime and the prevalence of baby beatings.

Mr. Melmess calls for more and better community mental health care programs might help. He would like to see small clinics in neighborhood shopping centres, for instance, where a young mother could drop in and discuss home problems with a social worker or nurse.

Miss Robinson described a study being carried on in London, where such neighborhood offices with cribs and playrooms are set up.

"If a mother feels she can't stand the child, she can take him over to the centre for a couple of hours. We're trying to give immediate relief to people under pressure."

Mr. MacDonald said that pressures of life in cities have increased and that child beatings are only one part of the problem.

"I think our whole way of life has to be changed."

UCW MEETINGS

TRINITY UCW

MADOC — A good crowd turned out for the general meeting of Trinity UCW of Madoc Trinity United Church, held in the Sunday School room of the church.

The president, Mrs. Charles Derry, opened the meeting with a poem. Mrs. Don Parks conducted the worship service with "Spring" as her theme.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read, the Treasurer's report was given by Mrs. S. Pinkerton.

Used eyeglasses and frames will be collected by the UCW and packed at the church to be forwarded for use by Caribbean students and adults. The box will be placed at the church on May 13.

The executive meeting of UCW for the month of April will be held in Trinity United Church on May 10. Plans for a wedding reception on May 8 were discussed.

Brian Binch was guest speaker for the meeting. He represented this zone at the 50th session of the Older Boys Parliament which was held in Ottawa during the Christmas vacation. Sessions were conducted similar to parliament and many interesting and serious bills were discussed and passed. These included a bill on disiplleship. Also one on pollution, which recommended the use of bottles, instead of cans, for soft drinks.

A lively discussion followed Mr. Binch's talk and appreciation to him was expressed by Miss Ada Adams.

Marmora Chapter IODE Enjoys Slides of Alaska

MARMORA — Marmora Chapter IODE met at the home of Mrs. Elaine Brady recently, and Mrs. Dennis Ayler presided at the meeting with 15 members present.

The treasurer, Mrs. Sid Demorest reported that the rummage sale had been successful and plans are being made to hold another one in May. A tentative date in May has been set for a bake sale.

Mrs. Jack Jones advised members that a supply of cards were available to any of the members who would do some knitting. Suggestions for future programs were discussed.

Mrs. Gordon Bennett, education secretary, read a letter from the adopted school at Davis Inlet and showed pictures that she had received of some of the children and the school. Two parcels of clothing have been shipped recently to the school.

Mrs. B. Tinsdale showed slides of a trip she had taken to Alaska, which was much enjoyed.

Lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Alice Stark, Mrs. A. M. Jones and Miss Miriam Savage.

BC Female Geologist Owns One of the Richest Jade Mines

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) — Winnie Robertson doesn't wear much jewelry, but she owns what may be the richest jade mine in the world.

She can't remember now whether it was in 1968 or '69 that she discovered her mountain of jade near Takla Lake in northern B.C., but she is still annoyed because none of the stories that were written about her at the time mentioned the fact that she is a trained and experienced amateur geologist who knew what she was doing.

Instead, the reports told the world she was a housewife who had read an introductory book on geology then stumbled onto what now is the Jade Queen mine.

One reporter from an American women's magazine wanted her to pose for a picture in her kitchen baking a cake, wearing a frilly apron and surrounded by lumps of raw jade.

"I can bake a cake," she said. "But I don't want a bunch of jade lying around the kitchen when I do it."

The stories worried her because "I didn't want to be responsible for dozens of housewives going out and killing themselves trying to find a mine."

Prior to making her discovery she had been studying jade for 10 years and taken several geology courses at the University of Alberta as well as prospecting whenever she had the opportunity. After thoroughly studying the geology of the area around Takla Lake she decided that it was a logical place to look for the green gem stones.

Prospecting the creeks in the vicinity of Pyramid Mountain on the shores of Takla Lake, she found traces of jade and began looking for more and eventually found "about 80 tons of jade right in the creek."

"It took me three days to convince myself that it was true," she said. "I kept checking the rocks and telling myself, 'Winnie, girl, you just don't find jade like this.'"

The mine now employs eight men during the summer and they bring out 30 to 40 tons of jade each year. Core samples taken in the area have found that the jade extends to 75 and 100 feet in some areas. Only one-fifth of one per cent of this jade is top quality and suitable for jewelry.

Most of it finds its way to markets in Hong Kong and Germany, and Winnie regrets that most of the jade Jewelry available in Canada is of only medium quality. Good jade is pale, bright, agle green without inclusions, she said.

She is deeply concerned about conservation and what is happening to the province's salmon fishing. Since the Jade Queen mine is on the upper reaches of the Fraser River salmon spawning grounds, when she applied for a licence to use water from On-ell Creek to dredge off overburden she was anxious to find a way of doing this without disturbing the salmon. As a result, the mine only dredges in the spring when the creek is flooding so they do no more damage than the creek does itself during a flood.

Often her 19-year old son, Gordon, accompanies her on a prospecting trip. She never goes alone: "A broken ankle alone in that country would mean tragedy."

She is saddened by the signs of industrial progress reaching into the area surrounding the Jade Queen mine. Now, she said, she can see bears, mountain goat, caribou, ptarmigan and moose on the mountain.

"Then I look out across the lake and see the slashing for the railway reaching along the far shore, and know that soon sawmills and towns will follow and the country will never be the same.

"It's a tragedy."

Deaconess Shares Equal Status with Deacons

Male solidarity in the Anglican Church is slowly being eroded, with deaconesses now sharing equal status with deacons, the lowest order of the ministry.

In Gelph a descendant of a prominent district family has scored another first, at least for the southern part of this province.

Miss Dorothy Daly assisted in serving communion at a special Sunday service at St. James the Apostle Anglican Church there.

She is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Herb Daly of Napanee, owners of the Daly Tea Company, well-known mercantile house that served this district until the Second World War.

Miss Daly has served as a deaconess in England for six years and often assisted with communion there. But she required special permission from the Anglican Bishop of Niagara to perform the same function in Guelph.

Ottawa Girl Chosen Miss Eastern Ontario

PERTH — Valleri Hansen, 17, of Ottawa will reign as "Miss Eastern Ontario" for the next 12 months, after winning the title in Perth on Saturday at the 17th annual Miss Eastern Ontario Pageant. Valleri is a Grade 12 student at Woodroffe High School.

The five - foot, two - inch blonde said she hopes to become an elementary school French teacher. Among her main hobbies are snowmobiling, sewing, dancing, skating and playing the guitar and accordion.

Miss Susan Flavell, Kingston the reiring queen crowned Miss Hansen and presented her with the robes. John Clement presented the Courier rose bowl to the new queen and Dorothy Mitchell, pageant chairman made the mink stole presentation.

Miss Hansen will have an all-expense paid trip to compete in the Miss Dominion of Canada Pageant in Niagara Falls, June 26-July 2. She also received several other gifts, including a knack of sewparel, silverware and cosmetics. Preliminary judging of the contestants, the largest number ever entered in the pageant, was held during the afternoon. The 10 finalists were judged in the evening before the audience of 1,000 in the Perth and District Collegiate auditorium.

Charlene James, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles James, Grade 13 student at St. Lawrence High School, received the first runner-up. If Miss Hansen is unable to continue her functions as queen for any reason during her reign, the duties will be carried on by Miss James. Sandra Thompson, 19, Ottawa, was second - runner - up and Wendy Thomas, 18, Smithville, was the third runner-up.

Women's Institutes

Cooper-Remington WI

MADOC — The March meeting of the Cooper-Remington WI was held at the home of Mrs. Lynn Holmes when 13 members and two visitors and two children were in attendance.

President Mrs. Rex Rollins opened the meeting with a poem on St. Patrick's Day. Two Irish favorites were sung.

During the business period, it was decided to apply for a training school project. First choice was the Knack of Sewing with Knits and second choice was Quilts.

Mrs. Allan McCoy gave a report on the branch executive meeting which was held recently. Agriculture convener Mrs. C. P. IntVeld had charge of the program. The guest speaker for the afternoon was Mrs. Wilfrid Forestell, who was introduced by Mrs. Allan McCoy. Mrs. Forestell gave a most interesting talk on agriculture. She read a poem Should Your Blessings. She was extended thanks by Mrs. Lynn Holmes who presented a gift to the speaker.

The motto, No one is rich enough to be without a neighbor, was given by Mrs. IntVeld. Mrs. A. McCoy gave a quiz on the flowers for each month and read Garden of Resolutions.

Following the current events, a home baking sale was held. Mrs. Ken Cleveland acted as auctioneer.

Ann Landers:

Typographical Error Source for Anxiety

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My wife is a nervous wreck over an incident which I feel has very little significance. The poor woman is in analysis (her sixth year) and she has cohe to believe that Everything means Something. (You know, the old Freudian theory that there are no accidents.)

Our 18-year-old daughter went away to school for the first time last September. She writes us a long typewriter letter every week. Yesterday a letter arrived. It started "Dead Mother and Dad:"

My wife went to pieces. She is sure our daughter wishes her dead. When I told her it was a typographical error she screamed, "No, it was a subconscious wish. You'll notice she didn't say 'Dead Dad' — it was 'Dead Mother'."

Please, Ann, what is your opinion of this? Hurry your answer. A supportive comment from you might lift my wife out of her depression. — BELL AIRE.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR BELL: Anyone who uses a typewriter will tell you that one of the most common typographical errors (because of relative position of the keys) is the transposition of "d" for "s".

After six years of analysis, it's too bad your wife is still so paranoid.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My wife is 51 years old, a grandmother three times. She is destroying herself the same way her father did — booze and pills.

My mother-in-law shielded her husband for years, lied to his employers, lied to the doctors, lied to neighbors and relatives. She thought she was doing him a favor, but she really helped put him in his grave.

Our two older children left home the minute they were legally able to do so. They couldn't take their mother's drunken rages, her screaming and vomiting, and her passing out. Now that she has started mixing the pills with the booze she is hooked out half the time and I never know when I come home from work whether I will find her dead or alive. Three times in the last two years I have had to rush her to the hospital in a coma.

Please tell me what to do. This woman is making a nervous wreck out of me and the children. I am only a working man and can't afford expensive doctors. I need some help. — ROPE'S END.

DEAR R.E.: Your wife should be hospitalized. Call your family doctor at once and ask him where she should be taken. I'm sure you recognize the fact that your wife has a strong suicidal tendency and unless she gets treatment soon she will one day achieve her goal.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A member of our family who is very wealthy has certain ideas of cheapness well known to all of us. Last year our son was married. This relative said she knew just the right wedding present but it would have to be obtained from an antique dealer on her next trip abroad. Three weeks ago the wedding gift arrived from Paris. Attached to the gift was a handwritten note from the relative stating that the gift was a rare find, dating back to the 18th Century "although it isn't signed."

The bride's brother is associated with the art museum in Chicago which everyone knows is one of the world's finest. He examined the gift and declared it a fake. Just to make sure, he offered to have it examined by a friend who is an established authority on that period.

Yesterday we heard the evaluation. The piece is not authentic. There is a chance, Ann, that the relative paid a big price for it. If so should she be told she was rooked? The bride would like your opinion. — YONKERS.

DEAR YONK: The bride should say "thank you" and nothing more. It would be in poor taste to let the relative know her gift had been appraised and it is a phony.

Aware of Physical Fitness

TORONTO (CP) — Exercise, no matter how strenuous, can't hurt the normal heart because your head will tell you to stop before your heart is damaged, Dr. Gordon Cumming of Winnipeg said here recently. But, he said, most men don't start exercising until after they have had their first heart attack. "Women are 10 times more conscious of physical fitness than men," he said. They start to exercise when their figures get lumpy.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Puffy Batter for Onion Rings

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: Do you have a recipe for onion rings in batter? I would also like to make these, and freeze some, and wondered if they should be reheated in deep fat, shallow fat, or in the oven. Should they be allowed to sit for a while after dipping them in the batter, before cooking them? I simply cannot cook them the way you get them in good restaurants. I like a puffy batter and crisp. — Anne V.

ANSWER: I have not tried to freeze these onion rings. I suspect they should be instant frozen. But try a batch in your freezer then reheat in oven and see how they turn out.

FRENCH FRIED ONION RINGS No. 1

3 med.-large onions
1 egg white
¼ tbsp. flour
2 tsps. milk
½ tsp. salt

Slice onions across in ¼" slices; soak in ice cold water for 1 hr., drain and dry. Separate rings. Make a batter of remaining ingredients; coat dried onion rings with mixture. Fry in deep fat at 375 deg. Fahr. until golden brown.

FRENCH FRIED ONION RINGS No. 2

1 cup sifted all - purpose flour
1 egg
1 cup milk
1 tsp. baking powder
1½ tsps. salt
Med-sized onions

Combine ingredients (except onions) to make batter. With egg beater, beat until smooth. Cover and let stand 15 min, before using. Slice onions crosswise in about one-third inch slices. Separate rings and pat dry with paper towels. Dip in batter and deep fry a few at a time until brown and crisp. These may be kept warm on a cake rack in a 300 deg. Fahr. oven until ready to be served (about 15-20 min.).

Club Activities

CANNIFTON - CORBYVILLE SENIOR CITIZENS

At the recent meeting of the Senior Citizens of Canniffton - Corbyville No. 343, members decided to hold a tea in May and several future functions were also mentioned.

Mrs. Edna Andrews presided at the meeting held in St. Mark's Recreation Hall which was opened by Rev. J. Morrison. A moment of silence and prayer was observed in memory of a recently deceased member Frank Pound.

During the program several readings were given by Mrs. Gertie Botting and Mrs. Olive Farnham. A duet was rendered by Mrs. Swan and Mrs. Clare with Mrs. Farnham at the piano. Mr. Crosby also rendered a vocal selection.

Successful Living

Normal Reactions to Ex-patient A Necessity

By DORIS CLARK

When a mental patient comes home the family's job is to treat him like a normal adult. He needs to know he has a spot to fill as a member of his family.

He has a right to disagree, and a right to get upset when things go wrong — just as the rest of us do! Sometimes parents are inclined to be over-protective. Usually it is wrong to say "Rest and take it easy for a while." Far better to encourage the shouldering of previous responsibilities.

For all of us, the goal should be to maintain warm relationships with one another setting limits of tolerance but not demanding that everyone conform to every mode. — From "When A Mental Patient Comes Home".

This excerpt from an excellent leaflet of the Canadian Mental Health Association contains wisdom we might well use in dealing with any friend in any situation, whether or not there has been mental illness in his past.

Dear Doris: Our daughter walked out on us a couple of years ago, at 18. Said she didn't want to obey us any more.

Now we hear that she has set her wedding for May. She wrote asking us to put it on for her and we replied that we couldn't afford it. Now I've been told that his sister is going to send us a list, in other words they will present the cost of things to us.

I intend to tell her that we thought she could just get married by the priest and have her witnesses.

Then after the honeymoon there could be a shower or something if someone wants it. — Deeply Hurt.

Dear Hurt: This second-hand communication will have to stop. Write to your daughter and ask her to come to see you to plan for her wedding.

There must have been hurt when she left you. I recall that she is not asking for a big wedding — just a family supper for 25 people.

If she wanted to go to the priest's home with two witnesses to help tie the knot, she could — without any reference to you. But wouldn't it be nice to do something for her to remember? Or do you want to carry on this feud over the years? What about when grandchildren come?

* * *

Dear Doris: If you have any information that would be helpful to a 12-year-old boy about whom I am concerned, please advise me. He seems to be feeling that people don't like him and has difficulty making friends in new schools. — Auntie.

Dear Auntie: Self-doubts at 12 spring from seed which has been sown during the past 12 years. Do his parents never give him a build-up?

If he can take a hand, give him an important chore to carry out for you. When he does well, praise him.

If you see in him any unpleasant habits which others dislike, point them out to him gently. Even the most self-assured 13-year-old may get down in the dumps with the effort it takes to make his mark.

Anonymous letters are bad manners and may be ignored. When writing in, give Doris your right name and address. It will be kept confidential.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Father: "Stevie, stop playing with the light cord. It's dangerous. If you touch it again, I'll spank you."

Light cords should be out of reach and electrical outlets should be barricaded with furniture or have child-proof caps on them.

Emphasize that certain objects are forbidden, but if they are dangerous, be sure they are inaccessible as well. You can't trust a small child to remember or to resist temptation if he does remember.

Dedicated Group of Sharpshooters Takes Weekly Potshots on the Range

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

The problem of carrying handguns does not arise for members of the Belleville Rifle and Handgun Club. But then, they don't sport them in holsters, and a very few people would be suspicious of someone carrying a briefcase or a small tool chest.

The members, totalling more than half a dozen, carry as many as four handguns each in their respective carrying cases, to the Wednesday night shoot-out at the Belleville police station basement range.

In the confined atmosphere of the police target range, the members unpack their target revolvers or automatics, don protective earphones and begin firing, in an attempt to improve their own records.

"Your chief competitor is yourself," said Joe Heimbach, president of the Belleville club and a former member of Winnipeg's handgun club.

"If you have consistency, you will have better success."

Clubs such as this do not have too many "plinkers" — the person who joins simply to plink away at targets with anything that fires bullets.

Other members present at a recent Wednesday night shoot, joined Mr. Heimbach as he explained the aim and purpose of their organization.

"First of all," said one participant, "we use guns made solely for the purpose of target shooting."

The men emphasized that target firing is a sport. "In fact," said Dick Charlton, 11-year veteran of the organization, "it's a national sport." Ranges in Kingston and Ottawa, on the local scene, attract hundreds of men and women to annual shoots, competing for trophies and prizes.

Even though the Belleville club has its own marksmen, it was described as more of a social gathering and an evening out, providing the men, and the occasional lady, with the opportunity of improving accuracy with various calibres.

Mr. Heimback stressed that the club would welcome new members, although the range is limited in size. In the past, prospective marksmen have entered the club with firearms already in their possession. Some have lost interest and those who remain frequently exchange equipment.

The club's president said, "we advise the person who joins to try the guns used at the club and find one to his liking."

However, most participants, this sport eventually turn to different handguns, some more frequently than others. "You change them to try newer models, a different type, just like any sport," said Jack Payne.

Buying a cheap $20 or $30 gun isn't advisable. In fact, even a good second - hand piece properly equipped for target shooting with adjustable sights, will take a large chunk out of a $100 bill. "But there are lots of good, used target guns around," said Mr. Heimbach, 'we keep a list of the ones for sale on our bulletin board. The secret is a well-made, brand-name gun."

Equipped with a reliable handgun, the novice will receive expert advice from club veterans, who are happy to show a newcomer the ropes.

In fact, some of the members load their own ammunition. "This way, you get a balanced shot . . . you can't rely on factory bullets once you get above .22 calibre," commented Bev Holdaway, one of the club's reloaders. The newcomer is advised what make to buy and, depending on how seriously he becomes interested in the sport, can eventually learn how to reload his own cartridges.

Like any sport, there are rules, regulations, and methods of practice. A healthy respect for the machinery of this pastime is absolute. Guns are not toys and the club members do not, at any time, think of them as such.

Because of this care, competition shooting in Canada and the U.S. holds one of the finest records for safety. According to club members, there have been no injuries in the history of competitive shooting in North America.

Proper care for equipment is demonstrated; methods of improving physical fitness, in order to properly handle the revolver or automatic, is taught and each new member is placed on a probationary period.

"There's no kibitzing here," the president stated.

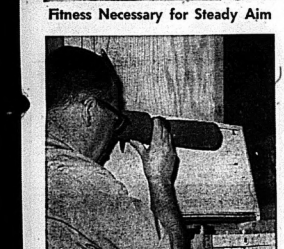
And before a new member can transport even one gun, he must be issued with a carrying permit, a complete investigation by the RCMP preceeding issue.

Once the recruit develops a feel for the sport, he progresses from simply attempting to hit the target, no easy task, to rapid fire, timed fire and competition firing with other members of the club. Scores are tabulated, and the developing marksmen gradually overcomes the idiosyncrasies of his handgun.

"It's different from rifle shooting and you get a bit more motion," commented one club member, "it takes a bit of conditioning to get used to it."

After the initial outlay, an evening at the indoor range or a turn on the outdoor range at the Frankford Club's facilities, costs the shooter not much more than a dollar or two.

Many of the participants have come from other centres such as Winnipeg, Brockville and neighboring towns. Competitions are not ruled out, and local members take advantage of large events to shoot against the champions or just talk shop.

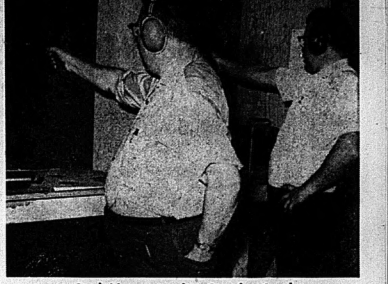


Choice of calibre is left to the member's discretion. However, Mr. Heimbach explained that competition shooting requires a participant to own at least two handguns, if not more.

"The person who knows his limitations can adjust accordingly," he said.

Firing on an outdoor range is entirely different from that of an indoor shoot . . . a fact clearly evident to the pistoleering the range. The re-bounding echoes of a .22 calibre shot would try the strongest man, but when anyone comes up against a marksman firing a .45 in the confinement of the police station, the advantage of earplugs or plugs is immediately evident.

Each member of the Belleville club also belongs to the Frankford Fish and Game Club, which has outdoor facilities. The men said that everyone in the club owns a target rifle, a favorite choice on outdoor ranges.



As a matter of fact, families often become involved in this sport. "Oh yes, sometimes you find kids and dads all over the back of the range," joked Dick Charlton.

CFB Airmen To Be Honored

TRENTON (Staff) — In a special ceremony this afternoon, participants in the Peruvian disaster relief mission of last spring will receive commendations from Maj.-Gen. A. C. Hull, Commander, Air Transport Command.

Fifty-nine men will be on parade today to receive the awards, along with a squadron formation and the CFB Trenton Brass and Reed Band.

A defence department spokesman said today that there has been little recognition of individual merit in the past, instead units as a whole tend to be acknowledged.

Five pilots were honored with medals by the Peruvian Government at an embassy reception in Ottawa in January. However, Lt.-Col. W. L. Bulchart of 424 Squadron, one of the recipients, has stated that many servicemen on the Peru mission are more deserving of awards than himself.

Until a more formal means of recognition is established, Gen. Hull has decided to present the Commander's Commendation to those who contribute to the success of special operations."

Records of other operations are now being combed and further commendation parades are expected.

Killdeer Confused

MADOC (Special) — Usually, it's the early bird that gets the worm, but this year any bird returning back from migration will only get the freeze. And that's just what happened when a lone killdeer arrived back at the home of Mrs. Charles Murphy at Stoneburg early in March. It has been staying near an open spring creek on the farm and at night it has been taking to the barn for protection. It spends a great deal of the daytime hours wading the icy cold creek.

The snowbanks along the roads near the farm are still eight feet in height, and on Wednesday night temperatures soared below zero.

This is very unusual, as killdeer generally don't return until the end of April.

Plan for Jobless Youth Submitted by Chamber

The Belleville Chamber of Commerce has an idea for a youth employment program which if approved by Ottawa, would provide summer jobs for nine senior high school or college students.

The idea is to hire students to man tourist information booths which would be set up at entrances to the city and in the city itself

Application to the secretary of state for acceptance of the program was made a week ago by the chamber.

"We feel that the tourist information booths would be a useful contribution, both from the standpoint of service to the public and also for employment," stated Chamber president Frank Murray.

Mr. Murray said that if the program was accepted by Ottawa, the chamber would be looking to city council for a contribution to asist in setting up and servicing the information booths

Also in the chamber's presentation to city council will be a grant request to assist in setting up a convention bureau and/or a tourist promotion program.

Medical Association Urges Limits on Pep Pills, Sedatives

MONTREAL (CP) — Amphetamines, barbiturates and their chemical relatives have no place in long-term medical treatment as anti-depressants or as aids to shedding unwanted weight, the Canadian Medical Association warned today.

The association recommended to the royal commission on non-medical drug use that prescription of these substances plus non-barbiturate sedatives and hypnotics be more strictly curtailed.

All should be put in one category of the Food and Drugs Act which requires a written prescription from a doctor each time they are dispensed, even for repeat orders. Drug orders now often are given by telephone.

The recommendation arose from a new examination of mood-modifying drugs in use in medicine and subject of illicit use. Data included a national survey of the prescribing habits of doctors during a one-week period last November.

The survey was financed by the health department.

The study showed these drugs are prescribed too readily by doctors, although the situation was less serious than had been feared.

Except for treatment of sleeping sickness and of over-active children, long-term use of amphetamines and like substances was unduly hazardous.

Short-term use—not more than 30 days—may occasionally be justified but long term use to suppress appetite or treat depression "is not in keeping with responsible medical practice."

The association brief was delivered privately to the commission by Dr. R. M. Matthews of Peterborough on behalf of Dr. D. L. Kippen of Winnipeg, the president.

The commission, headed by Dean Gerald LeDain of Osgoode Hall law school, is nearing the end of a two-year study of the drug scene. Its final report is due by June.

In a key recommendation, the brief said federal food and drug directorate powers and practices should be reviewed and further legislation should be enacted to ensure accuracy of labelling, advertising and promotional material provided to doctors by stimulant and sedative manufacturers.

The association's committee on non-medical drug use under Toronto psychiatrist Dr. Lionel Solursh had suggested the association question the ethics and appropriateness of these drug practices and techniques in this regard.

Results of the survey, released with the association's brief, showed that only about 20 per cent of 15,000 doctor-members kept track of the prescriptions they wrote for mood-modifying drugs during the seven-day period.

In the one week 338,181 prescriptions were written by the 5,014 participating doctors for mood-modifying drugs—representing 32.9 per cent of all prescriptions written.

Thirty-five per cent were for minor tranquillizers, 20 per cent were barbiturates; 13.8 per cent major tranquillizers and 11.4 per cent were anti-depressants.

Amphetamines represented 1.8 per cent of the mood-modifying drugs and 0.6 per cent of all prescriptions. Amphetamine-like appetite suppressants were 3.1 per cent and 1.7 respectively.

Fifty-four per cent of prescriptions for mood-modifying drugs were repeat orders and 46 per cent were new prescriptions. The repeat orders varied from 48 per cent for non-barbiturates to 64 per cent for amphetamines.

Nearly one-third of all repeat orders were given by telephone, the survey analysis showed, adding that even this was underplated because initial prescriptions may have included blanket authority for one or more reissues.

Almost one-quarter of the amphetamine prescriptions were ordered by telephone, the highest of any of the mood-modifiers, followed closely by barbiturates at 21.4 per cent.

General practitioners prescribed most of the mood-modifiers—60.7 per cent, followed by psychiatrists 14.2, internists 6.4, obstetricians 3.1 and pediatricians 1.5.

The association said a check could be kept of who issues and who receives prescriptions by having social insurance numbers and the physicians' medical licence number on every prescription, incorporated into a nation-wide identification system.

It said control of psychedelic drugs—LSD—cannabis products such as marijuana and similar substances should be under the Food and Drugs Act rather than the Narcotics Control Act. Legal machinery for dealing with users of these drugs also should be under the FDA while enforceable legislation is developed.

In keeping with previous warnings by association representatives on a federal committee, the association urged doctors to refer all addicts of heroin or similar narcotics to colleagues who have special training in treatment of such cases.

It cautioned against untrained doctors using methadone as a heroin addiction treatment.

Czechs Beat Soviets, Pin Gold Medal Hopes on Swedish Playboys

GENEVA (AP) — The fate of the 1971 world hockey championships probably rests with a Swedish team whose own coach has accused them of preferring Geneva's night life to hockey.

Following Czechoslovakia's inspired 5-2 triumph over the long-reigning Soviet Champions Thursday, the Russian must at least tie with Sweden in the final round of the championships Sunday if the Czechs beat Finland in the first game of the day.

A Soviet loss and a Czech win would give the Czechs the same number of points as the Russians, but Thursday's upset victory over the Soviet Union would give them the title.

In Prague, police reinforcements were called into the centre of the city Thursday night to disperse crowds celebrating the Czech victory.

But most of the crowd was good-natured and orderly. Sometimes throngs broke into the familiar Czech hockey fans' chant of a goal."

The Swedes hit a new low Wednesday, losing to West Germany for the first time in 43 years, and Swedish coach Arne Strembergg told a news conference that the Swedish team doesn't like to sweat."

Several players were reported up till the small hours of the morning on the eve of the game against the West Germans.

But the Swedish squad looked much sharper in edging Finland 2-1 Thursday, and the Russians seem to be running out of steam after setting a fantastic pace.

Tuesday the Russians were given a fright by the United States squad, which finally bowed out 7-3 but which toward the end of the game outskated the world champions and won the final period 3-1.

The same thing happened in the Soviets' loss to Czechoslovakia. With the score tied 2-2, the Czechs completely outplayed the Soviets in the final period and blasted in three goals in five minutes.

But the odds must still be on the disciplined Russians, who have won the world and Olympic titles eight years in a row.

At the other end of the table, the U.S. takes on West Germany in the only game today for what looks like a forlorn task of winning by at least five goals to avoid relegation to Group B next year.

The Americans, who downed the Czechs 5-1 in the first game of the double round-robin tourney, picked their first game with the West Germans to produce their worst hockey and lost 7-2. A less-than-five-goal victory against West Germany today would put the two teams level on points, but the superior German goal difference would down the U.S.

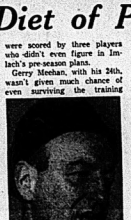
Punch Wouldn't Mind Steady Diet of Penguins

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It's a pity Buffalo Sabres didn't meet Pittsburgh Penguins more often in the National Hockey League schedule. They might have made coach Punch Imlach's pre-season prediction come true.

Imlach's prophetic comments of an earlier coaching era with Toronto Maple Leafs earned him much publicity. More often than not, his predictions came true.



Before the 1970-71 NHL season started, the dapper Sabres coach forecast a playoff berth "ahead of Toronto" for his expansionist Buffalo entry in the established East Division.

The Sabres will finish a distant fifth behind Toronto when the schedule winds up on the weekend, but don't fault Pittsburgh. The two clubs battled to a 3-3 tie Thursday night and the Penguins were the only team that didn't like Buffalo at least once in their six meetings.

The Sabres won two of their meetings with Pittsburgh this year with the other four ending in ties, including Thursday's game in which Buffalo goals were scored by three players who didn't even figure in Imlach's pre-season plans.

camp and probably wouldn't have had veteran Phil Goyette not gone into temporary retirement.

The other two scorers, Larry Keenan and Steve Atkinson, came to the Sabres via the cash-and-trade route from St. Louis early in the season.

The Sabres had to work to keep their unbeaten string with the Penguins alive, coming back twice to tie the score as Dunc McCallum and Nick Harbaruk opened a 2-0 Pittsburgh lead in the opening 6% minutes of play.

Keenan and Meehan evened the score before the period ended. But Bryan Hextall again sent the Penguins to the front 28 seconds into the second period, setting the stage for Atkinson's 20th of the year.

At St. Louis, Dan Schock's first NHL goal at the 12-minute mark of the third period pulled the Flyers into the tie that kept alive hopes of overtaking third-place Minnesota in the West standings.

The Flyers, with 70 points, trail the North Stars by two and have two games to play to Minnesota's one.

Five Leafs Absent From Thursday Workout

TORONTO (CP) — Five players were absent from practice Thursday as Toronto Maple Leafs prepared to close their National Hockey League schedule here against Boston Bruins Saturday at the Chicago with the Black Hawks Sunday.

Ron Ellis, Jim Harrison and Paul Henderson missed trying on the Leafs' new 1971-72 uniforms for an assortment of reasons. Coach John McLellan said he gave Ellis a rest because the hard-working right winger was over-extending himself to break a scoring slump.

Bev Slips

WEST POINT, N.Y. (CP) — Canadian Olympian Bev Boys slipped away from the leaders in her later dives Thursday night and finished fifth in the women's three-metre springboard event at the United States AAU diving championships.

Harrison, who has trouble breathing through a nose that will require surgery when the season ends, took treatments at Wellesley Hospital.

And Henderson, who it was feared had re-fractured his jaw when he collided with Detroit defenceman Jim Niekamp Wednesday night, was cleared for weekend play. He was treated for a severe cut to his mouth and will wear a protective bar against the Bruins and Black Hawks.

Goalie Jacques Plante and defenceman Bob Baun worked out but are not expected to play until Toronto and New York Rangers open their best-of-seven quarter-final at New York next Wednesday.

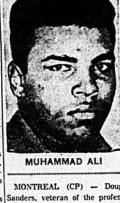
Ali Could Learn Fate in June

WASHINGTON (AP) — Muhammad Ali, the former world heavyweight boxing champion, is expected to learn in June whether he will have to serve his five-year sentence for refusing induction into the armed services.

The Supreme Court announced Thursday it will hear arguments April 19 on Ali's appeal that he is entitled to an exemption on religious grounds. The high court indicated it would rule on the case before the end of its current term sometime in June.



Ali, also known as Cassius Clay, was indicted on May 5, 1967, and convicted the following month. He was sentenced to five years and fined $10,000.

He appealed, contending his Muslim religion barred him from fighting in any war that did not have Allah's blessing.

Joe Frazier was recognized by most as the heavyweight champion after Ali's conviction. He outpointed Ali in their recent 15-round title fight in New York to gain universal recognition as the champion.

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Doug Wyatt of Saskatoon returns home today with his second consecutive Canadian firefighters' curling championship. Wyatt, 31, won the 1971 bonspiel Thursday when his rink scored a 9-4 playoff victory over the Ernie Kovacs foursome from Winnipeg.

MUHAMMAD ALI

MONTREAL (CP) — Doug Sanders, veteran of the professional golf circuit, will be in the field for the 1971 Canadian Open championship, it was announced Thursday.

Sanders, who lost last year's British Open to Jack Nicklaus in a playoff, thus joins Arnold Palmer as one of the first to indicate he will take part in the Open scheduled for Montreal's Richelieu Golf and Country Club July 1-4.

Sanders won his first major tournament with a 1956 Canadian Open victory while still an amateur. By the end of last year, he was ranked eighth on the Professional Golfers' Association all-time money list with total earnings of $605,455.

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Lee Trevino held an eight-stroke lead over Gary Player going into today's second round of the $100,000 Greater Greensboro open golf tournament—but he was far from confident.

"Eight strokes?" he sniffed.

"Man, that's nothing with that little man. I'd feel a lot better about it if it was the last round and I had eight strokes on him."

Trevino fired a four-under-par 67 in Thursday's first round for a share of the top spot with veteran Miller Barber and New Zealand left Bob Charles.

Trevino, Barber and Charles held a one-stroke lead over a group of five tied at 68, including Australian Bruce Gigglewitz, Art Wall, Jack Lewis, Pete Brown and Dave Eichelberger.

CAMPBELLVILLE, Ont. (CP) — The stud services of Albatross, champion two-year-old pacer in North America last year, have been syndicated for $1.25 million, the United States Trotting Association announced Thursday.

Picked as Horse of the Year in 1970 by the Canadian Trotting Association, Albatross won 14 of 17 starts, earned $184,260, and turned in the fastest performance ever by a Canadian-owned two-year-old last summer.

Owned by Bert James of Windsor, Ont., Albatross is eligible for most of the rich stake races for three-year-olds and will continue to race this season.

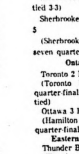
SALISBURY, N.C. (AP) — The top U.S. sports reporters of 1970, as voted by their colleagues, are Jim Murray of the Los Angeles Times and Chris Schenkel of ABC.



The two were honored at the annual awards meeting of the National Sportscasters and Sportswriters Association.

Murray's award was his fifth consecutive and his sixth in the 12 years the honors have been presented. Schenkel is a four-time winner.

Marlies Not Playing Like Patsies for Petes

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

On paper, the Toronto Marlboros should be pushovers for the Peterborough Petes and the Hamilton Red Wings should be easy marks for the Ottawa 67's in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A quarter-finals.

Fifth-place Toronto finished 26 points behind the first-place Petes and beat them only twice during the regular season, but Thursday at Peterborough the Petes needed a goal by Ron Lalonde with less than three minutes to play to salvage a 2-2 tie.

The tie meant Toronto picked up three of four available points on Peterborough ice, with the next two games in the series tonight and Sunday in Toronto.

The Marlboros won Tuesday's series opener 5-3 and lead the best-of-seven series 1-0, with one game tied.

At Hamilton, Rick Kehoe scored late in the game to give seventh-place Wings a 3-3 tie with the third-place 67s.

The Wings, who won only 22 of 62 games during the regular schedule, outshot the 67s 42 in the series opener and lead the best-of-seven series 1-0 with one game tied.

The series resumes Sunday in Ottawa.

St. Catharines Black Hawks, who stopped Kitchener Rangers 6-3 in St. Catharines Tuesday, play the Rangers tonight in Kitchener and Sunday in St. Catharines.

Montreal Junior Canadiens visit London Knights tonight and play host to the Knights Sunday in the other series. Montreal won the opener 9-1.

Times Flying In Swim Trials

EDMONTON (CP) — A Canadian women's record and a gruelling four-way battle in a men's event Thursday night highlighted the first of four days of trials to select Canada's swim team for the 1971 Pan-American Games.

Jeanne Warren, an 18-year-old blonde from West Vancouver, B.C., timed her way through the 200-metre butterfly in two minutes 28.2 seconds, 1.6 seconds ahead of a national record set in 1966 by Elaine Tanner of Vancouver, now retired.

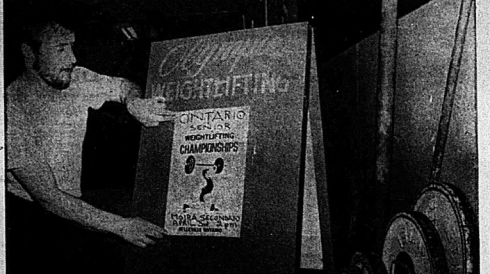
Trials officials predicted other records would topple as the pressure of competition increased.

The four-man battle erupted near the end of the men's 100-metre backstroke and finished with one-tenth of a second between the winner and the next three swimmers.

Winner was Bill Kennedy of London, Ont., at 1:02.8. Grouped behind him with 1:02.9 were Brad Storey, Vancouver; David Wilkin, Toronto, and Erik Fish, Medicine Hat, Alta.

Other winners Thursday night were:

Angela Coughlan, Burlington, Ont., in the women's 200-metre freestyle; Ralph Hutton, West Vancouver, in the men's 200-metre freestyle; Leslie Cliff, West Vancouver, in the women's 100-metre backstroke, and Byron MacDonald, Chicago, a Canadian citizen, in the men's 200-metre butterfly.



Whether Thursday night winners will get a spot on the Pan-Am squad won't be known until Sunday. All have other events to compete in and trials organizers want to assess everyone's performances before naming the team.

Spiralling Salary Demands Could Prove Costly to Fans

Let the Bells Ring Out

Barbells will be the main attraction Saturday as the Ontario Senior Weightlifting Championships come to Belleville. Here Apollo Barbell Club lightheavyweight Bob Walt, one of five city entries in Saturday's competition, prepares a signboard to call public's attention to the event. Competition begins at 2 p.m. Saturday in the Moira Secondary School gymnasium.

Novices 'At Odds' in Tournament

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

Local entries in the Belleville Novice Midget Tournament will be facing different odds in their opening tilts Sunday morning.

Mulroney's Sunoco Novice Bs begin play at 8.30 p.m. against Kingston Lakeshore over whom the Belleville all-stars hold a 3-1 edge in games this season.

Towers Food City Novice "A"s on the other hand are slated to begin action against the powerful Kingston Young Nationals, who have managed 5-2 and 3-0 wins over the locals so far this season.

Towers are the defending "A" champions having won the title last year, the first year the Belleville tournament was held.

Despite the apparent strength of the Kingston team, Towers coach Dave Coates is even more impressed with the Peterborough entry. "I think that you'd have to give Peterborough an edge over the Kingston team", he noted.

The Food City "A"s have yet to record a victory in five meetings with the Lift-lock entry this season.

Despite the odds, which seem to heavily favor the visiting entries, Towers who have compiled a record of 30-14-4 this year, should make it interesting for the opposition.

The Belleville "A"s have competed in six tournaments this season, winning the "B" championship at the Kingston Rotary Tournament.

Dan Duffy has been the big point producer for Towers ranging in 42 goals and adding 22 assists. Other top marksmen on the team include Gary Frederick (28 goals, 23 assists) and Tim Coates (nine goals, 22 assists).

The Mulroney "B" squad, which consists entirely of first year players will be primarily concerned with providing tournament experience for their team. Sunday's tourney will be only the second that Mulroney's have entered this season.

The Novice "B"s have compiled a 20-18-1 record this season playing mostly exhibition bouts against teams in the surrounding area.

Top scorer Mark Crawford has potted 51 goals this season and added 27 assists to rank first in both departments. Wayne Deighton (32 goals, 24 assists) and Billy Rowe (17 goals, 24 assists) are also expected to pace the attack.

Rounding out the eight-team field will be entries from Kingston Young Nationals "B"s, Toronto Royal York Rangers and Whitby.

The "B" championship game is scheduled to begin at 6.30 p.m. Sunday with the "A" game getting under way an hour later.

City Standard Bearers

Danny Duffy and Gary Frederick of the Towers Food City Novice "A"s along with Mulroney Sunoco Novice "B" standouts Mark Crawford and Bob Hedge will help their teams carry the loca lbanner in the Belleville Novice Tournament this Sunday. Entries from Kingston, Peterborough, Toronto and Whitby will be competing with the Belleville all-stars in the tourney, which was won by Towers last season.

Quinte Closing Spiel Jinx May Go by Boards Saturday

Last year's winner Bill Henderson and 1967 titleholder Dave Brown both recorded wins last night to remain among the four rinks still in contention for the Northern Electric Trophy.

To make matters even more interesting, the Henderson and Brown rinks are scheduled to meet tonight in a semi-finals match meaning that one of the foursomes will have to make the final game Saturday.

THIRD ROUND
Bill Hipwell over Bill McPhee; and Bill Henderson over Goldie Livingston.
Dave Bakay over Dawson Boyd;
Lloyd Lantz over Pete Acton;
Doug Nesbitt over Phil Dyke;
Dave Brown over Bill Spinelli.

The other rinks in contention for the first event award are skipped by Finlay McCorquodale and Bill Hipwell, neither of whom have won the event previously.

While attention is centred on the first event battle, play is still continuing in the second, third and fourth events for the top awards in each category.

The championship games are slated to commence at 3 p.m. Saturday.

Going to the bank will soon be one of the top spectator sports, if athletes keep ballooning their salary demands.

There was a time when only the most super of the super-stars could command the magic $100,000 annual salary. Today there are at least 16 major league baseball players in the 100 G club, and more than 100 major leaguers draw $50,000 and more.

Boston Red Sox are paying Carl Yastremski $500,000 on the assumption he will smile his share of baseballs thrown his way over the next three summers.

The pendulum has swung from the days when players logged long hours practising, playing, and travelling to make a handful of club owners wealthy men. Now players are putting financial demands on their teams that are often equally unfair.

Players argue that they are in the short - term profession, have been underpaid in the past, and are merely claiming their just desserts. And too often their demands sound like a dentist charging $500 for a filling because he was in a hurry to pay back his med school student loan.

"Players deserve the right to make a good salary," concedes Baltimore Orioles' personnel director Harry Dalton. "But there has to be some opportunity for ball clubs to realize a profit if their operation is successful and well run."

Two of Mr. Dalton's key concerns each spring are Frank ($120,000) and Brooks ($100,000), the strike - it rich Robinsons.

"Baseball must consider whether there might be some alternative which could bring player salaries more in keeping with each club's profit and loss position," Dalton stresses.

The incentive system works in industry, why not sport, Dalton reasons. Many hockey players have contract clauses stipulating bonuses for 23 - goal seasons, etc. Baseball could emulate the practice, which would assure that the highest - paid players were those who produced the most consistently.

Another Dalton suggestion is a share-the-wealth program, in which players would share profits in excess of their salaries.

Senior hockey's Galt Hornets operate under that system, naturally on a much smaller scale. But the principle still holds true: the better everyone on the team plays, the more people they attract to their games. The more spectators, the larger the team's operating profit, which in turn benefits all the team's members.

Or, as D'Artagnan was wont to wait: "It's all for one and one for all."

Prime victims if the sport salary spiral syndrome continues are the spectators. It's no accident that Maple Leaf Gardens ticket prices, for instance, are being increased $3 for the upcoming Stanley Cup playoffs. (One could argue, though that the Smythes don't expect to last more than one series and are going to make hay while their sun is still finishing.)

And we can't afford to smugly sit back and chortle: "Oh well, I can always watch the game on TV!"

The spectre of closed circuit broadcasting looms large after the phenomenal fiscal success enjoyed by promoters of the Ali - Frazier extravaganza. In Canada alone, there were $1,000,000 worth of customers.

If players and management continue to have broad differences at contract time, don't be surprised if team owners are tempted to accept fat offers to put such previous public spectacles as the World Series and Super Bowl on a closed circuit basis.

The danger may even be more imminent for hockey, since Canadian television networks couldn't hope to match a closed circuit promoter's bid for rights to broadcast the Stanley Cup.

Top sporting attractions, long taken for granted as being no further away than the flick of a switch, are in danger of becoming a "pay - as-you - watch" proposition.

Familiar city sportsman Al McCullam, who died Thursday, is shown signing his scorecard after winning the Bay of Quinte Country Club's 1970 men's championship.

McCullam Won Title At Quinte on Last Try

The Bay of Quinte Country Club has lost a champion and the local athletic fraternity an active participant with the death of Al McCullam yesterday.

The 43 year-old golf and curling enthusiast passed away in Kingston General Hospital after a five week illness.

An employee of the Ontario Hydro, the Detroit native moved to Belleville from Toronto 16 years ago and has been competing in local sporting circ'es since that time.

He capped a 16-year membership at the Quinte Country Club by winning the club championship last year for the first time. His third round score of 69 in last year's event was the best round recorded in tournament play on the course last year.

In addition to his win last year, the reigning club champion had made it to the finals of the event in 1968 and again in '61 before losing to Tom Carruthers both years.

Ironically enough, it was as a teammate of Carruthers that he achieved his most notable curling success. Both men were members of the Mac White rink which was runner-up in the Provincial Consols Curling Championship in 1961.

A director of the Quinte Curling Club from 1968-70, Al had captured three divisional curling titles in addition to numerous wins in local bonspiels during his 12-year association with the club.

He leaves a wife, Connie and three children. Resting at the O'Brien Funeral Home until services at 11 a.m. Monday at St. Joseph's Church.

Cubs Minus Banks First Time in 17 Years

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Chicago Cubs have never worried about one starter for opening day for the last 17 seasons but this year will be different—Ernie Banks will be missing.

The spirit is willing, but the knees aren't, doctors said Thursday as the National League Cubs put their slugger on the 21-day disabled list.

The 40-year-old Banks, tortured by arthritic knees, hasnt responded as expected to treatment and workouts this spring.

General manager John Holland approached Banks with the idea of removing him from the active roster and the Cubs' great first baseman agreed it was best. Holland said Banks would be restored to active duty April 21.

Despite his painful knees, especially the left one, Banks was able to hit for average this spring during limited training camp service. He had 11 hits in 27 at-bats for .407.

Banks was the National League's most valuable player in 1958 and 1959 and has a career total of 509 home runs.

Teams continued to pare down for opening day, including Montreal Expos who sold infielder Marv Staehle to Atlanta Braves for an undisclosed sum. The Expos also said that outfielder Adolpho Phillips would be left behind when the club breaks camp, to be either sold, traded or assigned to the minor leagues.

Cincinnati Reds got down to the 25-player limit by sending pitchers Pedro Borbon, Pat Osburn and Ross Grimsley to the minors and placing first baseman Lee May on the 15-day disability list and Chicago White Sox slid to 25 by optioning outfielder Pat Kelly to the minors and selling pitcher John Purdin to Hawaii of the Pacific Coast League.

Orlando Cepeda and Earl Williams uncorked home runs, but the Braves needed an infield out and a rundown play in the seventh inning to trim their Richmond farm club 4-3 in Thursday's spring training action.

Larry Dierker and Denny Lemaster checked New York Yankees on four hits, leading Houston Astros to a 5-0 victory and Juan Marichal gave Milwaukee Brewers only one run in seven innings as he pitched San Francisco Giants to a 4-1 victory.

Pinch-hitter Gene Lamont delivered a two-run single in the bottom of the ninth inning, capping a wild, 42-hit affair and handing Detroit Tigers a 13-12 victory over Boston Red Sox.

Billy Williams and Jose Ortiz each had three hits in a 13-hit attack and Jim Colborn, Phil Regan, Earl Stephenson and Ron Tompkins combined on a four-hitter, leading the Cubs to an 8-0 rout of Cleveland Indians.

A triple by Camy Campaneris and double by Felipe Alou highlighted a four-run eighth that carried Oakland Athletics to a 4-2 success over the San Diego Padres.

Manny Sanguillen got in two runs in a three-run second inning and Al Oliver contributed a pair of doubles and scored two runs, powering Pittsburgh Pirates past Cincinnati Reds 5-4; Mike Hedlund and Jim York pitched a combined four-hitter as Kansas City Royals checked St. Louis Cardinals 2-0.

Price Tagged at Plate

Detroit Tigers' Jim Price is tagged out at the plate as he attempts to score from second on Jim Hannan's single to centrefield in fourth inning of game with the Boston Red Sox in Lakeland Thursday. Bosox catcher Duane Josephson makes tag after taking throw from outfield.

Ellis Stuns Bucks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York Knicks did the expected but Joe Ellis' late-game heroics shocked Milwaukee Bucks in National Basketball Association playoff action Thursday.

The defending champion Knicks, led by Walt Frazier's fourth-quarter charge, subdued Atlanta Hawks 111-107 to take their Eastern Conference semi-final four games to one.

Ellis' 40-foot shot with one second to go lifted San Francisco Warriors to a 106-104 win over the Bucks for their first win after three straight losses in a best-of-seven Western Conference semi-final.

In other games, Philadelphia 76ers stayed alive in their Eastern series, beating off a Baltimore Bullets rally for a 104-103 win while Los Angeles Lakers drubbed Chicago Bulls 115-89 in Western play.

The Bullets and Lakers lead their respective series 3-2. The Bucks fell behind 81-82 on the torrid shooting of Atlanta's Pete Maravich, who scored 21 points in the final half.

But then Frazier went to work, hitting nine of his 25 points to give the Knicks within 102-101 with 2:12 remaining.

Dave Stallworth tied the game with a free throw 17 seconds later. Willis Reed hit two more free tosses with 1:40 left for the lead and then Dave Debusschere stole an inbounds pass and scored for a 106-102 spread.

The winning San Francisco shot came three seconds after the Bucks' Oscar Robertson hit a short jump shot to give Milwaukee a 104-103 lead.

Jerry Lucas led the Warriors with 32 points, including 13 in the second period when the team came from five points behind to build a 53-44 halftime margin. Lew Alcindor of the Bucks also got 32 points.

Philadelphia's Archie Clark, who scored 31 points, made a free throw with 26 seconds remaining to make it 104-101, but missed a bonus try.

Mauch Thinks Marshall Ready

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (CP) — Mike Marshall, a 28-year-old right-handed relief specialist, is determined to make it big in baseball. But some day he will probably settle down as a university teacher.

Marshall has been in pro ball since 1961, well-travelled in the minors, and appears ready to stick in the National League with Montreal Expos after a part-season fling with the club in 1970.

Swoboda Not Sad

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — With no regrets about the past or fan reaction to bold his immediate attention, Ron Swoboda has ended his stay with New York Mets.

"I don't regret anything I did," Swoboda said as he packed Thursday to report to the Expos who acquired his services in exchange for outfielder Don Hahn.

Manager Gene Mauch also thinks Marshall is ready.

"Marshall has come along well," Mauch said, discussing the over-all performance by his club in spring training. "All of his outings haven't looked good, but he's come around to understand catcher John Bateman and to understand me.

Marshall's only big-league experience before coming to Montreal was with Detroit Tigers and Houston Astros. In 1967 he got into 37 games with the Tigers, pitching 58 innings for a 1-3 won-lost record.

With Houston in 1970 he was 9-1, pitching only five innings of four games before being acquired by the Winnipeg Whips, Montreal's class AAA farm club. He was later called up to the Expos.

He was 2-1 with the Whips and 3-7 with the Expos, working in 65 innings of 24 games with the parent club. His earned-run average was 3.47.

Phillies Unveil Fillies

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — It's not just the pitchers who will be throwing curves opening day, Philadelphia Fillies will also be throwing a few curves at the fans.

The Fillies, female ushers of the Phillies' baseball team, will unveil their elite corps, the Hot Pants Patrol, on opening day.

The National League team's female ushers this season will be frocked in micro skirts or hot pants—short shorts.

The girls are looking forward to it and so are the fans, especially the men

The April 10 home opener against Montreal Expos is a sellout. Who's to say whether it's the Expos the Phillies, the new Veterans Stadium or the hot pants?

Last season the Phillies, expecting to be Philadelphia's new $45 million stadium, outfitted its players in new uniforms. They also outfitted their female ushers in white uniforms with micro skirts and called the mthe Fillies.

So this year when they finally did get into the new stadium, "we wanted something new, different," said Rosemary Sudders, 27, the chief Fillie.

NOTICE

NOTICE OF APPLICATION to The Ontario Municipal Board by the Corporation of the City of Belleville for approval of a bylaw to regulate land use passed pursuant to Section 30 of The Planning Act

TAKE NOTICE that the Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville intends to apply to The Ontario Municipal Board pursuant to the provisions of Section 30 of The Planning Act for approval of Bylaw Number 9011 passed on the 15th day of March, 1971. A copy of the bylaw is furnished herewith. A note giving an explanation of the purpose and effect of the bylaw and stating the lands affected thereby is also furnished herewith.

ANY PERSON INTERESTED MAY, within fourteen (14) days after the date of this notice, send by registered mail or deliver to the Clerk of the City of Belleville notice of his objection to approval of the said bylaw, together with a statement of the grounds of such objection.

ANY PERSON wishing to support the application for approval of the bylaw may, within fourteen (14) days after the date of this notice, send by registered mail or deliver to the Clerk of the City of Belleville notice of his support of approval of the said bylaw, together with a request for notice of any hearing that may be held, giving also the name and address to which such notice should be given.

THE ONTARIO MUNICIPAL BOARD may approve of the said bylaw, but before doing so it may appoint a time and place when any objection to the bylaw will be considered. Notice of any hearing that may be held will be given only to persons who have filed an objection or notice of support and who have left with or delivered to the Clerk undersigned the address to which notice of hearing is to be sent.

THE LAST DATE FOR FILING OBJECTIONS will be April 13, 1971.

DATED at the City of Belleville this 26th day of March, 1971.
Adam S. Stalker,
City Clerk,
City Hall,
Belleville, Ontario.

SPECIAL NOTICE
ALL OWNERS of land abutting the Belleville City Limits and located in the Townships of Sidney and Thurlow are hereby notified of the foregoing NOTICE OF APPLICATION TO THE ONTARIO MUNICIPAL BOARD UNDER SECTION 30 OF "THE PLANNING ACT".

EXPLANATORY NOTE
TO BYLAW NUMBER 9011
Bylaw Number 9011 amends Zoning Bylaw Number 7080 by deleting Section 5:7 and replacing it with a new Section 5:7. This new section includes a more comprehensive list of accessory and incidental uses permitted.

The new Section 5:7 is similar to Section 3:5 of Zoning Bylaw Number 6495 with the exception of the first three listed in Section 5:7 which is being Public or Community parks, playgrounds, and gardens. These items are included in the Park Zone, O-2, already covered in Bylaw Number 7080.

We have also omitted "a railroad right-of-way", etc., since this is an industrial use, and covered otherwise in Bylaw Number 7080 .

THE CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE
BYLAW NUMBER 9011
A BYLAW TO AMEND BYLAW NUMBER 7080, AS AMENDED, BEING A BYLAW TO REGULATE THE USE OF LAND, THE LOCATION, BULK AND SIZE OF BUILDINGS, THE SIZE OF BUILDING LOTS AND THE DENSITY OF POPULATION
THE COUNCIL OF THE CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE ENACTS AS FOLLOWS :

1. THAT Section 5:7 of Bylaw Number 7080 be and the same is hereby repealed.

2. THAT Bylaw Number 7080 be and it is hereby amended by adding the following Section immediately after Section 5:6:

5:7 CERTAIN USES NOT RESTRICTED
Save with respect to requirements for yards, the provisions of this Bylaw shall not apply to the following uses:

— A PUBLIC STREET.
— A STATUE, MONUMENT, CENOTAPH, FOUNTAIN or other such memorial or ornamental structure;
— AN ELECTRIC POWER DISTRIBUTING STATION or TRANSFORMER STATION under the jurisdiction of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario or the Belleville Utilities Commission, and which does not include a storage yard.
— AN ELECTRIC COMMUNICATION or POWER TRANSMISSION LINE
— A PUMPING STATION for water, sewage, oil or other fluid but not including a storage yard.
— A RETAINING WALL not including a storage yard.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Ten Ways Listed To Kill Oneself

I am only sorry, Mrs. F., that I don't have the space to tell you everything I'd like to say about how to stay alive. That would take a book, maybe many books. And I have written a number which answer some of your questions on self-preservation. If still interested, you may find them in your public library.

"How To Stop Killing Yourself" heads the list because it was a best seller about 20 years ago. In it I fully discuss the ways we go about shortening ourselves off prematurely. I'll mention them here (not in the order of their importance):

(1) Eating too much,' or too little (2) Becoming a chronic alcoholic and ruining kidneys of cirrhosis in the liver, (3) Getting too fat and fouling the lifelines (arteries) with cholesterol, fatty acids and thrombi (blood clots).

(4) Driving with too heavy a foot on the accelerator and dying on the side of the road (5) Procrastinating when symptoms such as pain, bleeding, unattended lumps,' etc., warn of impending illness. (6) Overworking; yes, it can kill in spite of what you have heard to the contrary. (7) Boring yourself and rusting to death. (8) Overexercising an older machine as though it were still young and only a few years off the assembly line. (9) Smoking and laying down the foundation stones for lung cancer, emphysema or heart disease. (10) Living in tension and inviting high blood pressure, ulcer or a coronary attack.

There are many other ways. We live or die by our own bad habits and way of life. All it takes to live longer barring accidents which are often avoidable is to take honest inventory. To take a good look at yourself, Mrs. F. To ask and answer the question: How am I killing myself? And having the nerve and will to stop committing slow suicide.

* * *

For Mrs. L.: Losing a uterus takes getting used to. However prepared for it the patient may be, the loss comes like a shock. It's (in a larger way) like reaching your hand into a pocket looking for lost car keys or a wallet and finding nothing but an empty hand and outstretched fingers. But car keys and wallets can be replaced. The shock of loss is temporary. After a hysterectomy the readjustment usually takes longer.

But I can promise you that in most women the adjustment is inevitable. They learn to live as happily as before the operation. Some even more happily because there is no longer the threat of unwanted pregnancy.

I realize all I am telling you is easy for me as a man and a doctor to say, Mrs. L. Nevertheless, it's the truth. And the sooner you believe it, the more easily you'll be.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Why is it that women get so stiff-ness goes out of my joints even when I haven't taken any aspirin or any other medicine? They feel as though they'd recently been lubricated with some high-grade oil. Any explanation? — Mr.U

COMMENT: These are called reminders. It happens with many arthritic patients. I know of no specific reason for this happy state. All we can hope for is that these comfortable periods last as long as possible.

House Approves Boost In Veterans' Pensions

OTTAWA (CP) — Legislation increasing disability pensions and allowances for Canada's 200,000 veterans and dependents passed the Commons Thursday with a minimum of debate and was sent to the Senate.

The bill, announced last December, will increase pensions by 10 per cent and allowances by 15 per cent and cost an estimated $40 to $50 million this year.

The three bills passed Thursday amend the Civilian War Pensions and Allowances Act, the Pensions Act and the War Veterans Allowance Act. Although the measures still require Senate approval and royal assent before becoming law they would be retroactive to Thursday, April 1.

The changes mean that a married veteran with a 100-per-cent disability would receive $4,464 annually, an increase of $408. A single person with same degree of disability would get an increase of $324 to $3,504 annually.

The maximum total allowance for a veteran and spouse under the War Veterans Allowance Act would be increased to $3,252 from $2,940. The same amounts apply to a widow or widower of a veteran living with a child.

Pensions under the Civilian War Pensions and Allowances Act would be increased in line with the raises in veterans' pensions. Payments under this act are made to merchant seamen and other quasi-military personnel who died or were disabled as a result of war service.

In brief speeches, several members said that because the pension changes will force veterans to apply for the old age security pensions and guaranteed income supplements, they will be faced with the possibility of paying income taxes.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) and J. Angus MacLean (PC—Malpeque) said another result is that fringe benefits for veterans are being eroded.

Later, the opposition assault resumed on the government reorganization bill that provides for an environment department and expansion of the cabinet. Debate was to resume today.

Also on Parliament Hill Thursday:

—Prime Minister Trudeau announced the appointment of Louis J. Robichaud, 43, former Liberal premier who in nearly every segment of public and social life — and common justice demands that we re-

—Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey told the Commons that representatives of 55,000 rail workers have agreed to resume negotiations in Montreal. All elements for settlement of the threatened rail strike were in place, he said.

During debate on the veterans' legislation, William Knowles (PC—Norfolk-Haldimand) said the amendments should be retroactive to Jan. 1.

New Democrat Stanley Knowles welcomed the increases but said the bills contain "some things we do not like" and leave out some needed things.

Although the maximum allowances were being raised by 15 per cent, the ceilings on permissible income were being raised only by 11 per cen or less.

Veterans getting the old age security pension and having another source of income might become ineligible for the war veterans allowance. Income wouldn't be reduced but ancillary benefits would be lost, including hospital treatment and free burial.

A man dying more than a year after being taken off the allowance, because he was getting the guaranteed income supplement, would leave a widow without the right to the married rate for a full year.

New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas criticized the bill for not lowering the eligibility age of veterans widows—now 55, unless they are medically unfit.

Some widows of Korean War veterans were running into this problem. They were ineligible for the allowance and at 50, they were often unable to get jobs.

Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) asked why veterans of the First and Second World Wars living in Britain should be ineligible for pensions because they haven't lived in Canada for one full year since the wars.

George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) said a section allowing the government to establish five new ministers of state would "supply all sorts of opportunity to the Liberal faithful, not only to elected members but also to riding presidents, campaign managers and bagmen." It was patronage on a grand scale.

Andre Fortin (Creditiste—Lotbiniere) said Parliament is being asked to establish five ministries without being told what they will be. This was "a treacherous principle on which to legislate."

K. R. Hymmen (L—Kitchener) said a proposed ministry of urban affairs would help provinces meet housing problems.

James McGrath (PC—St. John's East) and Paul Yewchuk (PC—Athabasca) returned to the attack, saying the ministries would eat up money at a time when Canada was in dire straits economically.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Divorce Law Favors Wife

In response to a number of letters asking me how I feel about the Women's Lib movement, the answer must be that I agree with much of it, even though I find some of the women who are leading it to be intolerable caricatures of their sex.

But as Don Marquis once wisely said, "An idea isn't responsible for who believes in it." Or for what kinds it — and if the movement has validity it will soon shake off some of the neurotics and hysterics whose strident support does more to hurt the movement than help it.

Although it is perfectly true that women have been discriminated against in nearly every segment of public and social life — and common justice demands that we re-dress this unfair balance — it is equally true that there is one area in which women have profited from their gender beyond all reasonable equity: in the divorce courts.

Our whole present system of divorce, alimony and support is (with a few exceptions) geared heavily in favor of the wife and against the husband. Not merely in the assumption that she is always the best parent to have custody of the children, but in the allocation of funds and the legal restrictions upon the husband's future income.

It seems to me that any movement calling for "equality" does itself the most good not just in demanding the rights it is entitled to, but in exhibiting its willingness to give up the wrongs it has benefited from. This is how it shows good faith to the public and deflates some of its moral force, not merely another pressure group trying to get all it can.

One of the basic aims of the Women's Lib movement must be to work for the elimination of our present "fault" system of divorce, where one party is deemed "guilty" and the other "innocent," with the guilty paying unjustified punishment for his putative misdeeds. Every court in the country knows this is a fabrication, and that in the vast majority of cases both parties are responsible for the breakdown of the marriage.

Women cannot ask for equality on one hand and continue to profit from the unequal disposition of divorce cases on the other; to live for years on the unjustified proceeds of an ex-husband's labor; to walk off blithely with the children, the chattels and a guarantee of lifelong support, if they choose never to marry again. This not only makes a broke and bitter man out of the husband, but a vengeful, greedy and lazy woman out of the wife.

If the movement works for the liberation of men from this unjust burden, it will demonstrate that it is more than a man-hater's trade union.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For April 3

Your birthday today: This is a year of expansion, departure from long established habits and personal customs. Changes are smooth but definite, taken deliberately rather than imposed suddenly. Today's natives usually have abundant energy. Many of them specialize in food and its handling; others seek mystical subjects for specialization.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Put your fullest strength to the test this morning; see how much change you can create.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): A smile costs you nothing, produces all manner of subtle and desirable benefits. Talk shop with friends, find some way to impart the fun you get from your work.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Get used to the idea of being busy and on the move all weekend with visitors, new contacts, people needing advice. Relatives, neighbors have news and are interested in your comment.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Common sense with a bit of intuition thrown in saves the day. You needn't push matters any faster than they are already moving.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): This can be a most encouraging weekend, in which you take definite steps on a delayed, hoped-for personal project.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Your opinions find a larger audience than usual — and may influence your future — be careful of what you say, how you direct it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 22—Nov. 21): Don't start any argument, or even reply now. Look, listen, and learn before you jump in.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Personal loyalties compel you to take sides without reference to facts, or before you get them straight. Your friends just might be in error.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Wait for the full story before settling your schedule, organizing a project for the weekend. There are expectable last minute complications

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Your search for the complete standard pattern is hindered now with interruptions and exceptions. Attend to be most pressing immediate questions.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Extend yourself and be generous to those you care about now, while you have so many opportunities.

PM Under Pressure to Fill Senate Vacancies

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau is said to be under heavy pressure to fill the 15 vacancies in the 102-seat Senate following four resignations in the last week.

Sources say the pressure is coming from several fronts—the Senate itself, various Liberal organizations and from individuals promoting candidates for the $15,000-a-year jobs.

The prime minister has the matter under consideration, but there is no indication when appointments will be announced.

Senator Paul Martin, government Senate leader, is known to favor the appointment of highly-qualified individuals, regardless of political affiliation, who can make an obvious contribution to the upper house.

When Mr. Trudeau reached outside the Liberal party last fall for three appointments, it was believed that Senator Martin, a member of Mr. Trudeau's cabinet, was a strong influence in the decision.

Included in those appointments was Ernest Manning, Social Credit premier of Alberta for 25 years until his retirement in 1968.

There are some recently retired—or defeated—provincial premiers now said to be under consideration, including John Robarts of Ontario and Jean Lesage of Quebec.

As of April 25, New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas will no longer be leading his party, but it is doubtful he would want a Senate seat.

Both Mr. Martin and the prime minister are said to be anxious to fill the vacancies with expert and representational viewpoints, but there is strong pressure from party organizations to maintain the tradition of appointing government supporters—especially those who have devoted a lifetime of work to the cause.

By reaching outside the party last fall—and receiving strong support for the move—sources say Mr. Trudeau is almost certain to go farther in that direction with new appointments. With only 30 Conservatives in the chamber—compared with 62 Liberals—there is concern that the Senate will come to be regarded as an arm of the government.

The sources say this concern is felt among some of the 20 Conservatives who have delayed retirement because of their fading party representation in the chamber, and the fear that they would be replaced by Liberals.

"If Mr. Trudeau would appoint a relatively large number from outside the Liberal party these fears would disappear," said one source.

"The Senate could really be revitalized if experts from many fields were appointed on the basis of their service to Canada rather than their service to the party in power."

There have been many precedents for the appointment of persons outside the party in power, but they have been relatively isolated and most appointments have gone to party officials and workers.

Sources close to Mr. Trudeau say he is looking carefully at the qualifications of those under consideration. They say he wants men and women who can make an obvious contribution to the country and, while their political affiliation is not high on the list of priorities, he doesn't plan bypassing Liberals for the sake of appointing opposition representatives.

Hunt Bloody But Humane

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian government will never stop the annual Atlantic seal hunt, John Lundrigan (PC—Gander-Twillingate), said Thursday.

Interviewed on the CBC TV program Encounter, the Newfoundland member said the hunt was "a very bloody business."

But Mr. Lundrigan said, he was satisfied that the seal hunt is "one of the most humane animal slaughters in the world."

The Canadian government has continued to investigate ways of ensuring a healthy seal herd "and a harvest that takes . . . the cream of the crop."

"There will never be an end to sealing in Canada," he said.

Mr. Lundrigan said, however, that a temporary lull in the sealing industry might be necessary if the herd became overly depleted.

Poachers Raid Fish Ponds

TORONTO (CP) — Each spring the Ontario department of lands and forests places a scarecrow in a canoe at its fish hatchery pond at Pembroke.

"It's the only way to keep those damn ospreys from feeding on the trout," explains Ken Chambers, a hatchery biologist with the department.

Each year at this time, the fish at the province's 16 hatcheries, used to stock lakes and rivers for anglers, are besieged by a number of poachers.

At a hatchery at Normandale the department built a six-foot-high fence to keep anglers from the temptations of trout swimming lazily in the three-foot-deep pools.

"They cast over the fence into the ponds," said Mr. Chambers. "I don't know if they caught any ,fish but I know that we got a lot of hooks that got caught in the mesh of the fence."

Hatcheries are usually located at the headwaters of a spring-fed stream and this location, plus the concentration of fish, is a natural haunt for any predator.

The fish-eating osprey and human anglers cut into the hatchery population but the swift little kingfisher also takes his toll after sweeping in to snatch out fingerlings.

The list of poachers includes mergansers, golden eye, robins, mink, otter and even a large beetle that feeds on tiny muskellunge.

Mr. Chambers says the department refrains from killing birds such as ospreys or bald eagles because of the fight to save the birds from extinction.

"We are conservationists before anything else," he said. "We don't like them robbing the hatcheries but we'll never shoot them."

One of the saddest cases of poaching happened last fall at hatcheries at Sault Ste. Marie and south of Owen Sound when the department lost about 300 splake.

Splake, a cross between a lake trout and speckled trout, have been raised for more than 10 years as the department struggles to develop a strain which can tolerate most conditions.

Like the average working man, the department too has what it calls blue Mondays.

Mr. Chambers said the highest mortality rate was Monday after weekend visits from anglers and children.

"Kids throw little pebbles to the fish and people tend to excite the fish. We always see the results Monday morning. Many fish die."

Mink and otter have taken their toll of speckled trout from a hatchery at Dorion, Ont., about 50 miles north of Thunder Bay.

Hatchery officials were astounded one morning to see about 10 three-pound are laid out on the cement beside a pond as if someone had posed them to take a picture But all the heads were missing.

Mr. Chambers also tells of a mysterious happening at a hatchery in southern Ontario where a screened intake became plugged and caused some flooding.

"There was no serious damage but we finally discovered that a family of nine racoons had crawled through a hollow log and were having a becuva a time digging up clams in the hatchery area."

As the coons dug up the clams, much soil was loosened and swept downstream where it sealed off the screen.

Trains Grinding to Halt

'Headed for Trouble', Mackasey Reports

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's railway system was grinding slowly towards shutdown early today as all parties in the enginemen's contract dispute continued separate meetings.

There was no word whether bargainers for the 7,000-member Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the nation's two major railways would meet again before a union strike deadline of noon Monday, local times.

In face-to-face talks Friday, brotherhood, CNR and CP Rail negotiators met for two hours in the morning before splitting up into separate groups.

The groups held separate discussions until early this morning and there has been no hint why the breakup occurred or when direct bargaining will resume.

Meanwhile, with the railways continuing progressive cutbacks on passenger service after clamping down a Friday noon nation-wide embargo on freight shipments, Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey has indicated he is not optimistic a Monday walkout can be averted.

The labor minister, who relieved haggard federal mediators Friday evening in maintaining communications among the parties, said in an interview he could not "see the end of the road" in the dispute.

"I think we may be headed for trouble."

Earlier Friday, Mr. Mackasey had reported to the Commons through Acting Prime Minister Mitchell Sharp that the talks were proceeding "slowly but satisfactorily."

Mr. Sharp said the government is making every effort to get a voluntary settlement and the talks should be allowed to proceed without the threat of government legislation.

Salary has been the main point at issue in negotiations to replace the engineers's last contract which expired a year ago.

The enginemen, who earned an average of $10,450 annually under the previous agreement, asked originally for a 29-per-cent pay increase over two years. The railways offered a three-year pact with annual increase of eight, seven and six per cent.

The embargo on freight movement has caused alarm among producers and shippers across the country with most officials in Halifax and Vancouver expressing dismay and farmers on the Prairies and Prince Edward Island demonstrating equal concern.

Heavy layoffs have already occurred at Western Canada factories depending on rail service, and industrialists across the country have indicated that workers will be laid off in the event of a general walkout.

About six hours after the freight embargo was put into effect, engineers based in Vancouver, who initiated the western work stoppages, announced they would return to work at least until Monday. They had earlier twice rejected pleas from Labor Minister Mackasey to do so.

Price Control Ready —PM

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Friday night a revival of price inflation is "a stark possibility".

He endorsed at a news conference the warning sounded Thursday in Vancouver by John Young, chairman of the federal prices and incomes commission, that Canadians should exercise restraint in pay demands.

Questioned about the speech, Mr. Trudeau said he had not seen Dr. Young's specific proposals. But he said he agreed that "the chairman is right in warning that the inflation we have brought under control in the last 18 months still remains a stark possibility."

Should signs develop of a revival of price inflation, he said, "various decision-makers will have to decide whether they will bring about restraints voluntarily or by coercion."

"The last time," he said in reference to anti-inflationary programs in 1969 and 1970, "the provinces and municipalities were not as emphatic as we were."

Asked how close the government is to imposing compulsory restraints, Mr. Trudeau said:

"In terms of preparation, we are much closer."

He said federal authorities have made administrative preparations for possible use of mandatory pay and price controls.

General Defends Calley Verdict

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Public outpourings of support for Lieut. William Calley continue, but the United States Army and Chief of Staff Gen. William C. Westmoreland have defended the prosecution and conviction of the soldier for his role in the My Lai massacre of 1968.

Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama met with Calley at Fort Benning, Ga., Friday and later attended a rally with Lt.-Gov. Lester Maddox of Georgia. Wallace said he believes that "President Nixon is going to do the right thing and ... grant clemency to Lieut. Calley."

Calley, convicted of murdering 22 civilians and sentenced to life imprisonment, was not permitted to join the 3,000 people at the rally on his behalf. He remained under guard in his Fort Benning apartment.

Westmoreland, the army chief of staff who commanded U.S. troops in Vietnam at the time of the massacre, said: "It was clearly known by our troops in Vietnam that they were to avoid civilian casualties at all costs.

"My orders were that all atrocities would be reported and investigated according to the rules of the Geneva Convention, and it is our obligation to follow through and punish those atrocities."

Satchmo Armstrong Critical

NEW YORK (AP) — Jazz trumpeter Louis (Satchmo) Armstrong remained in critical condition in hospital early today, suffering from recurrent heart and respiratory ailments, his manager, Ira Mangel, said.

A spokesman at Beth Israel Hospital said Friday the 70-year-old musician had "marked difficulty" in breathing, and was in a mechanical respirator in the intensive care unit of the hospital. Armstrong was admitted to the hospital March 15.

The spokesman said Armstrong's latest trouble began Thursday night, when he developed respiratory difficulty and was "weakened generally."

Armstrong, a veteran of gruelling worldwide concert and goodwill tours, had just finished a two-week engagement at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel when he entered Beth Israel.

Some Fees Of Doctors May Drop

TORONTO (CP) — The provincial government will consider asking the Ontario Medical Association to reduce the high fees in its schedule, Health Minister A. B. R. Lawrence said Friday.

He was replying in the Ontario legislature to Opposition Leader Robert Nixon who asked whether the government would adopt a plan similar to one in Newfoundland whereby payments which reach high levels are reduced on a sliding scale.

Ozawa Magic Packs House

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — As the applause subsided, a slight, lithe figure all in black slipped from the wings into the corridor, shaking a tremendous shock of black hair above a sweat-beaded forehead.

On a miserable rainy afternoon, Maestro Seiji Ozawa had done it again—packed the 2,200-seat Opera House with paying listeners as the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra soared toward the best season in its history and its first under his direction.

The onetime Japanese schoolboy baseball pitcher, who had to give up the piano when he broke a finger playing football, has been credited by many with bridging the generation gap in music.

At Toronto, where he conducted for four seasons, 1965-69, the critics said he "democratized" music. One of his concerts took place in Trenton sponsored by The Intelligencer.

Ozawa himself insists he is no innovator.

"I like to try some mixtures," he explained in an interview.

In San Francisco, he has attracted younger audiences but is not confined to the overboard.

"Take the Corky Siegel Blues Band," he said. "We had them as guest artists for three performances and had to schedule a fourth, due to demand. .

"They have electric guitars, things like that.

"I am sure many of the young people who came to hear the blues had never

SEIJI OZAWA

"I am also sure that we opened more than a few ears."

What about the future? How far will he go along he modern path?

"Bach will always be Bach, and Beethoven will be Beethoven," he declared firmly, shaking his mane.

"In the next couple of years, I'd like to try different approaches.

"Not all the time. I just think it is nice to have a new dish on the menu once or twice a season."

Long Hair Ruling To Be 1st in Canada

SASKATOON (CP) — After hearing nearly three hours of argument Friday, Mr. Justice W. A. Tucker reserved judgment on an application to quash a move by the Blaine Lake school unit board, which has suspended 21 students for having long hair.

He said he felt a great responsibility because there was no Canadian precedent so far on the issue. Lawyers for both sides referred to judgments handed down in United States' courts.

J. H. Clyne Harradence told the court a student of the Marcelin school had been deprived of natural justice. A lawyer, he made the representation on behalf of the parents of Garry Michael Sieli, an 11-year-old Grade 6 student, who was suspended March 16 after arriving at the school without having his hair cut to a regulation length.

In his application, Mr. Harradence claimed the school board had exceeded its jurisdiction, authority and power in passing the resolution relating to standards of dress and haircuts for the male students in the Blaine Lake school unit.

He also said the board had deprived itself of jurisdiction in that it failed to grant the boy natural justice by finding him guilty without a proper investigation, and failing to give the boy adequate opportunity to state his case.

Mr. Harradence also told the court the board's resolution was in violation of the Canadian and Saskatchewan bills of rights.

Fred Dunbar, representing the school unit board, agreed with Mr. Harradence on the right to attend school, but said there was also a right to obey regulations.

On the question of natural justice, Mr. Dunbar said "there was substantial natural justice in that the mother was invited to argue the case with the board, but failed to attend a meeting."

On rebuttal, Mr. Harradence suggested that perhaps somebody should take a look at the length of teachers' hair. He said it seems to me it's a matter of "don't do as I do ... do as I say."

Troopers Find Cache Of Arms

BELFAST (AP) — British troops joined police today in a series of arms raids that began before dawn in the Roman Catholic Ballymurphy district of Belfast and later extended into the Northern Ireland countryside.

Army helicopters hovered overhead while 300 troopers searched fields near Lough Neagh. The troops found a cache of shotguns, revolvers, ammunition, a two-way radio and two bags of sodium chlorate used in explosives.

Police said one man was arrested.

After this find the raiders pulled a surprise return to one of the houses searched in pre-dawn drives in Ballymurphy. This time they found 600 rounds of assorted ammunition, a rifle case, a respirator, a 14-inch dagger, one grenade, seven sub-machine-guns, an air pistol and small parts of various other weapons.

Police theorized this haul had been stored there after the predawn raid.

Manitoba Byelections Vital to All Parties

WINNIPEG (CP) — About 20,000 eligible voters in two diverse constituencies hold Manitoba's immediate political future in their hands in provincial byelections Monday.

All three major political parties have a large stake in the outcome of the byelections in the Greater Winnipeg constituency of St. Vital and in rural Ste. Rose.

For Premier Ed Schreyer, a victory in either contest will give his minority NDP government an over-all majority in the provincial legislature.

While both seats were previously held by the opposition, a double loss may prove both a numerical and psychological blow to the 20-month-old Schreyer government.

The NDP currently holds 28 seats in the 57-member legislature. There are 21 Conservatives, three Liberals, one Social Crediter and two independents in addition to the two vacancies.

For Conservative leader Sidney Spivak and Liberal leader I. H. Asper, both recently elected to head their respective parties, the byelections offer the first opportunity to test their vote-getting ability.

Ste. Rose, a big multi-ethnic constituency stretching about 100 miles along the eastern shore of Lake Manitoba, has been a Liberal stronghold for the last 44 years.

Former Liberal leader Gil Molgat held the seat easily for 17 years before his appointment to the Senate last October set the stage for the byelection.

To retain the seat, the Liberals have nominated Fred Werbiski, 30, a cattle rancher and businessman from Rorketon.

The Conservative standard-bearer is John Boerchers, 26, a university-trained farmer from Laurier, while Pete Adam, 58, a former businessman and National Farmers Union local executive from Ste. Rose du Lac, is the NDP hopeful.

The St. Vital constituency, a predominantly middle-class residential area which includes part of the city of St. Boniface and the northern half of the city of St. Vital, has been held by Conservatives since it was created by redistribution in 1958.

The seat became vacant March 1 when J. A. Hardy resigned after moving to British Columbia.

Kenneth Pratt, 45, an architect, has the Conservative nomination this time, while Mr. Wilding, 33, an optician, has been picked to try again for the NDP. The Liberal candidate is Dan Kennedy, 31, a lawyer and chairman of the St. Vital school board.

The over-riding issue in both constituencies has become a choice of free enterprise or socialism.

Woman Succumbs To Burns

Mrs. Evelyn Wilson, 56, of 72 Burton Street, in critical condition at Kingston General Hospital since March 23 with burns to 90 per cent of her body, died yesterday.

Mrs. Wilson, police reports said, was working at her kitchen stove on the morning of March 23 when a towel she was using caught fire, igniting some loose clothing.

Rushed to Belleville General Hospital, she was transferred to intensive care in Kingston.

Tenders Questioned

The construction industry in Quinte district came under fire at the Thursday night meeting of the Loyalist Colleges Board of Governors.

R. A. Loader referred to the college's policy of attempting to award tenders to local construction firms. He informed the board he had noticed a difference between local and outside tenders.

After the meeting, he said that local construction firms, if their tenders were reasonable, were given first consideration. However, he told the board that local firms have been submitting tenders much higher, in many cases, than out-of-town companies.

"My main object is to keep local contractors more conservative so we can attract local businessmen as much as possible."

At the March 19 meeting of the board, the members were told that estimates for cost of planned facilities were running approximately 10 per cent high. Cost comparisons are now being done by college staff.

Area Boards for Blind Will Be Consolidated

The advisory boards of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind in Hastings and Prince Edward counties have voted to consolidate into one organization.

The move, taken at a recent meeting at the Shannonville home of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Vivian, was the outcome of a feasibility study by representatives from the two boards.

As result of the consolidation, a new 30-member advisory board will be formed from the members of the two original boards which had a combined membership of 65 persons. There are 165 blind persons in the two-county area — 134 in Hastings and 31 in Prince Edward county.

Under the new setup, generally only the committee chairmen or conveners will actually be board members with other workers being freed of administrative talks will have more time to active participation in blind activities.

Consolidation of CNIB advisory board is not new in Ontario as already 13 such boards have been reduced to six.

Chairman of the Hastings county board, H. H. Clarke of Trenton, presided over the meeting which heard reports on visitations given by Miss M. Peck and field secretary Roy Lesperance.

Mrs. Harry Rollins reported on the 31st birthday party of the White Cane Club for which the Kinette Club had catered. Eighty six persons attended the dinner, including several local dignitaries and 35 guests from Kingston.

Mr. Lesperance said that Quinte St. Lawrence Hall, district blind residence in Kingston, was now filled to capacity with 26 occupants. He also noted that parking had become a problem at the residence since the opening of the new McArthur teaching college in the vicinity.

In her eye bank report, Miss L. Rollins said that during the past month 58 eyes had been received at the eye bank — 34 from out of town and 44 from Toronto. Twenty-three transplant operations had been performed, 52 requests for eyes received and 373 donor cards had been signed.

Mr. Lesperance reported that more corneal tissue is being used in this area than the area is providing and he urged that more citizens be approached to sign donor cards.

Mr. Cunningham reported that contributions to the Hastings branch of the CNIB during the 1970-71 campaign totalled $7,204 — over $1,000 more than in the previous year.

Home teacher, Miss Brault reported that four local blind people were receiving instructing in leather lacing, basketand - or braille.

The advisory board responded favorably to the suggestion of Mr. Lesperance that it host the annual CNIB Eastern Ontario bowling tournament in the spring of 1972.

Mr. Lesperance said that a Belleville and Trenton team would be one of those competing in the 1971 tournament being held at Cornwall on April 24.

The annual meeting of the advisory boards for Hastings and Prince Edward will be held at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Belleville on May 19 at 6:30 p.m. with Miss Susan Henninghausen, national director of CNIB prevention and literacy department as the speaker.

Other CNIB activities this year include the annual children's picnic at Howe Island on July 14, and the next general meeting of the advisory board on September 30.

Mr. C. Becker, Parrott Drive, Belleville, because of his keen interest in CNIB work was an invited guest at the March meeting.

Water Trucks To Continue

The water problem at Bayside will have no effect on the opening date of the new secondary school on the site.

The temperamental well on the property, whose rate of flow wanes and wanes with the seasons, is now inadequate to service the two elementary schools on the site.

Water is now being trucked in to serve the two schools.

But part of the plan for the secondary school is a pumping station, with chlorination and filtration plant, to treat bay water. When it is completed, it will pump water to all three schools on the site.

Until the water treatment plan is completed, the board will have to continue to draw water to the school site.

"THE CRUCIFIXION"...

Then delivered he him, therefore, unto them to be crucified. And they took Jesus, and led him away. And he, bearing his cross, went forth into a place called The place of a skull, which is called in the Hebrew, Golgotha. Where they crucified him, and two others with him, on either side one, and Jesus in the centre.

After this Jesus, knowing that all things were now accomplished, that the scripture might be fulfilled, saith, I thirst. Now there was set a vessel full of vinegar: and they filled a sponge with vinegar, and put it upon hyssop, and put it to his mouth. When Jesus, therefore, had received the vinegar, he said, It is finished: and he bowed his head, and gave up the spirit.

Grocery Stores Divided On Selling of Beer

Belleville area retail grocers have opposing views on whether sales of beer should be allowed in food stores.

And, because of this, which way they feel their opinions are strong.

This was indicated through a limited survey of local food outlets today following a report by F.A.B. Rands, general manager of the Canadian Federation of Retail Grocers who in a recent letter to provincial secretary John Yaremko, said that 75 per cent of the federation membership would approve of beer sales in their stores.

A similar 75 per cent margin would favor continued government control of retail prices for beer, while 92 per cent opposed limiting the right to sell beer to stores at least 25 miles from a government outlet.

"No I am not in favor," she said "You'll never buy any beer in our store."

But others took the opposite view and expressed themselves definitely in favor.

In fact one food retailer went so far as to say there was no reason whatsoever that beer could not be sold in stores.

Ontario, he said, was far behind the times in this respect with this province being one of the few areas in the world that denies this right.

"It makes it look as though people of this province cannot handle their beer," he said.

The retailer said that possible problems such as stale beer just did not exist. Retailers, he said, are wise to the problem of controlling inventories and are doing it every day.

There would be little question of the drinking of beer drinkers about being able to pick up a case at their corner grocery rather than having to go to a Brewers' Retail Store government outlet as at present.

In Quebec the right to sell beer in food stores is limited to the sale of beer by grocers with chain supermarkets being denied this privilege.

But a check of local supermarkets indicated that here also opinion is divided on the question.

One store manager said he would like to bring beer sales and, from talking with people, felt customers would approve.

But two other supermarket managers took a different view.

One was definitely not in favor while another said "not really".

He doubted if many of the chain stores would handle beer even if it was allowed, but expressed the opinion that this right would eventually come to the Legislature.

Young Doe Pays Visit

TRENTON (Staff) — Residents of West Trenton were treated to the unexpected appearance of a young doe early this morning.

About 8.30 the switchboard at the Trenton police station got busy as residents called in reporting the appearance of the doe in the area around the high school and hospital.

The doe picked its way unhurriedly through open spaces eventually crossing Dundas Street West, and disappearing into the thicket of Hanna Park.

Lands and forests officials were notified and identified the deer as a two-year-old doe.

IN MEMORIAM

FMUTE — In loving memory of Wellington Lee Smith, who passed away April 4, 1962.
He had a cheery smile, a pleasant word
A helping hand to aid he knew.
He was so kind, so generous and true.
In earth he rests and his best
Gone but not forgotten.

BUTCHER — In loving memory of Frederick Butcher, who died April 4th, 1970.
The Promise of Easter,
Lighting the darkness,
And gives us faith that we shall meet again.

Call of Loon May Be Stilled

The haunting cry of the loon may soon be stilled forever. The unforgettable yodel of this lakeland bird — a symbol of Canada's inland waters — is in danger of being stifled by poisons intended to kill insects.

Dr. C. H. Clarke, in charge of fish and wildlife branch of the Ontario department of lands and forests, said in an interview the bird will be endangered in five years.

Dr. Clarke said because the loon may not reproduce for the first four or five years of its life, as is true with many large birds, it will have picked up enough contamination by then to stop the first hatch.

Even with the ban on certain pesticides like DDT, it may be too late for loon, he said. He explained tests by his department on loon eggs found unmistakable evidence of a major problem, and population surveys show the species is decreasing.

Airmen Commended

Capt. Ray Kaduck was one of 57 officers and men receiving commendations from Maj.-Gen. A .C. Hull, Commander of Air Transport Command, in a presentation ceremony at CFB Trenton yesterday. Those honored were participants in Canada's relief program for victims of last year's earthquake in Peru.

Market's Move Said To Be Chamber's Baby

TRENTON (Staff) — "We are not going to force the farmers to move (the market)", parking authority member, Carl Weese, told The Intelligencer yesterday.

"If they don't want to move, this is fine. As far as we are concerned, that is it," he said.

With regard to the future of Trenton market, the authority's chairman, John Saylor says he will "wait and see what the Chamber of Commerce does. It is their baby."

The parking authority had asked the chamber to deal with the farmers directly but any decision as to the future of the market rests with the farmers and the parking authority.

In the farmers meeting with chamber manager, Jack Wilson, Wednesday, they indicated they do not want to move but would like to have the present market site improved.

Mr. Wilson said today that the farmers may stand at the old market site. He indicated paying for improvement of the present market would rest with the farmers.

"We, in no way, want to destroy the market," Mr. Weese said. He said the authority's suggestion that the market shift to a Front Street location was based on a desire to overcome the "chaotic situation (in the market) Saturday mornings."

A packaged option for the farmers that included umbrella shelters and piped-in music at a Front Street parking lot was turned down by the farmers.

However, they would like improvements to be made at the present market square. Mr. Weese said: "If they want to improve the market at the present site, that is fine." He indicated it would be unlikely that the authority would pay for improvements at the existing market site.

The authority was willing to promote an improved market at another site where parking is adequate but the present site is very congested now.

"We felt we could assist them in improving the market at a better location," Mr. Weese said.

Basis for the parking authority's suggestion that the market be moved was to reduce traffic congestion in the market square and provide additional parking spaces. Spaces at Front Street parking areas are not as sought after on Saturday mornings.

The farmers have organized a six - member committee to improve and expand the market at its present location.

Centennial Band's Recording on Sale

Centennial Secondary School's band has gone on record with a stereo disc of some of the selections that have made it a prize winner this year.

The 72 piece senior band is selling the record at $4 as part of its effort to keep its activities self-supporting.

The aim of music teacher and band director M. J. Emmerson is to instil in students an understanding and appreciation for music through its performance. But he and his students go beyond that, and take their act of music further afield than Belleville, with performances this year in Ferndale Falls, Huntsville and, North Bay. In addition, they play at other Belleville schools and go out into the county as far as Bancroft.

All these trips cost the school board nothing. Through fund raising drives such as the sale of their record, the students pay for all transportation and accommodation themselves.

The band has new uniforms, cause of favorable comment from audiences at recent public appearances. Cost of material will come out of record sale proceeds. They were made by Mrs. A. Chapman, with the assistance of several teachers at the school and a number of students.

The record, pressed by an Oshawa company, includes selections for all tastes. Among the numbers are excerpts from Hair, Mr. Lucky, Oklahoma! Bizet's opera Carmen, and the Robin Hood Suite.

Mr. Emmerson feels his band's record gives one answer to those who complain about lazy youth. His young musicians practice 300 hours a year in class in addition to individual practice and performances.

The result, in permanent form, is available from any band member or through telephoning the school. The $4 price of the record includes tax.

Essay Contest Open for Teens

Young people are being enlisted in an anti-litter campaign sponsored by the federal department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development.

"The department, seeking to reduce its national park's trash removal bill below the $3 million it spent last year, is looking to youth for ideas on how to keep parks clean.

It has announced two contests as part of a general anti-litter campaign to be introduced this coming season. Parks staff feel that public funds might be better spent improving existing park facilities or developing the five new parks recently acquired.

Teenagers, 13 and 14 years old, are invited to enter an essay contest with 500 words on the theme: If some will enjoy, but many destroy, how can Canadians make the best use of their national parks?

Two prizes of $200, four of $100, 10 of $50, 25 of $15 and $50 of $5 will be awarded the successful writers.

Younger children, from 10 through 12 years of age, are invited to correctly circle all the don'ts in a drawing illustrating vacation activities in a park. They must accompany the drawing with a written explanation.

Deadline for both contests is May 15 and the winners will be notified no later than June 15.

Vimy Dinner Will Honor 'Old Sweats'

Time will roll back the curtain for city and district veterans of World War I on April 8.

The "old sweats", some 60 of them, will be the guests of Branch 99, Royal Canadian Legion at a special banquet commemorating the Battle of Vimy Ridge.

Banquet chairman Jack Laney has announced the guest speaker will be Comrade Earl Brass, district commander, well - known World War II veteran of this area.

A well-known city veteran of World War I, Roy Madden, will present special service pins to various members

It is expected some 100 World War II vets will be present to honor the oldtimers.

Branch 99 ladies auxiliary will cater to the banquet. A few tickets at $2 each are still available from Jack Laney, Phone 962-0890.

Poetry Magazine Goes It Alone

PICTON (Staff) — Bloomfield writer Keith Rogers, nicknamed Quinte's homespun poet, is having the last word. When the Canada Council refused him a small grant to offset the publication costs of his poetry magazine, Linda, Mr. Rogers resolved to go it alone.

In a circulation campaign for Linda, which is the Spanish word for lovely, the poet has mailed copies of the magazine to each of Prince Edward's 6,000 householders. "I plan to have my brochure eventually find its way into every household in Ontario and finally in Canada," said Mr. Rogers.

The writer, who applied for a Canada Council grant two years ago, criticized the council's refusal of support. "The Canada Council is supposedly there to foster culture. My request was denied by the council that can give large grants to such characters as that professor Stanley Gray of McGill University and can sponsor a professional fool out in British Columbia," he remarked.

The poet, at his own expense, has published Linda this spring and plans to continue monthly publication of this international poetry magazine.

Linda was first published on a quarterly basis in 1968 but Mr. Rogers was compelled to stop the press when slow sales coupled with financial problems hampered his project. Now being re-introduced in the Quinte area, Linda is an eight-page booklet of poems written by Canadian and American authors. Eventually, Mr. Rogers hopes to publish a 48 page magazine.

The cover of Linda will be designed each month by Mrs. Phyllis McMillen, formerly a staff artist for Weekly Unity, a publication of Unity School of Christianity. Subscriptions to Linda can be purchased for $5 annually or $2.75 for a six month period. Single copies will sell for 50 cents.

Tow Truck Thief Guilty

A 21-year-old Belleville man Tuesday pleaded guilty in provincial court, to auto theft, hit and run and failure to produce a driver's licence.

Police reports said Terry Nelson of 47 Lemoine Street, used keys left in a Trudeau Motors tow truck to remove the vehicle from its parking spot. While driving the large truck the accused was involved in an accident on the upper bridge at Front Street with damage to a car estimated at $50. Several minutes later the accused was involved in an accident with a small car with damage estimated at $150.

Sentence will be delivered following study of a pre - sentence report.

Domtar Retirees Enjoy Outing

TRENTON (Staff) — Domtar workers and management played host yesterday to former plant employees.

The retired men were brought to the paper mill by bus and taken on a tour. A stag party followed at Glen Miller Hall.

The 23 men on hand for the sixth annual reunion had service to the company totalling more than 700 years.

Marlbank Lights Up to Ratepayers

If the residents of the hamlet of Marlbank, in Hungerford township, want streetlight lighting they are going to have to pay the shot themselves.

This is the decision of the township council which has ruled against a resolution asking that street lighting cost for the village be paid by the municipality as a body.

Further, they were told that if better street lighting was wanted, a petition bearing the names of a majority of ratepayers willing to pay the additional costs would be necessary.

At the February meeting Reeve R. C. Graham declined to put the motion to adopt the January minutes and again refused at the February meeting.

But members got around the reeve's refusal through a section of the Municipal Act which allows council to appoint another member to act as chairman if the reeve is absent or refuses to act.

Council appointed Vincent Lynch as chairman and on a recorded vote a motion to adopt the January minutes was carried by a 3-2 margin.

Bilingualism Bogey

Civil servants, like any other professional body, have enough to do without having to get bogged down in language studies — and all in the interests of that great Canadian red herring, bilingualism.

If a civil servant, or anyone else, wants to become more familiar with English or French, as the case may be, all well and good — indeed this should be encouraged — but it is clear that the formal courses that have been under way for some time are not only proving a waste of taxpayers' money but a serious inconvenience as well.

We wonder just how much routine Government business is being held up, and what disruption of individual schedules are taking place by fostering bilingualism on unilingual personnel who essentially have neither the talent nor inclination to become bilingual. And we are not just singling out civil servants as being especially incompetent. Rather it can apply to anyone who functions capably in his own tongue, but who is beyond the age where facility in another language is developed easily.

The word from Ottawa in this regard is disturbing. Only 2,000 of the 22,000 civil servants who have attended Government language courses have graduated at the so-called Level 3. And this despite the fact that a whopping $30 million has been spent on the language training program since it began with 64 students in 1963. Not that money can turn unwilling subjects into linguists.

Public Service Commission chairman John Carson released the figures in testimony before a Commons committee recently. He admitted it was a disappointing rate of success but was optimistic for the future. He would need to be, having regard to the statistics, including the fact (and many note) that the language school has a dropout rate of about 30 per cent, partly because of Government needs that prevent people from continuing courses, and partly because of poor motivation.

Bilingualism then is a long path for many. By all means encourage it in the civil service, but let us not have Government business and the proper functioning of individuals disrupted by making a fetish of it. If communication is necessary in both languages, then employ translators — perhaps even high school students who need jobs this summer. It could make for greater efficiency and be cheaper in the long run. As it is, the Public Service Commission appears to be flogging a dead horse.

Exit the Yukon

It is the age of the 707s, 747s and sundry other winged birds, and the familiar drone of the turbo-props will be heard for more over the Quinte area. Recently the last Yukon flight arrived at CFB Trenton from Cyprus.

It was also the last flight for pilot Barry Adam before taking up a desk job in Ottawa and retirement in a year or two to his native New Zealand. One wonders how many other pilots will be affected by retirement of the Yukon fleet numbering around a dozen aircraft.

Four 707 jets are in service, with another on the way. They carry more people and are more economical than the Yukons. Being fewer-by-more, however, will they be able to cope with all eventualities? Or will we find that Ottawa will order still more 707s at still greater cost to the taxpayer?

Pakistani Tragedy

From East Pakistan there are reports of genocide — mass extermination of people. Troops from West Pakistan, from which this fragmented nation is ruled, are said to have been attacking dissident groups in the east. The latter include university students and faculty members, the intellectuals who might be expected to be behind secessionist leader Sheik Mujibur Rahman. But there are reports too of women and children among the dead and that some had been bayoneted. This is in a part of Asia where emotionalism can be completely unbridled, and it leads to the kind of hysteria and tragedy being enacted today.

Hot Spots

For Western correspondents these days, following the troublespots can mean the trauma of transfer from weeping Belfast alleys, and from the grey back streets of Ulster's discontent, to the hot, electric atmosphere of Pakistan. That has been the lot of NBC's George Montgomery. It has been vice-versa for the CBC's Bill Cunningham, who has exchanged Vietnam (and at least one run-in with the North Vietnamese, from which he escaped unharmed) and neighboring lands, for London and of late, Belfast.

Home Needs More Important Than Overseas Handouts?

P.M. Mute But Sharp's 'I Don't Think So' Stuns Canadians

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Charity begins at home, so goes the old saying — except when parliamentarians junket, at taxpayers' expense, to Faraway Places.

Especially when members of the federal Cabinet adventure luxuriously abroad.

If repeat performances prove anything, it is that when they do, particularly when the Secretary of State for External Affairs jets away from the home strand, they just love to play Santa Claus.

In what, to use the External Affairs jargon, is known as "under-developed," "deprived," or "under-privileged" countries.

And while it costs the Canadian federal Treasury millions — currently $576,000,000 — which have to come out of your taxes, parliamentarians customarily maintain a diplomatic silence.

They might not like it — because public opinion polls graphically have shown that only the politicians favor it, and they have to get elected by the taxpayers who protest it — but they keep a bravely buttoned lip.

The politicians sort of favor Foreign Aid because often they get to go along on these giveaways, and anyway, the way the Department of External Affairs has hallowed it, Foreign Aid is kind of like motherhood, to be revered.

The more practical Americans, who first set the style, have been paring down their Foreign Aid as an extravagance they can less and less afford — because they have discovered that many of their overseas beneficiaries openly resent them.

They are told "Yankee go home," their embassies and cultural establishments are sometimes sacked, their overseas financial and industrial installations sabotaged and not infrequently their investments nationalized.

The same, in a much smaller way, has been happening to us Canadians in the Caribbean, among other places.

But our politicians are no hung up on how the splendid pleasures of making big spenders of themselves with other people's money force feed their egos, they blame the hostility on the folks who pay here at home and not those who collect in the Caribbean.

Until now.

Until just the other day.

Until just before Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp came home fr...a Black Africa.

Something then seemed to happen.

Something like a turn-around in parliamentary thinking on Foreign Aid.

If not altogether a reversal of thought, at least a change in direction.

Perhaps it was that the politicians had been hearing from the taxpayers at home.

Perhaps it might even have been that it dawned on them that Mitchell Sharp no longer had to report, in the old slowmotion coffee-grinder Yukons in Faraway Places.

Instead he could zip off — and so did — in one of the Government's gleaming fleet of five new Boeing 707s, with a seating capacity of 150 passengers each plus private luxuriously appointed quarters for the VIP's among them.

It seemed to occur to them, possibly echoing the fears of the taxpayers back in the constituencies, that, with his 707, the Hon. Mitch Sharp could go far faster, further and more often than ever before.

And was taking that cost in Foreign Aid that the Government has sworn it is determined to reduce drastically?

So there were, for the first time, audible murmurs in the Commons of "Mitch, you're a wisdom — and even the virtue — of giving the money away when it is in such short supply.

Creditiste MP Henry Latulippe of the Quebec Eastern Townships riding of Compton asked Prime Minister Trudeau if the Government could afford to provide the "roads, highways, bridges, schools and power dams" in Black Africa, when "we holding up construction of the same here at home?

No answer.

Then Liberal MP Ross Whicher of the Old Ontario riding of Bruce, echoing the concern of his provincial counterpart in the legislature, Eddie Sergeant, reminded the Prime Minister that while Mr. and Mitch was handing out $14 million in 50-year interest-free loan to the Congo and Nigeria for cons - truction of a railroad, the good people of Owen Sound — his election — were having to make do without even a single train. No passenger rail service at all in the heart of the country's richest province.

No answer.

Finally, James A. McGrath, Conservative MP for Newfoundland's St. John's East, asked the Prime Minister pointedly, he, pretty please, do something for Newfie while doing so much for Zambia and Tanzania?

Unemployment in Newfoundland, he hardly needed remind the Prime Minister, was running "an alarming 15.2 percent," the national high.

No answer.

But when dear old Mitch came home, the Santa Claus from External Affairs had an answer.

Didn't he think, he was asked, that Canada might do more to help the needy at home while doing so much for strangers abroad?

"I don't think so," he said.

You have to hand it to Mitch — he calls them as he sees them, even if the MPs, many of them Liberals, can scarcely believe it when he tells them.

Island in the Sun

While summer staggers closer to the northern hemisphere it maintains its usual beneficent grip on southern climes. This is Heron Island, the most southerly of Australia's Great Barrier Reef tourist resort islands .Forty miles off the coast, it is a true coral cay, covers 60 acres and is surrounded by five miles of coral reef. A national park, the island has a marine biological station and aquarium. A channel cut through the reef provides access by boat to the island. (Australian Information Service picture)

Deseronto's Centennial

Napanee Beaver

A plaque will be unveiled in the town's park in June by the Ontario Department of Tourism and Information's historical branch, public records and archives section, to recognize the 100th birthday of a town named after an Indian Chief, John Deseronto.

Actually the community dates back to 1833, when it was known as Culbin. Then Wheler Lake, it was Mill Point and at that time had its own newspaper, the Mill Point Echo. In 1871, the name was changed to Deseronto and the village grew to town status in 1889 and had a population of 2,300, about twice what it is today.

In the late 1800s the Rathbun family dominated the town and its economy. They built their lumber interests and manufacturing and railroading development. Much of the population which grew to over 5,000 in that period, worked for Rathbuns and took their wages in scrip at the company store. The firm's offices were in a brick building on the dock at the lakeshore later owned by Redi-Heat appliances manufacturers, later by Dravo, and now empty.

The company had two sawmills, a sash and door factory, boiler shops, shipbuilding yards, gas works, railway yards (the C.N.R. now has seven miles of points as Tweed and Tamworth and brought the company's raw materials from the northern forests), a printing shop (they owned the local newspaper of the day, the Tribune) and a flour mill and cement plant.

A fire in 1896 and a decline in business brought the company to a halt and today the town's population is about 1,800. However, there are several industries now — Metcalfe Foods canning company, Ideal Veneers, Canada Optical, Hawley's furniture shop, and others and water and sewer services are being installed.

The Rathbun family owned three large homes in the town and their own sewer line running to the bay. Two of the homes remain, along with a Presbyterian church they built.

On March 26, James A. Eadie head of the History Department at Napanee District Secondary School, gave a paper showing the results of a study he had made of the Rathbun era. He emphasized the business aspects of the family's endeavors, particularly in its railway enterprise. This was at a meeting of the Lennox and Addington County Historical Society in Napanee.

Deseronto is located on No. 2 Highway stretching southward and took their name from it. To the west is the Tyendinaga Mohawk Indian Reserve, site of an Air Force station in the First and Second World wars.

Successor to the Deseronto Tribune as the town's newspaper was the Post, which was later purchased by the Napanee Express and became part of the Post - Express, now a part of The Napanee Beaver.

Deseronto has a mayor, reeve, and six councillors. It is in Hastings County, just west of the Lennox and Addington County border, so is actually closer to Napanee than it is to Belleville seat, Belleville. Its reeve represents the town on Hastings County Council.

Exit the Yukon

It is the age of the 707s, 747s and sundry other winged birds, and the familiar drone of the turbo-props will be heard for more over the Quinte area. Recently the last Yukon flight arrived at CFB Trenton from Cyprus.

It was also the last flight for pilot Barry Adam before taking up a desk job in Ottawa and retirement in a year or two to his native New Zealand. One wonders how many other pilots will be affected by retirement of the Yukon fleet numbering around a dozen aircraft.

Four 707 jets are in service, with another on the way. They carry more people and are more economical than the Yukons. Being fewer-by-more, however, will they be able to cope with all eventualities? Or will we find that Ottawa will order still more 707s at still greater cost to the taxpayer?

Unwed Mothers and the Welfare Situation

Peterborough Examiner

A remarkable article by Sidney Katz of the Toronto Daily Star gives a pretty good idea of why the number of adoptable children is fast decreasing and makes a telling point or two in the Quinte area. Recently the last Yukon flight arrived at CFB Trenton from Cyprus.

Katz quotes experts as saying that today "better than five out of 10" unmarried mothers keep their babies; that in New Mount Sinai Hospital out of every 40 unmarried girls "35 are keeping their babies;" and that yearly about 9,800 unmarried girls give birth to children in Ontario.

This sounds beautiful and very human; the babies are growing up with their natural mothers instead of as adopted children of some strangers. On this basis, unwed pregnant girls are counselled to keep their children and told that if they didn't they would live their lives in constant anguish wondering what happened to the innocent child they'd brought into the world, and with a tremendous guilt complex, etc.

What actually happens is approximately this:

Girls who earn enough send their children to private nursing homes, meaning that the children are brought up by (rather than motherly (but very professional) personnel and seldom see their mothers anyway.

Most of them simply quit working and go on welfare. Katz quotes the example of one such girl who, with her baby, lives in a two-room flat in a poor district of Toronto. She plans to stay on welfare — which is less than $200 a month until her baby is two-and-a-half years old.

What have we accomplished?

Katz doesn't say so, but by and large it's mostly ignorant girls to keep their babies some professional service organizations create poverty by forcing the load on society and at the same time deny the innocent children the decent home they deserve.

Had the above mentioned girl not been counselled to keep her baby, the child would have been adopted by a loving couple and given not only proper material care but parental love as well.

The girl — the unwed mother — could have kept her job, supported herself and contributed to society. Under the present circumstances both the mother and the child are living under slum conditions and near starvation — and at society's expense.

The Star article says, according to the director of the family benefits branch of the department of family and social services, about one-third of the 24,000 women with dependents receiving monthly cheques are unmarried mothers.

That's 20 per cent more than a year earlier.

Aside from everything else, it seems that this welfare mania and irresponsible counsel is steadily decreases the number of productive contributors in society while it increases the dependents. No country can afford that for long.

Ulster's River Foyle Checked For Pollution Content Since 1952

Ulster Commentary

European Conservation Year has made everyone very pollution - conscious. But in North America the twin problems of atmospheric and water pollution receive even greater emphasis. Air pollution indices are announced daily for many of the cities of Canada and the USA and fishing on a commercial basis has been banned in waters where mercury pollution is present.

A proposal has been made by one of the Provincial Governments in Canada that the two federal governments of Canada and the USA together with other provincial and state governments concerned, should create a single agency to co-ordinate the control of pollution in the Great Lakes and related rivers.

It may be of interest, therefore, that a similar body, with full responsibility for fisheries including pollution, has been in existence in Ireland for 18 years. Following the partition of certain fishing rights in Lough Foyle and the River Foyle, — which separate Northern Ireland and the Irish Republic — the two Governments in parallel passed laws into their respective Parliaments, set up the Foyle Fisheries Commission to administer a single code of law for the improvement, conservation and protection of the fisheries in the area drained by the Foyle river system.

A pollution survey of the lower part of the River Foyle in the vicinity of Londonderry was carried out in 1952 and similar checks have been made at intervals since.

Although a number of new factories have been established in the vicinity of Londonderry in the intervening years, the extent of the pollution has been held in check. In some parts of the river system there has even been an improvement in the purity of the water. The commission has also taken a tight grip on a new type of pollution — that of the effluent from sand washing plants. This, though not actually poisonous, was deleterious to fish life and are feeding in the rivers. The regulations dealing with sandwashing were the first to be made in the British Isles.

The Foyle is the most prolific salmon river in the British Isles and the average annual catch has been more than 100,000 fish over the past decade. It is worthy of note that the average for the previous 10 years was only about two-thirds of this figure, a further confirmation that pollution and other hazards are under firm control.

Lough Neagh which adjoins five counties in Northern Ireland (and is thus outside the Foyle Area), is being monitored by a special research unit of the Northern Ireland Ministry of Agriculture set up in recent years. The Lough spart from its valuable fisheries, is now increasingly the source of water for domestic and industrial uses.

Concern for the Elderly

Kitchener-Waterloo Record

It used to be that old people merely meant moving in with a married son or daughter. Babysitters weren't known when grandma or grampy were still around.

Now, pensions and medicare have liberated old age from the indignities of having to impose on and endure — young, radically — different families in shrunken homes. The elderly have achieved independence.

For many, too many, time now also stops with the gold watch at 65 and the final farewell to the baby turned bride. For them, the prospects can become a declining past, Friends and relatives fall away and failing health may compound the isolation.

In the loneliness, death may become the final friend.

This first Week of Concern in the Twin Cities focuses on our elderly and their problems. It should help us realize that one visit, one smile, one flower now are worth more than a thousand gravesite trips, fears and wreaths.

The report of the Home and School Convention held recently in Toronto, was read by Mrs. H. R. Gibson. The speakers on Radio Material was Dr. Esse Ljungh, of Winnipeg, drama producer for the CBC.

At the April meeting of St. Michael's Parent-Teacher Association the guest speaker was A. E. Kells, inspector and administrator of public schools. Mrs. Kells, the former Miss Frank Cunningham and gave an interesting talk on parents and children. J. J. Doran thanked the speaker.

Most Churches Spend Chiefly on Themselves

NEW YORK (AP) — American church membership, its growth slowing down for the last decade, has come to a virtual halt for the first time recorded in this century.

New figures from 230 denominations issued recently showed that total membership inched up in a year only three-hundredths of one per cent, or 34,348, to a total of 128,505,084.

The tiny gain lagged sharply behind the 1.1 per cent growth in population, thus making the proportion of people that are church members a shrinking part of the citizenry—now down to 62.4 per cent.

I had reached 64.4 per cent in 1967, although the upward rate had been slowing down since the start of the '60s. It went into an actual decline three years ago, sagging sharply this time.

The new figures, gathered by the National Council of Churches last year for its 1971 edition of the Yearbook of American Churches, paralleled other slowdowns in statistical yardsticks of church life.

The latest attendance surveys show that 42 per cent of Americans attended church on an average Sunday, down seven per cent from the all-time high of 49 per cent registered in 1958.

Constant H. Jacquet Jr., editor of the Yearbook, said the downturn resulted from actual losses in some major Protestant bodies and the Roman Catholic Church while others failed to gain substantially.

A few major bodies showed gains, including the Southern Baptist Convention and the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod.

Membership Static In U.S. Churches

NEW YORK (AP) — American church people are spending less on themselves, more on others. But they still use the bulk of their religious resources for their own spiritual benefit.

Although a key Christian teaching is to help others, particularly those in need, the figures show that most modest Christians still spend their funds largely on their own congregational upkeep.

In only a few denominations does the big part of church money go to serving others, beyond the church door.

This is a long-time condition in American churches, and the new figures indicate it is gradually being modified, toward more selfless expenditures.

At present, however, according to the summary compiled by the National Council of Churches, 78.84 per cent of religious contributions are used by congregations for their own internal operations.

An average of only 21.16 per cent is passed on to broader benevolent purposes, locally, nationally and abroad. That proportion is slowly rising, however, and is up 2.36 per cent from the 17.8 per cent of 10 years ago.

The trend suggests an increasing concern for those beyond the sanctuary.

Some denominations reflect that impulse much more than others, notably the Seventh-Day Adventists, a relatively small church of 407,766 people. Last year, they contributed $140 million, 72 per cent of it going to hospitals, schools and other benevolent causes beyond the local congregations.

This amounted to an average $350.96 apiece, topping the list. They kept only 28 per cent for their own congregations.

The Experts Say

New Gardener Should Begin With Annuals

MONTREAL (CP) — The would-be gardener's first step to a successful flowerbed is to decide if he is basically a watcher or a sniper.

For if he is growing flowers mainly for the pleasure of cutting and taking them indoors, says Ernest Jubien, secretary-treasurer of the Provincial Council of Horticultural Societies, they should be of a different variety than those intended to be left in the ground.

Annuals such as asters and snapdragons last much longer indoors than do rock garden plants such as violets, and a sniper should plan his garden that way. Pennies, roses and delphiniums would be other good choices.

Mr. Jubien, himself a flower-lover with more than 30 years' gardening experience, recommends that first-year gardeners get off to an easy start with annuals. There won't be many blooms until late June, but they will give the newcomers a basis on which to plan their next summer's growth.

The goal is steady blossoming from spring until late fall.

Planning is the best insurance for a successful garden, he says. In areas such as Montreal, the last killing frost can be expected about May 24, so the last week of May is a busy time for gardeners as they transfer their plants from flats and pots to the soil.

Mr. Jubien says he works about 16 hours a day during this time to transplant his 2,000-odd plants.

People wishing to grow their own plants from seed must count back from the first certain frost-free date to determine when seeds should be started under fluorescent bulbs. For example, marigolds sprout quickly while begonias take much longer, so the latter seeds should naturally be given a head start.

As a hobby, says Mr. Jubien, gardening needn't be expensive. He spends about $25 a year on seeds but with that he keeps two flower and vegetable gardens active from May to late October.

Even if he wanted to hire the best professional gardeners to tend his shrubs, lawn and garden, he doubts that the top price would exceed $500. On the other hand, a well co-ordinated, carefully stocked garden can also be enjoyed for less than $20.

Mr. Jubien has his own greenhouse but warns amateur gardeners that they require constant attention. On a sunny day in March, plants in a greenhouse have to be watered two or three times a day to prevent burning.

A good substitute is a hotbed—a wedge-shaped frame about two feet high and nine feet long which is lined with insulation, topped with a pane of glass and kept warm with a heating cable buried in the ground.

The cable, which can be purchased complete with a thermostat at any hardware store, should provide about 10 or 15 watts of electric heat for every square foot of growing area.

Flats and small pots can be set on a layer of hardware cloth, or the seedlings can be planted in about four inches of soil on the hotbed floor.

Fertilizing is necessary but easy. In early spring, even before all the snow is gone, Mr. Jubien sprinkles what he calls potato fertilizer—the cheapest stuff available—over his lawn and garden.

Once the grass begins to grow, he spreads on some organic material which is a product of sewage disposal plants. Once a year is sufficient.

Then, throughout the summer, liquid fertilizer which is soluble in water can be used frequently in small quantities. Some insecticides and weed-killers may be added for simultaneous fertilizing and elimination of bugs and weeds.

Slugs—soft-shelled snails—are becoming more and more of a nuisance to Canadian gardeners, Mr. Jubien says. There are chemicals which will kill them but many are toxic to birds and should be used with discretion.

One old-fashioned remedy which he says seems to work is the placing of orange skins upside down on the soil. For some reason, slugs crawl under the skin and huddle together, making it easy for the gardener to get rid of a number in one swoop.

Shrubs and trees definitely improve the appearance of a home, but can be quite expensive. Evergreens in particular are slow-growing and a government ban on European imports has meant Canadian nurseries are faced with a supply-and-demand problem.

Gradually, however, evergreen trees farms are expanding and it's possible the price may drop in the future, or at least not continue to rise. In the meantime, there are always native bushes such as spirea or honeysuckle.

Girl Pages Recommended

VICTORIA (CP) — Eileen Dailly (NDP — Burnaby North) suggested Thursday that the British Columbia legislature begin using girl pages.

She said it would be educational for the girls and one way to encourage more women to enter politics.

Patricia Jordan, minister without portfolio, said the girls could wear some very handsome, very feminine pant suits."

Premier W. A. C. Bennett disagreed, saying: "If you want to have girls, they should look like girls and wear dresses."

Girl pages, wearing pantsuits made their first appearance in Ontario at this week's opening of that province's legislature.

COINS AND ANIMALS

"Animals warm the heart . . . and also bring great pleasure to numismatists." — Thomas V. Haney.

* * *

Over coffee we were discussing fairy-tales for children. Should or shouldn't they be told to budding young minds. Said one, a young mother: Why, the Irish know that fairies exist! No, I cannot believe that a child's future will be spoiled in any way or its faith in mankind harmed when he discovers their non-existence."

Then she told of her own fond and happy childhood memories of an Easter Sunday when her mother lead her to a violet-trimmed grass nest filled with colorful Easter eggs which the Easter Rabbit had left "just for me." She said, "One never ceases to cherish such an expression of a mother's love in portraying such a fantasy that lends delight. Especially if it's the Easter Rabbit! a fairy-tale to be sure, but I've had a deep love for the rabbit ever since."

Thus it was the conversation turned to animals and how they bring us happiness often by association with days of happy childhood or some memorable event. Myths sometimes evolve and man pays tribute to them.

"One way is by using their image on his currency," stated another mother, whose hobby is the history of coins. "As a matter of fact the Greeks made a silver coin back in the seventh century. It carried the image of a turtle."

"Is this unusual?"

"Perhaps not, for many nations have turned to reptile and animal life in quest for their coin-patterns. I was at a coin exhibit not long ago," she paused, reached for her handbag, opened it and drew out a small pamphlet. "Here, I still have this given me at the exhibition." She noted aloud: "There was the kangeroo on the Australian penny. Then, there was elephant on a 1937 Bolivian coin, a camel on a Sudanese piece. And to mark a 600th anniversary of the death of a son of Henry VII of the House of Limbourg, a knight on horseback is engraved on a 100-franc specimen, dated 1346-1946 from Limembourg." Her eyes scanned the page and she mentioned the 1968 new pence of Guernsey has a cow; Norway's coinage has the horse and dog, Ireland features the horse and woodcock.

"What about Canada?"

"On the 1953 quarter is the reindeer. Some coins have geese." Then she added with a note of surprise: "Why on Canada's 1867-1967 centenary nickel was the image of a seal? bit. Perhaps others have happy memories concerning the Easter bunny!"

"I've read recently," she said closing the booklet, "a book by C. R. Hoskins, who traces history of coinage during man's struggle from serfdom to become craftsmen and merchants with the Mediterranean as a highway for trade between east and west. For a long time money was almost non-existent in medieval Europe. The Roman Empire used coins for business, though later used bullion or just barter.

"At any rate," she concluded, "a Coin Mobile is being introduced to schools in some areas which brings history, as depicted on coins of the world to the children; it's that interesting."

Ladies' Bridge Club Elects New Officers

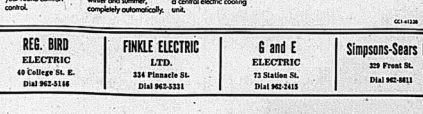
"Year-round climate control makes a very big difference in the way you feel," says Millicent Parkes.

"The air conditioning is really special," Mrs. Parkes adds. "I can cook a meal in complete comfort, even on the hottest days. And I've often heard people say how lovely it is to come in here out of the heat."

The Parkes have lived in their present home in Peterborough for twenty years. Three years ago they decided to install an electric heat pump to heat and air-condition their home, using the existing ductwork of their old heating system. The heat pump does just what its name says—it pumps heat—into each room in winter, out of each room in summer. So one simple electric unit provides year-round climate control.

"We find it keeps the house a lot cleaner, too," Mrs. Parkes' husband, Norman, adds. "We don't get the dust we used to. And because we can keep the windows shut, we don't get the noise from outside, either."



Mr. Parkes agrees. "We get a constant, even circulation of fresh air at whatever temperature we set, so the house never feels stuffy. We can go away for a couple of weeks and come back and the house feels fresh, not like it's been closed up. And you don't find a layer of dust all over everything."

Both agree that they wouldn't go back to any other system. "We feel we've got the right type of heating in winter, and we're very thankful for the air conditioning in the summer," is the way Norman Parkes sums it up.

Discover how easy it is to convert your home to year-round comfort with a heat pump, or one of the other total comfort conditioning systems described below. Check with a qualified contractor or ask your Hydro.

Or choose the heat pump! It maintains the temperature you set, winter and summer, completely automatically.

These two refinements are easy to add—control, automatic, humidity control; and electronic air cleaning to take dust, smoke and pollen out of the air.

Ann Landers

Boss's Foul Language Embarrasses Secretary

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My boss is a charming, successful, educated, well-paid executive who uses language that would attract a mule skinner. He doesn't use this language at me — but in my presence. For example, when I am taking dictation and he gets a phone call he curses a blue streak. I am truly embarrassed by it and I don't know what to do.

I know his wife cannot get him to clean up his language because I've seen her try and fail. I don't feel it is my place to say anything. The boss has a cute sense of humor and he might respond to the light approach. Any suggestions? — BLUE EARED SEC IN CHARLOTTE, N.C.

DEAR SEC: The next time you go into the boss's office for dictation, bring along a set of ridiculously large earmuffs. (Fur, if possible.) When the profanity starts, clap on the earmuffs and keep a straight face. He'll get the message. If he doesn't soft pedal the blue talk, feign deafness and whistle Dixie.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Thank you for giving teens the benefit of the doubt. So few adults do these days, which is part of the problem. In a recent column you said, "Teen-agers have a magnificent way of living up to their parents' high opinion of them."

As a teen-ager I can tell you it really works. I have a couple of buddies whose parents always called them no-good bums, said they weren't worth anything, and predicted they would end up in trouble. One is in a reform school and the other was caught holding up a gas station and he is out on bail. Neither of these guys had anything to live up to — so they didn't even try.

My parents have always made me feel that I was honorable and that they trusted me. They have given me many privileges and I have carefully lived up to them. I don't ever remember my mom or dad telling me I was bad. I would rather die than disappoint them because they think the world of me and I'd feel rotten if I let them down. If you think this letter is worth printing, go ahead and put it in your column. — ALPENA, MICHIGAN.

* * *

DEAR AL: I do and I will. Thanks for the day-a brightener.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last week I attended a luncheon for a newcomer in town. She was described as the New England lady whose family dates back to the Revolutionary War. You can imagine my shock when I recognized her as Goldie Schmaltz (made up name) from the wrong side of the tracks. I was a belle behind me in Central High school back in good old Newark. Goldie did not remember me which is perfectly understandable. I am 30 pounds lighter than I was then. I have a different hair style and a different profile. I happen to know that Goldie's old man ran a service station and her mother ran off with a rooling salesman. I have phony social climbers and snobs scrambling to blow the whistle on dear old Goldie. Should I — in the name of honesty? — JUST PLAIN ME.

* * *

DEAR YOU: Keep quiet — in the name of charity. It may be that the big buildup came from the hostess not from Goldie. You have nothing to gain by informing the crowd that you knew the lady when.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I want to thank you for taking a strong stand against hitchhiking. True, there are some nice kids thumbing their way, but a driver can't tell by looking who is "nice" and who is going to stick a gun in his ribs. Aside from the danger to the driver there is also danger to the hitchhiker.

I would like to quote an editorial which appeared recently in the Stamford Courier:

"A survey by Los Angeles police revealed that 222 girls who hitched rides were victims of forcible rape in that city alone. In New Jersey the state police revealed that 302 of 355 known runaways in 1970 traveled by thumbing rides. A spot check in that same state done on 100 persons picked up on the highways showed that one out of every three hitchhikers had a criminal record. About 5 per cent were wanted by the police. Everywhere degenerates are among both hitchhikers and those who pick them up."

You did a real service by printing that column. Thank you. — CONNECTICUT YANKEE.

DEAR YANKEE: And you did a real service by sending that supportive material which gave me a second opportunity to make the point. Thank you.

Dessert Bridge Held

Under the joint convenership of Mrs. H. McCabe and Mrs. C. W. Smith, Albert College Guild held a most successful dessert bridge and euchre in Ackerman Hall.

After welcoming the guests, the president, Mrs. E. Fleming invited all to partake of the delicious deserts arranged on Two long decorated tables.

While bridge and euchre were played, the principal, L. L. Shewfelt showed slides to the others of his recent trip to the British Isles, concentrating on London and pointing out details of Westminster Abbey, St. Paul's Cathedral, Buckingham Palace, Houses of Parliament, Tower of London and many other places of historical interest.

The high bridge score was won by Mrs. Davison, with second and third prizes going to Mrs. Mulvihill and Mrs. D. MacKay. The three euchre prizes were won by Mrs. Pearl Holmes, Mrs. Ruby Bertrand and Mrs. Dorothy Diment. Several door prizes were also drawn.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Apple Crisp A Family Favorite

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: Several years ago you printed a recipe for "Apple Crisp" which our family enjoyed. The recipe has been lost. Could you send us a copy at it? — Mrs. M. L. F.

ANSWER: Since it is three years since I gave the Apple Crisp recipe in a cooking lesson and since apples are our most economical fruit right now and since some readers have bought a bushel and would like to use them up before any go bad I decided to repeat Apple Crisp in the column. Good enough reasoning?

APPLE CRISP (serves 4-5)

Preheat oven to 375 deg. Fahr.

6 med. apples (Spy or Macs)
3 tbsps. fresh lemon juice
½ tsp. salt
1 cup unsifted all - purpose flour
1 cup light brown sugar
½ cup butter or margarine
½ tsp. cinnamon

Wash, peel, quarter, core and slice apples. Be sure to remove all of the little sharp seed cases (carpels) when you remove cores. Slice apples into a shallow casserole or baking dish that can be carried to the table. I used Corningware, 8 x 8 x 2". Press down apple slices with your palms and immediately sprinkle over them the lemon juice and salt.

Into a large bowl measure the flour, brown sugar and cinnamon and mix them. Add the butter or margarine and with pastry blender cut it into the flour mixture until pieces of butter are about the size of large peas. Carefully tip this crumbly mixture over the apples and spread it to completely cover them. With your clean palms press and pack down and smooth top. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for at least 50 min. until apples are very tender and top is deep gold. Serve hot with 10 per cent pouring cream.

NOTE: If desired (and if you have other dishes baking at the same time) you may bake this at least 1 hr. at 350 deg. Fahr.

WEDDING RING CLUB

Leaders June and Boyd Moorcroft were in charge of the program. John and Kay Dowling gave an impressive devotion on Easter, the theme "To-Tell".

Boyd Moorcroft introduced the speaker Nick Mika, author of "Belleville and a man of many talents. He spoke on the city of Belleville in the early days and with his humorous stories proved a most interesting speaker.

Don Dingwall thanked the speaker and presented him with a small token.

Refreshments were served and the meeting closed.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "You don't see Jerry slouching around. See how nice and straight he looks. Why can't you stand like that. All you have to do is hold your shoulders back."

Don't compare a tall spindly boy with a short stocky one. His posture is partly influenced by the shape he was born with and it really is more tiring for him to stand straight and tall than it is for his stocky friend.

Mother: "It is hard for a teen-ager who has grown a lot in a short time to stand up straight but you'll look so much better if you try not to let your spine and shoulders slump."

Successful Living

Moral: Don't Be So Sensitive

By DORIS CLARK

The pious but cranky old lady was put out because her neighbors had not invited her to the picnic. On the morning of the picnic one of the neighbors called to ask her to go along.

"It's too late," she snapped. "I've already prayed for rain." — Farmer's Almanac

If that isn't cutting off your nose to spite your face, I don't know what is!

Dear Doris: I would like to invite you to attend a public meeting of one of the Al-Anon Family Groups (I went in out of myself out of curiosity and immediately recognized that here was what I needed.

That was three years ago and I have experienced a miraculous change in my living. That is why I am now an Alateen sponsor. I am sure if you witness first hand, and meet some of the members of these groups you will enter into an opportunity to commend these groups to any who come to you about a drinking problem. — A Happy Al-Anon Member

Dear Happy: I have attended A.A. meetings which have been an inspiration to me and will again.

Alateen is the division of Alcoholics Anonymous aimed at helping the children of alcoholics. Then there are the other family groups (Al-Anon) where wives of men who have a drinking problem can learn how to live with them.

I agree that there is a tremendous amount of ideas and life-saving inspiration in these get-togethers. They exist in most Canadian cities and can be found by looking in the yellow pages of the telephone book.

* * *

Dear Doris: My daughter is getting married. Would it be appropriate to have a maid of honor, a junior bridesmaid and four more bridesmaids and three flower girls? These girls are suggested because she has three nieces the same age and they would be hurt if one or two were left out.

How should the procession be lined up? — Helen

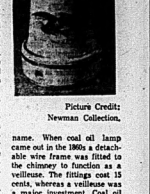
Dear Helen: I'm wagering your three flower girls will make a hit. Often it is the unusual which gives a picturesque quality to a formal wedding.

You line them up like this: Ushers first, paired, with shorter ones preceding the taller ones. Junior bridesmaid next, followed by two pairs of bride maids, with shorter preceding taller ones.

Next comes the maid of honor, followed by the three flower girls, one walking slightly ahead of the other two. Bride, beings up the rear on the arm of her father.

* * *

Dear Doris: Can you tell me anything about hypnosis for obesity? — Too Fat.



Dear Too Fat: The trouble with using hypnotism for a physical problem like obesity that once the hypnotism is worn off you may regain the weight you lost.

The important thing about a reducing diet is to develop the will power to reorganize the way you eat and keep it that way.

Sooner or later we have to learn life's lessons, when we are fully conscious of what is happening to us.

A Complete Veilleuse Is Valuable Item

Picture Credit: Newman Collection.

The word veilleuse means night light in French and here is one combined with a food or drink warmer on top. The idea seems to have originated in Europe in the mid-18th century and was intended to heat food for invalids or babies. The idea is perpetuated in current carafe and candle warmers which are usually much lower in height.

A veilleuse consists of a number of detachable parts. The most easily recognized portion is the top, which is usually a teapot. The teapot is the same as any other except that it probably matches the other parts and may be fitted with a flange on the base to hold it in place.

The teapot usually sits in a column large enough to hold a 8" candle. Sometimes the column is separate, sometimes fastened to the base. Separate columns have ventilator holes. Attached columns have an opening large enough to insert a candle or an oil or alcohol burner.

The veilleuse never achieved the popularity in England that it gained in Europe. English tea depends on freshly boiled water and unused tea leaves. In Europe there was a much more frugal attitude toward the cost of tea. The leaves were often re-used until there was no flavor left.

It is said that in the last century in Canada it was the policy of the Hudson's Bay factors to brew their own tea in weekly lots, renewing it at the end of each week. The old lots of wet leaves were sold to Indians who boiled it up again. When tea was no longer drinkable the leaves were used for hide tanning.

Although the veilleuse is mainly European it was made in England and the United States. The one shown is obviously American. There is an almost identical version with the legend "Boone's Cabin", possibly made for French Canada. It carries no maker's name. When coal oil lamp came out in the 1860s a detachable wire frame was fitted to the chimney to function as a veilleuse. The fittings cost 15 cents, whereas a veilleuse was a major investment. Coal oil provided a better heat and by the end of the 19th century the veilleuse was finished.

The veilleuse is a rarity. Most are extremely decorative and might be any design from a castle to an elephant to a human figure. The parts are often found separately. A complete veilleuse is valuable — so valuable they are being manufactured abroad again. Old or new, the price would not be less than $30 and probably much more.

Quebec Willing to Drop Terrorism Legislation by April 30

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec government believes emergency measures legislation now in force to deal with Quebec terrorism will not be needed after the end of the month.

But a letter from Premier Robert Bourassa to Prime Minister Trudeau says the measures must be replaced by permanent legislation giving special police powers in the event of another situation like the Quebec kidnap crisis last fall.

The letter, made public early today, also says this permanent legislation must continue to outlaw the terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec and any other organization which would try to change a government in Canada by force.

The letter was sent to Mr. Trudeau Friday, and outlines the Quebec government's views on steps to be taken when the Public Order (Temporary Measures) Act, 1970, expires April 30.

The act, which came into effect Dec. 2 to replace the War Measures Act, gives police power to search without warrant and detain suspects up to seven days without laying charges.

The War Measures Act was invoked Oct. 16 following the kidnappings of British diplomat James Cross and Quebec labor minister Pierre Laporte.

Prime Minister Trudeau said at a news conference in Niagara Falls, Ont., Friday night he expected the Quebec government to ask for an extension of the Public Order Act.

However, the text of Mr. Bourassa's letter said his government does not "foresee that the special measures authorized by the provisional emergency measures law will still be necessary after April 30."

There may be strong parliamentary opposition to further legislation providing for special police powers.

Eldon Woolliams, Progressive Conservative justice critic and member of Parliament for Calgary North, told the Commons justice committee last month:

"I don't believe we need any further restrictions on civil rights in this country."

Criminal Code sections on unlawful assembly, riots and conspiracy provided the government with all the power it needed to deal with violence.

The New Democratic Party, which largely opposed the war measures and the public order acts, also was expected to contest any further legislation.

Mr. Cross, abducted Oct. 5, was released unharmed Dec. 4 after his kidnappers were given sanctuary in Cuba. Mr. Laporte, kidnapped Oct. 10, was strangled to death Oct. 17.

Paul Rose, one of four men charged in the Laporte kidnapslaying, has been convicted of murder and sentenced to life imprisonment.

Satellite May Help Explain Weird Happenings in Arctic

OTTAWA (CP) — Scientists are hoping that ISIS II, fourth and last space satellite in a Canadian study of the ionosphere, may help explain some "weird things" happening in the Arctic.

Dr. John Chapman, assistant deputy minister in charge of research for the communications department, used "weird" to describe such things as a sort of wind which blows vertically instead of horizontally in the far North.

ISIS II, put into orbit Wednesday at the U.S. rocket range near Lompoc, Calif., is the last one in the ionosphere program which started in 1962 with Alouette I. Alouette II and ISIS I followed.

The ISIS satellites, getting their name from International Satellites for Ionospheric Studies, are really backups for the two Alouettes. Alouette I, although still reporting back, is down to half an hour of radio transmissions daily because of weakening batteries.

From the start, the satellites have alternated elliptical and circular polar orbits, giving scientists comparative readings at a single altitude all around the earth and, from those in elliptical orbits, comparative readings at varying altitudes.

The latest ISIS went into a circular polar orbit about 750 nautical miles up. All its 12 information-seeking experiments won't be in action until about two weeks from now but all the engineering subsystems have checked out well and the scientists expect no trouble.

Dr. Chapman was asked what the earlier satellites have discovered—particularly concerning arctic action of the ionosphere, a belt of electrically-charged particles surrounding the earth.

In trying to find just what causes the northern lights, Dr. Chapman said, many scientists came to favor a theory that there was an inflow of charged particles to the arctic ionosphere.

This followed because it had already been noted that when there were strong surges of radiation from the sun, a few days later there would be strong northern light activity.

Dr. Chapman said one Canadian scientist was put to work on this and, after wading through the piles of data, confirmed that there was indeed a flow of charged particles. But he added that he had some bad neys for the satellite scientists, saying their satellite was upside down.

After a quick check determining that the satellite was indeed rightside up, Dr. Chapman said with a grin, they finally decided that the particle flow was upward vertically instead of downward, as had long been thought.

Dr. Chapman said the northern lights mystery still remains to be solved.

Other studies centred on rotation of the earth's atmosphere with the earth itself.

You've changed.

We've changed.

All we want to say about Monte Carlo is "Drive it!"

No fancy words. No exaggerated claims. Monte Carlo is one beautiful personal car at a low Chevrolet price and your Chevrolet dealer would like you to drive one.

We're trying to make a point: Drive Monte Carlo. Do that before you make any decisions. Consider all this during your test-drive: Smooth Ride. That's Full-Coil Suspension. Straight Steer. That's power front disc brakes. Fresh Air. That's Astro Ventilation. For fresh outside air without opening the windows. Power. That's the Turbo-Fire 350 V8 engine. Luxury. That's deep-twist carpeting. Sofa-soft seats. Time. That's an electric clock, set in a rich-looking instrument panel. Protection. That's side-guard door beams. Cargo-guard luggage compartment bulkhead.

Make the change to Monte Carlo! At your Chevrolet dealer's, today.

Buckling your seat and shoulder belts is an idea you can live with.

Snow-packed Putting

Owner Earl Johnson of the Belleville Golf and Country Club lines up an early season putt, while manager Brian Rosch prepares to lift the pin. Actually golf course openings will be set back until late April or early May because of this year's heavy winter snowfall. The addition of the 18-hole Belleville course is just one of a number of changes in the local golf scene this summer.

Quinte Area Courses Take Different Twists For Summer Golf Season

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

New and different twists certainly aren't unusual in the golfing world as any duffer who has watched his drive banana towards the tall timber will readily testify.

However the biggest changes in the Quinte area golfing scene this year don't involve the direction of an errant hook or slice, but rather the re-vamping of a number of the area's links.

Certainly the biggest change would have to be the Belleville Golf and Country Club site at Marysville, which up until last year was used for farm produce rather than putting.

Owner Earl Johnson, who designed the 6,200 yard, 18-hole layout feels that the course should be ready in mid-May for the opening of it's initial season.

Construction is already well under way on the glass-encased, carpeted club house which will include a lounge area, canteen and a well-stocked pro shop.

Parking, rather than distance will be essential on the layout which is sprinkled with water hazards and bunkers.

"It will take a few years for it to get in really top shape of course, but I think a lot of people will be surprised at how well the course has come along," enthused the owner.

The Bay of Quinte Country Club's major change this season will be that it can now boast of being the only 19-hole course in the area, although a great deal of work will be carried on in preparation for a major move in 1972.

Because of the expropriation of land for the widening of Highway No. 2, all golf in '72 will take place north of the highway. The clubhouse will be under way this year on the two professionally-designed holes that will make the current number one and 18 fairways.

The 19th hole this year will NOT be located in the club house, but rather a fairway bungalow to the immediate east of the present course. Its addition will allow those golfers wishing to play nine holes only to play back to the club house after finishing number eight.

Golfers who have come to grief along the tree - lined fairways of CPB Trenton's challenging 18-hole-layout will be pleased to know that the many of the fairways on the Canadian Forces Base links will be re-shaped.

That knowledge should be tempered with the fact that course officials plan to lengthen the rough on many parts of the course.

A late addition last season that will be effective from the start this summer is the addition of crushed marble traps in the bunkers of the par-72 course located on the north side of the air base.

Oak Hill Golf course, west of Stirling will become the third club in the area to boast a full 18-hole layout with the addition of a back nine this season.

The par-71 course has also become a member of the Ontario Golf Federation for the first time.

At the Picton golf course there will be little change in the nine-hole layout, but club house facilities will be improved with the addition of a liquor license for the upcoming season.

Few changes have been planned for either the Trenton Country Club or Barcovan Golf Course, located near Carrying Place.

The rolling Trenton course will play to a 35 on the first round and 34 from the tees on the second time around the nine-hole links.

Barcovan will continue to have a par-36 nine hole course in addition to a nine hole three-hole course.

Because of the heavy snowfall this winter it is unlikely that any of the links will be able to begin operations until the later part of April. Last season a few of the courses were operating near the first of the month.

Terriers Turn Tables

ORILLIA (CP) — After 59 minutes and seven seconds of hockey, Orillia Terriers kept themselves alive in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A final by defeating Galt Hornets 4-4.

Mike Draeger of Orillia scored early in the first period and Howie Dietrich sent the teams to the dressing rooms with a 1-1 tie when he scored at 18:30.

Orillia's Grant Moore scored at 11:17 of the second and Paul Laurent made it 3-1 early in the final period, but Mike Doersan moved the Hornets into contention at 18:19. With 18 seconds left, while a wild scramble was taking place in front of goalie Gerry MacNamara, Pete Bettisoll scored the tying goal.

The teams then moved into a 10-minute overtime period and Ron Hergott put the Hornets in front at 4:13 on a pass from Dietrich. It appeared that Galt stopped forechecking and at 3:12 Jim Kron made it 4-4 forcing the sudden-death second overtime period, which was scoreless.

With 13 minutes gone in the third overtime period the Hornets hit the goal post, forcing MacNamara to cover up on the rebound. The Hornets argued that the puck went in, but were overruled by the goal judge and OHA representative Larry Bellisle.

The series resumes Sunday night in Galt.

Fours Are Wild

Four was the magic number at the Quinte Curling Club closing event last night as the field was cut to the final 16 foursomes.

The semi-finals of all four events are being played today with the finals slated to get under way at 3 p.m.

Munich Working on Overtime Olympics

MUNICH (CP) — This city is working feverishly to complete preparations for the 1972 Summer Olympic Games, and officials are confident that everything will be ready in time.

The Olympic site is taking form. A 1,000-foot television tower has been finished for four months, and hundreds of buildings, from low-cost housing units to the great stadium capable of holding 80,000 spectators, are rising.

Munich's population of 1.5 million is expected to double during the two-week period of the 20th Olympic Games, scheduled Aug. 26-Sept. 10.

Some 120,000 extra beds have already been put aside for visitors, new access highways have been constructed, and a special railway and a new subway branch have been built.

At Oberwiesenfeld, the same chosen for the Olympic site, is a 250,000-square-foot artificial lake, built beneath a 200-foot Olympic hill constructed with 500,000 cubic yards of gravel.

On the other side of the lake, the swimming pools, sports hall, open-air theatre, Olympic stadium, training grounds and the cycling track are taking shape.

The two Olympic villages, situated a little farther north, will house the 12,000 athletes, trainers and the elaborate press centre.

The press centre will be equipped with 40 darkrooms for photographers, 46 Telex machines, 90 telephones and typewriters in 144 alphabets. There will also be 350 offices and a 1,300-seat restaurant.

Another 227 Telex machines and 1,500 telephones will be available to the 4,000 journalists at the Olympic site.

Date of the games was selected by a computer which examined weather records for the last century to assure the best possible weather.

Makeup experts will be available to the athletes, especially the women, so competitors will be at their best before the cameras which will broadcast the games to 800 million people via four satellites.

Special translucent roofs were placed on the athletic facilities, and the lighting was adjusted so there would be no shadows.

There is even a separate village for the 600 horses to be used in the Games. The stableboys will be able to watch their animals from their rooms.

At the conclusion of the Games, the men's village will be converted to a modern housing suburb for Munich, while the women's village will become a university campus. The radio and television centre is to become a sports school, and the press quarters will be a small city, complete with commercial zone.

The sporting facilities will be made available to all amateur and professional athletes in the region.

It has been estimated that the Games will result in 126,000 more telephone calls a day, and that the German post office will have to handle an extra 300,000 pieces of mail daily.

Special stamps will be issued to commemorate the 20th Olympic Games.

Already, countless articles from match-box covers to jewelry bear the emblem of the Olympics and are in evidence in the boutiques.

Purses, sports clothes lighters, rugs, glasses, ash trays, scarves and key cases are popular souvenir items now on sale. The Olympic committee hopes to bring in five million marks (about $1.5 million) through sales of items bearing the Olympic crest.

Organizers expect to sell 4.4 million admission tickets to the different stadiums. Tickets will be scaled from about $1.50 to $18 while top seats for the opening ceremonies will sell for $30.

Preparations leading up to the Olympics must be carried out carefully with an eye to international politics.

It is possible that the German government will prevent further Radio Free Europe broadcasts after the American lease expires June 1.

Willi Daume, president of the Munich Games organization committee, is optimistic that there will be no boycott by the Communist nations.

The representatives of the socialist countries on the International Olympic Committee have been unanimous in their praise of the work going on for the 1972 Olympic Games in Munich," he said.

More than 27,000 jobs will be created in the giant sports centre, which will cost just under $50 million to construct.

Montreal will play host to the Summer Olympic Games in 1976.

NHL Old-timers Trounce Trenton

TRENTON (Special) — The Trenton Rotary Club 10th annual promotion for hockey beginners was more successful than ever with a crowd of 800 on hand to watch an exhibition bout last night between the NHL Old-Timers and the Trenton Oldstars.

The Rotarians funnel the proceeds back into the sport through sponsorship of minor hockey in the community.

The aging professionals defeated the homesters 8-1, but the one-sided score was no indication of the amount of good, clean fun the visitors generated for the benefit of the Trenton hockey fans.

Performing for the Trenton old-timers were Frank Lewis, Roger Drake, Doug Beale, Lou Schmidt, Orv Gravelle among others. The team was coached by Doug Fuirier.

Marlies Score Twice On Same Play In Win Over Peterborough

Toronto Marlboros achieved a hockey rarity by scoring two goals at the same time in downing Peterborough Petes 5-2 in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A playoff action Friday.

The three winners now hold 2-0 leads in their best-of-seven quarter-finals. Toronto and Peterborough have also played to one tie.

Toronto scored two goals at the 19:49 mark of the third period, the first into an empty net. Peterborough, trailing 3-2, had pulled all-star goalie John Garrett in favor of an extra attacker.

Before play resumed after the goal, Toronto was awarded a penalty shot when Peterborough deliberately delayed the game.

The Petes sent in substitute goaltender Paul Effort to face Toronto's Dave Gardner in the one-on-one situation. But Effort skated out of the net and made no effort to stop Gardner from scoring the final goal.

Toronto outshot Peterborough 32-17 before 8,458 fans at Toronto. The fourth-game will be played in Toronto Sunday.

In Kitchener, scoring champion Dionne scored two goals and assisted on three others to lead St. Catharines. The speedy centre, who picked up 80 points in the final 24 regular-season games, now has four goals in the playoffs.

The Hawks, as they did in their opening-game 4-3 victory, produced three third-period goals.

Kitchener held a 3-0 lead after the first period and led 4-3 going into the third. Scoring for the Rangers, all on power plays, were Bruce Herridge with two, Bill Barber and Tom Cassidy.

Other St. Catharines scorers were Bob Poppler with a pair, and Pierre Guite and Bob MacMillan with one each.

Two separate tag-team fights broke out in the final period. In the first, referees Tom Keeble and Lloyd Moore penalties to Guite and Clyde Simon who exchanged punches. Later, Gary Sproule and Les Burgess of the Rangers.

Third game of the series is Sunday in St. Catharines.

A breakaway goal by Richard Martin broke a 2-2 tie in the third period and gave Montreal the victory in London.

Martin, the top goal-scorer this season with a record 71, also scored Canadiens' first goal. Hartland Monahan scored the other.

Montreal goalie Wayne Wood shone in the nets, turning away 34 of 36 shots and holding London to only two goals in the first period on 18 shots.

In another series, Hamilton Red Wings lead Ottawa 67s 1-0 with one game tied. Next game is Sunday in Ottawa.

Praises Finley's Patience

Glover Feels Secure Despite Seals Woes

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

For someone who coaches the worst team in the National Hockey League, Fred Glover seems to be secure in his position.

"He's a very patient man," Glover said recently of his boss, voluble Charles O. Finley who purchased the financially-plagued, rag-tag California Golden Seals last summer.

The season ends tonight for the Seals in Los Angeles against the Kings. The Californians have won only 20 of 77 games and trail sixth-place Los Angeles by 14 points.

In other games tonight, New York Rangers visit Montreal Canadiens, Boston Bruins are at Toronto against the Maple Leafs, Detroit Red Wings are at home to Chicago Black Hawks, Philadelphia Flyers entertain Minnesota North Stars as these two teams jockey for third place in the West, and Pittsburgh Penguins are in St. Louis against the Blues.

Montreal and Boston hold a preview of their Stanley Cup Sunday. The same two teams are paired off in the playoff series starting Wednesday in Boston.

Finley, a wealthy Chicago insurance man, also owns the baseball Oakland Athletics of the American League. Since acquiring the baseball franchise 10 years ago, he has fired managers on the average of one a year.

How does Glover, who also is general manager, feel secure in his position with a club that not only loses on the ice but at the gate?

"Under the circumstances, it could be worse," was his candid reply.

About the only bright spot in the Seals' dismal season has been that they've outdrawn San Francisco Warriors of the National Basketball Association who played several games at the Oakland Coliseum arena.

Goals by Wayne Maki and Rosaire Paiement eight seconds apart in the first period sent Vancouver ahead Friday night as they opened up period leads of 3-1 and 6-2.

Canuck captain Orland Kurtenbach, who missed more than 25 games with a knee injury and returned to the lineup only recently, contributed two goals and two assists.

The Seals, who never have been big crowd drawers in Oakland, saw their average attendance figures drop to well under 5,000 this year from 6,606 a year ago.

Finley promised when he bought the club "within two or three years, people will be standing in line for season tickets, just as they do in Boston, Chicago and other cities."

NHL president Clarence Campbell's recent announcement that the league will have to consider ways of strengthening the West Coast club because it was not "drawing enough to meet their expenses," got Finley's approval.

"That's for damn sure," replied Finley. "We expect to lose between $400,000 and $500,000 this season. Fans expect an expansion team to take time to build, but this is ridiculous."

California's biggest stumbling block to respectability is the fact that they've traded off all their first-round choices in the amateur draft until 1974. They traded the future picks to Montreal, taking players in exchange.

Czechs Could Bounce Russians From Title

GENEVA (CP-AP) — Few expected it, but the world hockey championship entered its final day today with the Soviet Union facing the possibility of losing the world title it has held for eight years.

The powerladen Soviet squad was heavily favored at the start of the six-country tournament to win going away.

But a Czechoslovak victory and a Soviet loss in today's final two games of the 16-day tournament would give the plucky Czechs the title.

Should the Czechs win and the Russians lose, each team would end up with 15 points based on 7-2-1 won-lost-tied records. But the title would go to the Czechs because they beat and tied the Soviets in their two matches.

The games will settle who gets the silver and bronze medals for second and third place as well as the gold for first.

In Friday's only game the two last place teams played off, with the United States beating West Germany 6-4 but failing by one goal to escape relegation to Group B for finishing last.

The West Germans earlier in the double round-robin tournament trounced the U.S. 7-2 and the Americans would have needed to get one more goal in Friday's game in order to make up the five-goal deficit. The West Germans won with an aggregate of 8-7. Another U.S. goal would have tied the aggregate, throwing the the final outcome back into the over-all scoring by the two teams, and the Americans had the edge in that department.

Going into the final games, the Soviets had 15 points to 13 for the Czechs, 11 for Sweden and nine for Finland.

The Swedes, who started out strongly in the tournament and at one stage were tied for points with the Russians for top spot, began to flag as the tournament wore on, and were trounced 8-0 by the Russians in their first meeting here.

However, the Swedes came back Thursday after dropping a decision the day before to the West Germans, to defeat Finland 2-1.

The Czechs, thought at the beginning to be the only team capable of upsetting the Russians dropped their first two contests, shocking their fans and reducing the possibility of upsetting the Russians.

But the Czechs didn't lose another game. They held the Russians to a 3-3 tie in their first meeting and dropped the Russian juggernaut 5-2 in the return match Thursday.

The Russians seemed to be tiring somewhat in their Wednesday game against the U.S., being forced to come from behind in each period to win 7-3.

The Soviets have seven wins, one loss and a tie in nine starts. The Czechs won six of their nine starts, losing their tournament opener to the U.S. 5-1 and their second start 6-5 to Sweden.

The Swedes, winning five of nine, tied the Finns and were beaten by the Soviets, Czechs and Westerners. Finland bowed to the Russians twice, the Czechs once and Sweden once in nine starts.

Upsets Mark Badminton Opening

MONTREAL (CP) — The first day of the Canadian open badminton championships produced some upsets in the early rounds, a clean sweep of the women's singles quarter-final event by the Japanese team and a sparkling display of badminton skill by Indonesia's Rudy Hartono, the men's singles champion of the world.

Canadians started well in the first round of the men's singles as three men, Vancouver's Wayne MacDonnell, Peter Gelder of Edmonton and Montrealer Yves Pare scored upsets.

Pare manufactured the biggest surprise when he upended Muljadi of Indonesia in three sets, 15-10, 12-5, 18-6. Muljadi was runner-up in the world championship last week to his fellow countryman, Hartono.

In semi-final play, MacDonnell defeated Pare in two sets while Getz ran into trouble little Roy Diaz Gonzalez of Mexico and lost 15-9, 18-13.

In other semi-final action, Ippei Kojima of Japan downed Sumirat of Indonesia by a pair of 15-4 scores while Hartono had an easy time scoring 15-2, 15-3 wins over Lee Kok Phengi of Malaysia.

The Japanese team proved the strongest in the quarter-final round of the women's singles event as all four Japanese girls advanced to the semi-finals with impressive wins.

The other two Japanese girls found their Malaysian opponents to their liking. Machiko Aizawa defeated Sylvia Ng 11-7, 11-0 while Etsuko Takenaka downed Rosaling Ang, 11-12, 11-1 and 11-6.

In women's doubles action, Miss Yuki and Miss Takagi defeated Miss Thorne and Sue Cutmore of Calgary, 15-2, 15-1. Miss Ng and Miss Ang combined to outlast Rosine Lemon and Dorothy O'Neil of the U.S. 16-17, 15-10, and 15-8 while Miss Takonaka and Miss Aizawa defeated Sherri Boyce of Calgary and Mimi Salmon of Vancouver, 15-12, 18-15.

In an all-Canadian quarter-final, Barbara Hood and Marj Shedd of Toronto defeated Judy Rollick and Jean Miller of Montreal, 15-9, 15, 11-8.

They were Dan Ratanerangsang and Raphi Kanchyaraphi of Calgary, who combined to defeat Cam Dalgleish and Wayne McDonnell of Vancouver, 15-5, 15-10.

Junior Red Wings Edge Guelph

GUELPH (CP) — Detroit Junior Red Wings disappointed a record crowd of 4,000 by defeating Guelph CMCs 5-4 to move within a point of the Southern Ontario Hockey Association Junior A playoff championship.

Detroit now leads the best-of-seven final series 3-2 with one game tied. Seventh game of the series was to be played this afternoon in Detroit.

A win or a tie would give Detroit the win. A Guelph win would force the series into an eighth and deciding game here Sunday night. The eighth game would go into overtime, if necessary.

Guelph led 4-3 going into the third period and dominated play for most of the period but a breakaway goal by Gary Kardos, set up by Pat Donnelly, tied the score at 12:36 and Doug Ross scored the winner from a scramble with three minutes and 45 seconds lift to play.

Donnelly's goal was his second of the night. Bob Sobek and Mark Howe had other Detroit goals while Rick Molinaro scored twice and Jim Martz and Corky DeGrauw once each for Guelph.

The score was tied 2-2 at the end of the first period and Guelph came from behind a 3-2 deficit to take their 4-3 lead into the final period.

Swoboda And Blair Change for Better While Howard Just Keeps Blasting

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ron Swoboda hit a home run Friday in a strange uniform and Paul Blair hit one from a strange side of the plate while Frank Howard hit another routine 460-footer.

Swoboda, the ex-New York Met, drilled his first circuit shot in his new Montreal getup, one of four Expo homers in an 18-5 rout of Pittsburgh Pirates' Bi team. Rusty Staub hit two homers and John Boccabella the other as the Expos battered Bob Moose for nine runs in seven innings.

Swoboda also hit a 380-foot sacrifice fly that observers said would have been long gone in Montreal's Jarry Park.

Meanwhile, Swoboda's ex-Met team-mates were battered by Baltimore Orioles, 12-2. The Birds tagged relievers Jim McAndrew, Charlie Williams and Toronto's Ron Taylor for 10 runs in the last three innings with Blair, now a switch hitter, getting his first as a left-handed batter, a three-run shot over the centre field fence in the ninth. Merv Rettenmund homered off loser Tom Seaver and Clay Dalrymple also connected for Baltimore.

FRANK HOWARD

Howard, who hit two towering homers Thursday, unloaded over a 70-foot-high fence 380 feet from the plate but the Atlanta Braves outslugged his Washington Senators 10-6. Mike Epstein and Dick Billings also homered for the Senators while Sonny Jackson paced the Braves' 17-hit attack with four safeties.

Pittsburgh's main squad got five-hit pitching from Nelson Briles, Bob Veale and Jim Nelson and blanked Cincinnati Reds 12-0. Richie Hebner hit a pair of homers and drove in six runs.

Chicago White Sox ripped Ferguson Jenkins of Chatham, Ont., for nine runs and 10 hits in six innings and snapped Chicago Cubs' seven-game winning streak 9-2.

Rick Monday hit his first home run ever off Sam McDowell as the Oakland Athletics downed the Cleveland Indians southpaw 5-2. Philadelphia Phillies downed their Eugene farm team 4-3 and San Francisco Giants banged out 12 hits, including a homer, two doubles and single by Ken Henderson, and crushed the University of Santa Clara 12-4.

In a unique, three-way round-robin in the Astrodome, Houston Astros beat New York Yankees 2-1, Minnesota Twins bopped the Yanks 4-1 and the Astros shaded the Twins 5-3. That left the Astros plus three, the Twins plus one and the Yankees minus four-runs, that is.

Jim Wynn's homer drove in two runs in the bottom of the 11th inning to give California Angels a 4-3 victory over Los Angeles Dodgers.

Sports On All Fronts

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP) — Tom Powns of Edmonton seemed on his way to an easy victory in the junior heavyweight division of the Canadian amateur wrestling championships Friday. Quick pins won Powns both preliminary bouts. With only three other entries in the junior heavyweight division, he seemed to have first place sewn up. He wrestles again twice today. Wilf Wurr of Winnipeg, six-time Canadian champion in the 136-pound division, easily won both his bouts Friday. He placed third in Thursday's Greco-Roman class competition in the 180.5 pound class. Another wrestler apparently headed for first place is Pat Bolger of Ontario, defending champion in the 136-pound division who also won both his matches.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP) — Murray Dawson, Oklahoma City Blazer coach, resigned Thursday after six years at the helm of the Central Hockey League club. Dawson said he felt he "had no future with the Boston organization." Oklahoma City is a farm team of the Bruins of the National Hockey League.

OTTAWA (CP) — Bill Norton of Vancouver has been appointed manager of the Canadian Men's Basketball team. He was announced Friday. Norton replaces Angus MacFarlane who resigned earlier this month to take a position with the Fitness and Amateur Sport Directorate in Ottawa.

* * *

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Forward Sidney Wicks of the University of California at Los Angeles signed a five-year contract Friday with Portland Trail Blazers of the National Basketball Association. Terms of the contract were not disclosed but the Blazers earlier were said to be ready to offer the six-foot-eight standout a $1.5 million contract.

KINGSTON (CP) — Hamilton Westinghouse and Kingston Recordmen scored opening-round victories in the Ontario Basketball Association Intermediate A championship tournament Friday night. Hamilton was hard pressed for an 89-86 victory over Kitchener Newtex, last year's champions. Kingston scored an easy 86-60 victory over Scarbough Grads. Seven teams are competing in the three-day tournament. The three teams yet to see action are Sault St. Marie, Hamilton Kovacs and Tillsonburg Grand Hotel.

Greensboro Tournament All Wet

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — "It rained so much," Claude Harmon Jr. said glancing down at his trousers, "my pants started to grow."

The comment was typical of the angry mutterings voiced by golf's touring professionals Friday after battling numbing cold and chill rains after the second round Friday in the $100,000 Greater Greensboro open golf tournament.

Veterans Pete Brown and Miller Barber just beat the rains and shared the lead going into today's third round.

Brown, 36, one of the few blacks on the professional tour, had a 69 for 137 and was tied with Barber, who shot 70, both five under par on the water-logged, 7,034 yard, par 71 Sedgefield country club course.

Lee Trevino, one of three players tied for the lead going into the grey day, got caught in the rain and struggled in with a 72 for 139 as did New Zealanders Bob Charles, tied with Trevino and Barber starting out.

Eight others were bunched at 139, including United States Open champion Tony Jacklin of England Buddy Allin, a tour rookie who fired a remarkable 64.

Wilf Homeniuk of Winnipeg had a 68 for 142, three strokes fewer than defending champion Gary Player of South Africa. Player, who won the tour's last two events, shot a 71.

The only other Canadians in the tournament, Ken Fulton of Montreal and Ben Kern of Toronto, both missed the cutoff of 146. Fulton had a 73 for 148 and Kern a 76 for 149.

Young Swimmers Making Splash

EDMONTON (CP) — A ripple of expectation turned into a tide of "I told you so" as more records toppled Friday at the Canadian swimming team trials for the 1971 Pan-American Games.

Two days before the trials conclude Thursday, officials and coaches had predicted records would be broken. This despite the fact Coronation Pool is rated only as "average" for speed-swimming conditions.

But more Canadian marks, the second and third of the trials, were splashed into oblivion as Canada and Alberta open and native records also went down the drain.

Mike Stewart, a 19-year-old Calgary swimmer who attends the University of Michigan, set a new national record for completing the men's 100-metre breaststroke in one minute 8.1 seconds.

Leslie Cliff, an attractive 16-year-old high school student from Vancouver, broke the Canadian women's 400-metre individual medley record with a time of 5:22.7.

The previous marks were, respectively, set by Bill Mahony of New Westminister, B.C. in 1969 and 5:24.5 set by Edmonton's Sue Smith in 1970.

The first national record of the trials was set Thursday by Leanne Warren of Vancouver, 18, in the women's 200-metre butterfly. Her time of 2:28.3 compared with the previous 2:29.9 set by Elaine Tanner of Vancouver, now retired.

The provincial open and native records in the men's 100-metre breaststroke went to Mahony and Whitaker, respectively, during heats Friday afternoon.

Mahony's open time was 1:09.6 and Whitaker's native was 1:09.7. There was no previous mark in the open and the old native time was 1:10.2.

As well as the events won by Whitaker and Miss Cliff, there were finals in four other events Friday night.

Angela Coughlan of Burlington, Ont., established an Alberta open record in the women's 100-metre freestyle in 54.3; Sylvia Dockerill of West Vancouver won the 100-metre breaststroke in 1:20.8; and George Smith of Edmonton won the men's 400-metre individual medley in 4:50.6.

Although Smith was the favorite in the medley, he surprised nearly everybody by winning by at least 10 metres on the strength of his breaststroke—once his weakpoint.

He's been working on it for nearly a year now," said Alberta official Ted Morrow. "Watch what he does when he gets into the breaststroke."

Smith built up a five-metre lead by the first 50-metres of the breaststroke and never was threatened.

Western swimmers now have eight of the 12 first places in the Trials. Six more events were scheduled today and the final six Sunday.

Although, the team won't be named until Sunday afternoon, Miss Coughlan and Miss Cliff seem guaranteed a trip to the Games at Cali, Colombia, in August.

Miss Coughlan has firsts in the women's 100- and 200-metre freestyles and Miss Cliff won the individual medley and the 100-metre backstroke.

Because of a tight budget, the Canadian Amateur Swimming Association is looking for multiple-threat athletes who will fill two or more places on the team.

Orioles, Reds Favored As Repeat Winners

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Baltimore's defending champion Orioles and the power-packed Cincinnati Reds were picked today as repeat pennant winners in the annual Associated Press pre-season baseball poll.

The Orioles and Minnesota Twins were the choices to win American League division titles again while the Reds and Chicago Cubs topped the National League division voting in a ballot of 274 sportswriters and broadcasters across the country.

Baltimore received 233 first-place votes in the AL East balloting to just 20 for the runner-up New York Yankees. Minnesota was a razor-thin choice in the West, drawing 98 votes to 97 for California Angels.

The panel picked the Orioles over the Twins for the pennant by a 172-27 margin.

In the National League balloting, 146 selectors picked Cincinnati to take the West title again and 107 picked Los Angeles Dodgers for first place. The Cubs were the picks in the East with 119 first-place votes to 95 for Pittsburgh Pirates, division defenders.

The Reds were the choice of 87 panelists to win the NL pennant, Los Angeles received 80 votes, the Cubs 41.

All 24 clubs received at least one first-place nomination in the division balloting. Philadelphia Phillies, Montreal Expos, San Francisco Giants, Houston Astros and San Diego Padres, in the National League, and Washington Senators, Cleveland Indians, Milwaukee Brewers and Kansas City Royals in the American, were shut out in the pennant picks.

No Clubs for Canada

GENEVA (Reuter) — Earl Dawson, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said Friday that Canada will not enter a proposed World Ice hockey competition at club level.

The competition, which was approved Thursday by the International Ice Hockey Federation, was intended to group the two top club teams from Europe with the top clubs from Canada and the United States.

"We are not prepared to enter for this until we are allowed to come back into international competition, playing our professionals," Dawson said.

The World Cup competition has been tentatively scheduled for the end of 1971 in the United States, in Denver and Minneapolis. Only amateur teams would be able to take part.

Dawson said it had been suggested to Canada that it enter its Allan Cup senior hockey winners in the club competition.

Canada withdrew from the world hockey championships last year after the IIHF retracted its approval for a number of Canadian professionals to take part in the championship games. This action followed a warning from Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, that any player who participates in championships which includes professionals might jeopardize his amateur status for the Olympic Games.

Bibby Cooper Says:
Golf's Million Dollar Winner

TAKE A THIN SLICE OF SAND

While the sand shot is not the easiest in golf anyone can become fairly expert at it with a certain amount of practice. The trouble is, most golfers simply don't practice the shot.

If you would think only of taking a relatively thin slice of sand out from under the ball (illustration) your sand shots will be adequate. Most sand errors occur when the clubhead is dug too deeply into the sand. When this does happen the ball is usually left in the bunker or is topped and skulled across the green.

Thirty-Hour Visit

Trudeau Stages Election-style Niagara Tour

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau moved out today to the heady wineries of the Niagara Peninsula after tasting an intoxicating round of election-style Trudeaumania Friday.

The prime minister was closing out a 30-hour helicopter circuit of four Ontario constituencies with visits to wineries here and at nearby Jordan.

Visits Friday to Mount Hope, Brantford, Welland and Niagara Falls featured a succession of cheering and hand-clutching students and adults.

During Friday night, dozens of guests at a 1,200-place banquet interrupted their meals to surge around Mr. Trudeau while he was trying to eat his meal at the head table.

An organizer of the local Chamber of Commerce dinner finally urged the fans back to their tables, but not before several women had craned for a kiss or an autograph, some of them kissing his hand as he signed his name.

A dozen or so pickets paraded outside the hotel where the prime minister was staying for a short time.

However, security imposed by scores of local police and RCMP was stringent throughout the evening, upsetting guests in the Sheridan-Brock Hotel who at times were forbidden by police to use the elevators in the 12-storey building.

Mr. Trudeau endorsed warnings by John Young, chairman of the federal prices and incomes commission, that Canadians should exercise restraint in pay demands.

He had not seen Dr. Young's specific proposals but agreed that "the chairman is right in warning that the inflation we have brought under control in the last 18 months still remains a stark possibility."

The prime minister left the news conference abruptly to attend the banquet where he told the members of the audience they should think about the requirements in tax money before bothering the federal government with requested projects.

Mr. Trudeau arrived in the government Viscount aircraft from Ottawa at Mount Hope Airport outside Hamilton, where he was greeted by about 150 school children, then flew by helicopter to Pauline Johnson collegiate in Brantford.

During an hour of grilling by about 1,500 students at the collegiate, he hinted that his government would remain in power for "four years or so."

Answering a question about why Canada does not buy corporations owned by Americans, Mr. Trudeau said his government feels it would be a waste of money that could better be spent cleaning up pollution and educating Canadians.

Quebec Leader Hasn't Emerged Yet: Stanfield

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, shying away from any move by Quebec militants to thrust a lieutenant upon him, says he will make the choice himself.

The issue has been simmering since January when Fernand Alie, leader of the party's Quebec wing, suggested that it should elect Mr. Stanfield's lieutenant.

Mr. Alie also proposed that the party adopt a constitutional position approaching "special status" for Quebec.

Mr. Stanfield has rejected both ideas. He isn't opposed to having a Quebec lieutenant, but he wants to choose the man for the sensitive post.

He has said privately he feels the post will fill itself when a man of stature emerges, compelling recognition as Quebec lieutenant by his leadership qualities.

And sources close to him say he has refused to discuss anything remotely approaching "special status."

Since Montreal financier Marcel Fairbault was defeated in the 1963 general election, Mr. Stanfield hasn't indicated that anyone else has caught his eye as Quebec lieutenant.

Among the four Conservatives elected in Quebec in 1963, Roch Lasalle (Joliette) appears most interested in the post. Mr. Lasalle, 41, said this week he feels the Quebec Conservative Association should either elect the lieutenant, when it meets next month, or should have the right of veto if Mr. Stanfield makes a choice.

Martial Asselin (Charlevoix) says there is no precedent for such an approach. He agrees with Mr. Stanfield's position, saying any lieutenant must be chosen by the leader and share his views.

However, both Mr. Asselin and Mr. Lasalle have constitutional views which differ with those of Mr. Stanfield.

The other two Quebec members are Theogene Ricard (St. Hyacinthe) and Georges Valade (Montreal Ste. Marie). Mr. Ricard, 61, senior among the four in years and time in the Commons, sits at Mr. Stanfield's right hand in the House. He was a minister without portfolio briefly during the Diefenbaker administration.

Within the Quebec wing, the issue of the lieutenant is tied in closely with the party's position on Quebec's place in the constitution. Quebec militants, led by Mr. Alie proposed in January that the party promise, if elected, a new constitution within two years that would "respect sovereignty of the provincial states."

However, this was too close for comfort to the 1968 "two nations" the federal party label was tagged with.

Mr. Asslin and Mr. Lasalle adhere to this direction for the party. But Mr. Stanfield made it clear he does not, informed sources say.

Hockey Star Races Cars

At 27, he has managed to survive while participating in all three pastimes with equal verve.

For about seven months a year, the Baltimore Clippers goalie stops pucks, some traveling at 100 miles an hour. For a change of pace, during the off-season he switches to offense and drives sprint cars and modified roadsters at speeds up to 160 miles an hour.

Now in his third year with the Clippers, of the American Hockey League, the Hamilton native is having his best season in goal as Baltimore won its first divisional title.

In 48 games, Andy's per-game average is 2.90 and he has four shutouts.

For the first time since they joined the AHL in 1962, the Clippers have a good shot at winning the Calder Cup playoffs which open this week.

Within a week after Baltimore concludes its playoffs, Brown will be racing cars in Canada or the northeastern United States.

"In my final race last year," Andy said, "I finished third in the Oswego Classic and won $3,700.

That's a huge pay cheque for a player in the AHL, where the average yearly salary ranges between $10,000 and $15,000. Brown has no other off-season employment.

"I enjoy the competition in both sports," said Brown, who has been racing cars since he was 15 years old, long after he began playing hockey.

Andy is the son of the late Adam Brown, who played 10 seasons in the National Hockey League for Detroit Red Wings, Chicago Black Hawks and Boston Bruins.

"Harry Lumley, a team-mate of my father in Boston, gave me a goalie's stick when I was about five or six," Andy recalls, "and I guess that's how I got started at that position."

To say Andy is aggressive is an understatement. He has been penalized a total of 73 minutes, almost as much as the roughest of the fulltime wingers and defencemen on the club.

Brown, whose contract is owned by the Clippers, has hopes of making it to the NHL and Clipper coach Terry Reardon rates him a definite prospect.

Meantime, Andy has another goal in mind: the Indianapolis 500.

CTV Buys Only Six US Shows

TORONTO (CP) — The CTV network has purchased only six United States series so far for the 1971-72 season it was announced Friday. One of the shows is new and the other five are holdovers.

Networks have to limit the number of imported shows this coming season because of the new Canadian content regulations.

Shows returning to CTV are Ironside, Mod Squad, The FBI, Jean Martin and Marcus Welby M.D.

The network is dropping Manix, Glen Campbell, Lucille Ball and Bewitched. CTV will also lose five shows that have been dropped in the U.S. They are Johnny Cash, Andy Williams, Tom Jones, Family Affair and Hee Haw.

Beer Strike Possible April 18

Store officials and employees in Belleville were much in the dark today on the current status of negotiations in a contract dispute between Brewers' Warehousing Co. Ltd. and its 2,600 retail store employees.

Yesterday Ontario Labor Minister Gordon Carton said a decision had been reached and to recommend a conciliation board and this makes it legal for a strike or lockout as early as April 18.

However, a government spokesman has said that the possibility of a strike or lockout doesn't necessarily mean either will occur.

The workers' contract with the company expired Dec. 31, 1970.

"As far as we know here they are still negotiating," said Cecil Bonetta, local Belleville group manager for Brewers' Warehousing Ltd.

He said nothing definite had been given out as result of the negotiation talks and he did not know if a strike vote would be taken.

However, if there was a strike vote and workers voted in favor, Mr. Bonetta said it would be highly unlikely if the workers would break away from the union decision.

21-year-old Subdued

Larry McKee, 21, of 248 Church Street, Belleville, was arrested and charged with possession of an offensive weapon and being drunk in a public place following a fracas at the Greyhound Bus Terminal shortly before 8 p.m. yesterday.

He was subsequently disarmed, arrested and booked.

Aged Cyclist 'Satisfactory'

A 73 - year - old Belleville cyclist injured early Thursday evening, is reported this morning to be in satisfactory condition in Belleville General Hospital with lacerations to his head.

Joseph Bailey of 1 Catherine Street, was pedalling on Sidney Street, when he was struck by a car driven by Mrs. Mary Theresa Dunn, 55, of 256 Albert Street.

According to police reports, Mrs. Dunn had pulled out of the parking lot to the rear of the Ben Bleecker Auditorium, turning south on Sidney Street, when she struck the aged cyclist.

James F. O'Brien, son of Mr. and Mrs. George O'Brien was called to the bar at the special convocation of the Law Society of Upper Canada at a ceremony held at the Ok'Keefe Centre in Toronto, on March 26. Mr. O'Brien received his BA. degree at St. Patrick's College, Ottawa and later his LL.B at the University of Ottawa. A graduate of Nicholson Catholic College, Belleville, Mr. O'Brien with his wife will reside in Belleville where he is at present associated with Barrett and Lally, barristers and solicitors.

Trapped Driver Rescued

Dripping wet and suffering from exposure, Paul Munns of R.R. 2, Frankford was rescued this morning from his overturned van on Aikens Road, just south of Highway 401.

Discovered at 1:40 this morning, Mr. Munns became trapped in the water-filled cab of his van when the vehicle went out of control after it hit a sheet of water on the road. A spokesman for LaSalle Ambulance said the driver was treated for shock at the scene after a tow truck righted the vehicle.

William R. Menzies Area Liberal Head

William R. Menzies, RR 3, Trenton has been named president of the Quinte district Liberal executive Association. Vice president is Charles Bates, Shannonville; treasurer is Roland Stalker, RR 1 Bath with Barry Young, 24-year old Napanee lawyer and prospective candidate for the Liberals in the Prince Edward - Lennox provincial riding as secretary.

The presidents of the four Quinte district provincial riding associations and the two federal ridings held their annual meeting at the home of Robert Temple, former Liberal MP for Hastings.

Mr. Menzies told the meeting he hoped to attend all meetings of executive boards of the Ontario Liberal party and would keep executives of local riding associations informed on matters discussed.

Mr. Temple said he was hopeful that Prime Minister Trudeau and his wife would find time to visit the Quinte area some time this coming summer. He said he was working closely with George Cunningham, Liberal candidate for Prince Edward-Hastings and Hon. E. J. Benson, MP for Kingston.

Youths Injured

Four Belleville area youths sustained minor injuries when a car driven by Larry Brunton, 20, of 225 Parrott Drive, went out of control on Bridge Street West near the Curling Club, and hit a tree.

SOME GOT IT

This lovely duplex on Dundas Street West, complete with five bedrooms, rental units is just waiting for the right party. Live comfortably and let the property pay for itself. There is presently a $24,000.00 first mortgage at 8% with an open privilege. Full price $44,000.00.

WHY WORK SO HARD?

You'll live longer, better, easier with everything on one floor, and five separate units to pay the mortgage and provide an adequate income for the retired or those who like the extras in life. Remember you are only going to live once and make no last and that's how you can make for you and yours. See this five-plex and the adjoining 2 bedroom bungalow plus 7 or more acres of fruit trees. You owe it to yourself to inspect. $38,900.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Birthday Blues All In The Mind

For those who get birthday "heebie-jeebies," the following philosophy by an anonymous author sent to me by a Mrs. S., may act as an antidote to depression:

"I used to think at 20 that 30 was old age, and if I lived that many years upon this great world's stage that I would be so ancient, this life would hold no charm, and I'd be laid upon the shelf where I could cause no harm. But years passed on, as ere they will and 30 I became; I felt no older, strange to say. In fact, life seemed the same.

"So then I said, at 40 I surely will retire, I'll grow up in frivolity for I'll have no desire to play around and dance and do such silly things; I'll then become quite serious with thoughts which old age brings. At 40 I'll be calm and staid, 'life's fitful fever cooled,' but when it reached 50, age I found, again, I had been fooled.

"For 60 came and still I felt no crushing weight of years. I did not think of vanished youth, nor cared to part with tears. Instead I vowed if bound to live forever and a day, I'd get what fun I could from life, be happy while I stay.

"And as the years passed quickly on 'til another 10 rolled round, at 80 then, I realized that I was still quite sound. So why complain of graying hair or slightly stiffened joints: at 90 women dye their hair and still have their good points. For, friends, when all is said and done, if in our mind and heart we cherish kindly thoughts for all and try to do our part, forgetting self and life's small ills as flying years unfold, we'll be surprised to find ourselves growing young instead of old."

Mrs. S. adds: "Every age has its compensations"— now our children are grown and my husband and I have a freedom we haven't had in years.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Just as a matter of curiosity, what ever happened to the carbuncle? It was common when I was young. I haven't heard of a carbuncle in 25 years. How come? — Mrs. P.

COMMENT: As someone has said, a carbuncle is nothing but a "mess of boils" involving more hair follicles with bacteria in people run down by illness such as diabetes, etc.

I assure you, carbuncles are not extinct, but the reason they are not so common can be chalked up as another victory for early use of antibiotics.

* * *

For Mrs. B.: Yes, I would be suspicious that your husband might have angina, even though an ordinary electrocardiogram was negative. This is true of any chest pain that comes on directly after exertion, especially after walking up an incline, after lunch, and after a heavy meal.

Ask for consultation with a heart specialist who will undoubtedly perform a special electrocardiographic test called the Master Two step test.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Recently I have been told to watch talk that a cause of cancer of the cervix may be an uncircumcised husband. Since my fiance is uncircumcised, we are quite concerned. Is this a probably cause of cancer of the cervix? Would it be wise for my fiance to be circumcised before our marriage, even though he is in his early 30s? — Miss W.

COMMENT: I do not believe there is enough evidence to prove the association. For this doesn't seem to be indicated. But for peace of mind, why not discuss it with your family doctor?

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For April 5

Your birthday today: Now is the time to wind up long-standing or delayed projects and fill gaps in your establishment. On the other side of the scales, everything that no longer serves your purposes should be redirected. Today's natives are generally endowed with a sense of rhythm, like to talk and repeat pleasant social routines indefinitely.

ARIES (Mar. 221 — Apr. 19): Think where you're headed, make lists of things which need doing, select priority items for an early rush effort.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): It may seem that everybody has a plan and is following it — which is not quite true. You are more likely responding to opportunity, enthusiasm.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Much progress is made on matters you've thought out properly. Where plans are needed, you need help.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Your determined optimism and efforts make the difference. Expect heavy going and little talk, but solid future rewards for work done now.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Acting on less than the full story brings needless difficulties — other sides exist on almost every issue, and you must be sure before acting.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Take credit for your deeds and accept praise or blame forthrightly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): The simpler and quieter you can make this complex day, the better. Doing a few things well is important.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Saying thank you costs nothing, and if said freely and on time, opens the door of a wider future for you. Gather associates for a meeting of minds.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): There's plenty of talk, so you may as well provoke more. Ask questions and learn.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Stick to the main issues; pursue thorny questions until you get at least a provisional answer.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Your money attracts many invitations for its use, little for your own welfare and future earnings.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Your work comes to attention of people who have not known about it. Keep your thoughts on ultimate goals.

For April 4

Your birthday today: Expect a rather normal year of practical development. Questions of material welfare are likely to be met. Logic must be supplemented by faith and hard work. Today's natives tend to have hearty appetites and deep, deep reserves of energy.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Social opportunity abounds this Sunday. Get an early start, touch all bases outside your range of business or work contacts. Give or find a gala party this evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Resolve to get out of your ordinary routines today. Give special attention to your surroundings, particularly in unfamiliar neighborhoods.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): You attract additional people and may complicate matters for yourself by not being prepared for them and their needs.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Determination prevails now — break precedent, change the rules if need be, but go past or around resistance.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Join forces with others of like mind, and organize teamwork on a broader basis. Evening brings a mood of satisfaction.

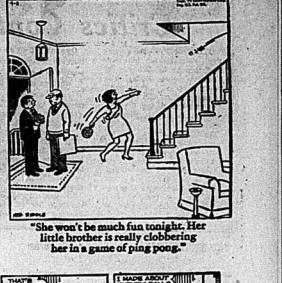
VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Social urges determine your approach and likely your plans. Follow up interesting introductions promptly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Seize all opportunities for diversion, distraction from circular grooves of thinking — give your unconscious a chance to straighten itself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Events of the day offer thought-ful observers full stories on who your friends are, and how you fit into your community.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Difference is your best approach on this mixed and active Sunday, beginning with the earliest reasonable start.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): If you overplan, schedules and details of activities have a way of becoming too much this Sunday, so you wind up doing most of the work singlehanded.



AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Sharing your ideas and resources comes easier when you consider the other fellow's ideas first.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Life and living move on from where they were: do what you can to make the going happy.

Liberals Ashamed: Stanfield

Critics Continue to Snipe at Government Expansion Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — The government reorganization bill shuffled through its 18th day of Commons debate Friday with government MPs complaining of an opposition "filibuster" and Conservatives daring the government to respond with closure.

Most measures contained within the multi-faceted bill have been approved in committee-of-the-whole debate, but opposition members are still digging in on a section that would allow the government to create five new ministries of state without specific reference to Parliament.

"What we have in this bill," he said, "are a few excellent proposals, of which the department of the environment is one, associated with a lot of junk, of which this clause is one."

He urged the government to split up the provisions of the bill, so the good sections could be passed and the bad would not be "foisted off" on the House and the public.

Mr. Stanfield said government members—few of whom have participated in the debate—are both too ashamed of the legislation and too servile to take part.

Hugh Faulkner (L—Peterborough) called the criticism "tatuous," saying the opposition had not offered any arguments to inspire government members to respond.

"What we have now is a badly disguised filibuster which has recently degenerated into a pure farce."

Waving the Commons rule book, Conservative House Leader Gerald W. Baldwin challenged the government to cut off the debate by invoking closure.

The opposition, he said, has been attempting to "alarm" the country to the dangers of the bill. "We intend to stick to our guns."

Debate on the bill is scheduled to continue Monday.

Mr. Stanfield said government members were keeping quiet because "nobody likes to be characterized as a pig, even by association."

"And if you praise the construction of a trough with too much enthusiasm you may have some difficulty in avoiding the charge that you hope to wallow in it."

Much of the opposition attack has been based on the premise that two of the bill's sections—the one dealing with ministers of state and another allowing the government to appoint a parliamentary secretary for every cabinet minister—are designed to provide patronage for government back-benchers.

The section on parliamentary secretaries, who are government members paid an extra $4,000 a year to assist ministers, has not yet been approved in the committee.

There are currently 28 ministers in the Commons and 16 parliamentary secretaries.

Mr. Faulkner noted that former prime minister John Diefenbaker introduced a measure in the Commons in 1959 providing for the appointment of parliamentary secretaries to ministers to help deal with what he had called "the complexities of modern government."

"What I find so interesting is how the line of argument has changed."

Douglas Altenbrakh (P C—Frontenac-Lennox and Addington) said a prime minister "who can't govern with the largest cabinet in Canadian history" is not going to do any better by expanding it further.

Canada already had the largest, most cumbersome and expensive cabinet in the western world—Great Britain got by with 22 cabinet members and the United States with 14.

San Schumacher (PC—Palliser) said that President Richard Nixon wants to reduce his cabinet to eight members from 14, to cut down on bureaucracy, confusion and backpassing.

Robert McCleave (PC—Halifax-East Hants) complained that while Prime Minister Trudeau is sponsor of the bill, he has not spoken on it or attended debate on it.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"I hope you're not still mad because I criticized your cooking."

Education Savings 'Meat-axe Approach': Nixon

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal Leader Robert Nixon charged the Ontario government Friday with using a "meat-axe approach" to cutting education costs in the province.

Mr. Nixon, speaking in the Ontario legislature during the throne speech debate, said "real savings" could be made in other areas of education without downgrading the quality of education in the classroom."

Cost-cutting could begin in administrative services, and in educational research, he said, adding that the Ontario Institute of Studies in Education is "wasting millions of dollars."

Ontario's high school teachers have threatened to quit teaching May 3 unless the government raises ceilings on spending by school boards. Mr. Nixon, a former school teacher himself, said the teachers' threat was "totally irresponsible" and not the kind of pressure that should be brought against the government.

In a wide-ranging, two-hour speech, the Liberal leader attacked Treasurer Darcy McKeough as a "sabre-rattler," the minister responsible for creating chaos in regional government and assessment, and for creating "intra-cabinet warfare in the planning field."

Mr. Nixon said former treasurer Charles MacNaughton, now highways minister, had been removed from his senior cabinet post because of the "war" between him and Mr. McKeough over planning.

TORONTO (CP) — Trade Minister Allan Grossman drew howls of protest from opposition members Friday when he denied in the Ontario legislature that the government had promised to create 132,000 new jobs in a $500 million housing program, announced Tuesday in the throne speech.

"Nobody knows how many of the 132,000 jobs will be new," Mr. Grossman said over shouts and desk thumping from opposition benches.

"The statement in the spee from the throne is a fraud," t torted Opposition Leader Ric ard Nixon who had begun t exchange by asking the min ter for a breakdown in "dolla and housing starts" of the O tario contribution to the plan.

Cities Desperate

Canadian Mayors Seek Federal Renewal Funds

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities is urging the federal government to return to full-scale government spending on urban renewal.

A brief from the civic federation, to be presented today to Robert Andras, federal minister in charge of housing, says the housing problem for low-income families in the cities has become desperate. Federal spending on urban renewal was reduced 2½ years ago.

In November, 1967, the federal government put a freeze on funds available for major urban renewal projects because it felt too many usable houses were being sacrificed for development of the projects.

The eight-point submission, made public here Sunday, requests higher government priority to be given to the replacement or rehabilitation of substandard housing.

The federation says one of the greatest faults with previous urban-renewal programs has been the lack of legislation and financing to include social and community self-help projects.

Under the National Housing Act, Ottawa paid 50 per cent of the costs of approved renewal projects with the provincial government and the municipality providing the balance.

Belleville is not a member of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities but Mayor J. Russell Scott said today that it should be a member. "By not being a member we are missing out," he said.

Ottawa Seeks Bank Muscle

OTTAWA (CP) — Government will have to "play a greater role" in the management of Canadian banks if their presidents "really don't care about the economic and financial independence of Canada," says Energy Minister J. J. Greene.

He was speaking in an interview taped here 10 days ago shortly after the presidents of several Canadian banks, attending a New York conference of financiers, criticized the Canadian Development Corp. and economic nationalism in general and said United States investment money was welcome in Canada.

The interview was broadcast Sunday night on the CBC television program Weekend.

Asked if he was suggesting a kind of quasi-nationalization of the banks or a greater government presence on the board of directors, Mr. Greene said he favored "greater government presence in some fashion."

Mr. Greene suggested government might have to "sit at the table where the great financial decisions are made in far greater degree that it has in the past to enable Canadian companies to have the financial muscle to play in this very tough league with the American companies."

"Our Canadian companies can only cope with them (large United States corporations) if our banks and life insurance companies, with the great proportion of Canadian savings they hold, play ball with the Canadian company. . . ."

Mr. Greene said he didn't think it was in keeping with the "degree of responsibility that the president of a Canadian bank has to Canada (that) he be making that kind of statements outside Canada."

"I'd like to see if American banks had a wide-open rein here and could do anything they want and expand as big as they felt like, how long our Canadian banks would last," he said.

Mr. Greene said the bankers' statements do not in any way represent the views of most Canadians today.

"It's human that bank presidents will be way out on the right wing of anything."

The Wings of an Angel

Two light planes, each carrying an instructor and student pilot, collided and locked together about 20 feet above a Dallas runway as both planes were about to land. The top plane a Piper 140B, has wings below the cockpit; the bottom plane a Cessna 150 has wings above the cockpit. The Piper sat down on top of the Cessna, with the landing gear lodged in the Cessna cockpit. The planes hit the ground and came to a halt nose down still hooked together. Instructors and students climbed out unscathed. (AP Wirephoto)

News Briefs

TORONTO (CP) — Surgeons at the Toronto Hospital for Sick Children are examining Siamese-twin girls born Saturday to determine whether it will be possible to separate them. A hospital spokesman said Sunday the twins, joined at the chest and abdomen, were both healthy but it might be several days before it is decided whether to separate them by surgery.

TOKYO (AP) — Ken Harada, Japan's Second World war ambassador to the Vatican, said Sunday the United States made a peace move prior to the atomic bombing of Hiroshima. Harada said he was notified by a Vatican official in June, 1945, that the U.S. government would like to make contact with the Japanese government on ending the war in the Pacific. He said he called his government about the American move but got no reply.

Engineers OK 3-Year Pact

MONTREAL (CP) — A nationwide rail strike set for noon, local times today, was cancelled when the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers reached agreement with Canada's major railways after almost 80 hours of continuous bargaining.

The three-year contract provides for annual pay increases of eight per cent in each of the first two years and seven per cent in the third.

The first-year increase is completely retroactive since the engineers' contract with the CNR and CP Rail expired more than a year ago.

Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey, his eyes bloodshot after many hours of mediation, announced the settlement at a news conference.

He said: "I hope the men understand their responsibilities to the Canadian people and go back to work."

The settlement, which remains to be ratified by the union membership, was consistent with settlements reached earlier involving 78,000 non-operating railway employees whose negotiations settled for increases of eight and seven per cent over two years.

The engineers' settlement exacting in 1973 also provides for improved fringe benefits and rule changes.

A spokesman for the labor minister made the announcement and added that the settlement had been reached at "about 7:15 a.m. this morning."

Face-to-face bargaining sessions broke off Friday, but union and railway negotiators continued discussions in three separate meetings with the labor minister and federal mediators throughout the weekend.

Before the settlement Mr. Mackasey expressed confidence Sunday that an agreement could be reached prior to the strike deadline. He said the fact he had remained involved in the negotiations meant he had "good reason to think a strike can be averted."

CN and CP and CP Rail traffic had ground slowly to a near halt early today. Countrywide freight embargoes were put into effect Friday noon and passenger service had been progressively eliminated to ensure that no trains would be stranded at the strike deadline.

O'Keefe Record

TORONTO (CP) — Coco, starring actress Katharine Hepburn, broke all O'Keefe Centre box office record by grossing $171,647 in its third and final week's performance, the centre announced Sunday.

The previous O'Keefe record —$148,927—was set last October by Engelbert Humperdinck in the second week of his two-week engagement.

Waffle 'Suicide' For NDP: Lewis

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — The New Democratic party's Waffle wing has "put the party on the spot" with its resolution endorsing the sovereignty of Quebec to self-determination, the federal party's deputy leader said Sunday.

David Lewis, one of five candidates in the party's leadership race, said the NDP was "damned if it does and damned if it doesn't" adopt the resolution as party policy at the leadership and policy convention to be held in Ottawa this month.

"Tweaks and the Liberals aren't going to read the small print. They are going to tell the Canadian people that the NDP are encouraging separatism in Quebec. That, what the press and many people have already taken it to mean," he said.

He said a defeat of the resolution may be misinterpreted in Quebec to mean that the party does not support the guaranteed democratic right of separatists to advocate their belief.

Mr. Lewis said the resolution, supported by a Quebec section of the NDP and by the radical Waffle group, which also advocates economic nationalism, is "in principle wrong, irrelevant to the issue and politically suicidal."

Canada Faces Plague

Wealth of Engineering Graduates Can't Be Put to Best Use

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada will have many more science and engineering graduates than can be fully used for at least two more years. Beyond that the future is uncertain.

This gloomy outlook for scientists and engineers was set out today in a study by Dr. Frank Kelly, a science adviser to the Science Council of Canada.

His report will be the foundation of a later report to the government recommending action.

Dr. Kelly says that this year alone perhaps half the estimated 14,000 science and engineering graduates will not be used effectively.

In the most highly-trained category, there may be a surplus of 400 PhD holders this year with a further surplus of 500 in 1972.

This unprecedented prospect of an abundant supply of highly-trained manpower has important implications for governments, industry and educational institutions.

Canada now produces proportionately more PhDs than the United States or Britain for an employment system that finds it difficul to use their skills.

But the study says it is doubtful if Canada produces half enough educated people to achieve the national goals proposed to the government by the science council in October, 1968.

Dr. Kelly, a young Australian chemist who came here six years ago, criticizes the deficiencies in data to measure supply, demand and the factors affecting them.

He makes it plain that Canada could benefit from Britain's example in setting up an Institute of...manpower studies supported co-operatively by government, universities, employers' associations and trade unions.

Dr. Kelly peers into the future for effects of this unaccustomed wealth of graduates.

He predicts emphasis on education as training for well-paid professional jobs will decline.

Strtss will be laid on education for its own sake and for its promising potential. He warns that society is unprepared for this large and sudden transition.

He identifies several important factors in how smoothly the transition is made.

He says employers and educationists must intensify recent efforts to make each other aware much earlier of job-market trends.

Canada may have to start screening the immigrant professionals who were a substantial source of supply in the years when there were shortages.

In industry, companies may lose out in the flow of new ideas and techniques by restricted hirings and the general educational improvement of industry may be impaired.

New emphasis on enrolment in social sciences among today's undergraduates indicates that the patters of the physical sciences may be repeated—demands for teachers filled by immigrants with the prospect in five years of an abundance of graduates who look to teaching as their prime field of employment.

Universities already are making it harder for graduates to get into schools to take higher degrees. Provincial governments are boosting fees and reducing scholarships for post-graduate training.

Movement of graduates from province to province will intensify as each region tries to offer more equal opportunity for undergraduate and graduate education at a time when employment opportunities are not keeping pace with growth in education.

Discrimination against women graduates will be reinforced by a plentiful graduate supply, more so in industry than government and university jobs.

Pressure will grow to extend university education to a larger proportion of the college-age population and to age groups.

While the willingness of the taxpayer in foot the education bill will be a limiting factor, support will grow for guaranteeing everyone at least two years of college.

New attention will be directed at who benefits most from higher education—society or the individual. New attempts will be made to study the working of the education system under many more factors that affect it.

Weekend Vandalism

Police reported two incidents of wilful damage which occurred this weekend.

Eastminster United Church, on the corner of Herchimer and Bridge Streets, reported six windows broken at an estimated value of between $300 and $400.

In the same vicinity, Doug Rollins Shell service station, across the street from Eastminster, reported a ¼-inch plate glass window broken at a value estimated at $300.

Included in the weekend police reports were reports of three car stereo tape decks stolen and a break-in at Hillcrest Public School. Entry at the school was gained through a broken glass door on the southwest side of the school.

Teacher Overload for Jobs

More than 800 applicants for the fall hiring session of the Hastings County School Board this weekend applied for the 60 teaching jobs vacant. The sessions at Centennial Secondary School, attracted 400 prospective teachers to the two-day hiring session. Here, George Patton, principal of Stirling Public School, left, and Clair Rupnow, principal of Sir John A .Macdonald Public School, right, chat with Bonnie Hicks, a Peterborough Teachers' College graduate from Stirling, Mrs. Fenella MacWhirter, an Ottawa Teachers' College graduate, a future Belleville resident, and Debbie Arbuckle, a Peterborough Teachers' College graduate, also from Stirling.

Teachers Chase Scarce Jobs

An uneven pattern in teacher quality emerged this weekend as hiring began for next September's school opening.

In what it termed " a buyer's market for boards," Hastings county set out to find about 60 teachers, 30 for elementary schools and 30 for secondary schools. It had 800 applicants to choose from.

But they were a "mixed bag," said Linton Rykal, principal of Bayside Secondary School, the new open-concept Institution due to open some time next year. He was a member of the three - man team sent to Toronto to recruit secondary school teachers.

"The supply was better than in previous years, but the quality was disappointing," said Mr. Read.

"There's a surfeit of good teachers of history, English, theatre arts and biology," he reported. The surfeit is so large he indicated that many of the superior teachers of these subjects may not get jobs this year.

But there is a shortage of good people in maths, pure chemistry and pure physics, he found. Qualified department heads in these subjects are particularly difficult to find, as more and more experienced teachers decide against moving this year.

Mr. Read hired 11 teachers this weekend, five of them in Toronto. He is looking for another 14. But he won't be returning to Toronto -- from now on applicants must come here for interviews.

At Centennial Secondary School, 400 teachers showed up to apply for positions, most of them in elementary schools. Twenty of them were hired and most of these had university degrees or were well on the way to getting them.

This year, for the first time, all principals are responsible for hiring teachers for their own schools.

"They never realized the calibre of people out there," said director of education Eric Runacres of his principals' reaction to the turnout at Centennial this weekend. "From now on they will be looking at their own staff with a critical eye. We will see improved teacher quality in the future because principals now know what's on the market."

Many of the teachers interviewed but not hired this weekend went on a waiting list to be called as further resignations come in before the deadline of May 31.

But the increase in the number of elementary teachers with superior qualifications will eventually pose a problem for boards. Teachers with degrees, or credits toward degrees, command higher salaries than teachers' college graduates.

At the same time as the provincial government is demanding higher qualifications (one year of university to enter teachers' colleges next fall), it is imposing spending ceilings on boards.

The budget appropriations for teachers' salaries could rise astronomically in future years if a majority of elementary teachers earn degrees.

"Government ceilings will have to rise to encompass the increasing quality of teachers," says Mr. Runacres.

Rumors are spreading across the province as boards deliberately setting out to hire a majority of inexperienced teachers' college graduates, and as few as possible with university credits, in an effort to keep salary budgets down.

One administrator reported that teachers interviewed before this weekend asked about the county board's policy on this matter. The inquirers had apparently had experience with boards seeking minimum qualifications.

In this county the emphasis so far has been on quality.

"We want quality first," says the director.

That's what the hiring team went after, and in most cases except for certain secondary school disciplines, got. The county board has formulated no set policy on the issue. But if salaries continue to rise, and ceilings descend, trustees may be forced to grapple with the problem.

Horse Show In June

PICTON (Staff) — The annual Prince Edward Spring Horse Show will be held in Picton June 18, 19 and 20 in the County Centre. This polular event, sponsored by the Picton Kiwanis Club and the Prince Edward Agricultural Society will feature a full program of country and western music.

Chairman of the county fair board's horse committee, Charles Culmer, said that several new classes will be introduced this year to boost interest in the weekend show. It is planned to schedule events for the evenings of June 18 and 19 and the afternoon of June 20. Last year western games classes were held outdoors when poor footing in the indoor arena made conditions dangerous for horses and riders. With the exception of these high speed events, all classes were judged under the lights during evening competitions in the arena.

Prominent Doctor Is Dead at 84

Dr. Bruce Hopkins, founder of Ongwanada Hospital in Kingston and former mayor of that city, died Saturday morning in Kingston General Hospital in his 85th year.

Dr. Hopkins, born in Lindsay and educated at the University of Toronto, devoted his professional life to tuberculosis research. After serving as a lieutenant - colonel with the Canadian Forces during World War I, he became medical director of the Sir Oliver Mowat sanatorium in Portsmouth in 1917. When it closed in 1928, he was appointed an assistant professor of medicine at Queen's University and specialized in respiratory diseases.

Active in civic life, he sat on Kingston council from 1927 to 1932 and became mayor in 1933.

Dr. Hopkins was predeceased by his wife, the former Marjorie Pense and is survived by a daughter, Helen Hopkins of Kingston and a son, Gerard Bruce Hopkins of Montreal.

The funeral was held today from his residence to the cathedral church of St. George at 11 a.m. Interment will be in Lindsay.

Dr. Gerald Allison Picton Physician Dies Suddenly

PICTON (Staff) — Eminent Picton physician and surgeon, Dr. Gerald Allison, 61 Main Street, died suddenly Saturday in Kingston General Hospital. A graduate of the University of Toronto he had practised medicine for more than 30 years.

Dr. Allison, a veteran of both World Wars, earned a distinguished record of military service retiring with the rank of Colonel. He served with a casualty clearing station in World War I and was later transferred to the Royal Army Medical Corps. He was posted to No. 12 Stationary Hospital in Caliipoli in 1915 and 1916. At its evacuation he was stationed in Egypt at a seaport along the Suez Canal. Later he served at Khyber Pass and at a station hospital at Cheral, India. Upon returning to France he became Medical Officer of the London Irish Rifles. Colonel Allison also served as adjutant and instructor at the RAMC officers' School at Blackpool, England.

In World War II he served as Medical Officer in command of Picton's medical board and also acted as camp medical officer at Barrriefield, Kingston. In 1940 Dr. Allison became District Medical Officer, military district 3, Kingston. Locally, he earned recognition for his work as Director of Ambulance and Commanding Commissioner, St. John's Ambulance.

Born in Picton, Dr. Allison was the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Allison. He established a medical practice here following World War I and became actively involved in community affairs. A member of the Prince Edward Masonic Lodge he was a Past Master of the Bay of Quinte Lodge, No. 18 and a Past Preceptor of St. George's Preceptory, No. 32. In 1946 he was First Principal of the Prince Edward Chapter. He was also a member of Bamenes Shrine.

A sports enthusiast, Dr. Allison was a prominent member of the Picton Golf and Country Club and an avid supporter of local hockey. He frequently acted as team physician for county games. A past president of the United Empire Loyalists Association, Dr. Allison was also a Rotarian. For many years he was active in Branch 78, Royal Canadian Legion, Picton.

Dr. Allison is survived by his wife, the former Ruth Branscombe, and a sister, Mrs. Joseph (Geraldine) Bolton, Montreal. Funeral services will be conducted Tuesday, April 6, from the Whatman Funeral Home, Picton, with entombment in Glenwood Cemetery vault.

A special Masonic service will be held this evening -at the funeral home.

Loyalist Shuffles Top-level Staff

The organization of top administrative positions at Loyalist College last week underwent a reshuffle of responsibility with a number of staff assuming new positions.

Most administrative departments had been directly responsible to the office of the president in the past. Under the new plan, four directors and one dean will report to Herbert Young, president of Loyalist College.

Included in the five top positions are Arthur McFarlane, who maintains his title of director of student services; Glynn Harry, whose new title as director of finance replaces that of bursar; Nick Fraser, who served as assistant to the president, is now in the position of director of planning and physical facilities, responsible for non-academic personnel and maintenance of the college buildings; Ernst Kneisel, who maintains his role as chairman of the business department but also serves as director of public relations.

PAUL KING

Most significant change in these top jobs is that of Paul King, former dean of technology, now the dean of faculty and academic affairs. In his new role, Mr. King receives the reports from seven other department heads which he then passes on to the president, thereby eliminating the necessity of having these seven department heads report directly to Mr. Young.

William S. Babbitt, former senior supervisor of the pure science department of technology division has assumed the position as director of technology, William R. Ellis maintains the title and duties of registrar; George G. Brooks continues as dean of applied arts and business; Edward J. Buckley is still director of retraining; Hal J. Butterill remains as director of extension and Mrs. Mary McConnell continues as head librarian. Jim Macleod, northern area supervisor, is now responsible to Mr. King instead of Mr. Butterill.

Mr. Young explained most of the changes were simply for the "purpose of reorganization, to come up with a straighforward effective structure without significantly altering the salary structure."

This restructure "streamlines and simplifies the organization in order to achieve maximum effectiveness," he said.

The college president stressed that two men, Mr. Kneisel's job is about the same. "We hope to involve, to a greater degree, faculty and students of the communication arts department."

Use of faculty and students in the media courses would provide the college with a ready made staff to aid the public relations department, and would provide students with a useful background in practical communications . . . invaluable toward future jobs Mr. Young said.

Hand-carved Cultural Award

At close glance, Ron Vandervelde's design of the 1971 Cultural Awards plaque, to be presented April 21, is of rough texture. "Just like a painting," he said. The carefully joined walnut pieces, of a deep brownish color resembling old leather, took 30-40 hours to carve into the symbolic design of man's development of the arts from humble beginnings.

This Year's Science Fair To Be Three Shows in One

Plans are in the final stages for the 11th annual Science Fair and Hobby Show sponsored by Belleville Rotary Club.

The show will open to the public April 16 at 4 p.m. and continue the next day from 1 to 10 p.m.

The fair this year will be three shows in one — the science fair, with exhibits up for judging, the hobby Centre, for display only, and finally, a series of special exhibits illustrating science in industry.

Participation in the science fair section has increased 60 per cent this year over 1970, with students entering 99 projects in the competition. The three top winners will be sent to the Canada - Wide Science Fair in Edmonton, Alta., in May.

Another first this year is the entries being submitted by technical students in the vocational departments of schools.

In the hobby show, more than 35 hobbyists and hobby clubs will be displaying, and in some cases demonstrating, their hobbies and crafts.

Entries are coming from farther afield this year. Science entries have been received from Picton, Napanee, Trenton, Ernestown, Madoc, Tweed, Bancroft and Desmonto.

Hobbyists will be coming from Trenton, Napanee and Stirling as well as from Belleville. Members of Belleville Y will put on a judo display and a special skating program.

The Science Fair is a public service project of the Belleville Rotary Club and has been in operation since 1960. Run with the co-operation of school science teachers, it provides an opportunity for students throughout the district to display projects developed in conjunction with school studies and experiments. Purpose is to stimulate a practical interest in science studies.

Cultural Award Winner To Get Unique Plaque

Ron Vandervelde is a self-confessed part - time artist whose goal is to eventually make a full - time career of his talent.

Combine the trade of preparing dies for jewellery, handed down from father to son, together with inborn artistic talent and you have the history of Mr. Vandervelde's development of his skill.

The intricate design required for jewellery dies appears in the painstakingly carved relief plaques displayed throughout the artist's home north of Foxboro on Highway 62.

Chosen by the Cultural Awards Committee to design the second civic award for cultural contributions to the community, Mr. Vandervelde attempted to select a series of designs symbolizing all areas of the arts.

For true romantic in his design, a dictionary provided the interpretations which resulted in a carved plaque displaying a reaper at the dawn of time. Significance behind Mr. Vandervelde's man's development of the arts from a simple beginning.

Below the reaper's feet are symbols of such areas of the arts as writing, graphic arts, ballet, sculpture, painting, music, weaving, pottery, needlework and the theatre.

"This plaque is different from my other reliefs," said Mr. Vandervelde. The deep carving visible upon close scrutiny gives an impression of incompleteness, not observed at even a small distance.

It was the artist's hope to create this idea of unfinished work to keep the wall plaque realistic . . . uncommercial in appearance.

"I spent almost as much time thinking up the idea for, this award as I did working on it," he said. "I knew I spent between 30 and 40 hours on the actual carving."

His first award, presented to Mrs. Marian M. Wilson in 1969, was of an impressionistic modern design. The 1971 award, he felt, should be more easily recognized for its meaning.

"I wanted it to be in touch with people. Viewers can recognize the idea and associate with it," he said.

This breakaway from past forms of art is nothing new for this area artist.

As he said himself, "I set a goal years ago of doing something new every year. There's so much in this world available to the person who wants to develop it . . . I find myself as one of the times that I come close to neglecting my friends."

A high school dropout who has made it on his own, Mr. Vandervelde exhibits an energy which provides him with little idle time. Between working days as a model maker at Avon Jewellery Ltd. and his artistic hobby at nights, he and his wife, an artist herself, have little time left in a day.

However, it's a complete life, he says. "We have our home which we built ourselves, and we have plans for a small shop selling nothing but true Canadian art made by Canadian artists."

Set about 100 yards back from Highway 62, surrounded by a small bush, the Vandervelde home is an artist's paradise. The home itself, constructed of BC cedar, was put together in a matter of two weeks by the artist, his wife Gail, and a friend.

It is his hope to complete a small studio where local artists can work. "It would be something of an artist's retreat: a place where they could get away from civilization for awhile and yet stay close enough."

This idea forms part of dream just now being realized by the Vandervelde. Their involvement with Canadian art is a full-time interest. It is their hope to bring local talent together in order to promote Canadians. "There's no real outlet for home-grown art," he said.

The small shop, to be located on the edge of their property, is planned for completion this summer. If all goes well, it is Mr. Vandervelde's hope to attract Canadian artists into displaying their crafts in the shop, and encourage them to spend some time personally exhibiting and working.

"As you see," he chuckled, "we've got a pretty full life, between my job and our hobby."

The award, to be presented April 21, will be given to a candidate who best fulfills a civic contribution under the following terms of reference. They are:

(a) in cultural fields and related fields such as theatre, music, the arts, literature and crafts.

(b) on the provincial, national or international levels (to mean that their contribution can be documented).

(c) on the local level where an individual whose contribution is so outstanding as to deserve special recognition.

(d) a Belleville citizen (current resident or native).

Fire Survivors' Fund Is Begun

CHERRY VALLEY (Staff) — Members of the Cherry Valley Women's Institute have organized a fund to assist village resident Michael McGrath and his teen-aged daughters Patricia and Colleen following a fire which destroyed their home. Mr. McGrath's wife, June, 41 and his 13-year-old daughter Nancy died in the blaze which broke out early last Wednesday morning.

Funeral services for Mrs. McGrath and her daughter were held Saturday morning in the Church of St. Gregory the Great, Picton with Rev. Fr. W. V. Hamilton officiating.

The fund established for the surviving members of the McGrath family already has mounted to more than $200. Donations will be accepted at Fennell's General Store, Bell's Grocery and Leavitt's Dairy Bar, Cherry Valley. Although Mr. McGrath has no immediate future plans, he has expressed the hope that his daughters will be able to complete their school terms at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute this spring.

Taxi Regulations To Be Reviewed

TRENTON (Staff) — Council here tonight will consider revisions to regulations governing the operation of taxis in the town.

Police Chief David Saunders has reviewed present controls and has recommended the changes.

Two companies, Graham's and Gould's, operate in Trenton . . . the latter is in the process of being sold to Al and Earl Steinberg, owners of the Gilbert Hotel.

Council here, March 8, refused to grant licences to the Steinbergs but did give a month-long extension so the company could operate on it's 170 licences. This extension runs out on Thursday of this week.

Sources this morning declined to specify the exact revisions being considered this evening. However, council has been considering changes in fee-paying procedures and the possibility of giving police added responsibility in decisions regarding taxi operations.

3 Charges Laid

A 70-year-old Belleville resident, Thomas W. Oak, of 82 Station Street, has been charged with impaired driving, careless driving and driving while under licence suspension following an accident at 7:11 p.m. Saturday.

Police reports said Mr. Oak driving on the wrong side of the road, was in collision with a car driven by Bruce Edwin Mosolf, of 42 Plaza Square. Mrs. Doreen Mosolf sustained a broken bone in her ankle. Damage to the cars was estimated at $1,200.

Market Move Protested By Trenton Housewife

TRENTON (Staff) — A letter from Mrs. Alice Barr of Trenton, protesting plans to move the town's market, will be read before council here tonight.

Mrs. Barr, in her letter, contends the market at its present site, is a tourist attraction. She says when people go to market, "it is not unreasonable to assume that some will wander over to see what the shops have to offer.

"Surely, it does not make sense for you gentlemen to turn away all those potential customers for the sake of one row of parking four hours a week," she adds.

The market patron suggests that "to judge by the proliferation of bankruptcies this winter, I should think you could not afford to."

Farmers Restive

That the farm community and the federal government are at odds over many aspects of modern agricultural practice is apparent from the observations of Walter Miller, vice-president of the National Farmers' Union, at Cherry Valley the other day.

Marketing, for example, and what he terms orderly marketing, mean different things, according to Mr. Miller, who says farmers need some vehicle "to stop gouging and manipulation of markets." The federal government bill C-176, he claims, is oppressive legislation designed to get rid of the Canadian farmer.

The NFU official's catalogue of complaints, as listed at the Cherry Valley meeting, is long, and includes criticism of both Prime Minister Trudeau and Agriculture Minister Olson. He cited the NFU Dairy committee's difficulty in obtaining an appointment with Mr. Olson, complained that they were getting "the runaround," and when they did get an appointment, it lasted 20 minutes, half of which Mr. Olson took up with a political speech.

Mr. Miller was critical of the fact that the Royal Commission on Agriculture, established following a farmers' march on Ottawa, was imposed on the farming community, and that no farmers were on "the task force of experts." Bill C-176, he charged, was designed to get power out of the hands of farmers and into the hands of government.

And so on. The farmers are restive; they have no confidence in government policy and it would not be surprising if this reflected in the polls in the election which cannot be too far away. Meanwhile, there is a lack of communication and understanding between Ottawa and the farm community. There can be no other conclusion from the Cherry Valley and similar meetings around the country.

TV Voices

Remember when the CBC had a woman announcer every night, somewhere around the 11 o'clock news, would intone: "this is the CBC television network." The voice was that of one Maggie Morris and there came the day when she was fired because the CBC — and apparently not a few members of the public — found her voice displeasing. The message she had to recite could not have been less brief, but her voice had a sugar-sweet quality which grated somewhat.

Anyway, the British-born Miss Morris exited and in came another young woman whose name we do not recall even being announced, and it has occurred to us only in recent days that we have not heard her or her piece either for some time now. Hers were more modulated tones — and presumably more acceptable — than those of Miss Morris, but she too apparently has been let go, or consigned to some other work.

Thus, we are reminded that the CBC is substantially a man's world, at least where announcing chores are concerned. But a few women announcers, we feel, would create fresh interest in the news and in television programming generally.

The British Broadcasting Corporation used to have women announcers, and presumably still does, reading the news and preparing other information, along with their male counterparts. New Zealand is another country whose television service employs women announcers, and in the early days of the Pakistan uprising networks here carried a recording of a young Pakistani woman announcer giving details of the disturbances in her country in perfect BBC English. But here in Canada the CBC seems to have difficulty keeping the lone woman television announcer it does employ. That is, if she is in fact still around. And not forgetting Kay Harjurjansen who teams with Lloyd Robertson on "Weekend."

Tibetans Arrive

Another group of Tibetans, refugees from communist occupation of their homeland, are settling down in Cobourg and Lindsay. They are a handsome people and from the photographs one is struck by the similarity of appearance to our own Indians and Eskimos. Yet when it is realized that the origins of the latter, going back far into time, are in Asia too, maybe there is a stronger kinship than may be supposed. The group includes four married couples, two of them with children, and three single men. Our hope is that all will merge happily into Canadian society and that their future in this country will be crowned by success.

Communist Influence in British Trade Unions

McKenzie Porter in
The Toronto Telegram

ST. ANNES-ON-SEA, Eng.—The most frequent topic of debate in the pubs of England today is the opposition of some powerful trades unions to the Industrial Relations Bill.

The most important clause in the Bill renders unions liable to legal actions for damages caused by wildcat strikes and other breaches of contract.

Another important clause compels an end to the closed shop. It will be illegal to deny a man a job or to fire him simply because he refuses to join a union.

Obviously these clauses will rob trades union leaders of much power. This is why two of the most militant leaders, Hugh Scanlon of the engineers and Jack Jones of the transport workers are in the forefront of demonstrations against the bill.

By calling out their members on two one-day protest strikes this month, Mr. Scanlon and Mr. Jones shut down most of the factories. Daily newspapers could not publish, for example, because safety considerations precluded operation of the presses without the presence of a handful of engineers.

They never reply logically to questions based on the relationship between soaring wage demands, munificent welfare provisions, low man-hour production, inflation and the threat of slump.

They merely talk and talk and talk and all they say is that the bill is anti-union and undemocratic.

They are hardly champions of democracy themselves.

Between them Mr. Scanlon and Mr. Jones control three million workers. The ignorance of these workers and their sheep-like obedience to their union masters is palpable in the banality of their banners.

The engineers are so apathetic about who should lead them that only a handful of them vote. Mr. Scanlon, for example, was voted into office by a mere five per cent of his members. As soon as he assumed power he rushed through new union bylaws which render him immune from further elections. He remains in power until he retires.

Mr. Scanlon, Mr. Jones and many other militant union leaders have Communist backgrounds. When the leaders watched London members stage a march against the bill early this month, they saw them — by arrangement — to a startling loss of production, then gets rid of him.

One man's principles sometimes are not worth a major loss of production. Many unemployed men who have been expelled from their unions and so cannot get another job, are, in consequence, martyrs.

This is despotism exercised in the name of union solidarity for the purpose of instigating anarchy. The Industrial Relations Bill should put a stop to it. History may well show that Mr. Heath's Conservative government was elected by the British in the nick of time.

Early Diagnosis Vital to Cancer Cure

'Canadian Cancer Society
During one of the several meetings being sponsored in various parts of the country by the Canadian Cancer Society, someone may well stand up and ask the panel of experts some thing like this: "We've been hearing about the progress being made in cancer research and cancer treatment and cancer Education for years now. When is it all going to bear fruit? When are we going to have a cure for cancer?"

It is reasonable for the public to want to know what it is getting for the money it so generously entrusts to the Canadian Cancer Society every year. He who pays the piper should at least know the tune. And the answer to the question of when cancer research is going to bear fruit might be a surprise to some. It is this: It has already borne fruit.

Witness these facts, for example, from the 1971 edition of the Cancer Society's booklet "Cancer Facts": In the past 20 years alone, in Canada, the percentage of people who have lived for five years after diagnosis of cancer of the breast rose from 48 per cent to 58 per cent; for cancer of the skin the percentage of five year survivals went up from 81 per cent to 100 per cent. Several other types of cancer have equally good performances: in the mouth, the larynx, the prostate and the uterus.

These figures are a tribute to three things — they mean that more people had their disease diagnosed early, which shows that the education program of the Society has had some effect; they are evidence of the steadily improving methods of treatment; and they attest to the results of research. All three of these areas are the concern of the Canadian Cancer Society, and all three gain by every dollar contributed during the April campaign.

Grade 7 Students Have Look at Rural Economy

Lloyd Bibby in the
Kitchener - Waterloo Record

"It was like being caught in a snowstorm," said 12-year-old Lori Simmons. "You learned from experience."

The comment aptly summed up the feelings of four Grade 7 girls at Sunnyside senior public school who got caught up in a learning experience new to the school and perhaps new to the county's education system.

Over the past two months, the girls spent 40 hours preparing a multi-media presentation on agriculture in Waterloo County. The first showing was made to students at the school.

It was declared so successful by Douglas Gerrard, assistant learning consultant with the Waterloo county board of education, that it will be used as a model for future presentations by students.

Lori is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Simmons. Her colleagues in the agricultural adventure were Susan Reimer, 12, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Reimer; Doris Bauer, 12, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Heinz Bauer, and Anne Schneider, 12, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schneider of RR3, Kitchener.

They enquired into raising, dairy and beef cattle, sheep and pigs; vegetable and tobacco growing, cheese production and mixed farming. They also visited the Kitchener farmers' market where they interviewed farmers and customers and toured the animal science department at the University of Guelph. Part of their requirements were filled by writing to people able to provide information and pictures.

In the process, the young ladies took their own colored slides and showed them at the presentation, taped a script, prepared an oral fill-in to the script and made use of an overhead projector. Mr. Gerrard provided only minimum assistance.

The project started by accident. Donald Kraft, principal of the nearly 600-pupil school, discovered the girls searching for information in the library. They were bent on preparing a written report.

Mr. Kraft discussed it with Mr. Gerrard and the multi-media presentation evolved.

Montreal Murders

Montreal Gazette

Eighteen murders have been committed so far this year in the Greater Montreal area, five recent ones showing all the indications of gangland killings. The first of the five was shot four times and his body left on the street. Two others were shot, a third stabbed, during after hours in a night club. The fifth, a night club owner, was killed by shot-gun blasts as he walked home early in the morning.

Homicide detectives are reported to believe that all five were victims of a loan shark racket. At least one of the five was known to the police. Every effort, no doubt, is being made to apprehend the killers, and Montrealers must wonder, however, if those efforts are good enough. There is still a disturbingly large list of unsolved murders from last year, murders attributed to a struggle for control between gangland factions. The police may have well-founded suspicions as to who is responsible for the killings, even who the actual killers are, but finding them to trial is another matter.

There is a tendency in the public to ignore such killings as long as those who are involved appear to be part of the street. It would be extremely dangerous if the police also took this view. Once criminals are encouraged to believe they can settle their differences in their own way, even when they involve murder in the streets, there is safety on the streets for anyone.

The police must recognize this. The vigor with which they have been pursuing their raids on establishments suspected of selling liquor to the under-aged and of other relatively minor infringements of the law does raise the question, however, of whether they have their priorities in the right order. Montreal's reputation for murder and bankrobbery is not one in which any citizen can rejoice.

Parental Neglect Cited

Ottawa Report on Needs of Troubled Teenagers

Ottawa Journal

The plight of disadvantaged or troubled teenagers in the Ottawa area was put into a clearer but disturbing new perspective recently by a special committee report on the housing, hospital and social service needs of teenagers. It should serve as a clear warning that young people may not be as well off as we try to convince ourselves.

This is not a study by amateur dogooders. The committee was made up of psychiatrists, social workers and probation and education officials. It notes that in 1969 the Children's Aid Society had 511 teenagers between 13 and 20 in its care, and estimates that one per cent of the 61,911 teenagers in Ottawa Carleton require institutional treatment for psychological disorders.

The report says that these between 16 and 20 (who often need help most) find the least help available. A 16-year-old can legally leave school and home. He is treated as an adult in our courts and prisons. The committee says the lack of services for this age group results in a "breakdown in community responsibility":

"A troubled 16-year-old, rejected by his parents who are negligent or unwilling to assume responsibility for him, is in a no man's land. He is not eligible for placement resources provided by the Children's Aid Society; no one agency or group of agencies is responsible for providing complete services for him. The majority of services that are provided are of a stop-gap nature, and are limited by staff, eligibility requirements and policies."

The committee touches on some of the needs: more counselling services for troubled teenagers and their parents in "crisis situations"; more foster homes for troubled teenagers; a long-term residential treatment centre for those people with problems.

The report calls for a youth board to co-ordinate planning of aid to teenagers. It feels the board could help get more foster homes, push for permanent hostel facilities, and half-way houses for teenage mothers, and bring together the work of such groups as the YM-YWCA, the Mayor's Committee on Youth, and the Children's Aid Society.

A major failing of the report is that it does not in any way deal with the financial implications of its proposals. The extra counselling services, treatment centres, homes and hospital - care facilities would no doubt prove expensive. But a youth board could at least get a start on some of the less expensive needs, such as a campaign for more foster parents. Some co-ordination of present aid and over-all planning for the future would at least give a program of aid to teenagers a fighting chance.

Urban Aid Sought

Mayor Scott said membership in the federation would give the city direct access to the federal minister on urban affairs.

Commenting on the federation's brief asking that higher priority be given to the replacement or rehabilitation of sub standard housing, Mayor Scott said the city was still in need of low rental accommodation.

"We need at least another 250 low rental and senior citizen units," he said. "I would like to see something done."

Over the past three or four years the Ontario Housing Corporation had constructed nearly 200 geared to income and senior citizen residential units in Belleville.

Belleville is now awaiting a final report on urban renewal studies done by town planners Proctor, Redfern, Bousfield and Bacon who two years ago commenced a study of the city's downtown and Foster ward areas.

The preliminary conceptual stage report was received from the planners about a month ago and comments and suggestions are being invited from local organizations and individuals before the final report is drafted and submitted to council for approval.

The conceptual report recommended the continuance of Foster Ward as a residential area with possible eventual redevelopment with town housing and other multiple family units.

Also the report recommended reconstruction of the upper floors of Front Street business blocks for residential accommodation.

Her Aprons Aid Charity

Mrs. Alva Myers of the Trenton district, has decided to make a leisure time hobby in a somewhat different manner. She has been making aprons since 1965 which she sends 10 at a time to various charitable organizations.

By selling the aprons at $1.00 apiece, each group can expect $10 for their individual causes. Although Mrs. Myers uses part of her old age pension to buy the goods, she has produced 591 and 400 colorful cotton items in the past two years.

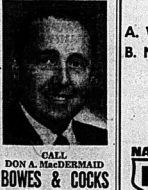
Mrs. Pat Mortimer, Toronto, executive director of the UNICEF Tri Canpon Plan, who has just received her second donation of aprons, says that Mrs. Myers $20 will be converted into a Unesco Gift Coupon, a type of international currency sent by Unesco to its designated projects in this year's two main needy areas of East Pakistan and Auroville, India.

Recently Mrs. Myers has received letters from Brussels and Ceylon thanking her for her $110 worth of coupons sent to projects there in her name through Unesco.

Some of the species receiving aprons from Mrs. Myers are: Ontario Society for Crippled Children, Hands of Dimes, Salvation Army, the Heart Foundation, Muscular Dystrophy Association, the John Howard Society and the VON along with numerous local branches of national organizations in Trenton and Belleville.

Busy Beaver Says

Never have home junk piles as they are a source of danger. Basement, attic, garage and utility rooms should be cleaned out at least four times a year. Oily rags, and paint rags should be kept in metal-covered containers.



Special Service

The Salvation Army is holding special services on Easter Sunday, April 11, to which the public is cordially invited.

At 8.00 a.m. a Sunrise Service will be held followed by an Easter breakfast. Sunday School for all ages will begin at 10.00 a.m. The Holiness meeting will commence at 11.00 a.m.

The evening service, which begins at 7.00 p.m. features special Easter music played by the band. The young people will take part in a playlet depicting scenes from Christ's days upon earth. Everyone is invited to attend any, or all, of the above meetings.

Still Lots Of Snow

TWEED (Special) — Most citizens have long since been fed up with prolonged winter-like conditions but at least the snowmobile enthusiasts are getting full opportunity to use their machines.

And that winter - like conditions are still with us is indicated by the overnight temperatures and the fact there is still from 30 to 50 inches of snow on the ground in North Hastings.

Snow readings — taken at 10 different locations and then averaged — showed there was still 23.7 inches on the ground at Tweed; 25.9 inches at Flinton; 32.4 inches at Dacre, 31.6 inches at Palmer Rapids; 23.3 inches at White Lake, 20.2 inches at Bancroft; 9.5 inches at the Outlet and 14.3 inches at Collins Bay.

Tourist Group To Meet April 21

The annual meeting and election of officers for the Highlands of Hastings Tourist Region will be held at a dinner and dance at the Skyway Lounge, Deseronto on the evening of Wednesday, April 21.

In preparation for the meeting, council members are asked to send in their nomination for president, vice-president and seven directors. The new directors are for the 1971 term commencing May 1.

The 1970 council president is Gordon Bennett of Marmora with Donald Rodgers as vice-president. Directors are Ralph Neal, Marmora; O. F. Bradley, Belleville; Bruce Hopper, Bancroft; Vera McMurray, Gilmour; Vera Potts, Stirling; Clayton Smith, Madoc and Clyde Bell, Tweed.

The tourist council has a membership of approximately 65.

HOBBY SHOP — The walls of a small shop on downtown Barrington Street in Halifax are lined with planes, ships, trains and a mixture of games and other pastimes. They are all models of course, at the Maritime Hobby Centre which was started near the end of the Second World War as an appliance centre. "It's funny," says founder Terry Ahern, "I can't even build a model airplane myself." (CP Photo)

Maritime Hobby Shop A Modeller's Heaven

HALIFAX (CP) — The small, clean shop on downtown Barrington Street holds ages of memories—Ba walls are lined by the great symbols of the growth in aviation, famed ships new and old, railroad equipment ancient and modern, and a mixture of games and other pastimes.

The shelves hold automobiles that someone once found fashionable and someone else now finds historic, and the great dirigibles—Graf Zeppelin, R-101 and their sisters—remain mute testimony to an age that would "never die" but quickly did.

Each day the famed biplanes and triplanes of the First World War pass over the counters, often preceded in choice by the renowned Spitfires, Hurricanes, Messerschmitts and Zeros of another war the first couldn't avert.

They're not models, of course. Many of the real items faded from existence at a time when they had little concern over their fate. Today the production of each miniature unit is a fascinating art that requires infinite patience if detail and authenticity are to create an exact exterior duplicate of the original.

The man most often behind the counter is Bob Regimbal, manager of the Maritime Hobby Centre, who got into the business 15 years ago because of a newspaper route.

Regimbal was a paper boy at the time and the last customer on his route was Terry Ahern, founder and owner of the centre.

Terry told me one day: "I need a boy. Do you want the job.'" Recalls Regimbal: "I took it."

Since his first years in the store there has been a "tremendous change" in hobby crafts. "The variety now is fantastic with something new almost every day," he says.

"One time, anyone would buy anything" in a ship, train or aircraft model, but they've become more discriminating.

The more intricate models have become most popular, says Regimbal. Each kit becomes more sophisticated and detailed with time, increasing the popularity. Newer models, such as those of space craft, "mean more to kids today than older people.

But the old things still hold interest. The model electric train, the hobby centre's original love, still a favorite with boys, says Regimbal. Although electric racing car sets "hurt them a lot at first."

"I just can't keep the trains in stock now," he says. Their salable features include small size and good construction.

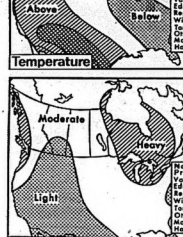
But the main reason for the current upsurge in poularity of most models is price. "It's well within the allowance of a range of most kids today," says Regimbal, but with the changing attitude by manufacturers regarding scale, "they have gone down as well and do not take up as much space as bulky, older models."

The "older models" started the hobby centre. When Terry Ahern went into business at the close of the Second World War, he envisaged selling electric appliances but also included a few model kits in his inventory.

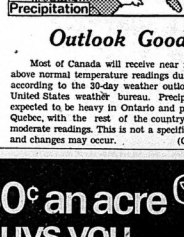
The kits were a sideline, holding a minor portion of the firm. A little later, the electric train was added to stock and models took on increasing importance.

"New trains were difficult to get in those days," recalls Mr. Ahern, "but they were in demand and I tried everywhere for them." Through a number of business transactions, he was able to secure a supply from a New York firm.

Setting up in the model business wasn't all serious, though. One of his funnier moments came when he went to take receipt of paint dope for the models. But the word "dope" on the packages seemed quite a bit of consternation with the customs people.



One of the problems with customs was that Canada, at the time, had no scale of duties for models.



"I had to sort each piece of material to match the classifications that existed, pay the duty according and claim it," Mr. Ahern says.

But the problems were overcome and the hobby craft took on increasing importance. By the 1950s, the appliances took second place to models in percentage of store inventory.

When the store was moved from uptown to downtown, Mr. Ahern was still not much the larger stores in appliance sales, so the hobby centre was in business full time.

"It's funny when you look at it," he says. "I can't even build a model airplane myself."

Outlook Good

Most of Canada will receive near normal to above normal temperature readings during April according to the 30-day weather outlook of the United States weather bureau. Precipitation is expected to be heavy in Ontario and portions of Quebec, with the rest of the country receiving moderate readings. This is not a specific forecast (CP Photo)

ANAF News

The annual Vimy Banquet will be held in the Legion Hall on Thursday April 8 on account of April 9 falling on Good Friday. Capt. Earl Brant, vice - chairman, Ontario Command, RCL, will be the guest speaker. The World War I Veterans of the district will be the honored guests of the evening.

The president and members wish to extend their heartiest congratulations to Janet and Mac who rather surprised all when they announced their marriage a week ago. May they dowell in harmony forever and a day.

All members are asked to co - operate with the stewards by showing their 1971 cards when asked to do so. 1970 cards are now invalid.

Next Saturday April 10 will be the final Mr. and Mrs. dart match before the finals for the trophy are played. Would the winners and runners up of the matches played from October to December please submit their names to Sports chairman Ken MacLeod as when the changeover of the executive was made, these records appear to have been mislaid. This will be appreciated. Tickets are now on sale from the sports committee or stewards for the grand prize to be drawn for at the open dart tournament, Saturday, May 1.

Being Good Friday there will be no social evening this week but Friday, April 16, Kelly Sawyer and the Hugo Diggins orchestra will supply the entertainment and dance music in the Tartan Lounge. Plenty of fun for everyone.

Chairman "Kelly" with some other comrades, visited the sick members in the Kingston hospitals with smokes etc. for them and reports all are doing well and that Cdr. H. Leeman has now returned to his home. In the Belleville General are Cdrs. A. Austin, 401; L. Vance, 724; A. Scmark, 518 and H. Dunphy, 613. Resting at home are Cdrs. A. R. Luck, M. Woods, A. Maybee and R. Woods. Again members are asked to report any sick members to the club.

A very large crowd was on hand for the Saturday afternoon darts with one single and four doubles being played. The results were as follows: singles winner, Bob Totten; runner-up, Ray Jesty, No. 1 double winners, Dick Thomson and Colin Birbeck; runners-up, Ray Reid and Dick Burns. No. 2 doubles winners, Hank Boyle and Gerry Genereaux; runners-up Ray Reid and Ira Wagar. No. 3 doubles winners, Ray Jesty and Ray Reid; runners-up, Ross Burt and Tom Coolen. No. 4 doubles winners, Tom Coolen and Colin Birbeck; runners-up, Jack Robinson and Rick Hay. Register now for May 1 open dart tournament.

Remarks on the fur lined trophy learnest: Pete ANAF Dukes are to be congratulated on their fine showing in the aforementioned having last only one game all season.

It is unfortunate that the Legion Lions made such a poor showing, finishing next to last and having won only one game. The Dukes very sincerely hope that they have different luck next year.

Ann Landers

Unemployed's Wife Inspires Confidence

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Unemployment in our area is at a ten-year high. I wonder how many people realize what happens to a family man who is out of work. I can tell you, Ann. It is the most ego-shattering experience in the world.

ANN LANDERS

I have a few suggestions for the wives of these men: Don't greet him at the door with, "Did you find anything today, dear?" If he did, you won't need to ask. He'll tell you. And for heaven's sake don't go around in a ratty kimono and torn hose. This is the time to bring out the white linen tablecloth and the good china. Put flowers on the table and paint the kitchen ceiling a bright yellow. Above all, keep your sense of humor. It can save your life — and his, too. Laughter in the house can have a magical effect. It says, "This, too, shall pass. Everything will be all right. I have faith in you, and in the future." — A WIFE WHO IS LIVING THROUGH IT.

DEAR WIFE: You sound like a wonderful gal. Your letter is sure to give a lift to women who share your plight. Confidence is contagious. Good luck and thanks for writing.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our son is 15, our daughter is 13. People are forever complimenting us on how well behaved they are. My husband and I often wonder if they have us mixed up with someone else. At home, our kids are constantly at each other's throats like a couple of jungle cats.

Last night it was worse than usual. They were having a terrific argument and hollering so loud you couldn't hear the rock music. My husband became so irritated he stalked out of the house and went to a movie. I took two tranquilizers and went to bed. At about 10:30 I heard a crash — like breaking glass. I rushed downstairs and there was the girl with blood on her blouse. She had pulled out a handful of her brother's hair. His head was bleeding and he was holding a hockey stick. He had hit her in the mouth.

This morning I was talking to my mother. I told her the kids were driving us nuts. She said all brothers and sisters have disagreements — that it's a normal part of growing up. Is this true? I need your opinion. — EXCEDRIN HEADACHE IN LOUISVILLE.

* * *

DEAR HEAD: Disagreements, yes, but your kids are trying to kill each other. The manner in which you and your husband isolate yourselves from the problem is extremely revealing. When things get out of hand, Pa stalks out of the house and hides in a movie. Ma takes a couple of tranquilizers and goes to bed. No evidence of any parental discipline or guidance whatsoever.

Your son and daughter need an adult figure of authority. I suggest counseling. And you and your husband could use some counseling, too. Find someone with four couches, Lady.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 26-year-old girl who needs to know where the limits of friendship end.

Two years ago Lotus and I decided to share an apartment. She has lost jobs off and on, but always managed to pay her share of the rent, groceries and utilities. Eight months ago Lotus was out of work for five weeks. She was afraid of cracking up and asked me to lend her $300 so she could visit her folks in Arkansas. I borrowed the money from the credit union. In ten days Lotus was back — no money, no job and no prospects.

I don't want to throw her out because she has no place to go. Yet I can't afford to keep her here if she doesn't pay her share. What should I do? — TROUBLE.

DEAR TROUBLE: Look for another roommate — someone you can move in with, or someone who will share a place with you elsewhere. Then give Lotus her notice. No need to feel guilty. You have proven your friendship and and laid it on the line — $300 worth.

Business Girls 'Care'

Robert Frederick, Mrs. Marie Huffman, Mrs. Sandy Raycroft and Robert Reid, the four panel members who participated in the NSA sponsored seminar agree that business girls do care as they relax together at the end of the discussion. The four represented management's point of view in the seminar in which business girls put forth their views on various topics.

'Business Girls Care' Is Theme Of Day-long NSA Seminar

W. K. Templeton, Director, Mead Johnson Canada Ltd. who was chosen "Boss of the Year", was the moderator at the seminar sponsored by the National Secretaries Association International, Bay of Quinte Chapter held at Centennial Secondary School on Saturday. Speaking from the management's point of view he commended the NSA for organizing its activities so efficiently and reminded the audience that one need not necessarily be a practising secretary to be a member of the group. "Anyone who possesses stenographic skills is eligible for membership", he said. He also touched on the value of such associations for the exchange of ideas among people of the same profession and pointed out that the opportunities offered by Loyalist College for secretaries to acquire higher qualifications will give the profession a shot in the arm.

"Business Girls Care" was the theme of the day - long seminar. The participants were divided into four discussion groups each representing one of the four letters of the word CARE. Each group discussed various topics of interest to the business girl, beginning with that particular letter. Group C discussed such topics as courtesy, communication, competence and confidence and how they apply to members of the profession.

At the end of the discussion period Miss Marjorie Cross gave a synopsis of Group C's conclusions with regard to these topics. She stated that the general feeling of her group regarding courtesy and communication was that these should be a two-way street between management and business personnel. Mrs. Sandy Raycroft of Barden Supplies Ltd., a member of the panel of four which represented management gave her comments on group C's opinions.

Group A discussed among other topics, appearance, ambition and accuracy.

Mrs. Joan Wilson presented the gist of group B's discussions when she stated hat the general opinion on appearance was that it was indicative of a person's attitude and way of life and therefore it was important for the business girl to strike a happy medium between being too casual in her appearance and being overly dressed to work.

In connection with this topic a skit was presented by Barbara Haynes and Barbara Miller with background music provided by Barbara Newman. It was a demonstration on how a basic dress can be adapted, for different occasions with the help of accessories. Mrs. Wilson also gave a synopsis of the other topics discussed by her group including ambition, attitude and accuracy. Mrs. Marie Huffman, commercial teacher at Centennial Secondary School was the panel member who replied to group A's remarks.

Among the subjects discussed by group R were respect, responsibility and recreation. Mrs. Phyllis Graham was the representative of this group who summarized the outcome of their discussions. In connection with the topic 'recreation' which is important to the business girl to improve her appearance and health, Cathy Ellis and Priscilla Steeles demonstrated a number of exercises that can be done at home.

Robert Reid, executive director of Stewart Warner Corporation of Canada, Ltd. was the panel member who commented on this group's report. He also stressed the value of the word care and felt that this was a well-chosen topic.

Education, enthusiasm and efficiency were some of the topics dealt with by group E. Mrs. Wyn Tomlinson gave the summary of this group's remarks and it was generally felt that a business girl should pay her own way if she wished to upgrade her education, although some firms are willing to assist their employees to take night courses.

Earlier, the seminar was opened by Mrs. G. Watkins, president of the Bay of Quinte chapter of the NSA. The four panelists were introduced by Mrs. Iris Downing, seminar chairman. A delicious luncheon was served under the convenership of Mrs. Verona Meades.

Parish Dinner Held at Christ Church

The Anglican Church Women of Christ Church sponsored a parish dinner on Sunday evening in the Parish Hall, under the convenership of Mrs. Ronald Godden. The women of the parish, ably assisted at the tables by the members of the Anglican Youth movement fed some 200 members of the parish.

This event was part of the program in completely discharge the Parish Hall debt, which originally stood at the sum of some $55,000 and is now within striking distance and it is hoped will be cleared up in time for the Bishop to burn the mortgage on Sunday June 6 at the annual service of confirmation.

Chairman for the evening event was Les Lemmon. Honored guest of the gathering was a former rector of Christ Church and now Bishop of the Diocese, the Right Reverend J. B. Creeggan. Both Bishop Creeggan and Canon Wright after addressing the gathering received a standing ovation from the gathering.

Bishop Creeggan spoke of his long tenure of office here in Belleville and the many things that he remembered, some of them of a humorous nature during his stay amongst the people of Christ Church. Canon Wright commended the wardens, the parish secretary the organist, the curate and the president of the ACW for their untiring efforts in the life of the parish. He mentioned that while the government thought they had coined the phrase "participatory democracy" this term had been in force for many, many years in the parish of Christ Church.

Entertainment was provided during the evening by the Spiritual Rock Group "the Philiads members of the AYM, and solos were sung by Mrs. R. B. Wright and Mr. James Churchill in a more traditional vein.

Lack of Good Teeth Threatens Health

By DORIS CLARK

Do you know that some people avoid replacing extracted teeth because they "never liked the idea of false teeth!"

Doctors tear their hair over such things. People may think they are having stomach trouble, but sometimes the real difficulty is the lack of back teeth for chewing up their food before they swallow it. Just isn't fair to the stomach — which thereupon rebels!

Other things happen too. People suffer with dizziness or pains in the ears. Dental infections can make colds worse; even bad cases of fatigue can be traced to poor teeth.

Good-fitting dentures can change a person's whole expression and appearance. Dental work costs a lot these days but what's the good of money if you hurt some place or you can't chew your food?

Dear Doris: I went with this guy for three years. I became pregnant and worked until I was in my eighth month as he had no job. I kept the baby as we were supposedly getting married. Then I called it off. We kept seeing each other and then I was two months pregnant again. That's when we broke up.

Now we are seeing each other again, only occasionally because he is engaged to another girl. He's afraid to break up with her because he doesn't want to hurt her, and he admits he's afraid of her father and what he will do. He does not love her that much.

I think I know what your answer will be but I would like to have another's opinion. — Twice Bitten

Dear Twice: If you go by me you'll put as much distance as you can between yourself and this indecisive unemployed Romeo.

* * *

I assume you at least had the intestinal fortitude to call off the marriage because of no visible means of support. Yet you are now carrying his second child. What is this fatal charm?

As for his excuses for not breaking the other engagement, I say fuddle duddle.

* * *

Dear Doris: We ordered books through an ad, paying a high price for new sets of books, but received old tiers magazines and kiddie stuff! With the junk, they stated: "Sale overwhelming so sent substitution", and we waited a long time. Finally this package came, from another country. We pay duty for garbage!

We now know how trouble starts in this world. Ours is hard earned money; someone is hungry for it and not willing to take proper responsibility. Will you help to keep the public from being cheated? — Honest Citizen

Dear Citizen: Glad to. There are several organizations set up to resist or penalize unfair business practices.

One is the Canadian Association of Consumers. Another is Council, 158 Bay Street, Toronto 116, Ontario. A third is your own Better Business Bureau.

But the first port of call ought to be the company perpetrating the outrage. Send the package back demanding a full refund including postage and duty and see what happens.

* * *

Is it better to put up with misunderstandings, or to begin talking things over? Let Doris help you see the light.

Resident Marks 99th Year

TWEED — Mrs. Levi Lajoie, who was born in Elzevir Township in 1872, will celebrate her 99th birthday on April 6. She lived in Tweed district for most of her life, but is at present a resident of the Hastings Manor, Belleville.

She has been in the Hospital Care unit since June of last year. She is in fairly good health, and her hearing and eyesight are also quite good.

The former Matilda Fortin, she married the late Levi Lajoie, in the year 1901. He passed away in 1955. She has six children living.

Homemade Sesame Seed Buns

By MARY MOORE

The office looked like a lunch counter this morning for we could not resist tasting, again and again, these Sesame Seed Buns.

I wanted to achieve a hard-seed bun that was nutritious too and I think I have. When I read the lists of synthetic ingredients on some of the processed foods on the grocery shelves I shuddered. I am afraid we are becoming resigned to consuming synthetically preserved foods and we have to make a big beave-ho to get back to realities.

So I bought some fresh whole wheat flour and used half white and half whole wheat flour to make my buns.

SESAME SEED BUNS (20)

1 tbsp. (1 envelope) granular yeast
½ cup lukewarm water
1 tsp. sugar
⅔ cup hot tap water
1½ tbsps. sugar (second amount)
2 tsps. salt
¼ cup shortening
1 tsp. lemon juice
1 egg
2 cups stirred but unsifted all-purpose flour
About 2¼ cups fresh unsifted whole wheat flour
1 small egg beaten (second)
1 tbsp. cold water
Sesame seeds

Into large bowl measure dry yeast, lukewarm water and 1 tsp. sugar. Let soak 10 min. In a small bowl measure the hot tap water, 1½ tbsps. sugar, salt and shortening and stir to soften shortening. Add it, lemon juice, first egg and white flour to risen yeast liquid and beat 50 times. Cover with towel and large plate and let rise 2 hrs. or until more than doubled. The dough is thin. Punch down dough and beat in 1 cup whole wheat flour. Reserve remainder for kneading. Sprinkle kneading board wit haboot ½ cup remaining whole wheat flour, turn this soft dough out on it, sprinkle top with another ½ cup and start folding and kneading it in. Your hands will get sticky so flour them with remaining ¼ cup whole wheat flour. Knead until most of the whole wheat flour is incorporated and dough is smooth throughout. Shape into even, 20" roll. Cut into 20 pieces. Shape into balls. Pinch bottom together between fingers and dip top in second egg beaten with water and then dip in sesame seeds. Place, seed side up, on buttered cookie sheets. Let rise 2 hrs. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. 15-20 min. NOTE: If you want a hard crust with toasted sesame seeds as I did bake them the full 20 min.

These will break down all of your diet resolves but are worth it.

Land Exchange Proposed

No Deal on Opening Suez to Shipping Israel Tells Egypt

JERUSALEM (CP) — Israeli Premier Golda Meir has rejected Egypt's offer to reopen the Suez canal in exchange for an Israeli withdrawal from the banks of the waterway. She also reiterated her government's determination to retain other areas.

Mrs. Meir called the Egyptian offer a "lever to obtain total Israeli withdrawal from Sinai and from Gaza," and a move to "organize pressure on Israel" to obtain a Soviet-Egyptian political settlement.

Addressing a national conference of her Labor party Sunday night, Mrs. Meir avoided stating specific terms for reopening the waterway but repeated her offer Feb. 9 to hold talks with the Egyptians on arrangements to reopen the canal.

Sources close to the Israeli cabinet said Jerusalem might once again put forward Defence Minister Moshe Dayans proposal for both Israeli and Egyptian forces to pull back from the canal in conjunction with its reopening.

Sadats proposal called for only the Israelis to withdraw, with Egyptian troops replacing them on the east bank of the canal.

Mrs. Meir told her party Israel "would willingly see the canal open to shipping of all nations, including Israel, and the restoration of civilian life in the area. We are prepared to discuss the arrangement required to do this.

She rejected all proposals for international guarantees and an international force to guard the borders, instead of defensive, negotiated borders.

She noted that such guarantees and patrolling of borders had not been tried elsewhere and said "we shall not be the first on whose backs such a new theory will be tried and tested.

Ideas had been put forward that the Soviet Union should play a part in such an international force, she said, "The Soviet Union is an active ally of Egypt, which maintains a state of war against us. Will the presence of a Soviet army on our borders add to our security?

The proposal to station any kind of international force between Israel and her neighbors "constitutes an admission that the borders proposed to us are neither secure borders nor borders of peace, she said.

She repeated Israel's demands for a formal peace treaty guaranteeing secure borders prior to any troop withdrawal. She noted that her government "is having a serious argument with the United States" over Israel's territorial demands and Washingtons insistence that international guarantees can safeguard Israel better than new borders.

To achieve security, she said, Israel must control the Gaza Strip, the Golan Heights taken from Syria and Sharm el Sheikh, at the tip of the Sinai peninsula.

She also said Israel will retain Arab Jerusalem, and she pledged that no Arab army would ever again cross the Jordan river, indicating that Israel will only give the West Bank territory taken from Jordan if it is demilitarized.

Tanker Veto 'Likely'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Liberal MP David Anderson said Sunday he believes supertankers may not be allowed to carry oil from Alaska to refineries on the United States west coast.

The member for Esquimalt-Saanich told a public hearing at the University of British Columbia, sponsored by anti-pollution groups, "that when people and governments in Canada and the U.S. calculate the irredeemible minimum of ecological damage that will be done, they may well decide against the idea."

He also said he believes oil companies are trying to pressure governments into permitting an 800-mile pipeline from Alaska's north slope to Valdez, Alaska, to connect with tankers.

"It is immoral for a company to establish refineries, put $200 million worth of pipe on the ground and encourage people to think there are lots of jobs in Alaska, when governments have to look into the ecological effects. . . .

"To put this pressure on government officials is blackmail."

FREDERICTON (CP) — NDP leader Tommy Douglas says policies of the Trudeau government have left Canada in "an unholy mess."

Mr. Douglas told a dinner in his honor, sponsored by the New Brunswick New Democratic Party Association, that the Liberal administration plunged the country into a "nightmare of unemployment by deliberately combatting inflation at the expense of the ordinary workers.

He said Saturday a recent survey indicated there was little or no sign of employment for 76 per cent of the student body at the University of Toronto, and called it "a tragedy that unemployment was being accepted as normal.

Biafra Scandal Arrests Reported

LONDON (CP) — The Sunday Telegraph says two men have been arrested by the RCMP in Yellowknife as the result of an investigation into "an international investment and fund scandal" involving relief supplies for Biafra during the Nigerian civil war that ended early last year.

The newspaper says supplies were given to a Christian organization for disaster relief based in the United States and operating in 20 countries.

It adds an American bank in Switzerland has been defrauded of $350,000 as a loan for the warehousing of the goods in Europe.

The Sunday Telegraph states: "The loan was backed by certificates of an international investment fund which were found to be valueless. The fund's founder and another man have been arrested by the RCMP in Yellowknife, N.W.T.

"Correspondence seized by an international detective team, which includes Scotland Yard, the Candian mounties and Swiss police, shows that people claiming to represent the charity wanted to swap food and drugs for motor vehicles."

The paper says that part of the consignment, which could not be delivered to secessionist B'afra because of a federal blockade, was offered to the federal Nigerian army after the war for $1,125,000.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

Hit-and-Run Forces Harass West Pakistani

NEW DELHI (CP) — Growing resistance forces in rebellious East Pakistan harassed West Pakistani army forces today, and the army faced mounting supply problems.

All-India radio said the secessionist forces of Sheik Mujibur Rahman had captured an important East Pakistani town and were putting heavy pressure on West Pakistani troops in two others.

The radio also said there was industrial unrest in several West Pakistan towns.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of India was under strong pressure to provide material aid to East Pakistan. But she rejected demands to supply arms. Her Congress party gave the freedom movement its complete moral backing.

Reporters returning from wide areas of the neighboring Indian province of West Bengal said roads were badly cut and Pakistani army patrols were denied freedom to move at will. Resistance fighters, though poorly armed, harassed small units of the West Pakistani troops, and only the larger garrisons were free from attack.

Using hit-and-run tactics, the independence forces were reported maintaining pressure on West Pakistani troops while the rebels at the same time are training and organizing.

Informants said many young Indian Bengalis from Calcutta, experienced in political terrorism, have crossed the border to instruct the East Pakistan Bengalis in making homemade bombs.

Troopers of the East Pakistan Rifles, a former border security force, are the only regular soldiers fighting for the independence of Bangla Desh, the so-called Bengali nation. But many able-bodied men have left home to join military units, starting from scratch to learn fighting techniques.

Air raids by Pakistani jets on several areas were described by some reporters. One target of air attacks was the farming town of Chuadanga, described as the Bangla Desh provisional capital.

West Pakistani soldiers destroyed a police barracks in Kushtia, near Chuadanga, killing 500 persons, secessionist sources claimed.

The United News of India said in a dispatch from the border town of Kirshnagar that Pakistani jets violated Indian airspace while bombing resistance forces just before dawn Sunday. There was no confirmation from the Indian air force.

The general situation as reported by West Pakistan authorities depicted a more orderly East Pakistan.

Martial law officials in East Pakistan said all measures have been taken to restore order. The government continued to claim that its forces controlled Comilla and Jessore near the Indian border.

All-India radio, quoting reports from across the border, said rebel soldiers now controlled the town of Rangpur, 160 miles north of Dacca, and that West Pakistani forces were evacuating the area.

Heavy fighting was said to be under way for control of Sylhet, 120 miles northeast of Dacca, where the Sheik Mujib's followers were reported to have cut West Pakistani supply lines.

Government troops were also under heavy pressure in Rajshahi, 120 miles northwest of Dacca and just across the Ganges River from India, the radio said.

In Comilla, 50 miles south east of Dacca, 70 Pakistani parliamentarians were said to have been killed in a battle with rebel forces.

The only West Pakistani success reported by All-India radio was the capture of a key road junction near Jessore, 75 miles southwest of Dacca.

However, four European missionaries who sailed to Calcutta during the weekend reported conditions were calm in Dinajpur district in the extreme northwest corner of the province.

The official Pakistan radio, meanwhile, said 12 political leaders in the breakaway East had assured the martial law administrator, Lt.-Gen. Tikka Khan of their co-operation in restoring normal conditions.

Addressing 700 members of the Congress party Sunday, Mrs. Gandhi said: "India has no desire to interfere in the internal affairs of another country. But it cannot remain silent over the oppression and wanton killing across the border."

Fisherman See Sharks Eat Two

PUERTO MAYA, Venezuela (Reuter) — An old man and his grandson were eaten by sharks before the eyes of horrified fishermen who had gone to their rescue near this little port 35 miles west of Caracas.

Tarcisio Diaz Mayora, 66, and his 14-year-old grandson Alberto had been afloat for 18 hours in a damaged canoe when searching fishermen spotted them.

But as the fishermen threw two ropes to them the canoe overturned and a school of sharks dashed in to tear the old man anw his grandson to pieces.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, MONDAY, APRIL 5, 1971

Apollo Barbell Club's Price Morris strains with a 411¼-pound overhead burden as official Bill Gryfe gives him the signal to lower the bar. The successful clean-and-jerk by the Belleville heavyweight established a record as the most ever hoisted by a Canadian. Morris won the 242-pound class title at Saturday's Ontario Senior Weightlifting Championships at Moira Secondary School.

Local Novices Salvage Tourney Satisfactions

By ERIC EMERSON

The home town entries were short on trophies, but long on satisfaction at the finish of the second annual Belleville Novice Hockey Tournament Sunday.

Favored Peterborough blanked Towers Food City Novices 6-0 to win the "A" championship, while the Kingston Young Nationals copped the "B" title with a 10-0 pasting of the Toronto Royal York Rangers.

Belleville fans did have something to cheer about in the opening round, however as Towers upset the Kingston Young Nationals "A" team, 3-2, while Mulroney's Sunoco Novice "B"s staged a 5-3 comeback win over Kingston Lakeshore.

The win by Towers over the Young Nationals was the first in three meetings against the Kingston club this season. Belleville coach Dave Coates was satisfied with his team's showing despite the 6-0 loss to Peterborough in the championship tilt.

"Peterborough has a fine hockey team," he acknowledged. "I thought that it would be a pretty even bet when we played Kingston, but we would have needed all the breaks to beat Peterborough."

The "A" champions dominated play in the title bout with Towers combining a potent scoring attack with a solid defensive effort.

Winger David Evans paced Peterborough with three goals with the others going to Steve Larmer, Doug Lake and Brian Starke. Defenseman Gary Fredericks turned in the top performance for Belleville.

"Our game against Belleville was the toughest, but we really weren't pushed by anyone," noted winning coach Jack Guerin, whose team had registered 10-0 wins over Kingston Young Nationals "B"s and Whitby in their first two games.

In the "B" championship, the Kingston Young Nationals "A" team finally broke loose to record a 10-0 win over Toronto Royal York Rangers, after losing 3-2 to Towers and slipping past Kingston Lakeshore 3-1.

A pair of third period goals carried Towers to their 3-2 win over the Young Nationals.

Morris Shuns 'Strongest Man' Title

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Price Morris doesn't like the title "strongest man in Canada".

"You can't mix hockey players, boxers, and everyone in with weightlifters like that," the Apollo Barbell Club strongman says.

But until Bobby Orr lifts 411¼ pounds, Price Morris will have to accept that title, willing or not.

Competing in the Ontario Senior Weightlifting Championships at Moira Secondary School Saturday evening, Morris hoisted a clean and jerk attempt of 410 pounds, more than any Canadian in history. A regulation weighing showed the bar and its contents actually tipping the scales at an extra pound and one quarter, further extending the record.

The previous 242 - pound class standard was the 402½ lifted by Morris in winning the bronze medal at July's Commonwealth Games in Edinburgh. Canadian champion Russ Prior, who matched Morris' clean-and-jerk at Edinburgh, played an unwitting role in helping the Frankford heavyweight set a new one Saturday.

Prior had not entered Saturday's Belleville meet, but showed up asking for an opportunity to do so. Meet officials huddled, and decided to let the Commonwealth champion compete on an unofficial basis as a "guest" lifter.

Morris is glad he did. As things stood, he was the only 242 - pounder entered, and he conceded afterwards: "I probably did better than I would have lifting without any competition."

Morris' 1,040 pound total, including a 340 - pound press, 290 - pound snatch, and the record clean-and-jerk, listed as 410 pounds in compilations of the total, was his personal best. His previous high was the 1,035 - pound effort that brought him the bronze medal at Edinburgh.

It was almost 1,050 pounds, but two of three officials ruled against a 360 - pound third - attempt press that would have set another Canadian record.

"I'm going after three Canadian records at Woodstock," Morris said, referring to the Canadian Senior championships May 22, the next time he will meet the 20-year-old Prior in head-to-head competition. Prior totalled 1,010 Saturday.

Morris is aiming at Prior's 1,080 - pound record total as well as the press and clean-and-jerk records. "I'd like to be the first Canadian to lift 200 kilos — that's 440 pounds," he says.

His record - setting achievement earned Morris the Jim Lilly Memorial Award as "Most honorable competitor" in Saturday's Ontario Seniors contest.

It also overshadowed some exceptional lifting in three other weight classes, despite the fact only 11 of 25 provincial qualifiers turned up.

Sarnia's Bob Santavy, a cousin of Morris, won a tight three - way battle for top middle - heavyweight (198 pound) honors with a 930 - pound total, largely thanks to a 320 - pound press.

Earl Jack, of the Hamilton Weightlifting Club, had a relatively easy time in tipping three other light - heavyweight (181 pound) entrants. Jack went 300-260-335 for an 885 total, well ahead of runner-up Caesar Dias of Toronto, who totalled 805½.

Despite suffering an off - night, Belleville's Bob Walt backed into third place with a 760 total after Murray Vere failed to get a clean-and-jerk airborne. The Coniston competitor had been second to Jack after the press and snatch portion of the competition.

Hamilton competitor Craig Bowman won the provincial middleweight (165-pound) title Saturday afternoon, after Belleville's Paul Barrett gave him a chase right up to his final lift. Bowman trailed 235-255 after the presses, and assumed a five-pound after out-snatching Barrett 270-245. A 325-pound clean-and-jerk gave Bowman a winning 830 total. Barrett got 300 on his first attempt, but failed on two further attempts at 325.

Well-back in third place was Ottawa's Cliff Deavy, at 665 pounds.

Quinte Settles for Second-best

Quinte Secondary School's gymnastics team achieved the pinnacle of success at the COSSA championships Saturday — they finished second.

Competing against the all-Ontario champions from Adam Scott Collegiate in Peterborough who boast practically the same team as last year, second place is about the highest that a Bay of Quinte team could hope to hit.

One hopeful note for Quinte was that the team picked up 30 points on the defending OFSAA champions who totalled 153.2 team points in this year's competition to 134.8 for the Belleville school.

A big reason for the improvement was grade 12 student Tom Dellio a star performer with Adam Scott last season, who moved to the Belleville district this year and turned in a standout performance for Quinte.

Dellio tied with Scott's Doug Cox for first place on the parallel bars with a score of 9.2 out of 10 possible points. He added a second-place finish on the rings and placed third in the horizontal bar competition en route for the individual all-around OFSAA championships.

The Quinte standout is undecided at the moment about returning for another year of competition. "I'd like to continue in gymnastics, but it seems like you just can't get enough opportunity to practice. I didn't start competing until I was in grade 10 so I missed a year there and while we started practices in September at Adam Scott, we don't begin until later here," he remarked.

Another Quinte competitor who came up with a strong showing was Pat Donovan, whose 8.8 rating on floor exercise tied him with all-around champion Eldon Elgie for first place.

Elgie collected two firsts, a second and two third place finishes to win the all-around title with 51.4 points seven better than Adam Scott teammate Doug Cox.

The Bay of Quinte girls gymnastics meet scheduled for Saturday at Centennial Secondary School had to be postponed when the judges from Toronto were unable to make the trip to Belleville.

The meet will be re-scheduled for later this week.

Tom De Ilio of Quinte Secondary School displays form that brought him a second place finish on the rings at the COSSA boys' gymnastics meet Saturday. Quinte, which served as the site of the seven-team competition finished second to last year's all-Ontario champions from Adam Scott in the team standings.

A Helping Hand

Danny Fredericks of Towers Food City Novice "A's" helps Peterborough captain Steve Peters carry off the Belleville Novice Tournament "A" championship trophy. The visitors blanked Towers 6-0 in the championship game of the eight-team tourney, which completed hockey action at the Belleville Memorial Arena for this season.

Soviets Come Back on Swedes to Win Ninth Straight Title

GENEVA (CP) — The Soviet Union won its ninth straight world hockey title Saturday, but it wasn't decided until the last period of the 1971 championships.

Czechoslovakia, which wound up with the silver medal, had a chance to win the gold until Saturday's decisive Russia-Sweden contest in which the Soviets came from behind in the third period to win 5-4.

Sweden won the bronze medal and Finland was fourth.

"This is dull, very dull," Boris Malorov, captain of five earlier Soviet championship teams, had said in an interview last week.

But this interview came before the Czechs started a remarkable comeback which brought the tournament to its down-to-the-wire finish Saturday.

After a disastrous start in which they lost their first two games, the Czechs came on strong. They tied the mighty Soviets 3-3 in their first encounter and then upset them 5-2 in their second meeting of the double round-robin tournament, which opened March 20 in Bern, Switzerland.

The Czechs won their last game by beating Finland 4-2 Saturday, which meant the Russians had to beat the Swedes in the tournament's final game to retain their title.

The Soviets took a 2-0 lead in the first period but Sweden came back with one goal before the period ended and added two more in the second to carry a 3-2 lead into the final 20 minutes.

The Soviets wound up after the 10-game tournament with eight victories, a loss and a tie, for a total of 17 points, compared to 15 for the Czechs, with two losses, and a tie, and 11 for the Swedes, with two losses each to the Soviets and the Czechs and a 1-1 tie with fourth-place Finland.

The Finns had a 4-5 win-loss record and tied a game with Sweden, to stay in the top four.

The U.S. was relegated to Group B and West Germany was held on by a one-goal aggregate advantage over the U.S. to their last-place berth in Group A. Both had four points.

Total attendance in the 30 games, half of them here and half in Bern, was 190,250. The interest was not much less than that in the 1969 tournament, in which Canada was entered, which drew 196,769.

Czechoslovakia was declared European champion for 1971 on the basis of results which excluded games involving the U.S.

Although the Soviet Union had a better goal average than Czechoslovakia, the Czechs took the European title because in their two games with the Russians they tied one and won one.

The Fair Play Cup, awarded on a combination of goals scored and penalties awarded, went to the Soviet Union.

In this table, the Russians had 227 points for 53 penalty minutes, the Czechs 196 for 48 penalty minutes, and the Swedes third with 177 points for 58 penalties minutes.

GALT (CP) — Galt Hornets erupted for three goals in a little less than six minutes in the third period to defeat Orillia Terriers 5-4 Sunday night and win the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A championship.

With Galt trailing 3-2, Dave Cressman ignited the Hornets with a goal at 9:42 of the third period. Howie Dietrich provided a 4-3 lead three minutes later and Ron Hergott scored on a power play at 15:31.

Terriers gained the lead for the first time late in the second period when Ray Dupont capitalized on a power play to score from the point at 16:33.

The Hornets had one-goal leads twice in the first period, but the Terriers bounced back on each occasion. Bruce Reier opened the scoring early but Orillia drew even 12 minutes later when Grant Moore tipped Clare Alexander's pass past goalie Boat Hurley from right in front.

The Hornets cashed in on a power play at 16:28 of the opening period for a 2-1 lead when Vance Millar tipped Mike Doersam's point shot past Gerry McNamara as the two collided in front of the net.

That lead lasted less than two minutes before the Terriers, again on a power play, got even at 2:2. Mike Draper was the marksman on a 30-footer.

The Terriers were two men short when Hergott, the OHA Senior scoring champion, scored the winner, a 33-footer.

McNamara made 33 saves for the Terriers while Hurley turned back 22 shots for Galt before a crowd of 3,182.

Petes Being Beaten at Own Game

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Marlboros are beating Peterborough Petes at their own game in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A playoffs—defence.

Sunday afternoon the Marlboro defence bottled up the frustrated Petes and Toronto skated to a 6-1 win to move to within a tie of an upset win in their quarter-final series.

Toronto now holds the best-of-seven series three games to one, with one game tied. A win for a tie in any of the next three games would give the Marlboros the series.

Montreal Junior Canadiens and St. Catharines Black Hawks opened up their series leads and Ottawa 67s tied their series in other weekend action.

Bunny Larocque stopped 27 shots on his way to a 4-0 shutout win over Hamilton Red Wings at Ottawa. The teams now have one win each, with a third game tied.

During the regular schedule, the Marlboros were the highest-scoring team in the league, but one of the circuit's worst defensive records left them in fifth place.

They gave up more than two goals a game more than the Petes, who had the league's best defensive record and finished first.

In their quarter-final series, the Marlboros have managed a modest 18 goals in four games, but their defence has sorted itself out and allowed just eight goals, putting Toronto in the driver's seat.

Sunday, a crowd of 10,152 watched the Marlboros outshoot Peterborough 48-29 in a game that saw the Petes invade the stands to get at a spectator police said had been heckling them.

Esposito True to Form As Schedule Winds Up

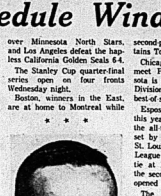
By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Phil Esposito climaxed a season-long assault on National Hockey League scoring records during the weekend while St. Louis Blues and Pittsburgh Penguins ended the season with a stunning series of events in two games that meant little to either team.

Esposito, Boston Bruins centre, scored five goals in two weekend games, including three in a 7-2 romp over Montreal Canadiens Sunday, to put the finishing touches on two of several single-season marks he broke along the way.

He counted 76 goals in the 78-game schedule, bettering the previous high of 58 set by Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks in 1968-69, and his 152 points shattered his own mark of 126, established two years ago.

And Bobby Orr, the Bruins' 23-year-old defensive ace who became the first NHLer ever to register 100 assists in one season in Boston's 8-3 drubbing of Toronto Maple Leafs Saturday, added two more Sunday to finish with 139 points, a record for defencemen, as were his 37 goals.



The Blues and Penguins closed out the 1970-71 schedule on a sour note with a home-and-home series in which the scores seemed secondary to once escapades that marred both games—1-1 at Pittsburgh Sunday and 4-3 for the Blues at St. Louis Saturday.

In other Sunday games, New York Rangers blanked Detroit Red Wings 6-0 on Ed Giacomin's league-leading eighth shutout of the year, Toronto Maple Leafs edged Chicago Black Hawks 3-2, Los Angeles Kings defeated Vancouver Canucks 4-2 and Buffalo Sabres played to a 3-3 tie with Philadelphia Flyers.

The other Saturday game saw Montreal drub New York 7-2, Chicago down Detroit 4-1, Philadelphia take third place in the West Division with a 3-2 win over Minnesota North Stars, and Los Angeles defeat the hapless California Golden Seals 6-4.

The Stanley Cup quarter-final series open on four fronts Wednesday night.

Boston, winners in the East, are at home to Montreal while

second-place New York entertains Toronto.

Chicago, the West champions, meet Philadelphia and Minnesota is at St. Louis in the West Division playoffs. All series are best-of seven affairs.

Esposito, whose goal output this year ended just one shy of the all-time professional record set by Alain Caron, then with St. Louis of the old Central Pro League in 1963-64, snapped a 1-1 tie at Boston midway through the second period as the Bruins opened a 4-1 lead.

The Canadiens, who some hockey experts feel will be Boston's biggest threat in their quest for a second straight Stanley Cup, appeared to just go through the motions after the Bruins took command of play after Esposito's first goal.

Giacomin turned aside 33 Detroit shots in nailing down New York's first Vezina Trophy since 1940, the last time the Rangers won the Stanley Cup. The cushion between New York and Chicago had dwindled to four goals after Montreal shelled Ranger rookie Gilles Villemure with seven goals Saturday.

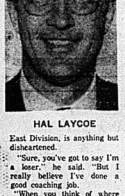
Captain Bob Nevin and Bruce MacGregor scored two each for the New Yorkers, who, despite finishing second to Boston in the East, enjoyed their best season with a record home attendance of over 272,000.

Goals by Leafs' Guy Trottier and Jim Dorey in the second period offset a 2-1 lead Chicago took in the first period.



The 4-3 win for Los Angeles over Vancouver was the same result as in the first game of the season between the two teams. The Canucks, who finished sixth in the East ahead of Detroit, were the only team other than Chicago who didn't suffer a shutout during the season.

Canucks Made Big Strides

VANCOUVER (CP) — Losing hockey games was a rarity for coach Hal Laycoe, until he stepped up a notch this season to handle Vancouver Canucks in the expanded National Hockey League.

But Laycoe, whose Canucks finished sixth three wins and a tie in their final five games to nose out Detroit Red Wings for sixth place in the tough

HAL LAYCOE

East Division, is anything but disheartened.

"Sure, you've got to say I'm a loser," he said. "But I really believe I've done a good coaching job.

"When you think of where we started, and what we hoped to accomplish, I think we've made tremendous strides."

Where the Canucks started was nowhere, an NHL prerequisite for expansion clubs. Until Christmas, when team captain Orland Kurtenbach was sidelined with a knee injury, they were in fourth place.

Despite their record of 21 wins, 46 losses and eight ties, the Canucks had half a dozen 20 goal men, and outscored seven of the NHL's 14 clubs.

At the turnstiles, they were near the top, averaging 15,217 fans to 39 home games.

If Laycoe has one major regret, it's that the Canucks didn't get a veteran defenceman in last year's draft —a leader-type such as Kurtenbach who could also play the point on power plays. As it was, the Canuck power play backfired 12 times this season.

Laycoe, a former NHL defenceman, established an enviable record as a coach in the Western Hockey League and has strong intentions of moulding an NHL contender in Vancouver.

The man who coached his WHL teams to eight league championships in 10 seasons, says a coach must work hard for success, adding candidly of his own efforts: "No coach in hockey works harder."

Laycoe concedes now that his final season (1969-70) with Vancouver Canucks in the WHL might have hurt him in his first season with Vancouver Canucks in the NHL.

"Don't forget, we were totally involved, totally wrapped up in winning a Western Hockey League title here last season," he recalled. "A title, when you think of it, that probably did us more harm than good because it limited us, on our scouting for this year."

But Laycoe did manage to snare more than a few big, aggressive young players—such as 25-year-old Rosaire Paiement who backed down to no one and scored 31 goals, hard-hitting defenceman Gary Doak and rookie defenceman Dale Tallon.

Viet Nam Veteran Designated to Throw Out First Ball

WASHINGTON (AP) — Young Vida Blue faces veteran Dick Bosman today as Oakland Athletics meet Washington Senators in the traditional presidential opener inaugurating another baseball season.

A sellout crowd of 45,000 was expected in Robert F. Kennedy Stadium, but President Nixon and Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew will be absent.

Army M. Sgt. Daniel L. Pitzer, a prisoner of the Viet Cong for four years before returning to the United States in 1967, was selected by the White House to toss out the ceremonial first ball of the game. With him will be his son, 14-year-old Donald, and the sons and daughters of five prisoners of war.

Pirates Best Club In Spring Training

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pittsburgh Pirates beat Montreal Expos 2-1 in 11 innings to wrap up the National League's spring training title and Chicago White Sox won the American League's despite a 5-4 loss to Chicago Cubs Sunday.

The Pirates' victory gave them an 18-7 mark to beat out the runner-up Cubs, who finished 17-10. The White Sox wound up 18-10, ahead of Milwaukee Brewers' 16-9.

Kansas City Royals and Boston Red Sox used big innings to win their exhibition wrapups. The Royals lashed 18 hits to pound St. Louis Cardinals 13-5. The Red Sox sent 10 men to the plate and scored seven runs in the seventh in a 14-8 romp over New York Yankees.

Willie Davis unloaded two doubles and a single as Los Angeles Dodgers smacked the California Angels 7-3.

Tom Tischinski capped a five-run ninth inning for Minnesota with a run-scoring single that carried the Twins past Houston Astros 5-4. Ken Henderson knocked in four runs with two hits, leading San Francisco Giants to a 9-4 rout of the visiting Tokyo Orions.

Wichita of the American Association raked starter Alan Foster for three runs and went on to whip Cleveland Indians 5-4. Tony Perez slammed a two-run double as Cincinnati Reds whacked Detroit Tigers 5-2.

Mike Cuellar pitched six scoreless innings and Don Buford and Chico Salmon hit triples in a three-run ninth, leading Baltimore Orioles to a 5-1 victory over New York Mets.

Rookie pitcher Mike McQueen shackled Washington on one hit and struck out nine in the first six innings as Atlanta Braves beat the Senators 2-0.

Ollie Brown's run-scoring single in the first and an RBI triple by Ivan Murrell in the ninth carried San Diego Padres past Milwaukee Brewers 3-1.

Expos Option Mc Ginn

BRADENTON, Fla. (CP) — Montreal Expos said Sunday they have trimmed their roster to the 25-man limit in preparation for their National League season opener in New York Tuesday against the Mets.

The Expos optioned pitcher Dan McGinn to Winnipeg Whips, their Class AAA farm club, and placed outfielder Jim Gosger the 15-day supplemental disabled list.

McGinn, who had a 7-10 won-lost record with the Expos each of the last two seasons, gave up 11 earned runs in 12 innings against major league teams during spring training games this year.

Gosger was placed on the disabled list Saturday. He sprained his right wrist March 22 and has not been able to swing a bat properly since.

The Expos said outfielder Adolpho Phillips will remain in West Palm Beach, Fla., site of the club's training camp, "pending assignment to another club or within the organization."

Phillips had a .338 batting average in 92 games last season.

Buddy Not Too Frail

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Buddy Allin is a frail-looking 130-pounder, sandy-haired and boyish appearing, looking for all the world like the drug-store delivery boy.

But the ex-artillery officer, decorated four times in 10 months of Vietnam combat duty, again proved his mettle Sunday when he banged in a birdie putt on the first hole of a sudden-death playoff and won the $38,000 first prize in the Greater Greensboro open golf tournament.

"I really didn't feel that nervous," the 26-year-old tour rookie said after besting 38-year-old veteran Rod Funseth and four-year tour regular Dave Eichelberger in the playoff.

Allin, who had won only $5,954 prior to his victory, had a final-round 69, two under par on the 7,024-yard Sedgefield Country Club course, and finished with a 278.

Funseth, the third-round leader, had a 71 and Eichelberger had a 69. They each got $17,575.

Peter Brown was alone in third with a 69 for 278. Veterans Terry Dill, 68, and Miller Barber, 72, followed at 277—U.S. Open king Tony Jacklin of England had a 67 and was one of three at 278.

Lee Trevino had a final 69 for 279. South African Gary Player, winner of the last two tour events, was far back with a 71 for 285.

Wilf Homeniuk of Winnipeg, the sole survivor of three Canadians who started the tournament, finished in a four-way tie for 16th at 280. Homeniuk, who fired a 69 Sunday, had earlier rounds 73-68-70 and earned $3,135 for his efforts.

Bullets Extended to Limit

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Baltimore Bullets had to go the limit before subduing Philadelphia 76ers in their National Basketball Association East semi-final, and coach Gene Shue says they're too emotionally drained to open their division final against the well-rested New York Knicks Tuesday night.

The Bullets, 128-120 victors over Philadelphia in the deciding seventh game of their series Sunday after a 98-94 victory Saturday, were ordered by NBA commissioner Walter Kennedy to open the division playoffs Tuesday as scheduled.

Earlier, the Bullets said they had reached agreement with the defending NBA champion Knicks to start the series Friday. But Kennedy stepped in and moved up the opener.

In other NBA playoff action Sunday, Milwaukee Bucks trimmed San Francisco Warriors 136-86 to take their West semi-final 4-1, and Chicago Bulls prolonged the other West series to a seventh game by dropping Los Angeles Lakers 113-99.

A 43-point explosion in the second quarter propelled the Bullets past the 76ers.

Jon McGlocklin led the Bucks with 28 points, five more than Lew Alcindor. High for San Francisco was Fritz Williams with 12.

Chicago surged for 28 points in the third period behind the shooting of Bob Love and Bob Weiss to shatter the Lakers.

The seventh and final game will be played at Los Angeles Tuesday night. The winner will meet Milwaukee in the final playoffs of the Western Conference.

The Lakers, leading by as many as 11 points, were ahead 57-53 at halftime.

The Bulls, taking charge of the boards and running the Lakers into weariness, took an 80-72 lead after three quarters.

The balanced Bulls' attack was paced by Bob Weiss with 25, Jerry Sloan with 22 and Love with 21.

U.S. Cities Face Crisis

NEW YORK (AP) — United States cities are at something of a crossroads.

On the one hand, there is before Congress a plan many mayors have yearned for—a proposal to share federal revenues with the cities without restrictions on how the money is spent.

On the other, many cities are currently so strapped for cash that they are firing teachers, cutting services, pushing the property tax to or maybe beyond the breaking point.

The cities are trying to save pennies here and there, while also remodelling their archaic government structures.

They're trying to find ways to dip into the pockets of suburbanites who, the cities claim, are not paying a fair share of the costs of the cities that provide them with jobs.

And the cities are handing to neighborhoods the control of some municipal functions so people can believe again that government will listen to them.

Mayors, scholars and urban experts across the U.S. say the cities could win if:

—They had revenues which grew when the economy grows, which the property tax does not do.

—They had the tools to evaluate what they are doing and the power to make the changes that might slow the rise in their costs and produce programs that work.

—They could wipe out the fractured political structure around American metropolitan areas and replace it with government on two levels: One broad enough to deal with problems that run across mere city boundaries; another small enough to hear and respond to the complaints of one resident.

President Nixon has proposed that the federal government return $5.000 million of its revenues to states and cities to spend as thye wish.

Some cities have tried to save in the most painful way—with cuts.

Mayor Carl Stokes of Cleveland has laid off 15 per cent of the city's employees and closed the police academy.

But the mayors know, as Kevin White of Boston said, that this is "like trimming the cuticles of a terminal cancer patient."

CANADIAN TIRE

NYLON

BUILT FOR SPEEDS YOU'LL NEVER NEED

100% of all racing-cars use Nylon — Life and laurels depend on it

Speed and brutal heat-generating torque are the devastating travelling partners of the racing car. Comparatively, your own car takes a similar beating when — with loaded trunk and 5 or 6 passengers — you belt along at 70, 80 and 85 m.p.h. hour after hour. That's why Nylon — the strongest tire cord made — is the safest bet for both.

Nothing but 100% Nylon is used on the world's aircraft too. For only Nylon can absorb the impact of an aircraft as it hits the runway. Not unlike the shiver of your car as one of its tires hits a pothole.

The same nylon filament that protects race-car driver, aircraft pilot and passengers — goes into the building of our Safety '99' Nylon Tire. Even at double the price you won't exactly duplicate it elsewhere. It's built for speed you'll never need.

But remember, the tread of an all-nylon tire wears faster than the same tread on polyester. Better still — a Nylon with two Glass Belts wears up to twice as long. Note the low price in the chart. You can have 2 Glass Belted Nylons for about the price you'd expect to pay for 1. Your driving habits determine your choice. Check with the experts at Canadian Tire!

Double-ply, double-strength Dupont Nylon makes the Whippet an excellent high speed tire with luxurious 'soft' ride — though that soft ride hastens tread-wear. For big mileage: See Glass Belts above.

5-YEAR ROAD-HAZARD INSURED — Treadwear Rating 80, 20-Month, 20% Pro-rated 'Wear-Out' Discount Allowance.

TURNPIKE STANDARD construction is similar to that employed for original equipment on new cars during the years when these sizes were most popular. However, this stronger Dupont Nylon instead of rayon cord makes today's Turnpike Standard superior. (Owner assumes guarantee risk, saves insurance cost.)

Clarke's Four Goals Send Leeds Surging Into Final Lap

LONDON (CP) — England international Allan Clarke sent Leeds United surging into the final lap of the English League soccer championship when he scored all four goals in a crushing 4-0 triumph over Burnley on Saturday.

Leeds emerged from a recent minor slump to hammer lowly Burnley as Clarke scored twice in each half.

Leeds now has 56 points from 35 games in the First Division. Its nearest challenger, Arsenal, kept up the pressure by beating London rival Chelsea 2-0.

Arsenal, chasing the English Football Association Cup and League double, remained six points behind Leeds with three games in hand after 19-year-old Ray Kennedy scored in the 47th and 70th minutes.

Arsenal's league triumph at Highbury was its first over Chelsea in eight years.

Chelsea's defeat enabled high-flying Wolverhampton Wanderers to overhaul Chelsea in the standings and take over third place on 45 points by beating Nottingham Forest 4-0.

Wolves, fourth before facing Forest, had Hugh Curran to thank for their impressive showing Saturday. He scored three goals, with former Arsenal player Bobby Gould netting the other.

City's fiercest rival, Manchester United went to London and lost 2-1 to West Ham. Northern Ireland ace George Best got United's only goal after Geoff Hurst and Bryan Robson put West Ham ahead 2-0 after 10 minutes.

Second Division Leader Leicester City increased its lead over its promotion rival with a 1-0 triumph in a crucial match away at Carlisle United.

A goal by Alec Brown enabled Leicester to move three points ahead of Sheffield United—which played a goalless draw at home to Norwich City—while Carlisle dropped from fourth to sixth.

In the Third Division, second-placed Fulham gained a point on Preston North End, the leader, with a 1-0 win at home over Walsall. Preston was held to a scoreless draw by Bristol Rovers.

The leading Fourth Division clubs both won. Notts County beat Aldershot 3-0 and Oldham Athletic defeated Cambridge United 4-1.

In Scotland, all attention was on Glasgow Celtic and Aberdeonians which drew 3-3 in a Scottish League Football Association Cup semi-final after one of the most exciting games seen at Hampden Park in recent years.

Aberdeonians refuted to bend under the might of the much-vaunted Celtic team and twice recovered from being two goals down to force a replay.

Hibernian and Glasgow Rangers, which also drew their semi-final last week, clashed again at Hampden Park on Monday with Celtic and Aberdeonians meeting two days later.

Two Celtic goals by Harry Hood and another by Jimmy Johnstone failed to take the Glasgow Giants through to the final as Aberdeonians lashed back on markers by Derek Whiteford, Billy Wilson and Drew Busby.

In the Scottish League First Division, Aberdeen dropped a valuable point in its fight for the league title when it drew 0-0 with Motherwell.

Aberdeen now leads Celtic by four points in the table although Celtic has three games in hand.

House League Hockey Ends on Winning Note

The Belleville Minor Hockey Association house league wound up the season Saturday with the championship games in all age age divisions.

Defensive play highlighted the tyke tilde tilt as the Sabres topped the North Stars 1-0 to win the Lee Grills Trophy. Tom Haslett's tally gave the Sabres the victory, while Ricky Cook notched the shutout.

In the Novice "A" championship it was Wayfare Restaurant downing William Belch and Sons 6-1. Bob Strahan and Ricky Duplain scored two goals each for the Doug Shaw Trophy winners with single goals going to Danny Vance and Steve Pearce. Jay Bethervick tallied the lone goal for the losers.

The Local 907 CVPE Trophy for the Novice "B" winners went to the Grolier Society, who squeezed out a 2-1 win over Richard Ellis Printers. Spencer and Carlton scored for Grolier.

Wayne Eyos potted four goals to lead Chambers Food Club to an 8-1 victory over the Penguins in the battle for the peewee "A" championship. Mike Groh and Tony Bennett split the remaining four tallies for the Lorne McLinton Memorial Trophy winners. Chambers coach Al Eros was awarded the Gerry Cochrane Trophy as coach of the year.

In peewee "B", Circle TV came out on top of an 8-5 bout with the Y's Men's Club. Chris Rutledge, Ernie Gordon and Robert Rushnell were two - goal performers for Circle with the other scores going to Billy Symons and Greg Tobin. Cosos fired three goals and Rumbles two in a losing cause.

The Penguins foreclosed on the Belleville Real Estate Board in the Bantam "A" title bout winning a 5-2 verdict. George Heist (2), Glen Woodley, Greg Bradshaw and Russ Morgan were the goal-getters, while Mark Boyd and Rodney Mallory scored a losing cause as the Penguins took the Tom Cavanagh Trophy.

Lou Williams emerged as the bantam "B" winners by edging Gordon Ray Group 3-2 in the battle for the Quinte Dragway Trophy. Lee Williams; Rodney Dafoe and John Farrell scored for the winners.

John Bowen's hat trick led the Belleville Yardmen's Benefit Fund midgets to a 5-4 championship win over Glenn Sine Masonry.

Bill Leitch and Terry Bridge were the other scorers for the BYBF Bon Bell Sport Shop Trophy Winners. Steve Tracey (2), Gary Hilts and Grant Goegan hit the scoresheet for Gordon Ray.

Ed Christopher, Steve Allin, and Kim Davidson split the scoring honors evenly as Eric Watkins Texaco stopped Arthur A. Sills 6-3 to capture the Juvenile title. The winners were awarded the John H. Bush Trophy.

Quinte Skaters Make Their Marks

The end of ice marks another Quinte Figure Skating Club graduation.

In preliminary dance, Marylen Burtt, Yvonne Wilson, Lynn Reid, Ann Hatfield, Sharon Jones, and Patricia Hayward passed Dutch Waltz, and Karen Mann, Mary Ann Mullins, Beth Calberry, Helen Kelly and Mike Knott earned Canasta tango certificates.

Gail Ann Ellis, in fourteen step, and Shari Knott in fox trot were senior bronze achievers.

Junior Silver (American) rating was attained by Kim Hornsby and Olivia Weese.

In senior silver ranks, Bernard Fitzgibbon passed in "pass" while skating mate Patsy Jean Silver earned "blues" standing.

Younger Blood Needed For Minor Lacrosse

Belleville Minor Lacrosse needs more "young blood" for a successful summer operation.

"Response has been really good in the bantam age division, but we need more players in junior service and peewee", stated president Roy Payne after the association's registration drive weekend.

A total of 200 boys registered to participate in the sport this season, an increase of 35 over last year, when 165 showed up for the initial registration.

Middleton Park is expected to enter at least three teams in the league and a number approached due to late applications of last season would push the number of participants well over last year's 238.

The bantam division could have as many as six entries, but there are only enough applicants for two teams in the tyke-novice age group at present.

Late applications may be turned in to the Recreation Centre, Pinnacle Street or Roy Payne, 11 First Street.

Last Note Sour

The Belleville Bantam "B"s struck a sour note in their final OMHA exhibition contests this season, dropping an 8-3 decision to the Marmora Midget All - stars Saturday and losing a 3-2 verdict to the Kinsmen Bantam "A"s Sunday.

Ron Elmy counted two goals in Saturday's loss to Marmora, with the other marker going to George Heirs.

4th Term For Belch

Belleville's Cliff Belch will handle the secretarial reins of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association for the fourth consecutive year after being returned to office at a weekend meeting of the OASA in Sarnia.

Other Belleville - area members on the executive are Jim Telworth, an elected executive member and honorary president Harry Rollins.

Fuddle Duddles Bowl Over Women 10-Pinners

The losing ladies could be excused for voicing the odd, "Oh Fuddle Duddle!" at the City Association Women 10 Pin Tournament this weekend.

The Fuddle Duddle turned out to be the winning team as Pat McQueen, Valerie Bronson, Mary Miller, Alice Drenth and Wilma Donald rolled a 2889 total for three games to win the championship. Their score was 40 pins better than the Belleville Five team, which took second spot.

Valerie Bronson was the big winner of the competition adding the all-around championship and the individual title, as well as a second place doubles finish to her own championship.

Her all-around total of 1887 was 65 pins better than Dorothy Anderson who finished in second place. She rolled 647 to cop the individual crown with Linda Perry's 635 mark good for second place.

Mell Loewen and Dorothy Anderson earned forces for a 1226 doubles total. Valerie Bronson and Mary Miller totalled 1190 to take second place.

A total of 11 teams were entered in the competition at the Brunswick Bowl in Belleville, while 14 doubles combination and 25 singles bowlers competed Sunday in Desoronto.

Soccer Attracts 280

Assuming the usual straggliers, Belleville minor soccer is within range of surpassing its 1970 membership roll.

Some 280 boys signed up in Saturday's annual registration day, and latecomers will be able to get on the list this week at the Pinnacle St. city recreation office.

Last year, the Belleville Minor Lacrosse Association had 360 participants.

Wood Strikes Out

SARNIA (CP) — The Ontario Amateur Softball Association, at its convention here Saturday, sanctioned the use of aluminum bats in association sanctioned games this summer.

"For minors especially, it'll be the best thing that ever happened," said OASA past president Max Scheff of Toronto.

"It'll end their costs considerably."

First event prizes at the Quinte Curling Club's last official Bonspiel of the 1970-71 season held Saturday at the Belleville lanes went to the team of Helen McCorquodale, skip, Findlay McCorquodale, second, Don Moore, and lead Bev Moore. The Northern Electric trophy was presented by Eric Arnott, manufacturing and engineering manager at Northern.

McCorquodale Aided By Quinte Closing Jinx

Number 13 didn't prove unlucky for Findlay McCorquodale's rink, but you couldn't blame Dave Brown if he began collecting four bad clovers for next year's Quinte Curling Club Closing Event.

Brown, the 1967 champion lost the championship round to McCorquodale as the jinx against repeat winners held for the 12th year in a row.

McCorquodale had gained a berth in the finals by eliminating Bill Hipwell's foursome, while Brown had ousted last year's winner Bill Henderson in the semi - finals.

Other members of McCorquodale's winning rink included vice - skip Helen McCorquodale, Don Moore and Bev Moore.

In the second event Bob Bastable downed Jim Walker to take the championship. Included in the winning rink were skip Bastable, Betty Gregory, Earl and Pat Kearns.

Bill Clare's rink, which included Marabelle Clare, Ed and Vicki Stephenson stopped Steve Bakay in the finals of the third event, while in the fourth it was Dave Blair winning over Ben Corke. Other members of the fourth event champions were Hazel Blair, Earl Fleming and Ann Backman.

A total of 30 rinks took part in the competition, which began Monday and finished Saturday afternoon. The McCorquodale rink captured the Northern Electric Trophy for the first event win.

Swim Marks Down Drain

EDMONTON (CP) — Four Canadian swimming records died with a noisy gurgle while 157 young athletes ended a week of competition on the 1.6-mile course that will go to the Pan-American Games this summer.

Thirty-two swimmers made the team Sunday after the four-day team trials and, said a Canadian Amateur Swimming Association spokesman, "even the ones that didn't make it have learned something and will be back for some more."

The national marks that went down the drain were the 400-metre women's individual medley, the 200-metre men's breaststroke and women's butterfly and the 100-metre men's breaststroke.

Leslie Cliff, a 16-year-old Vancouver high school student, set the individual medley mark with a time of five minutes, 22.7 seconds at the 50-metre Recreation Pool, eclipsing the old mark of 5:23.5 set by Susan Smith of Edmonton in 1970.

Miss Cliff also was the big winner of the meet in terms of races, adding the 100-metre backstroke, 100-metre butterfly and 200-metre individual medley to her tally.

Her backstroke time of 1:08.99 was one of 10 Alberta open marks broken during the trials to select a team for the games at Cali, Colombia, in August. The previous record was 1:11.0.

Jeanne Warren, a tiny 18-year-old blonde from West Vancouver, B.C., slammed through the butterfly in 2:28.3, or 1.6 seconds better than the 2:29.9 she was clocked for by Vancouver's Elaine Tanner, now retired.

Mike Whitaker, a lanky 17-year-old Calgarian attending the University of Michigan, won the 100-metre breaststroke in 1:08.1, half a second faster than the mark set by Bill Mahoney of West Vancouver in 1969.

The 200-metre breaststroke fell victim to Mahoney as he clipped through the 2:32.2 mark he set last year by 1.1 seconds.

Angela Coughlan of Burlington, Ont., national record-holder in the 200-, 400-, 800- and 1,500-metre freestyle, won the event for 100, 200 and 400 metres during the trials, setting provincial open marks in the process.

Her times, respectively, were 2:01.4 as against 1:02.2, 2:13.9 as against 2:17.4 and 4:44.4 against 4:50.3.

Seventeen of the 24 trials events went to Western Canadian swimmers. Five others went to Eastern swimmers and the remaining two to Byron MacDonald, a young Chicagoan who was born in Canada and retains his citizenship.

MacDonald, Canadian record-holder in the 100-metre butterfly at 57.4, set provincial open marks in the 100- and 200-metre butterfly with times of 57.8 and 2:12.0 compared with the old 58.9 and 2:14.9.

LAKE GENEVA, Wis. (AP) — Boxing returned to the posh surroundings of its beginnings Saturday night, with the addition of hot pants, see-through gowns and mini-skirted ringside girls.

Although the scene may have been one of artistic and financial beauty, the fights were not.

High - ranking George Foreman took 2:38 of the second round to knock out Stamford Harris in a heavyweight bout and Ernie Terrell, former World Boxing Association heavyweight champion, clubbed Johnny Hudgins into submission at 1:8 of the first round.

Australia, seeking to regain the form that made it a Davis Cup tennis power for years, took an early 2-0 lead over Indonesia in the Eastern Zone semi-finals Sunday. Two meaningless matches will be played today.

The Australians next meet Japan, which ousted the Philippines 3-2 Sunday, in the zone final in Tokyo.

At Porto Alegre, Brazil, Brazil defeated Chile 3-2 and moved against Ecuador in the American Zone by building an insurmountable 3-0 lead against Bolivia with a doubles victory Sunday.

Restricted Brake Fluid Hoses Could Cause Car to Pull Left

By RAY STAPLEY

A reader writes:

"To cut down on costs, I have been doing most of my own car repairs for the last few years. Recently, when my brakes started pulling to the left I didn't want to tackle a complete brake job on my own, so I made a deal with a mechanic - friend of mine to oversee the operation.

"The scored drums were resurfaced and the brake shoes were exchanged and ground to match the over-sized curvature of the brake drums. After all this work, the brakes still pulled to the left. We took the wheels off again and my friend discovered that the rear-wheel cylinders were frozen. He seized, in brand-new rear cylinders were installed, along with new brake springs on all four wheels. But the car continues to pull to the left. This is particularly severe on fast stops.

"The car was fitted with four new first-line tires about six months ago. The steering was checked recently and found to be in perfect condition. My mechanic-friend has run out of ideas, and we would greatly appreciate any suggestions you may have to offer." — Mr. D. G., Oakville, Ont.

Several readers have contacted me seeking advice on this type of erratic brake action. In view of the work already done, the most likely cause of your pulling problem would be a restricted or rubber hose, one of which is attached to each front wheel. Brake fluid passes through these hoses, transmitting hydraulic pressure to the wheel cylinders. This pressure, in turn, forces the brake shoes out against brake drums to stop the vehicle.

To assure efficient braking action, it is imperative that the flow of fluid be equal in both these front hoses. Occasionally, one of the hoses deteriorates and swells up internally, restricting or blocking the flow of the fluid to that front-wheel cylinder. More hydraulic pressure is thus applied to the opposite front wheel, causing the car to pull in that direction.

If the vehicle pulls to the left, then the hose on the right wheel is restricted. If the pull is to the right, then it is the left-wheel hose which is affected.

If one hose is found to be defective, it's wise to replace both front hoses to avoid recurrence of this same problem.

There are two ways to check for a plugged or restricted hose. First, open the bleeding valve on the front-wheel cylinder as you would when bleeding the lines. If a solid body of fluid pushes out, pressure is applied to the brake pedal, you can be reasonably sure that the hose isn't flowing freely through that hose.

However, to be absolutely sure, remove the hoser from the vehicle and attempt to blow through them. If they are restricted, it will be difficult, if not impossible, to force air through them.

When re-insalling either the original or new hoses, it is essential to thoroughly bleed the air from all the hydraulic lines. Just a slight amount of air in the hydraulic system can result in a low, spongy pedal. As well, even when a restricted hose has been replaced, the brakes will continue to pull.

It would appear that you didn't dismantle the front-wheel cylinders and theck for possible defects. Wheel cylinders which during a visual check seem to be functioning properly may be sticking or partially seized. Malfunctions in either of the front-wheel cylinders can lead to erratic brake action.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Accused of Racism

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A reader who works for a "human relations commission" is upset by a recent paragraph of mine about "white lies." I wrote that "a white lie, used often enough, becomes gray and dirty, and finally black from usage."

He calls this "racism in language" because of the positive connotation of the word white and the negative connotation of the word black. He shoves me of any conscious prejudice admitting that our language is structured that way, but think I ought to be more careful in my usage.

I find that ridiculous and somewhat paranoid. It is true that black has many negative connotations in our language — black hell, black-hearted, black list, blackmail, black sheep, and so forth but white is far from being universally positive in English usage.

Raising the white flag is surrendering; showing the white feather is a mark of cowardice; white-livered is also cowardly or mean; whitewash a person or an inquiry is to conceal or condone bad behavior; a whited sepulcher in the Bible is a gloss hypocrite; a white elephant is an unwanted and expensive possession; white trash is a common derogatory expression used by Caucasians.

To imagine that white lies have anything to do with the color of the person uttering them is to imagine that mostly Indians are guilty of leaving red tape, or being in the red, or being caught red-handed, or living in red-light districts, or owning a red herring across the path, or drinking the red eye.

We call a coward yellow with no reference to any possible Oriental origin. And a yellow dog contract, a phrase echoed by the U.S. Supreme Court, is simply an illegal contract forbidding employees to join a union. The yellow press did not refer to Oriental publications, but to wholly white and American newspapers of a sensational nature.

The French call a mystery a black novel, while the Italians call it a yellow novel. What we term the cold war is a white war to the French. Our red cabbage is blue to the Germans, and black to the Italians. In medieval Italy the warring Guelphs and Ghibellines were known as Whites and Blacks.

In Germany, one is yellow with envy, not green with it; in France, to be blue is to be amazed, not sad; and our white lie is called a plous lie there. To find racial slurs in color imagery of language is to suggest that old barrel-house tune, "I'm Blue Turning Gray Over You," was written by an aging Druid.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For April 6

Your birthday today: This year opens a search for fresh viewpoints, different ways of coping with old conditions, perhaps relocation or change of profession. Your approach to all issues becomes more analytical. Today's natives frequently excel in pantomiming, and enjoy metaphysical ideas.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Co-operative moves prevail, especially when directly concerned with correcting yesterday's developments. Be first to suggest teamwork.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): You'll be doing quite well to ride out today's provocations — so more are impatient that your serenity is essential.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Your natural tendency now is toward full discussion, disagreement for the sake of stirring others to express themselves fully.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): There probably will be anxiety over missing or misplaced papers, etc. Be assured that what you need will return or be replaced in due time.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Resist distraction, side issues, appeals to vanity. You have more to do than time and personnel could cope with anyway. Stay with the basics.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Intuition leads the way lightly through a complex day if you have the courage and clarity to follow. Direct, simple action affracts co-operation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): An early start helps a great deal. Taking the trouble to assign priorities, first things first helps more.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Something special must be checked into concerning reasons for changes in your immediate situation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Be alert for an opportunity to state your case, your side of any question. You have a good chance to correct recent misunderstandings.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Prompt action may be the only natural expression available to you. Let intuition guide you rather than lengthy logic.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Even routine matters contain surprise potentials. New a speculative ventures diverge from where you thought they were headed.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Unfamiliar but promising contacts turn out to be helpful in cross-current conditions.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Rest Is Rare In Hospitals

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I've just come from 10 days in the hospital for a minor ailment—and now I'm ready for a month of recuperation somewhere. I went in feeling comparatively fine, and came out as wrung out as an old mop. Why don't doctors and hospital administrators realize how little rest patients get while in hospital? — Mrs. O.

COMMENT: You are not being perverse and unappreciative in what you say. Although the institution known as the hospital performs daily miracles of relief and cure through doctors and paramedical assistance, it is undoubtedly true that the hospital is no place for rest.

Don't expect to be treated as though you were in a great hotel — elegant furnishings, blissful quiet, and mouthwatering meals. As I see it, a hospital is more like a stripped - down racing car, the purpose of which is to get you somewhere (out of there) as fast as possible.

Just the other day a friend of mine was admitted to the hospital because of a heart ailment. His wife called me and said "Jack is worn out this morning. Would you believe it's possible that at midnight someone came in and actually woke him to ask, 'Do you want something to drink?' And at 2 a.m. somebody else shook him awake to say they were going to wake him at 6 a.m. to take his blood pressure. How stupid can people get?

How can a sick person possibly recover when they won't let him sleep?

I have heard similar complaints from my own patients. Trying to help them by taking it up with hospital management doesn't invariably bring good results.

When my wife was ill a few years ago she said, "They'd give me a sleeping pill to make me groggy — and wake me at 1 a.m. to take my temperature. My own doctors had left orders against my being awakened for temperature readings because I wasn't running a fever at the time. But orders were disregarded."

And so go the complaints from helpless patients. Rooms full of visitors, full of smoke, full of noise. Why can't we doctors do something about it? Well, perhaps seeing today's column will activate some hospital authorities to take constructive action.

* * *

For Mrs. D.: "Like mother like daughter" isn't a truism. You are borrowing unnecessary anxiety by wondering whether you're going to have varicose veins because your mother has them. Why be concerned about something that may never cause you any trouble?

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I'm 82 and feel fine. For the past month or so I've noticed hemorrhoids. They don't bleed or cause itching or pain. I've had them on and off for the past dozen years or so. For my age I feel triple-okay. A friend says I'd better have them removed. What do you think? — Mr. U.

COMMENT: Better rely on your doctor rather than on well-meaning friends. It's not unlikely that he'll say leave well enough alone. Personally, I'd hesitate to disturb your triple-okay status.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Could you recommend a vitamin our entire family could take to prevent colds? There are so many recommendations these days it's difficult to make a choice. — Mrs. Y.

COMMENT: As of this writing I know of no vitamins which will prevent colds.

Book Due in Fall

THE PICK OF Punch

"One small point, Mr. Simpson, it's called 'Alimony and not redundancy pay.'"

Greek Composer Says U.S. Runs Athens' Regime

PARIS (AP) — A year after his release from Greek prison, composer Mikis Theodorakis is writing less and less music. Most of his time, he says, is "given over to the problem of the resistance," working against the regime of colonels that jailed him as a subversive.

"Understand this," he says, "my music had two protagonists, me and the Greek people."

"Now that I'm far away it is very hard to get my half of the dialogue back. It is very difficult for me. Here, I am a musician in search of an audience."

"Here," is a big apartment in the Latin Quarter where Theodorakis's children play at the top of their lungs. The father, his hair a mess, an old sweater over his shoulder, sits behind a battered desk. It is full of blue and red dossiers and not a sheet of music, as far as a visitor can see.

Theodorakis explains that he's correcting proofs on a book to come out in the fall, a two-volume mea culpa called The Debt.

Theodorakis, give or take an occasional moment of panic, says royalties from film scores, like those of Zorba the Greek and Z, pay his way.

Theodorakis says his health, poor when he was released last April 13, is good now.

His freedom was engineered by Jean-Jacques Servan Schreiber, the French assembly deputy and magazine publisher.

Theodorakis's view of Greece is not a happy one. He contends that the United States is in effective control of the Athens regime and has no intention to let go, considering the unsettled situation in Turkey and the Middle East.

"When you think of it, you know, probably the biggest victim of our epoch is the American people because of all the crimes committed in its name."

The state department, he reports, will not allow him into the United States, although he has been offered teaching posts at universities.

"So be it," he says.

"In Greece there is a very particular situation because on one hand the colonels took away everyone's political rights, but at the same time the economic and social situation improved. The doors are open and there is good foreign investment coming in. So the people don't budge.

"We can now foresee a period of 10 years without change. But if there is an economic problem, or a big change in the international situation, or if there is one of those inexplicable incidents that blows the top off things, then there could be a surprise."

Nixon Won't Speed Calley Review

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon has made no move to speed military review of the life sentence given Lieut. William Calley for murdering 22 civilians at My Lai, aides said today.

They reported Nixon, who twice last week intervened in the Calley case, believed the review should proceed through normal channels at a deliberate pace.

At the same time, the sources said, Nixon would have no objection if the Pentagon expedited the process through such mechanical acts as providing additional stenographers to prepare the full court martial record. It must be completed before the case can reach the first level of review—by legal officers at Fort Benning, Ga., where Calley was tried.

John D. Ehrlichman, a top Nixon assistant, said Saturday that completing the trial record was expected to take 30 to 60 days.

Nixon announced Saturday he would review and act on the Calley case once it has moved through the full military review.

Calley could be declared innocent and his sentence set aside at any point in the multi-level process, which would end the matter before it reached Nixon's desk.

Thursday, Nixon first intervened on Calley's behalf, ordering that he be released from the stockade at Fort Benning and kept under guard at his base apartment, retaining freedom to move about the post until his fate is decided.

The president took the two actions as the White House was deluged with thousands of telegrams described as expressing sympathy for the young lieutenant by a ratio of about 100 to 1.

Meanwhile, Time magazine quoted Calley as saying that during the months he was awaiting trial he developed a fear of dying accidentally because the world might think he was a coward who took his own life.

Ban Ads

VILA REAL DO SANTO ANTONIP, Portugal (AP) — The town council unanimously agreed to ban all tobacco advertisements from public places. "Every day medical authorities are saying that smoking leads to early deaths," the council said.

Cobourg-born

Odlum Dies At 90

VANCOUVER (CP) — Maj.-Gen. Victor Wentworth Odlum —soldier, businessman, journalist and diplomat—died Sunday in hospital at the age of 90.

He entered hospital last month after suffering a hip fracture. Gen. Odlum served in the Boer War and both world wars. He won a battlefield commission before he was 20 and subsequently was awarded the Distinguished Service Order and bar, and was made a Companion of the Bath and a Companion of St. Michael and St. George.

Between wars, he pursued careers in journalism and finance.

Born in Cobourg, Ont., Oct. 21, 1880, Victor Odlum received his early schooling in Vancouver and later studied political science at the University of Toronto.

At 19 he enlisted as a private in the 2nd Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, and went to South Africa. On a Boer War battlefield he was promoted to lieutenant in the 3rd Canadian Mounted Rifles. Later he held a commission in the 48th Highlanders of Toronto.

He worked on newspapers in Nelson, B.C., and Winnipeg until he bought in 1924 the Vancouver Daily Star which he published until 1930, two years before it went under.

In 1964, at the age of 84, he became publisher of the short-lived Vancouver Times.

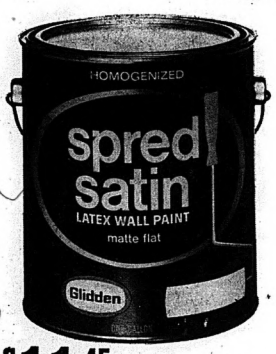
He interrupted his newspaper career to serve in the First World War where he rose from major to brigadier-general and commanded the 11th Canadian Brigade. He and another officer were credited with originating the technique of hit-and-run trench raids later adopted by all Allied forces and copied by the Germans.

He became known as Pea Soup Odlum because, he replaced his men's rum ration with hot soup.

Quebec Position Splits B and B

OTTAWA (CP) — The royal commission on bilingualism and bicuturalism did not make a final report because it could not agree about the future role of Quebec in Canada, says former co-chairman Jean-Louis Gagnon.

"We couldn't agree and we had so different views on that that it was really not possible to write a book." Mr. Gagnon said in pre-recorded television interview for broadcast Sunday on the CTV program Question Period.



Asked on what issue the 10-member commission split, Mr. Gagnon said the question was simply: "What will be the place of Quebec within Confederation?".

He suggested the question went beyond the mandate of the commission which officially ended its seven-year life last month.

First Year Report from Hundreds of Farmers:

Lasso 4 with Atrazine gives season long control of annual grasses and broadleaf weeds

Last year Lasso 4 was a brand new herbicide and we made a lot of promises. Now the promises have been proven.

A Lasso 4/atrazine mix needs no incorporation.

Lasso 4/atrazine will not damage your crops or ruin your rotation plans because there is less carryover.

Lasso 4/atrazine controls both broadleaf weeds and grasses (including crabgrass, fall panicum and barnyard-grass) in corn.

Lasso 4 is available from your local farm supply dealer.

Guerrillas Report Jordan Trench War

Rains Help Bengal Rebels

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — Heavy rain fell in East Pakistan today in a break in the weather which could mark a turning point in favor of the rebellious Bengalis struggling against the West Pakistan army to create an independent East Pakistan.

It has been widely predicted that the Pakistani army in the Eastern region could find itself in great difficulty when the monsoon season begins in about a month and unleashes its usual 200 inches of rain in parts of East Pakistan.

The rains began Monday and by dusk they had grounded the Pakistan air force and forced troops to stay in their barracks, the Press Trust of India said.

The Bangla Desh (Bengali nation) "liberation forces" claimed new successes Monday, while the official Pakistani radio station admitted that martial law authorities in the country's Eastern wing have been facing difficulties.

PTI, quoting reports reaching Calcutta, said the rebels regained control of the important jute town of Rangpur in the north of East Pakistan after heavy fighting.

The followers of Sheik Mujibur Rahman were reported to have used human sea" tactics in Rangpur, and casualties on both sides in two days of fighting were described as heavy.

Bitter fighting was also raging in Dinajpur, Kushtia and Sylhet, and the West Pakistani supply routes to Sylhet were cut, PTI said.

Dayan Prefers War to Retreat

JERUSALEM (Reuter) — Differences between Israel and the Arab states were sharpened today following a blunt statement from Defence Minister Moshe Dayan that he would prefer war to an Israeli withdrawal behind pre-1967 borders.

If the choice is withdrawal to the pre-six day war borders or war, as it is said to be by our Arab neighbors, I would prefer not to withdraw," Dayan said Monday night. "War along the present line would be preferable."

He told a political meeting that there must be a real will for peace not only among the Arab leaders but among the Arab public as well — among the intellectuals and in the press and on the radio.

Dayan said Arab plans called for two stages, the first-of which was Israel withdrawal. The second was variously described by Mohammed Hassanein Heykal, editor of the influential Cairo newspaper Al Ahram, as "reversing the consequences of the 1967 war" and by President Anwar Sadat of Egypt as "assuring the rights of the Palestinians."

Both meant defeating Israel. Dayan said.

Showdown Said Near As Battles Continue

AMMAN (CP) — The Palestinian Arab guerrillas reported pitched fighting was raging "from trench to trench" with King Hussein's army in north Jordan today, and conceded three killed.

Intensive machine-gun fire echoed in Amman through the night but life was normal after daybreak in the Jordanian capital.

This 12th successive day of hostilities followed a warning by a top guerrilla leader in Amman Monday that Jordan was inching closer to another civil war.

Denying the charges, Premier Wasfi Tell said today his government adhered to the Cairo peace agreement of Sept. 28. "Which guarantees the government right to ensure authority, law and order throughout the kingdom

"Once challenges to this right cease, the government is bound by the agreement to do its utmost to support the guerrilla movement," he said in a statement.

A government - controlled newspaper, Al Destour, said the current guerrilla government crisis was heading toward a settlement "despite guerrilla claims to the contrary."

A communique from the guerrillas' military command, released in Beirut, claimed three infantry battalions and one tank column launched four pre-dawn attacks to overrun guerrilla bases in the Sakeb forests, six miles west of Jerash. Jerash is 250 miles north of Amman.

"The four attacks were repulsed and guerrilla defenders launched several counter-raids on army positions in the area, inflicting heavy losses in lives and equipment," claimed the communique.

The army attacks were preceded by five days of heavy artillery, pounding, the communique said. "French-in-trench fighting still was raging in the early hours of this morning."

It said Hussein's government accused the guerrillas Monday of staging a day-long attack on army positions near the Roman ruins of Jerash and Sakeb. It said four persons, including two soldiers, were killed and five

War Threat Continues -- Kosygin

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Alexei Kosygin offered the Soviet people an economic plan for "peace and progress" today but said the armed forces also must be expanded to balance the threat of "American imperialists."

While promising to spend vast" sums to make more food and other consumer goods available, he warned that "tension and the threat of war continue in the world."

"We have no right to forget— even for a minute—the need to strengthen our armed forces and maintain their high combat preparedness," the premier told the Soviet Communist party's 24th congress.

"The American imperialists are trampling on international law by waging a disgraceful, dirty bandit war in Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos, and are helping the aggressors in the Middle East.

"The new five-year plan will ensure the further consolidation of the defence capability of our state."

At the same time, he said, Soviet life will become "more prosperous, and spiritually more meaningful and interesting."

Kosygin said the guidelines for economic growth in the next five years give more attention to the consumer than ever before.

Despite Big Wage Boost Rail Engineers Unhappy

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

With the exception of a group of protesters in Winnipeg, nearly 4,000 members of the Brotherhood of Railway Engineers were back on the job today after a contract settlement Monday with Canada's two major railways.

Many members, however, because of dissatisfaction with the ratification system agreed upon by union negotiators with CP Rail and CNR, are working "under protest."

The 200 Winnipeg dissidents, employed by the CNR, voted unanimously to stay off work as their form of protest. Supervisory personnel were expected to assume their duties.

Their main complaint, the same as that of the workers who returned "under protest," was that there is no provision in the union constitution for ratification of labor agreements by members. The last-minute agreement, which averted a national rail strike, is binding on the workers.

Stuart Marlin, recently elected to a third three-year term as chairman of a Montreal CP Rail local, said the ratification issue "has cropped up from time to time."

He said he wouldn't be surprised if it was raised at the union's convention this year at Cleveland, Ohio.

"It's a very difficult thing to ratify a contract nation-wide, especially when members are "on the road" for up to a week at a time.

The disruption of rail service was the Cleveland-based brotherhood's first major labor dispute in Canada in more than 50 years. Mr. Marlin said it was the first time he knew of since 1863 that a conflict had come so close to a strike.

The three-year contract, which expires March 15, 1973, for the CP Rail engineers and April 30, 1973, for the CNR, will bring top pay to $13,720 in the final contract year in two annual increments of eight per cent and one of seven.

The key provisions also included company-paid life insurance of $5,000 for each employee, weekly indemnity benefits of about $85, up from $65, and clauses affecting medical care premiums, statutory holidays and vacations.

Agreement Is Sought Prior to Conference

OTTAWA (CP) — About the last thing the federal and provincial governments want is collapse of the constitutional conference in Victoria in June.

Especially with British Columbia celebrating its provincial centennial.

Thus, preparations are carefully for the June 14-16 conference to ensure, as far as possible, that the federal and provincial first ministers will merely have to go through the motions of reaching agreement already arrived at by private negotiation in advance.

At their conference here in February, the heads of government agreed on a feasible approach for agreement on an amending formula.

Now comes the tough part: Translating this feasible approach into a document on which the federal authority and all the provinces can formally agree.

One official in close touch with the situation said Monday that the mood is as optimistic as it was in February.

There have been discussions between Ottawa and the provinces on the subject since February and these will continue until the June meeting.

It is hoped that all or most of the points of detail in a text on an amending formula can be straightened out before the Victoria conference.

Ceylon Quells Guevara Revolt

COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP) — Prime Minister Sirimavo Bandaranaike said today her government had foiled an attempt by insurgents to take over Colombo.

In radio announcement Ceylon's woman premier said troops had been deployed throughout the island as "Che Guevara" insurgents launched a series of attacks on police stations, security patrols and government buildings.

Mrs. Bandaranaike said that a total of 25 attacks had been repulsed.

There were a few casualties among police and service personnel, while casualties among the terrorist attackers were considerable, she said.

The insurgents commandeered buses for the attacks and used homemade bombs and firearms, the premier announced.

Several arrests were made and a dusk-to-dawn curfew was imposed throughout the country.

All schools and universities were closed.

Ceylon army volunteers were called up to strengthen security forces.

Mrs. Bandaranaike said power supplies, rail and communication links in parts of the country had been disrupted.

She said the government would not hesitate to hand out drastic punishments and stamp out the insurgency.

Mrs. Bandaranaike announced that the People's Liberation Front, the official title of the Che Guevara organization, had been outlawed.

The cabinet met in emergency session Monday night following an earlier attack on a police station and the imposition of a curfew on some parts of the island.

Mrs. Bandaranaike announced March 7 she had mobilized the armed forces to maintain law and order following a mob attack on the U.S. embassy in Colombo.

March 16, the government declared a state of emergency following police reports of increasing activity by the People's Liberation Front.

Mrs. Bandaranaike's Freedom party returned to power in a landslide election victory last May with the Communist party as an ally.

The coalition promised to solve the country's problems by establishing a Socialist society, with priority to be given to the nationalization of foreign banks.

But hoped-for aid from Communist nations has not been forthcoming. 700,000 persons now are unemployed, a budget deficit of $195 million is expected this year, and the Socialist program has been shelved while the government gets help where it can.

This has made the Communists restless, and their trade union wing has been campaigning for an immediate takeover of the banks and foreign tea and rubber plantations.

Mayor Said Incorrect

According to Sidney township councillor Reg McCurdy, Belleville Mayor J. Russell Scott's comment on CJBQ yesterday concerning the lack of parks in the township is unfounded.

Mr. McCurdy said the mayor was discussing the opening of the new dump in Sidney Township May 1 and had mentioned the lack of parks along Highway 2. Mayor Scott indicated the city would take an option to convert the new waste disposal site into parkland once its original use was terminated, the councillor said.

"The mayor is incorrect," Mr. McCurdy told township council last night. Although undeveloped, deputy reeve Gordon Wilman said the township has more than a dozen sites set aside for development and a fund of $10,500 set aside for parkland.

"If they're going to operate it and fill it up, we're not against that," said Mr. McCurdy when asked if the township would object to the city's development of a park on the waste disposal site.

"Go to it," chuckled Reeve Jack Bush.

Dakotas On Search

TRENTON (Staff) — Search opened this morning in an area 140 miles northeast of Thunder Bay for an unidentified helicopter pilot missing since Saturday.

The chopper, owned by Sky Rotors Inc., of Toronto, prior, had been on a 240 mile flight from Nakina, Ont., north, to a camp on the Ekwan River.

Weather in the area was reported to be favorable this morning as two search and rescue Dakotas departed from CFB Trenton to begin the search. A third DC-3 from Winnipeg also joined the operation.

Road Changes Are Announced

Sidney Township council last night announced changes in the functions of two township roads.

With approval from the department of highways received, Glen Ross Road, which starts near Frankford and crosses Highway 33 at Sager's Corners, is now an official through road instead of a township road.

Taxi Licence Transfer Approved After Debate

TRENTON (Staff) — More stringent regulations to govern the transfer of taxi licences and the operations of taxis were accepted by council here last night.

Before accepting them, however, council approved the transfer of eight cab licences from the Leaghavel family to Al and Earl Steinberg, owners of the Gilbert Hotel.

The eight 'Goods' taxis had been operating for nearly a month on an extension of 1970 licences because council wished to investigate the transfer prospects throughly.

After his investigation, Councillor Paul Tripp said he concluded there is no reason for not approving the transfer, although he said he doubted if the police commission would have given approval.

"Once the transfer is made, it is made," cautioned Councillor Ted Parker, who with George Greer opposed the transfer.

After being told he could not abstain from voting, Peter Reid joined Mr. Tripp and councillors in approving the transfer by a 4 to 2 margin.

"Once the transfer is made, it is made," cautioned Councillor Ted Parker, who with George Greer opposed the transfer.

After being told he could not abstain from voting, Peter Reid joined Mr. Tripp and councillors in approving the transfer by a 4 to 2 margin.

Mr. Steinberg said he knew nothing about it.

Council had deliberated for half an hour on whether to approve the Gould Taxi sale under existing legislation or the revised regulations. The transfer was ratified before the passing of the new controls, as suggested by Councillor Tripp.

Although the transfer was not accepted by council under the new legislation, clerk-comptroller O. W. Larry recommended that controls concerning cab operations go into effect immediately.

By the new regulations all taxi drivers must carry identification cards bearing their photographs. None may work more than 14 hours a day.

The ceiling on the number of taxis allowed in the town was lifted to 30. There are now 21 cabs in Trenton — eight Gould's, 13 Graham's.

The new controls also provide that cab licences may be suspended for violations of provincial liquor and traffic laws.

Police Chief David Saunders will also be allowed to suspend licences "for any reasonable cause to him appricieat". Searches of taxis and cab company premises may be made by Mr. Saunders or provincial police force.

Picton Town Councillors Pass Hold-line Budget

PICTON (Staff) — Town councillors last night approved a hold-the-budget figure for 1971 which contains a marked decrease in its rates for separate school supporters.

Public school residential taxpayers this year will face a 2.5 mill increase.

The net tax levy, representing the total budgeted expenditures, minus the total budgeted revenue, is $712,008.

The town's total budget for 1971 is $989,487, compared to the budget figure of $845,097 in 1970. Town councillors have budgeted for a revenue totalling $157,459 compared with last year's actual returns of $146,156 and a revenue budget of $145,509.

It was reported at last night's meeting that Picton records a 1970 cash surplus of $17,372.

Total mill rates are as follows: public school residential, 1971, 30.32 in comparison with 29.98 in 1970; public school commercial and industrial, 32.80 in comparison with 32.84 in 1970; separate school residential 26.15 in comparison with 23.68 in 1970; separate school commrtcial and industrial, 28.16 in comparison with 31.64 in 1970.

Expenditure Questioned

TRENTON (Staff) — Approval was given by council here last night for the outlay of $8,409 in support of the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority's activities for 1971.

Mayor Duncan McDonald asked the town's representative on the authority, Councillor Paul Tripp, to give an explanation of the expense — about $2,000 more than the amount required the previous year.

Councillor Tripp explained that the authority's budget had been increased to cover all eventualities that may come up.

He said the increase is due to larger travel allowances for employees, additional office machinery, education programs and added maintenance projections for properties owned by the LTRCA.

border said the rebels destroyed the airport at Lamonirhat in the northwest corner of East Pakistan.

The West Pakistanis, supported by air strikes, retaliated by occupying the town and driving out the civilian population, PTI said.

Refugees were reported to be streaming across the border at Cooch Behar, in the far north of the eastern Indian state of West Bengal. PTI put the number of them so far at 5,000.

The Pakistani army was reported pinned down in Comilla and there was a hit-and-run raid on the key port of Chittagong. It said the rebels also captured the town of Mymensingh and Tangail in the north central area.

Radio Pakistan broadcasts from Lahore heard here said Monday night that the Pakistani army was in full-control of the situation in the East and was "effectively dealing with enemy infiltrators who have been crossing into the province in force in aid of the miscreants."

The bulletin added: "The only army operations that are in progress in certain pockets are aimed at anti-social elements."

This was seen here as a tacit admission that the authorities have been having trouble. Previously Radio Pakistan news bulletins had insisted that the situation was "completely calm."

Railroader Complains About Train Whistles

A Johnston Street resident, himself a railroader, is complaining about the blowing of train whistles.

In a letter to the city traffic and safety committee, the Belleville resident notes that other Ontario cities, including Oshawa, have legislated against the blowing of train whistles by the passing of bylaws and wonders why Belleville cannot do the same.

He said that some centres have legislated against whistles — even at unprotected crossings.

Committee members indicated they would check the legislation regarding train whistles.

Post Office Plan Approval Expected

TRENTON (Staff) — Clerk-comptroller O. W. Larry told council here last night it can expect Ontario Municipal Board approval of the post office development scheme this week.

He said the board has already approved the municipal capital expenditure budget passed by council two weeks ago.

On hearing the news of the imminent approval by the board, Councillor Ted Parker assured his fellow councillors that the project's architect and developer, Montrealer David K. Linden, "has not fallen off the end of the earth."

Mr. Linden, he said, will be coming to Trenton soon after approval is received to secure the necessary land and establish timing schedules for the construction.

Mass for Allan McCullam was held from the O'Brien Funeral Home to St. Joseph's Church, Monday, April 5 at 11 a.m.

Right Rev. J. A. Carley conducted the service and interment was in St. James Cemetery.

Four members of the clergy present for the service were Rev. William McGee and Rev. Charles Gaetz.

Bearers were Mack White, John Woodcroft, Ivan Hilton, Donald Barrett, Frank Barrett and J. F. McCorquodale.

MRS. HAROLD YOUNG

Mrs. Ada Florence Young, formerly of R.R. 1, Ameliasburg, died April 5, 1971 in Belleville General Hospital after a short illness. She was in her 87th year.

Born in Napanee, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. Reid, Mrs. Young lived on the 2nd concession of Ameliasburg most of her life. She was predeceased by her husband, the late Harold Young and is survived by a son, Elmer E. Young and a brother, William D. Reid, both of Ameliasburg.

Mrs. Young was a member of Redmerswille United Church and the Missionary Society and UCW.

The funeral will be held at 1 p.m. in the chapel of John R. Bush Funeral Home, with Rev. J. M. Moore officiating. Entombment will be in the vault of Belleville Cemetery until spring, when interment will be in Mountain View Cemetery.

HAROLD LINDSTROM

Funeral of Harold Lindstrom was held April 5, 1971 at 11 a.m. in the chapel of John R. Bush. Interment was in Belleville Cemetery. Rev. Stephen Tilley and Rev. Kenneth Calins officiated.

Bearers were Donald Kotchapaw, George Umb, John Armstrong, Sam Reading, Harry Dulmage and Alfred Rodgers.

MRS. GERALD WILSON

Funeral for Mrs. Gerald Wilson was held from the Thompson Funeral Home to Chapel Hill Memorial Gardens, Stoney Creek, Monday, April 5.

Rev. Eric Mills conducted the service and interment was in Chapel Hill Memorial Gardens.

Bearers were Murray and John Wilson, W. G. Chapin and Clayton French.

Guerrillas

were wounded by guerrilla rockets and mortar fire.

The guerrillas said they have launched an "all-out offensive" from the Syrian border in an attempt to ease pressure on their strongholds in hilly terrain near Jerash, midway between Amman and the Syrian border.

The guerrillas' leaders, Yasir Arafat and Dr. George Habash, leader of the Marxist Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, were reported to have set up headquarters in this area.

In Amman, Arafat's second in command has publicly demanded the replacement of Jordan's current government under Premier Tell with a "national unity cabinet" to avert another civil war.

In Cairo, Egypt held more contacts and increased pressure for a pan-Arab conference to try to bring peace to Jordan.

Abu Iyad, second ranking leader of the Fatah guerrillas and a member of the central committee of the Palestine Liberation Organization, said Monday night that the situation is "very dangerous."

"It may turn any minute into a civil war which cannot be resolved overnight or in a few days as the authorities believe," he warned at a news conference.

Iyad also announced the withdrawal of commandos and their heavy arms from the Jordanian capital.

He said that to avert civil war the government should announce its readiness to abide by the Cairo and Amman agreements and form a government of national unity which would pledge to implement them, issue an amnesty and carry out national reconciliation.

The agreements signed last September, ended heavy fighting in Amman and defined the relationship between the two sides.

As commando spokesmen announced the death toll army of attacking commando positions in northern Jordan, a military spokesman in Amman charged the commandos with opening up with machine-gun fire from Syrian territory on border villages.

In Cairo, Egypt made more contacts with Arab countries concerning the calling of an urgent meeting of Arab leaders to try to solve the Jordan troubles.

Development of Science Said Feature of Era

History would probably recall that the most characteristic feature of the 20th century was the development of science, Norman S. Helm, executive director of the Youth Science Foundation, told Belleville Rotarians yesterday.

Every day, in countless laboratories and research stations throughout the world, men and women were seeking the answers to what was going on in nature. Canada, he said, was not backward scientifically either and had attained a respectable place in the world of science.

Mr. Helm was speaking as preparations continue for the Rotary - sponsored Science Fair and Hobby Show later this month. Ninety-nine entries have been received for the scientific portion of the show, 35 of them from the 11 area secondary schools taking part.

Three winners from the Belleville event will take part in the Canada - wide event in Edmonton.

Mr. Helm said the complexities of modern society demanded that its citizens be scientifically literate.

"In those who know little or nothing of science there is a resistance to science and scientific ideas. This must be overcome and an encouragement and understanding developed against the day when, we all hope, formal education will achieve a position where no one completes his studies without some acquaintance with science and technology."

Educators, he went on, were aware that genuine interest in science was often sparked at an early age. A U.S. study revealed that the peak of scientific interest in boys and girls was reached at the age of 12.

"We have now entered the era of participatory contribution by young people. At the recent general assembly of the International co-ordinating committee for out - of - school science, there was discussion regarding the degree of participation by young people. At the 10th Canada-wide Science Fair the participants will discuss, at the request of UNESCO, how young people might contribute to a worldwide study of major problems — population explosion, hunger, pollution of the environment. In August, a young Canadian selected at the fair will participate in an international seminar on the subject of water pollution, along with young people from around the world."

Authority on Law Critical of Rulings

SASKATOON (CP) — An expert on family law says Canadian legislation on division of property between husband and wife when the marriage ends leaves much to be desired.

Prof. T. J. Wuester, who teaches family law at the University of Regina campus in Saskatoon, said in an interview that courts have differed widely in their decisions.

Prof. Wuester has begun a study of the problem aimed at finding solutions that accord with the modern concept of marriage as an equal partnership.

Historically, wives in Canada have had a legal right to maintenance following a divorce, but not to a share of the property. He cited a decision of the Supreme Court of Canada which held that a wife could not share in the property unless she had made a financial contribution to its purchase.

In a recent Saskatchewan judgment, Prof. Wuester noted, a wife who had worked for 25 years helping her husband build up agricultural assets estimated to be worth $200,000 received none of this when the marriage ended in divorce.

The property was in the husband's name and although the wife had contributed to its value through years of work, she had not contributed financially.

In this case, the wife had been awarded a substantial monthly maintenance, "but there are circumstances in which maintenance could be a poor substitute for an equitable division of property."

Some courts had provided a "lump sum maintenance" settlement and a recent Alberta judgment had ordered a division of property despite the earlier position of the Supreme Court of Canada.

Prof. Wuester contended that the time may have come to consider a new legislative solution to the problem that would recognize adequately the contribution of both partners.

He said the issue is particularly relevant in Saskatchewan where a large number of family farms have been developed through the joint efforts of husbands and wives.

However, it was important elsewhere in Canada as well and a new look at the division of property was among the recommendations of the royal commission on the status of women.

As part of his research, Prof. Wuester is studying how the problem is dealt with in various Canadian provinces and in states where the concept of "community property" has been adopted.

But procedures that might work well elsewhere may not be applicable in Saskatchewan "where any legislative proposals should reflect our rural situation."

Hockey Game Proceeds To Retarded

PICTON (Staff) — Cpl. William McGregor and Constable William Kelleher last night presented the Prince Edward Association for the Mentally Retarded with a $775 cheque on behalf of the Picton Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police.

The money was raised in January during a benefit hockey game between members of the OPP and the Ottawa Rough Riders.

Other special guests at last night's meeting at Queen Elizabeth School in Picton were Richard Pike, area representative Keith Hudson, area representative for Western Ontario, and Reeve of Sophiasburg George Foster, who attended on behalf of County Warden Allen Anderson.

Mr. Foster extended congratulations to Norris Whitney, MPP, Prince Edward - Lennox, and to former Picton Mayor H. J. McFarland for their roles in developing the Prince - Edward Heights project.

J. McCormick Visits Tunisia

TWEED — James McCormick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael McCormick of RR 1, Tweed, who is in his third year of studies abroad, and is attending AIX - En-Provence School in the South of France, left there on Friday, April 2, for his Easter vacation, which he is spending in Tunisia (in North Africa) for a two week period. James flew to Tunisia and states that he left his books behind this time so he could enjoy a relaxation fortnight.

James was a student of the Tweed - Hungerford District High School, graduating as an Ontario Scholar. He expects that when he has finished his year abroad, he will go to St. Michael's in Toronto and wishes to major in French, and following that year, he will attend Teachers' College, to round his education. James is 21 years old, born in 1949.

Blowing Papers Upset Neighbor

A Sidney Township resident, Mrs. J. W. Sparling of RR 3, Belleville, wrote to council March 31, and complained about the "intolerable" garbage situation surrounding her property.

Councillor Glen Meyers, at the time of the incident, advised Mrs. Sparling "to call the neighbor who is creating the problem".

"The boys filled three large cartons with paper, then to my astonishment, they just dumped the cartons behind a tree about 50 feet behind their property," she wrote in her letter.

"The first heavy rain we get, the cartons will break down and the paper will be all around again. I find it embarrassing getting off the bus in the evening to see our driveway littered with paper . . . especially when it is not mine," she concluded.

Sidney Township garbage collection, commencing May 1 with the services of Quinte Sanitation Ltd. will be right in time for spring cleanup.

Unfortunately, "it's a civil action . . . nothing to do with council," advised township clerk J. Byron Harder.

Wall in Alley Disturbs Council

TRENTON (Staff) — Council here last night authorized the town solicitor, William Weston, to take what ever action he deems necessary to have a blocked laneway opened.

The alley between the Toronto Dominion Bank and the Times Square Restaurant on Front Street has been closed by a cinderblock wall about four feet in height.

Although the lane is not owned by the town, Mr. Weston has told council they have substantial legal grounds in calling for its removal because it has been used by the public for nearly a century.

Several businesses have rights - of - way through the alley — one, the Toronto Dominion Bank has asked that the wall be torn down.

Councillor Paul Tripp called the blocking of the alley "a highhanded action," adding that "if the parking lot along the river is to be useful, we need it open."

"I would support legal action being taken, if we have the grounds but all of it is costly and we are going to lose," said councillor Stan Ketcheson.

He remarked that "the town has had a very sad record as far as lawsuits are concerned."

Councillor Ted Parker mentioned that he had consulted solicitors privately and had been told the town has substantial legal grounds to call for the wall to be removed.

Heart Fund to Benefit When Four Seasons Opens

The gala opening of the new Four Seasons Hotel here will be held April 14, with 2,000 invited guests in attendance.

The Belleville Chapter of the Ontario Heart Foundation is official host for the evening and the evening will be a fund - raising event for the Foundation.

Fifty Heart Hostesses will urge guests to help support cardiovascular research with the purchase of raffle and beverage tickets.

Grand prize for the raffle will be a return flight for two to Britain, with a week at the Inn On The Park in London and use of a rented car during the week.

Other prizes are a color television, a 40 - piece setting of silver plate cutlery, and a weekend for two at the Four Seasons Motor Hotel in Toronto.

Members of the federal and provincial parliaments and local mayors and reeves will be among the guests at the opening.

Emergency Phone To Be Installed

Because of the difficulty of relying on the constant attendance by security forces at Bata Shoe Company, Sidney Township Council last night approved installation of an emergency phone for emergency fire calls for the township.

Reeve Jack Bush explained the service. The number, 398-6333, would stay the same.

This move was necessary, said fire commissioner Jack Cormack, because "we've had some calls in a couple of cases when he hasn't been there."

Township fire calls go the proposed extension would not alter, but improve, pressure through the Bata Shoe switch.

Varied Languages

CALGARY (CP) — Blackfoot, Japanese, Swahili and Romanian will be offered at the University of Calgary's 1971 summer school. The university says Blackfoot is an important language in southern Alberta, Japanese will be useful to trade representatives while Swahili is the most widely used non-European language in East Africa. Romanian will be taught because of the economic and cultural importance of Canada's increasing rapport with Eastern Europe.

Bridge Railings To Be Studied

City council traffic committee members are going to take a look at the policy of other municipalities and the Ontario department of highways before recommending the installation of sidewalk railings on new Belleville vehicular bridges.

The request for railings to separate sidewalks from vehicular sections of bridges was made last week after a school - aged child lost his balance on the North Front street CN railway bridge and stumbled into the side of a passing bus.

Mayor J. Russell Scott brought the matter before yesterday's traffic committee meeting suggesting that something may have to be done to protect young children.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said installation of a railing would pose no problem but suggested a pipe railing type of barricade could turn into a lethal weapon if it was hit by a passing motorist.

He asked whether such a railing would provide some degree of protection for pedestrians or whether it would be merely something for the children to play on.

Alderman Jack Ireland noted that railings have not been provided for other new bridges in the city and that it wasn't practice to install railings separating regular sidewalks from roadways.

Police Inspector Ralph Blackford said a cage type chain link fence would be necessary to completely separate sidewalks from bridge roadway areas.

Alderman E. A. Orr suggested that such an installation would appear awfully grotesque and asked if it was necessary to "put up a monkey cage" to protect children on bridges.

Before taking any action, committee members decided to check the policy in other municipalities.

Foreign Members

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta Registered Nurses Association issued membership in 1970 to 911 nurses from other provinces and foreign countries. At Dec. 31, 1970, membership totaled 9,697, an increase of 643 over a year earlier. The association also has more than 2,300 associate non-practising members.

Engineers

In Montreal, K. L. Crump, CNR vice-president in charge of labor relations, said the settlement will add more than $15 million to the wage bill of both railways in the third year of the contract. Present wages for the engineers' group are about $55 million.

Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey, his red-rimmed eyes blinking in the glare from television lights in Montreal after nearly 90 hours of negotiations, said he hoped the engineers would "understand their responsibilities to the Canadian people and go back to work."

One of the main worries in Western Canada, primarily the Prairies, was the delay of crucial grain shipments.

Monday night, however, Wheat Pool spokesmen in Vancouver said they expected normal grain movement by normal in two days. Ten ships were waiting to load and six more were partially loaded.

Urban Scene

We suppose one can be happy, after a fashion, amid the cauldrons of the big city. It depends on ones circumstances; if his work is congenial and creative if man can be happy anywhere. The bigger the city though, the greater the tangle of traffic, the pollution and police problems. The greater too is the loneliness and the isolation of the elderly for instance, and particularly those living alone.

Big cities then, for countless numbers of citizens, can be communities of despair. And not just for the elderly, but for many young people too who have lost contact with parents and home, who have copped out to use the jargon of the day, and who somehow have become lost amid the sterility of much that passes for civilization today.

It does not matter where you live, if you have not got something going for you in the mind, life can be a desolating experience. And even those cities which are as handsomely endowed by natural beauty and topography as say Vancouver, Montreal, yes even Toronto if you look for it, or Capetown, Carcase, Rio de Janeiro, Auckland (which Kipling viewed as "last, loveliest, loneliest, exquisite and apart") and Sydney have their darker side in terms of squalor, slums and the twilight world of skid rows, alcoholism and suicide.

Human beings need more than just a city of homes, business enterprises, concrete and high rise. The great jumbo jets, we are told, are flying about the world with many of their seats empty, and it may be far-fetched, but what a boon it would be if more city dwellers, those unable in the ordinary way to pay for a trip overseas, mothers and fathers and children, could be taken to other parts, where sea and sky are blue and the sun is warm and the vegetation lush. Or forget the jets and foreign parts and enable more to see the length and breadth of Canada. If we do it for the rootless young why not those of our disadvantaged citizenry who would really appreciate it? But this life is not like that, is it? A man still must make his own way, although increasingly nowadays there are the trappings of the welfare state which enable many to make a buck easier than by an honest day's work.

In any event, we have been thinking of such things in the light of Mayor Russell Scott's brief calling for a definite study to ascertain what is the ideal-sized urban community. Psychiatrists, for example, have found that problems in the larger centres increase and there are difficulties in maintaining adequate service to customers and patients by tradesmen and doctors.

This could be an interesting study which could reap valuable dividends in the society of tomorrow, in terms of efficient urban management and human happiness. To repeat, people need to experience both the community of their own city and the elements of the frontier — contact with nature, with the outdoors, with the silence where God is.

More On Calley

In President Nixon, by his intervention in the Calley case, jeopardizing the U.S. legal system, undercutting for instance the trials of others alleged to have been involved in events surrounding the My Lai massacre? How can any judiciary function properly when it is compromised in this way?

If the President's move is a gesture toward the great public outcry over Calley's conviction, it has been viewed otherwise overseas. In Britain the Sunday Times has called it submission to mob rule, to a public ruled by emotionalism and unheeding of the facts of the case as heard by the military court and ruled upon by a military jury.

There is at this stage widespread sympathy and compassion for Calley, for his bearing and courage in court, but that does not alter the facts of the My Lai affair. As we pointed out last week however, Calley is not the only guilty party; the entire echelon of command must take responsibility. The case, moreover, represents a watershed in U.S. involvement in the war.

Calley is seen in some circles as having merely committed an error of judgment, having regard to all the circumstances. But what if the villagers who died at My Lai had been Americans and Calley a Vietnamese, the U.S. public would see things in a different light. This thought must have occurred to many, and it was brought out by one of the jurors in commenting on the verdict.

To those who see communism as an awesome worldwide threat, to those who feel the U.S. has been weak-willed in its prosecution of the Vietnam war, to traditional veterans' organizations, to legislators in the South and elsewhere who have always been angered by anti-war protests and peace marchers, Lieut. Calley is a symbol of the U.S. fighting man who has been betrayed at home.

For them the stocky first lieutenant is a scapegoat. Opponents of the war who see My Lai and "free-fire zones" and bombing of civilian targets as a scar on American ideals, say that Calley's superiors and other senior military leaders should all be brought to account for alleged atrocities by U.S. soldiers in Vietnam.

As NDP's Tommy Douglas Bows Out...

Lead Balloon Atmosphere Pervades Coming Parley

By RICHARD JACKSON

Ottawa — Whatever suspense there might be in party leadership conventions — and some have crackled with tension — the New Democrats have managed to pre-cool their big political show well in advance of its late April opening.

It has been worried, too.

Because lacking the essential element of excitement how are they going to make the Page One headlines and keep the voters glued to the boob-tube even if they snag a goodly hunk of CBC and CTV network prime time.

They have nothing even remotely resembling a charismatic crown prince to crown king as had the Liberals with the coronation of Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

And they are retiring, in honor, with dignity, amid affection, their old leader Tommy Douglas, who has been both a party and personal loser for them, instead of booting him out, his back full of knives, as the Conservatives did when they retired John Diefenbaker, who had been their biggest party and personal winner of all time.

Leadership assassinations and — or enthronings are spectaculars, sometimes a blood sport, on other occasions a love tryst, but always great political box office.

And what have the New Democrats, come their April 21 opening?

Four low-key days of deliberate non-excitement, contrived quiet and austere order, leading to the dead-certain election of the all but pre-designated new leader, David Lewis, 62.

When the Liberals and the Conservatives chose their new leaders it was with colorful whoop and holler and a sure feeling at the time for each party that they had a winner.

Sure, when the Tories took Robert Stanfield, he seemed a cinch to lead them back to the power and glory days, because Diefy, old, discredited Lester Pearson was still in charge of the Liberals, and almost at once, allowed his minority Grit Government to stumble over its clumsy parliamentary feet and fall in what, by all the rules, should have been defeat on the floor of the Commons.

Maybe it was that new Tory Leader Stanfield was so sure, and the ide of victory seeming to be so swiftly rising that he could afford to be an unbelievably good political sport and let Lester Pearson fix the rules and then call for a re-play.

And when the Liberals staged their great public feast of love with PET, there was no doubt anywhere but that they were off and running in a shamelessly easy winning campaign.

But in no way can the New Dems with David Lewis or any other socialist as leader realistically hope to march to a majority vote at the federal polls.

Their Waffle Group, the anti-Americans, their welfare starters, their Quebec separatists, their Women's Libs, their student radicals, their industry-nationalizers, all personified in Professor Melville Watkins and his front-man, Professor James Laxer as cell leader, have killed any victory chance, however remote.

So that leaves but one element of a shade more than routine interest.

And that is pretty thin.

Of actual concern really only to the pols of the other parties.

And it is this: can you run a political leadership convention quietly, bare of the colorful if conventional razzmatazz, no bands, no banners, no bunting, no baton-waving babes, no balloons and well, if not exactly no booze, not enough certainly for those big bashes?

Can you hook the public on the dull stuff of policy, with no fun and frolic?

Can you keep them reading — and will there be that much of it in the newspapers — of studious debate? Or have them popping their eyes at a TV screen reflecting all the sing and swing of a seminar?

Not bloody likely, say the Backroom Boys who stage managed the comedy and tragedy of the great Diefendrama and the moonlight and roses of the Trudeau Love Story.

The New Dems are cooling it because suddenly, as their style.

Leadership candidates are limited to $10,500 each in campaign funds and that covers everything. pre-convention travel and all the costs of campaigning up to the night of the voting.

You cannot float many ballyoos, or march out platoons of drum-majorettes, buy much in banners, bands or boons for that kind of dough.

So it is shaping up as a political leadership show like no other. Dull.

But then, if it turns out it is not, the New Dems will have pulled off the convention hat-trick of the post-war years.

And a lot of fun and foolishness will have gone.

For if they can do it on the cheap and make it good, you can bet the Grits and Tories will be looking and learning.

Intellectuals Confined

Russia Remains A Repressive Society

Vancouver Sun

People in the Western countries turn with a sense of loathing from the news that tells of the forced administration of drugs to Russian political prisoners.

Most people wonder at the mentality of rulers who consign to mental institutions people who dare to differ with the official opinion. Here is Viktor Feinberg, confined to an asylum in Leningrad for daring to take part in a silent protest against the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia. Here is Vladimir Borisov, in the same institution because he circulated copies of Soviet writings.

It is natural to expect that in a totalitarian regime the more serious deviations from the government line would be repressed. This is why there is no freedom of the press under such regimes, where even the art of the painter and the fiction-writer must follow rigidly drawn rules. In the case of Russia this is known as socialist realism.

It is common knowledge that the Brezhnev-Kosygin regime has reverted to many of the repressive measures of the Stalin period and that this repressiveness probably will increase. Dissidence, especially on the part of Russian intellectuals is the main current target, but the increasing discontents of the workers under a system that still denies them freedom and a better material life, may be next.

Many in the West wonder how a few intellectuals such as Andrei Sakharov, the eminent physicist, can get away with bitter protests against the treatment of Borisov, Feinberg and others. But Sakharov represents a class of scientists deemed indispensable to the Communist regime while the others who suffer, mainly writers, poets, soldiers, are less important to the intellectual mediocrities who hold Russia in their grasp.

Sakharov's protest will get more publicity outside Russia than inside. But it comes almost on the eve of the 24th congress of the Soviet Communist party which is inconvenient for the rulers of Russia. It will be interesting to observe whether this protest of a great scientist shared no doubt by others equally important to the state, will have its effect in softening the harshness of the Russian social climate, or whether it will bring down official wrath on Sakharov himself.

Reading Matter Questioned

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

May I offer three cheers for the Belleville police for their courage in confiscating obscene publications from stores in Belleville. I take my hat off to them, and hope you get deluged with letters in the same vein.

It is too bad that the storeowners concerned were not named in the press.

The Mormon Church, otherwise known as Latter-Day Saints, was founded 141 years ago today—in 1830—at Fayette, N.Y., by Joseph Smith. Unpopularity with local citizens caused a series of moves to new places over two years, reaching Nauvoo, Ill., in 1838. The next left Nauvoo seven years later, after Smith was shot in a riot, and moved across the Great Plains to Utah. Mormon beliefs are founded on the Book of Mormon, a document Smith claimed to have received written on plates of gold, after a series of visions in the 1820s.

Calley Case Revives Anti-War Campaigners in U.S.

By PETER BUCKLEY

WASHINGTON (CP) — Lieut. William L. Calley, the pint-sized patrol leader at My Lai, has suddenly emerged as the surprising focal point of a protest that unites both opponents and defenders of United States involvement in Vietnam.

Not since the Cambodian invasion a year ago has there been such a volume of protest across the U.S. in connection with Southeast Asia.

But the unity of the protesters is superficial at best. Each side sees Calley in a different light, now that a court martial has convicted him of murdering civilians at My Lai and sentenced him to life imprisonment.

To one side Calley is a hero. To others he is a scapegoat.

So far the protest has resulted in thousands of telegrams descending on the White House and on state assemblies across the country. Members of draft boards have quit. Congressmen and state legislators have promulgated resolutions against Calley's sentence.

Vigils and marches—including at least three in Washington—as well as petition campaigns and lowered flags have all formed part of a widespread indignation which has blossomed around the unlikely figure of a man who felt it was "no big deal, sir" to "waste" a group of unarmed civilians.

The protest comes at a time when feeling about the Vietnam war seemed about to emerge on its own from the winter's lethargy and numbness.

Although the recent South Vietnamese invasion of Laos provoked little dissent in the U.S. at the time, there was evidence that public feeling was beginning to be aroused by related reports of confusion and failed objectives in Laos.

Radical objectors have begun preparing plans for anti-war marches and demonstrations. More and more members of both House and Senate of Congress have been speaking with greater vigor against a lack of concrete plans to get American troops out of Vietnam. Moderate citizens' groups have again appeared with advertising campaigns against the war.

The Calley verdict could well inject new fuel into the protest movements.

Although the so-called right-wing Americans—those who oppose the anti-war movement—seem to be in a majority among those protesting against punishment for Lieut. Calley, their ranks have traditionally lacked both unity and staying power.

Whether or not they have formed a majority, as President Nixon believes, they have usually been silent.

The anti-war movement, on the other hand, has been both vocal and more persistent. Stirred by the Calley affair, it is more likely to produce sustained and expanded protest.

A bitter joke now going the rounds in Washington should give food for thought to both sides in the Vietnam issue.

"It's not that the majority is silent," the wags say, "it's just that Washington is deaf."

Macpherson Sets Record for Awards

TORONTO (CP) — Cartoonist Duncan Macpherson of the Toronto Star is the first contestant in the 22-year history of the National Newspaper Awards to be honored for the fifth time, the awards committee announced today.

The 46-year-old cartoonist is one of eight 1970 award winners who will be honored at the annual awards dinner in Toronto April 17 at which news broadcaster Walter Cronkite of the Columbia Broadcasting System will be guest speaker.

Two other members of The Star staff won awards, Tom Hazlitt for spot news reporting and Anthony Westell for staff corresponding.

Other winners were Jacke Wolf, New Westminister Columbian, for editorial writing; Michael Popovich, Toronto Telegram, feature writing; Franz Maier, Toronto Globe and Mail, spot news photography; Glenn Baglo, Vancouver Sun, feature photography, and Robert Hanley, Hamilton Spectator, sports writing.

Citations for merit were awarded to Marcel Gingras, Ottawa Le Droit, in editorial writing and Joseph MacSween, The Canadian Press, in spot news reporting.

It was the third award for Mr. Westell and Mr. Hanley and the second for Mr. Hazlitt.

Mr. Macpherson, a winner in 1959, 1960, 1962 and 1965, won his fifth award for a drawing of a group of ghetto children with the caption Tomorrow's Guerrillas. He has been with The Star since 1958 and was previously an illustrator for Maclean's magazine.

Mr. Hazlitt, 47, who won his previous spot news award in 1962 with the Vancouver Province, was honored again for a story revealing the existence of a secret closet in a Montreal apartment which concealed the suspected kidnappers of Pierre Laporte during a police raid.

A Second World War veteran of the Royal Canadian Navy, Mr. Hazlitt joined The Province after graduating from the University of British Columbia and moved to The Star in 1966.

Mr. Westell, 43, who won awards in editorial writing in 1963 and spot news reporting in 1967 when he was with The Globe and Mail, was born in Exeter, Devon, and came to Canada in 1956 after working for a number of English newspapers. He has been with The Star since 1969.

Chief of The Star's Ottawa bureau, he won his award in staff corresponding for a series of articles on Prime Minister Trudeau's administrative staff.

Mrs. Wolf, 25, was an award winner in her first year as an editorial writer for The Columbian, which she joined in 1969 after moving to Canada with her husband from her native Kansas the year before. She has covered the B.C. legislature and New Westminster civic affairs.

Mr. Popovich, 28, who won his award for a feature on the life and death of a drug addict, is a prize-winning photographer who came to The Telegram from the Oakville Journal-Record 5½ years ago.

A ringside dispatch from the Atlanta fight between Muhammad Ali and Jerry Quarry won Mr. Hanley his third sports-writing award. A previous winner in 1964 and 1968, Mr. Hanley, 34, has been with The Spectator for 36 years and has been its sports editor and columnist since 1958.

Mr. Maier, 41, is the first Canadian to win the British Press Picture of the Year award, presented to him last December for a photograph of a girl trapped under a truck. The Austrian-born photographer has been a freelancer with The Globe and Mail since 1967 and has won three Canadian Press Picture of the Month awards within the last year.

Mr. Baglo, 22, won the feature-photography award with a picture of a woman attending a faith-healing meeting. He took the prize-winning shot shortly after joining The Sun last summer from the weekly Lion's Gate Times.

Mr. Gingras, 44, has been editor of Le Droit since 1967. A former parliamentary correspondent for Le Droit and Montreal La Presse, he won a Bowater certificate in 1959 while he was with La Presse for a feature on the Northwest Territories.

Mr. MacSween, 51, won previous NNA citations for feature writing in 1959 and staff corresponding in 1966. Montreal-based veteran of 25 years with CP, he won his third citation for a story on the funeral of Mr. Laporte.

The awards, established by the Toronto Men's Press Club, are based on a self-sustaining fund to which the following newspapers and groups have contributed:

Halifax Herald, London Free Press, Montreal Gazette, Montreal Star, Regina Leader-Post, Saskatoon Star-Phoenix, Toronto Globe and Mail, Toronto Star, Toronto Telegram, Windsor Star, French-language Dailies, FP Publications, Southam Newspapers and Thomson Newspapers.

More Than Ever Visit Sugarbush

The weather wasn't exactly conducive to good syrup making but that didn't discourage Quinte area residents from turning out in force for this year's sugar bush pioneer station and pancake festival sponsored by the Moira River Conservation Authority.

There was no actual count taken at the Irvine sugarbush at Fuller but the turnout for the syrup making demonstration indicated there is still keen interest in the pioneer art of making maple syrup.

Authority officials reported traffic jams at the Irvine bush on both weekends of the demonstration.

And the turnout for the maple syrup and pancakes at the Moira community hall surpassed all previous records.

Officials of Crescent Rebekah Lodge at Thomasburg, who catered to the event, reported 1,792 persons were served pancakes at the former United Church, while another 2,000 were served hotdogs and coffee. Last year, 1,200 persons turned out for the pancake festival.

A breakdown of ingredient requirements showed 67 pounds of butter were used; 200 pounds of pancake mix, 220 pounds of ham and 68 gallons of maple syrup.

Four hundred pancakes, especially prepared for those with a really sweet tooth, lasted only two hours before they were sold out.

Since the Easter school break, schoolchildren in Belleville and area have been going daily to the Irvine sugarbush to take in the syrup making demonstration with busloads making the trek each day.

But the syrup making also is proving an attraction for young people from outside the Quinte district.

Over the past weekend a busload of Brownies came in from Kingston and another busload of cubs and scouts from Whitby.

And for two adults, the sugarbush demonstration was a completely new experience.

A couple from Australia visiting in the area, saw the syrup making operation for the first time.

Prince Edward Heights 'Coming Along Nicely'

PICTON (Staff) — Robert MacKenzie, administrator for Prince Edward Heights, a new institution for the mentally retarded, has stated that the major facets of its program will be activity and training units to be developed independently.

"The Heights will be a community unto itself," remarked Mr. MacKenzie, addressing the annual meeting of the Prince Edward Association for the Mentally Retarded.

"Two barrack blocks and houses are being renovated at a cost of $2.2 million. The former Craig barrack will be used for the activity program and will accommodate 180 of the more severely retarded from Smiths Falls."

The newly appointed administrator added that the development of Prince Edward Heights is "coming along nicely".

"Patients will be accepted as soon as we're ready and that's not very far away," said Mr. MacKenzie.

In three years, the complex is expected to employ a staff of 450 people and to accommodate 600 patients. Socialization and vocational training will be provided for the moderately and the mildly retarded.

A group of moderate retardates will be the first patients to occupy the new hospital. A full-time chaplain will be in residence at Prince Edward Heights and school facilities should be available in the fall of this year.

A staff training program probably will begin in May on an open house will be conducted at the hospital before patients are admitted.

Dean of Medical Faculty Warns of Frequent Strikes

MONTREAL (CP) — Medical strikes have a devastating effect on both the health professions and the population, yet they will occur with increasing frequency as government assumes more control of doctors, Dr. Maurice McGregor, dean of McGill University's medical faculty, said today.

He told a meeting of the American College of Surgeons that the strike by Quebec specialists last November left the physicians "only with some emotional scars and a profound belief that we do not wish ever again to live through such an episode."

"An individual, a nation, a profession, is what it believes itself to be. The profession has a self-image which above all else puts the patient's interest first."

However, when the Quebec Federation of Medical Specialists decided its members would strike to protest the method by which the government was implementing medical health insurance, Dr. McGregor said, doctors were caught in the middle.

"It became necessary for some of the most dedicated physicians I have ever known to tell their most devoted patients that when they became ill, they, their doctors, would not be available to help them.

"The alternative to this was to break ranks with their colleagues. Most chose the former course, some chose the latter."

Only one positive idea came out of the strike, he said, and it was "that each one must be true to his self-image."

"Doctors are not plumbers. They have a self-image which does not allow them easily to pressure government by causing harm or even inconvenience to their patients.

"However greatly it may be justified, strike is a weapon that our profession can only wield with great danger to itself."

To counteract the possibility of increasing medical strikes, Dr. McGregor said, both the government and the health profession must establish "a new set of binding ground rules for such negotiations."

"They would control, in particular, the release of information by either party during the course of negotiations. They would be designed to prevent the growth of rumor and of planted half-truths which in our recent dispute did so much to prevent reasonable dialogue.

"We must avoid from the beginning a situation where the state and the profession even start to assume the position of adversaries."

Furthermore, he said, the medical profession must lead the thinking, research and experimentation which precedes steps such as health insurance.

"We have reason to believe in specialization, a specialization which encourages us to do our medical thing, and which leads us to expect that somebody else, maybe a municipality or a government, will design and execute changes in our health care system for us.

"This expectation has clearly been in error. It is we who operate the hospitals and offices, we who are most aware of its defects and who should be most competent to point out where change and reform is most necessary."

Some 600 surgeons from Canada and the U.S. are attending the college's meeting which ends here Wednesday.

HOW MUCH HOUSE CAN YOU AFFORD?

There is no substitute for an honest accounting of your financial situation when you answer this question so be frank and open about it from the beginning.

If it is done wisely, with all your money responsibilities in view, purchasing a home can prove a personal blessing and one of the best of all investments.

This is the kind of transaction a responsible Realtor aims for and you can rest assured he'll come up with the right property for you by being frank with him.

What amount of monthly mortgage payments will your income allow? How much down payment can you make? Have you taken into account the taxes, utilities and other costs of ownership? These are answers your Realtor needs if you give his best counsel.

Young couples whose desires outreach their financial capabilities must guard against getting involved in excessive secondary financing at high interest rates or with repayment in full after they are not likely to have the cash.

Seek a Realtor in whom you can put your confidence and explain your situation fully to him. It is a good beginning toward a happy ending.

Women's Lib Favorite Topic

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — It's great to hear tough truck drivers talking favorably about women's liberation, says 22-year-old Donna Fraser.

Donna works in her mother's coffee shop, a favorite stop for truck drivers, and the pair have converted untold numbers of men to the cause.

"The funniest part is that I never start a conversation on women's lib," said Donna. "I just wear a little pin on my lapel with a fist in a women's sign—it gets them every time."

When truck drivers and men from local offices drop in for their morning break, the coffee shop erupts into lively discussion, sometimes with raised voices and pounding on tables.

"Our customers must like it. They keep coming back. Sometimes perfect strangers come in asking for liberation headquarters. And if I'm not doing well in a conversation, Mum can always pitch in and help."

"Mum" is Irene Maio, 45, called that by all the regulars.

Mrs. Maio said she comes from a long line of fighters. One aunt in Wales, Jenny, was actively involved in the Welsh labor movement while another aunt, Katy, was a determined suffragette.

Donna said her husband and her father were skeptical at first when the women started their campaign, especially the call for removal of abortion from the Criminal Code.

"Then Dad was completely converted by a TV program and he's been a campaigner for abortion law repeal, day care and equal job opportunities for women ever since."

Donna said she was influenced by the report of the royal commission on the status of women.

"I suddenly realized that report could make a big change in the lives of women and in my life. I realized that women's liberation affects every woman."

Just then the coffee shop's baker walked in, and Mrs. Maio said he opposes her arguments every time.

"You're right—I still don't think abortion is right, except maybe for a woman who's already had three or four kids," the baker said.

"But can't you see that would be forcing your opinion on other people?" asked Mrs. Maio. "Who are you to judge who can have a legal operation?"

The baker was unconvinced.

"What would you do if your 15-year-old daughter became pregnant?" I

Mrs. Maio said later that this question is one her customers don't like to consider. "Everyone assumes that illegitimate pregnancies will never happen in their own family."

Mother and daughter both joined a march when members of the Peterborough Women's Caucus presented a brief asking doctors' support for removal of abortion from the Criminal Code.

"I'm a shy person but this is one topic I feel obligated to discuss," said Mrs. Fraser, who has a young daughter of her own.

Women's lib isn't the only concern in the coffee shop. Mum Maio scolds teen-agers when they refer to their mothers as "my old lady" and pours coffee into them when she thinks they had too much to drink.

"I threaten to put their livers on display in a glass pickle jar after they've been shrivelled up by booze or even bored," she said with a smile.

JUMPSUIT — Green shantung jumpsuit by Pedro Rodiguez of Spain. A trademark of his collection is the use of plastic discs as hem and sleeve accents. Leading Spanish couturiers have just completed their annual two-week showings of their spring collections. (CP Photo)

A Two-week Showing Of Spanish Fashions

MADRID (CP) — The leading Spanish couturiers have just completed their annual two-week showings of their spring collections to invited clients and, yes, hot pants are in in Spain as elsewhere.

However, the hot pants shown by Pedro Rodriguez are slightly longer than the versions of most Canadian manufacturers.

The range at a showing in his three-room salon with pale grey walls and taupe furnishings covered casual side-slit dresses over hot pants, a number of skirt-suits and a few pants with coats, dresses with both sloping Japanese and puckered shoulders, and evening gowns heavily encrusted with embroidery and jewels, exquisitely done by hand.

Hemlines for daytime are about three inches below the knee. Coats and dresses are mostly shaped, without belts.

A trademark of this collection was Rodriguez's use of plastic discs as hem and sleeve accents. A casual bolero and below-knee pants were both edged in these discs that jangled amusingly. The slit sides of a strawberry dress showed matching short pants with plastic fringe.

Suit jackets and coats featured extra-large buttons. Deep fringes were also popular, as a black-on-white print dress with black fringe falling from sleeveless shoulder almost to knees and with a deep fringe over the skirt.

Short pants costumes were also featured in the beige-and-taupe salon of Enrique Ollero and Rafael Herrera, whose styles are slightly younger in feeling than those of Rodriguez. They also showed short jump suits with removable skirt, the skirts being horizontally striped in several colors. In dresses, they liked a flounced look for late-day wear. A white tank-top dress had two organza flounces at neckline, a flounce under the wide, black waistband and a black edging to the flounce pecking out under the skirt hem.

The only knicker outfit they showed was for evening, in orange chiffon with a front-slit matching dress, completely jewelled. An interesting pant variation was their costume of cerise pants with tight ankle cuffs, worn with a white shirt and sleeveless navy coat.

Another designer was Marbella Junior, the 26-year-old who shot into the haute couture circle in 1963 when he took over his uncle's salon and was commissioned to create the trousseau for the wedding of Queen Fabiola.

He started the pants craze in Spain in 1964 and his collection this year was still avant-garde. His latest are brief, tiny bloomers bouncing out from under a flat tipline.

Panty Hose Big Business

TEL AVIV (Reuter) — Female legs sheathed in fine hosiery mean hard currency for Israel.

Millions of the world's fashion-conscious women are wearing Israeli-made panty hose, which have brought the country more than $20 million in the last year alone.

One jump ahead of the fashion trends, Israeli producers realized the possibilities of the panty hose revolution when sheer nylons were still the favorites.

The new stretch fashion is a flatterer. It shows off not only a trim ankle or a rounded calf but also the feminine thigh in mini-skirts and hot-pants style.

One reason for its success is the way it caters to local tastes. Not only are the lengths and shades adjusted, but even the brand names are tailored to suit the customers' fancy.

In Canada and Japan the panty hose are sold under the "cancan" label. In South Africa they are known as "Zulu."

They sell under the 'Hans' brand name in the United States, where four out of every 100 women wear the Israeli-made hosiery.

Israeli hosiery sales abroad this year will reach 130 million pairs, says the director-general of the Israel Fiber Co., the power behind the panty hose production line.

David Lautman expects sales to top 220 million pairs in two years' time. Yet three years ago not a single pair of Israeli-made hosiery was sold overseas.

Israel went into the hosiery business in a big way just before the 1967 six-day Arab-Israeli war when the economy was undergoing a serious recession.

Bernard Gibersten, owner of Societe Begg, the largest hosiery firm in Israel, then on a visit to Israel, decided to build there the first plant in the world devoted to panty hose production.

The $15-million Gibor Co. now employs 1,500 workers in 13 different plants throughout Israel.

It is the only manufacturer in the world to produce the finished panty hose from flat nylon yarn. Other manufacturers buy the stretch nylon already processed.

UCW MEETINGS

TABERNACLE UCW

Mrs. Nelson president of Tabernacle UCW opened the March meeting with a reading, after which a devotional period centred around Holy week, was led by Mrs. Priest who gave readings on "Good news of Good Friday" and told of customs in Jerusalem pertaining to Holy week. Assisting in devotions were Mrs. Boyce, Mrs. Mahler and Mrs. Cornish.

Following a short business period, Mrs. Wessels introduced the speaker Mrs. L. Ashley of St. John, Ambulance. She dealt with practical services of this organization and mentioned only a few which included the training of junior cadets in home aid, child care and baby sitter care. She noted that many nurses and doctors began their careers through this influence.

One of their projects is with the Women's Hospital Auxiliary which needs magazines, puppets, scraps of cloth and articles for the Good Samaritan Cupboard.

Mrs. Ashley closed her talk with the thought, "The more you give, the more you receive."

Thanks was expressed to the speaker by Mrs. Lott and the president, after which refreshments were served by Unit 1.

Tweed UCW Sponsor Fashion Show

TWEED — Over 170 tickets were sold for the fashion show held in the United Church Hall, Tweed March 29. The show was sponsored by the Evening Unit of the United Church Women. The clothing for the show was provided by Quinn's Department Store, Tweed, the hats by Emerson's Hat Shoppe, and the hair styles by Veronica's Beauty Salon, also of town.

Music was provided by Jean Belch and Ann Bowe, with Mrs. Clive Kingston singing two solos.

Models for the evening were Gwen Kingston, Eileen Tate, Cathy Cope, Rhona Campbell, Betty McMurray, Ann Way, Doris Hodgins, Mabel Emerson, Brenda Jones, Peggy Palmateer, Linda Castellon and Shirley Ballentyne. Donna Armstrong was the commentator.

Winners of the several prizes included Mrs. Anthony Quinn, Mrs. William Carroll, Mrs. Joe Mumby, Mrs. Raymond Rivers, Mrs. Gerald Campbell, Mrs. Ceil Hummell, Mrs. Cleon Rashotte and Mrs. George Owens.

The 4-H girls and their leaders Mrs. J. Jessop and Mrs. J. Baker gave a most interesting display of their year's work to highlight a recent meeting of the Carmel WI.

The project working with wool was displayed which was a cotton apron showing fancy needlework. Cheryl Reid gave a reading on the correct methods of cleaning, brushing, and pressing woollen material. She advised that when washing, never lift wool out of the water without putting your hand under it so as not to stretch it out of shape.

Janet McMurter received a gift for completing 4-H clubs.

Mrs. G. Graham the president conducted the business. Officers were reminded to make out their reports for April meeting.

Mrs. Faye Bradshaw convener introduced Mrs. Joy Putman who demonstrated arranging flowers. A cup and saucer arrangement and a corsage were created.

The 4-H girls and leaders served lunch.

TORONTO (CP) — Putting children with learning problems in regular classrooms with normal children doesn't always work, said Dr. E. N. McKeown, the co-inspector of special education for the Toronto board of education. "Taking a child out of an opportunity class and putting him in a regular class, if he is not accepted by the other children and by the classroom teacher, can be as psychologically devastating as putting him in a phone booth or in an open field," he said.

Government Posters Lampoon Cigarettes

By DORIS CLARK

A recent poster turned out by the Department of National Health and Welfare shows a black-and-yellow striped cat lighting a cigarette and winking one eye. The caption reads: "It might be different if you had nine lives!"

Another shows a fish looking with raised eyebrows at a hook baited with a cigarette. The caption: "If you never bite . . . You can never be hooked!"

As for the pole vaulter whose supporting pole is a mammoth cigarette, he never makes it over the bar because the cigarette bends under his weight and lets him down.

It just isn't funny the things that the unreliable, false friends, the cigarette, does to you.

Dear Doris: Is there some way food could be frozen and thereby kill germs it may contain? We live next door to a hospital, and it bothers me to think of the wasted food — thrown in the incinerator day after day — and know that this is repeated in every hospital in the province, every province in Canada.

Isn't there some way untouched food could be sterilized, frozen and then flown off to the starving masses of the world?

And even if it isn't possible (to sterilize) isn't it just possible that these people (the poor) if they had an opportunity to choose, might choose to take a chance on disease rather than die slowly of malnutrition? At least they would die with tummies full! — Wasted Food

Dear Wasted: Yes, waste is appalling; but no hospital kitchen can guarantee not to burn the buns.

Freezing does not kill all germs. Sterilization by heat would kill most of the vitamin content of the food and make it unpalatable. As for re-using it, untouched, the Department of Health would take a dim view.

Even when pig farmers collect edible waste, the garbage has to be steam treated before it is fed to the hogs, which is extremely expensive.

One hospital administrator described to me two methods of controlling waste: One is portion control, which means keeping the servings small. The other is a selective menu in which patients receive only those items which they tick off.

Incidentally, given even pure first-hand food, the problem of collecting it, packing it, shipping it by air from Canada to far-off hungry destinations, is well-nigh insurmountable.

Dear Doris: When I hear of abortion, I look at our little adopted girl, and wonder how people can think she has no right to life just because her mother didn't want her. Abortionists are selfish people who forget that other people would love to have their babies even if they don't.

I can sympathize with those in danger of life, but not those who simply don't want a child at such and such a time. I dare each of them to come to our home, pick up our cuddly wee bundle, and say she should have been aborted instead of toddling at our proud feet. — We want them! — Adopted Parents

Dear Parents: — And in most places there is a waiting list of hopefuls like yourselves!

* * *

Yet there is this business of the population explosion and the provision of food; and large families getting larger, and unmarried mothers who can't bear to solve their problem by giving away "flesh of their flesh".

Churches disagree on the issue. Surely the answer is to making it possible to deal with each case on its merits?

Ann Landers

Real Friend Refrains From Such Calls

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You don't know me and I don't know you so I'm sure of getting an unprejudiced opinion — which I need desperately.

ANN LANDERS

What kind of person calls a recently divorced woman and says, "We just returned from Florida where we ran into your ex and his new wife. They look terrific and are deliriously happy. She is so thin you wouldn't know her — looks like a million dollars. Her jewelry would knock your eyes out. He's in great shape — looks ten years younger, doesn't take his eyes off her. He beams in her presence — etc., etc., ya ta ta ta ta . . .".

This happened to me a week ago and I'm not over it yet. Why would a friend make such a call? — NO IDENTIFICATION PLEASE.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My cousin married at age 18. She came to my house last week in tears. They have been married only two months and she is afraid of her husband. It seems he slaps her around and twists her arms when she talks back to him. He told her that this is the way all the men in his family treat their wives and it works beautifully. He proclaimed with considerable pride that there hasn't been a divorce in his family for 60 years. Please comment. — D. MOINES.

* * *

DEAR D.: No divorces in 60 years, eh? Any murders? A woman who lets her husband slap her around and twist her arm is sick. And it's interesting how often those sick women find men who will oblige. I'm in favor of all these nuts marrying each other and leaving the sane people alone.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: After having survived a horrible experience, I have one bit of advice for other college girls. I'll make it simple: Stay away from guys who are into drugs.

When I returned to college in September I met a senior who intrigued me. He was sensitive, intelligent and aware. On our first date I learned he smoked grass and dropped psychedelics. But that didn't affect me. Get it?

I figured he could be himself and I could be myself. What he did was up to him. I had no right to try to change him. After a few weeks I began to care deeply about this guy, and he for me. He made lots of sense between smokes and trips. I kept telling myself, "It's O.K. if he does his thing. I won't be touched by it." But I didn't know how it is with dope freaks. They won't compromise. They keep trying to drag you down to their level and finally they succeed. What he said was mind-expanding was merely freaking out, but I didn't figure it out until I had been through a good bit of hell myself. So I'm warning you, girls, if you are curious about the drug scene, talk to a few heads and ask them why they are into the junk. But don't get too close. It's not worth it. — BACK FROM THE DEAD.

* * *

DEAR BACK: Welcome — and thanks for the message. I hope you know how lucky you are to have made it back in time to write a literate and coherent letter. Many letters I receive from former drug users are so muddled-up they make no sense. I appreciate your writing and thank you for doing so.

Preparation for Dinners-for-Two in Advance

By MARY MOORE

Mrs. Ivan H. wrote asking for about 10 dinners for two people to be prepared in advance or in a hurry.

I mailed to her what we had in print but decided that the country is populated with lots of two - people families to whom I do not give enough space. So I prepared a dinner for two in a hurry. I bought a can of Canadian Corned Beef Hash for 53 cents, and some fresh medium-sized eggs (3 doz. for 89 cents at time of writing) and made

CORNED BEEF HASH TOPPED WITH EGGS FOR TWO

2 tbsps. butter
One 15-oz. can Corned Beef Hash
4 medium-sized eggs

Melt butter in electric frying pan. Open both ends of hash can and push contents out onto plate. Cut crosswise into four even rounds. Carefully transfer to bubbling butter in pan and make depression with tablespoon in each big enough to accommodate a small egg. If edges split coax them together again with knife and spoon. Quickly fill each depression with an egg and put on lid and cook on "high" until film forms over yolk (not more than 5 min.)

Serve at once. I thought this was especially good and that it would be ideal for a Sunday brunch.

We had a salad of wedges of avocado, orange and tomato with this which was prepared and on the table before the hash was cooked.

I served Pears Helene with this but I made the Raspberry Sauce for the night before which is what Mrs. Ivan H. can do, for it will serve as a sauce for a dessert for a future meal because it keeps well.

RASPBERRY SAUCE (for Pears Helene or Ice Cream Topping)

One 15-oz. pkge. fresh frozen raspberries
Water (see below)
1 tbsp. corn starch (or preferably arrowroot flour)
2 tbsps. sugar

Thaw frozen raspberries and drain through a sieve and measure juice. Push raspberries through sieve to puree them until just seeds are left in sieve. I had 3 tbsps. seedy sediment to discard. Make up to 2 cups by adding water to juice and puree.

Mix sugar, mix dry together the corn starch (or arrowroot flour if used), sugar and salt. Then stir in raspberry puree and syrup and cook stirring until thick and 1 min. longer. Cool. Pour into jar, cover and chill.

To assemble Pears Helene put a scoop of ice cream in stemmed glass. Top with canned pear half (or peach), rounded side up and spoon over top a generous amount of Raspberry Sauce.

Dinner Menu

Mixed Grill: Lamb Chops, Sausages, Chicken Livers; Potatoes au Gratin; Buttered Corn; Sliced Tomatoes and Cucumber; Tutti-Fruitti Tapioca; Tea.

Lack of Jobs Sparks Bitter Commentary

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government delivered a blistering attack in the legislature Monday on federal fiscal policies during a special debate on unemployment.

But in return the government found itself raked over the economic coals for its policies toward the jobless by the two opposition parties.

Liberal and New Democratic parties introduced non-confidence amendments to a government resolution that "this house express its grave concern over the serious unemployment prevailing in Ontario and throughout Canada."

In February, 207,000 Ontarians or 6.5 per cent of the province's labor force were without jobs. This compared with 4.5 per cent for the same time last year and an average of three per cent in recent years.

The Liberal amendment to the resolution said the government of Ontario did not take sufficient steps to alleviate the unemployment situation.

The NDP expressed "equally grave concern over the abject failure of this government to offset the job-destruction policies of the government of Canada."

In his amendment, NDP Leader Stephen Lewis proposed "a major home-building program." immediate tax cuts for people on the lower end of the income scale, additional allowances for persons on fixed incomes, stepped-up public works programs, and an expansionist policy that would reduce unemployment to two per cent on a seasonally-adjusted rate.

In his speech to the government motion, Provincial Treasurer Darcy McKeough suggested possible tax cuts for Ontarians when he brings down his budget April 26.

"We are actively reviewing tax measures that will serve . . . to stimulate the economy further," he said.

Liberal leader Robert Nixon said the minister "came as close as humanly possible to announcing a tax reduction and we will wait and see what form it will take."

Mr. McKeough said the federal government should do some tax-trimming of its own, and should remove the three-per-cent surtax on personal and corporate incomes.

He also advocated lowering the value of the Canadian dollar and lowering interest rates to stimulate export industries.

He criticized the federal government's lack of decision on its financial white paper which made it difficult for businesses which didn't know the conditions under which they would be operating.

Mr. McKeough said the federal government, instead of continuing economic policies instituted to curb inflation 18 months ago, should undertake "vigorous fiscal measures" that would secure expansion in industry to absorb the normal growth in the labor force.

Federal policies to curb inflation resulted in revenue losses to the Ontario government in corporate income taxes of about 10 per cent, he said.

In the last fiscal year, the government expected $457 million in corporate taxes but received $419 million. There has been some improvement in economic growth in recent months but it is still "in the fragile stages of recovery" and has not improved the situation in the labor market.

When he reviewed provincial programs to create jobs, Mr. McKeough was drowned out in laughter from opposition benches when he mentioned a $500 million home-building program outlined in the throne speech.

Mr. Nixon called the program a "near-fraudulent overstatement" because it would create only 19,000 more jobs than previous program and result in only 4,000 more housing starts.

Mr. Lewis said "no one knows if the homes will be built at part of your plethora of promises," and even if the government reached its objective of 30,000 housing units it would be only a 10.9-per-cent increase over last year.

Both party leaders criticized the government for large capital works projects such as $13 million for Ontario Place, $24 million for two office blocks and $7.1 million for improvements to Osgoode Hall law school during a time of high inflation.

Mr. Lewis said the money should have been used to more advantage "as a fiscal instrument instead of an instrument of Conservative patronage."

He said that in Manitoba, 10,000 jobs were created over the winter, meaning one job for every 69 persons in the work force but Ontario could only muster one job for every 782 persons in the work force.

Walter Pitman (NDP—Peterborough) said even with continued growth the province cannot keep its people working as industries close and services become automated.

The government, he said, should use shorter work weeks, longer holidays and six-month sabbaticals to redistribute work and leisure.

Lawrence Will Meet Doctors

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister A. B. Lawrence said Monday he will meet officials of the Ontario Medical Association within 10 days to discuss its higher fee schedule that is to go into effect May 1.

In the legislature, Mr. Lawrence told Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP—Toronto High Park) the health department has suggested half a dozen alternatives, including a proposal that the OMA charge only 67 per cent of the new fees to the Ontario Health Services Insurance Plan. Under the present fee schedule, doctors charge 90 per cent to the government-financed insurance plan and many charge the remainder to the patient.

Outside the house, he said discussions with the OMA had been "reasonable."

"No one has threatened in any way. I haven't threatened government intervention; they haven't threatened suspension of services."

Mr. Lawrence also told the legislature that when he meets federal Health Minister John Munro, "highest priority" will be given to discussions on whether nursing-home fees would be added to payments to the provinces for health services.

He refused to comment when asked by William Ferrier (NDP —Cochrane South) whether the province would pay nursing-home fees under OHSIP if the federal government does not.

During the question period Mr. Lawrence told Eli Martel (NDP—Sudbury East) he will ask department officials to assess a proposal to convert portable classrooms into convalescent units to relieve a bed shortage at Sudbury's hospital.

Opposition Continues to Fight Reorganization

OTTAWA (CP) — Striving to keep alive a marathon Commons debate on the government's reorganization bill, opposition spokesmen sought fresh ways Monday to express their oft-repeated contempt for the measure.

Committee debate on the bill, now entering its 20th day, dealt with a section that would allow the cabinet to name up to five new ministers and supporting departments without consulting Parliament.

Most opposition MPs already have spoken against the clause at least once and now have to concentrate on trying to find fresh ways of expressing their dissent to keep the debate going.

Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) said everyone is familiar with his distaste for the reorganization bill but perhaps it would help to view Canada in an international setting.

For starters, the prime minister in Canada had far more power than either the president of the United States or the British prime minister.

The Canadian leader could appoint cabinet ministers without Parliamentary approval, whereas the president had to seek congressional ratification for his cabinet.

Treasury Board President C. M. Drury led the government counter-attack by saying new ministers of state will strengthen Parliament.

He said the power, authority, credibility and relevance of the Commons would be increased by the provision because it would enable quick appointments of ministers in problem areas and provide the opposition with an individual who could be held accountable.

Mr. Lambert said everyone with an open mind can see that the prime minister does not need the added strength of new cabinet ministries.

"The prime minister can always hold a sword over the heads of his cabinet, the parliamentary secretaries and any of his supporters in the chamber by threatening to call an election."

Mr. Drury said ministers of state are made necessary by quickly changing circumstances which often are short-term and do not warrant appointment of a full-time minister.

Ministers of state would be appointed on a short-term basis to formulate policy with the help of high-quality assistants.

Chretien in Australia

DARWIN (Reuter) — A sociological study tour led by Jean Chretien, Canadian minister for Indian affairs and northern development, today was to visit remote Yirrkala aboriginal village in Australia's north-focal point of an historic land rights issue.

Members of the parliamentary party have shown interest in the land rights controversy.

The Northern Territory Supreme Court is expected to deliver a judgment later this month on the claim by the Yirrkala aboriginals to traditional ownership of the Gove Peninsula in Arnhem Land native reserve.

A Swiss-Australian consortium is spending $310 million to exploit a massive bauxite-alumina deposit in the area.

Research into aboriginal life recently disclosed a primitive but recognizable real estate system among tribesmen which the aborigines claim colonialists should have recognized.

The Commons gave third and final reading Monday to a Senate bill paving the way for the metric system of measurement to replace the inches-pound system in Canada.

Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford said the introduction of the metric system in certain areas represents a significant advance for Canada.

During debate on the reorganization bill, John Lundrigan (PC —Gander-Twillingate) said the measure will enable Prime Minister Trudeau to appoint all federal MPs to positions of authority.

He said each of the 28 ministers would have at least one parliamentary secretary and many would have two. This meant more than 60 important jobs under the direct control of the prime minister.

This was a new and frightening way of looking at the situation, he said.

"Members of the Liberal party are showing a great deal of fear," he said."I don't blame them. They are members who want to become part of the establishment. They want to play their role."

Robert McCleave (PC—Halifax-East Hants) asked why the prime minister should have carte blanche to create new ministries.

Instead, he said, arrangements could be made among parties to limit debate on the establishment of particular departments—dealing with science, women or housing—to one or four days.

"We're simply afraid to give such sweeping powers to any government," he said.

The government has already indicated it is considering setting up ministries to deal with housing and the problems of women.

Andre Fortin (Creditiste—Lotbiniere) said the creation of new ministries would only add to the Ottawa bureaucracy which already was too large.

The opposition was simply trying to increase its power beyond reasonable limits.

W. T. McCutcheon (PC—Lambton-Kent) said the Liberals can't expect the opposition to pass the bill simply because the government was in a majority position.

The government planned to use the bill as a vehicle for distributing patronage.

In the Senate Monday, Senator J. Harper Prowse (L—Alberta) said Canada would lose one-third of its unrestricted Pacific Northwest market if the trans-Alaska pipeline is built.

This would be a serious blow to the Alberta oil industry, already running at half capacity. He said a pipeline will be built to bring oil from the North to southern markets. The question was when and where.

Judge Charges Threat

SUDBURY (CP) — A citizenship court judge said Monday senior civil servants attempt to influence decisions in citizenship applications.

Judge O. J. Godin told a news conference that Charles Lussier, assistant undersecretary of state, called him to Ottawa after he had ruled on a citizenship case.

"He indicated to me in no uncertain terms that if I would not reverse a decision as he indicated, he would have the minister fire me."

Ontario Place Rises from Toronto Waterfront

TORONTO — Less than two years ago there was only water, but now on Lake Ontario, south of Toronto's Canadian National Exhibition grounds, there looms the 96-acre Ontario Place complex. Today, passersby can see the space-age silhouette of the five-pod Ontario Place pavilion, the domed Cinesphere theatre, and the 46 acres of landscaped man-made islands that constitute the new exhibition showcase of the province and its people. It opens officially May 22.

The daring proposal of creating this entirely new government of Ontario complex on the Toronto waterfront was first announced on August 16, 1968, by Prime Minister John Robarts, when he officially opened that year's Canadian National Exhibition. It would, he said, "utilize the natural setting of the waterfront, modern structural designs, and attempt to create the mood of gaiety and openness which helped make so popular the Ontario government pavilion at Expo '67.

"We would hope that the creation of this Government complex would be the impetus required to inspire other developments along the entire Metro Toronto waterfront," he stated.

The vision began its transformation into reality on March 17, 1969, when construction started on the complex on the lake. To create the two man - made islands at Ontario Place, more than 2,500,000 cubic yards of fill were needed, with as many as 1,800 truckloads of fill being dumped each day. By opening day, almost 30,000 trees, shrubs and plants will be in the ground; 17 acres of grass will have been sodded; 3.4 miles of pathways will have been constructed; almost half a mile of beaches will be graded and contoured. Then the east and west islands of Ontario Place will be ready for the people of Ontario, May 22.

The West island at Ontario Place is visually dominated by Cinesphere, a triodetic, dome - shaped theatre. One of the most advanced theatres in the world, it used a giant 60 x 80 foot screen, a projection capability which ranges from 16 mm. through 35, and 70 mm., to the giant, Ontario - developed "Imax" projection system which fills the entire screen, and a 24-track stereophonic sound system with 55 speakers.

Four major new films showing the people and places of various parts of the province will be shown, three of them dealing with northwestern Ontario, eastern Ontario and the Ontario waterways, have been filmed and are now in the editing stage. Shooting is now being completed on the fourth film; featuring north-central Ontario. In addition, Academy - Award - winning Christopher Chapman's new multiple - image film on Ontario, highly - praised at Osaka's Expo 70, will have its first North American public showings at Ontario Place's Cinesphere.

The east island is the location of The Forum, an 8,000 - capacity outdoor amphitheatre. Here visitors will see daily programs of live performances. The emphasis will be on Ontario and other Canadian entertainers and groups, including concerts by the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, folk, dancing, pop and rock music, and other events. A province - wide amateur talent hunt is now underway, to provide opportunities on stage at The Forum for aspiring performers from all over Ontario.

Both islands will have gaily-colored clusters of restaurants, snack bars and boutiques, as well as ample picnic areas and beaches. To welcome sailing visitors to Ontario Place there will be one of the largest, most modern and best - equipped marinas on the Great Lakes. Final dock assembly is slated for the spring. It will have 302 slips in five varying sizes, accommodating boats up to 60 feet in length.

Alongside the marina is a seafood restaurant and a sailors' pub. Adding to the nautical flavor of Ontario Place, two distinguished ships will use the site as "home port" — the brigantine Pathfinder and the World War II destroyer Haida, a veteran of the Murmansk run and of service with the United Nations in Korea.

Rising spectacularly between the east and west islands is the Ontario Place Pavilion, dramatically designed with five modular units, or "pods", suspended above Lake Ontario from 105-foot-high steel columns. In four of the five pods, a mixed-media exhibition tells the story of Ontario and its people.

Entering the Pavilion on a two-tiered walkway, the visitor first encounters the Welcome Wall, a huge spider-like structure of stainless steel which is an information centre, staffed by Ontario university students acting as hosts and hostesses.

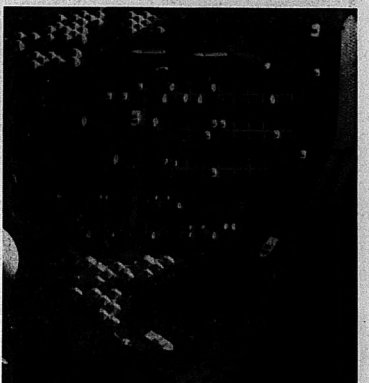
In the same exhibit pod is "Genesis", a total-environment exhibit using three-dimensional film and sound. Here the visitor "eye-witnesses" actual formation of part of earth that is now Ontario, sees its rivers, lakes, forests and plains being formed. In the next pod, called "explosions," the viewer is surrounded by a spectacular total audio-visual environment. He experiences 200 years of Ontario's economic growth, sees the sights and hears the sounds of Ontario's development. At one point, he will feel that he is actually riding in a train, as the railway's influence is depicted. The exhibit traces events right up to today's "age of technology".

The next pod contains "Ontario Style". Here through the use of unique mixed-media, the visitor becomes an actual part of the times he is seeing. To move through the exhibit he must walk between and push past inflated humanoid forms on which are projected live images representing soldiers, settlers, Indians, historical figures. At one point, he literally walks through and is part of bottles in the Seven Years' War and the War of 1812.

The last pod is "Challenges," which through artifacts and interesting objects examines Ontario's cultural identity, education, leisure time, growth and preservation of the environment. The exhibit shows how Ontario has met the challenges of the past and can meet them in the future.

The challenges of youth provides a look at Ontario through the eyes of the young: 288 three-minute color films made especially for Ontario Place by elementary and high school students from different parts of the province depict the cities, towns and villages in which they live. As a finale to the exhibit, the visitor sees a film about Ontario and its children, with a cast that includes as many as 3,500 school children from all over the province.

One of the pods, namely number two is devoted to three restaurants, a licensed lounge and banquet facilities, in addition to an outdoor refreshment and snack garden with a view, on the roof of the structure. The roofs of all five pods of the Pavilion may be used as observation areas by visitors, providing a delightful panorama of the entire site, as well as of the Toronto skyline and Lake Ontario.



Ontario Place opens officially May 22. It will be open seven days a week, from 10 a.m. till midnight, May 22 through October 11.

"Ontario Place," says Mr. Robarts, "is a new focal point for our province. A festive, exciting and informative place; a place which demonstrates a new attitude to our lakefronts; a place which offers a tremendous variety of activities to meet the variety of interests held by people from all across our province and beyond."

292 Docking Slips Planned

When Ontario Place opens May 22, it will have one of the largest, most modern marinas on the Great Lakes. Architectural model shows marina which will have 292 slips in five varying sizes, for boats up to 40 feet in length. Two pump-out stations, electrical outlets, a wash-and-dry section, and many other services will be available. A seafood restaurant and a sailors' pub will be alongside. The marina is protected by a 1500-foot-long seawall created by sinking three retired lake freighters. Ontario Place is the new 96-acre, two-island complex in Lake Ontario, south of Toronto's Exhibition grounds.

The 96-acre complex, in Lake Ontario, south of the Canadian National Exhibition grounds, Toronto, will open May 22.

Traffic Committee Considers North Front Street Entries

North Front Street businessmen are not entirely happy with roadway medians and driveway entrances proposed by planning consultants in connection with street widening for the North Front Street — Bell Blvd. area.

Elliott Motors Ltd. would like to see freer access to its place of business on the west side of North Front Street, while William Ross wants driveway and median changes to provide better access to his property at the northeast corner of Front Street and Bell Blvd.

Plans call for the installation of a median on North Front Street from south of the 401 interchange to below Bell Boulevard, and to widen North Front street at the Bell Blvd. intersection to provide for turning traffic.

One of the purposes of the median would be to restrict left - hand turns from driveway exits.

Detailed plans for the North Front Street road widening project are being prepared by Toronto consultants Damas and Smith.

Bryce Philp, sales manager for Elliott's has appeared before the city traffic committee on several occasions with respect to the North Front Street widening south of Bell Blvd., and was again before the committee yesterday.

He is mainly concerned about the new driveway entrances being wide enough to accommodate 65 foot tractor-trailer assemblies turning in for service.

Easy access was the lifeblood of the company business, he said.

Alderman Jack Ireland indicated concern for existing businesses along North Front Street.

He said it appeared that every consideration is given to new business places (Quinte Mall) while existing firms which have been in business for years were having service disrupted.

The committee decided to again contact Damas and Smith with respect to entrance widths for Elliott's.

Also the committee will call a special meeting to reconsider driveway locations for Mr. Ross and Trudeau Motors on the east side of the street, north of Bell Blvd.

The widening of North Front Street at Bell Blvd. and construction of Bell Blvd. east of North Front Street is being made necessary by the new Quinte Mall scheduled for opening in September.

Argonauts Pleasantly Surprised When Theisman Inks CFL Pact

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts were "surprised and delighted" when Notre Dame quarterback Joe Theisman changed his mind and signed a two-year contract with the Canadian Football League club.

Theismann, runner-up to Stanford's Jim Plunkett in the Heisman Trophy balloting as most valuable United States college player last season, was reported to have agreed to terms with Miami Dolphins of the National Football League early last month.

But his sudden switch stunned the Argonauts after the Toronto team had all but given up hope of landing him.

"We were surprised and delighted," John Bassett, chairman of the Argos Board of Directors, said Monday that Theismann signed the contract Sunday in Toronto.

But in Miami, the Dolphin management was apparently equally surprised by Theismann's decision.

"We have an agreement with Joe Theismann which we expect him to honor," Joe Robbie, manager of the Dolphins, said Monday when told the college star had signed with Argos.

"We reached full agreement with Joe Theismann concerning the financial terms and the length of his contract when he was in Miami."

Bassett said Theismann's visit to Miami March 8 had resulted only in an agreement as terms. The Dolphins later sent him a contract to sign but the quarterback apparently found it did not coincide completely with the terms he thought he had won.

"This gave him cause to think," Bassett said. "He phoned us and asked if we were still interested.

"We said we were and he asked us to send him a contract. We told him to come up instead. He came to town Sunday and signed."

However, Robbie said the Dolphins never discussed or changed the amount of Theismann's salary or bonus or the length of his contract after a news conference in which he participated and expressed satisfaction.

"Joe agreed we should hold the press conference to announce that we had reached accord," Robbie said, "but asked that the formal signing be held up until he could review the technical language of the contract after returning from South Bend.

"Later he asked us to change the bonus clause so he would still be paid his full bonus whether or not he reported for the second or third year of the contract.

"We agreed to this. While we were in West Palm Beach attending the NFL meetings, he talked to coach Don Shula and said he wanted the language of the bonus clause to be even more specific in this regard. So I authorized him by telephone to change the language to suit himself.

"He told me he was completely satisfied and would us."

Theismann, a third round draft of the Dolphins, led Notre Dame last season, to 21 victories winding up with an upset over top-ranked Texas in the Cotton Bowl

A shade under six feet and 170 pounds, he is a capable runner and an excellent passer. He was considered a shoo-in for the NFL's which accounted for his not being picked until the fourth round by Miami.

Miscues Costly to Reds, Dodgers

Not Everyone Ready for Opening Day

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

The umpires yelled "Play Ball!" but not everybody was ready to go when the major league baseball season opened Monday.

There were, for example, the Cincinnati Reds who committed six errors—three by Woody Woodward—and handed Atlanta Braves a 7-4 opening day victory.

There was, for example, Bill Singer, who loaded the bases on two walks and a hit batsman in the first inning, surrendered two runs without allowing a hit, and got Houston Astros started towards a 5-2 victory over Los Angeles Dodgers.

And there was, for example, Richard M. Nixon, who missed the presidential opener in Washington and did not see the Senators shut out Oakland Athletics 8-0 for their first opening day victory since 1962.

Most of the remaining major league teams get going today with Montreal Expos at New York, St. Louis Cardinals at Chicago, Los Angeles at Houston, Philadelphia Phillies at Pittsburgh and San Francisco Giants at San Diego in the National League and New York Yankees at Boston, Kansas City Royals at California, Milwaukee Brewers at Minnesota, and Cleveland Indians at Detroit.

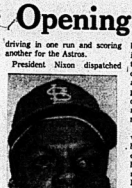
with score tied 4-4. He scored the tie-breaking run a moment later when Woodward committed his third error of the game.

"If it had happened in July, you wouldn't pay any attention to it," said Sparky Anderson, manager of the Reds, who likened the tension of opening day to the World Series.

"I have no excuses," said Woodward. "I just made three errors." Usually a shortstop, Woodward played at third base with Tony Perez shifted to first to replace injured Lee May. Perez homered for the Reds.



Los Angeles tagged Larry Dierker for 10 hits, twice as many as Houston managed against Singer and reliever Joe Moeller. But the Astros capitalized on Singer's early wildness to grab a lead they never surrendered.

A pair of infield outs produced two runs after Singer loaded the bases on two walks and the hit batsman in the first, and then Denis Menke drilled a triple for two more in the third. Cesar Cedeno had a single and double, driving in one run and scoring another for the Astros.

President Nixon dispatched Master Sergeant Daniel L. Pitzer, a former Vietnam prisoner of war, to toss out the first ball at the presidential opener in Washington. Melvin Laird, the secretary of defence, accompanied Pitzer to the game and read a statement from the president, reminding the nation of the American servicemen missing or held prisoner in Vietnam.

Dick Bosman, Washington's wining pitcher, hurled a six-hitter. Six walks, a pair of crucial errors, and a hit batter helped the Senators score their runs in the first five innings. Frank Howard and Mike Epstein each drove in two runs and Howard saved Bosman's shutout with a leaping catch at the left field fence that robbed Felipe Alou of a homer in the third inning.

Curt Flood, the former St. Louis star, who sat out last season while suing baseball over the reserve clause, marked his return by figuring in each of the Senators' first three scoring outbursts, walking twice and getting a bunt single.

Jackson Kills Speculation About Return to CFL Action with Lions

OTTAWA (CP) — Former quarterback Russ Jackson of Ottawa Rough Riders said Monday he will not accept an offer to play for British Columbia Lions.

The 32-year-old all-star ended speculation that had begun last December when the Lions first approached Ottawa about Jackson.

After extended negotiations between the two Canadian Football League clubs, culminating with negotiations between Jackson and representatives of the Lions during the last two weeks, the quarterback decided the offer was not to his liking.

"There is no deal and I am a high school principal," Jackson told a news conference.

Jackson said the offer made him by B.C. was the best he had ever received in his football career—"anyone who wouldn't listen is crazy"—but that commitments to his teaching career and other factors made it unacceptable.

RUSS JACKSON

In Vancouver, B.C. Lions' general manager Jackie Parker said late Monday night: "We didn't know what the possibilities of Jackson playing here were ever since this thing began. We operated on the premise that we never count on people until they're signed with us.

"This latest development doesn't change our plans at all. You must understand that Russ was obligated to find out what the situation was. He had to tell his school board what he would do in the near future.

This is the time of year when school boards make their appointments for the upcoming year.

Long Hair In Ring Kayoed by Canadian Boxing Commission

OTTAWA (CP) — Boxers with beards or long hair have been kayoed by the Canadian Amateur Association.

The association said Monday it has banned from the ring boxers with "excess hairy growth." Such growths could bewilder an opponent and provide the wearer with extra protection.

"Obviously a beard, big bushy mutton-chop whiskers, or a thick moustache or long hair can be bewildering to an opponent and give the wearer additional unfair protection and advantages," the association's medical director, Dr. Herman Levin, says in a news release.

Pro Bike Riders Make Debut

MONTREAL (CP) — Professional bicycle road racing, long a fixture on the European sports scene, will make its North American debut here in September.

Organizers of the previously-amateur Tour de la Nouvelle France made the announcement here Monday.

Six-man teams of leading professionals from Europe will take part in this year's event, the first professional road race to be held in Canada since 1899, said Claude Mouton, tour president.

Mouton said the switch to a pro affair came when two major sponsors—Air Canada and Macdonald Tobacco—agreed to back the week-long race scheduled throughout Quebec, Sept. 20-26.

Odds Favor Home Teams When Playoffs Opens Wednesday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

For 78 games, the 14 teams in the National Hockey League jockeyed for position in the regular schedule, but the real showdown begins Wednesday night with the opening of the best-of-seven Stanley Cup quarter-finals.

The first round matches Montreal Canadiens and Boston Bruins, Toronto Maple Leafs and New York Rangers, Philadelphia Flyers and Chicago Black Hawks and Minnesota North Stars and St. Louis Blues.

The first games in the first-round series will be played in Boston, New York, Chicago and St. Louis, and while the betting line hasn't been set, the odds are that the teams opening with two games at home will be the survivors.

Only in Montreal would you get an argument on the premise that Boston will take the Canadiens.

Toe Blake, former Canadiens coach, puts it this way:

"A chance? They did it two years ago, didn't they? I think the Canadiens team has more ability than the one which won the Stanley Cup two years ago. But it's going to take more than ability. They're going to have to go out and get 60 minutes of hockey out of everyone. They're going to have to want it badly enough."

There's no lack of respect for the Bruins in Montreal.

Says Frank Mahovlich, left winger acquired in a trade from Detroit:

Montreal defenceman John Ferguson feels it will be a hitting series—"it's got to be."

"I know I'm going to be better prepared for this series mentally and physically than I've ever been before.

"But what this series comes down to, really, I think, is the goaltending. I think we're better than they are defensively. We've been playing better defensively in the second half of the season and if our goaltenders come through, we should be in a great position to surprise the Bruins.

"I say 'surprise' because everybody figures the Bruins to handle us easily."

Bobby Hull of the Black Hawks picks Toronto to defeat New York, but outside of Maple Leaf Gardens it's a minority opinion.

"Leafs have the goaltending in Jacques Plante and Bernie Parent," Hull says, "plus the ability to check and protect leads."

"Rangers can be checked. The key is Jean Ratelle. Stop him and you stop them. It will be a close, tough series, but the Leafs will win in my estimation."

Coach John McLellan of the Leafs is worried about two things:

"We're still fooling around with the puck in our end too much. Jim McKenny is going to have to start moving the puck faster.

"And we've got to have a good effort from Jimmy Harrison. We need his hitting and his kind of aggressive play. We can't get less than full effort from everybody and expect to beat New York.

"On the other hand, if we get that—and I feel we can—then we can win and I don't think you could call that an upset."

Both the Leafs and Montreal missed the playoffs last year and McLellan's assessment could apply to both clubs when he says:

"Last year we were out; this year we're in. That's 100-per-cent improvement."

Team assessments:

Boston Bruins—Won the East Division championship with one victory more than team in history. Six of the top 10 scorers in the NHL are Bruins. Until this season, only four men in NHL history had scored more than 100 points—this year Boston had four in the same season. Strong in scoring, team play, defence leadership, penalty-killing and depth. Only slight weakness, goaltending.

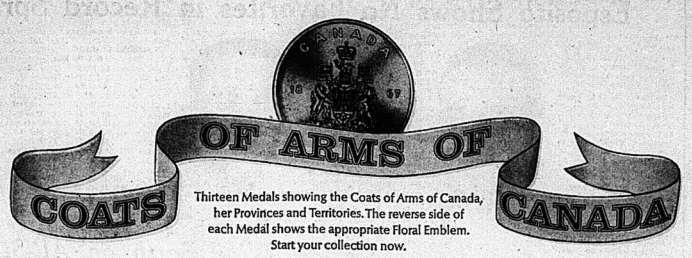
New York Rangers—Hungry after 30 years without winning a Stanley Cup. Rangers stress scheme that has turned increasingly offensive. Top scorer is Dave Balon with 36, less than half the 76 scored by Phil Esposito of the Bruins. "Anybody who calls us to choke is an idiot," says Emile Francis, coach and general manager. Strong in goal with Ed Giacomin backed by Gilles Villemure and good on defence, positional play, puck control and experience; weak in scoring.

Montreal Canadiens—Canadiens got major assistance from butsix... from Yvan Cournoyer and Pete Mahovlich and a midseason trade for Pete's brother Frank increased the attack. Captain Jean Beliveau enjoyed a renaissance. Strong on experience, skating, scoring; weak in goal and on defence.

Toronto Maple Leafs—Veteran Bob Baun came back and pulled the young Leaf defenders together. A mid-season trade brought goalie Bernie Parent as an able backstop to Jacques Plante. Leafs are strong in goal and down centre; relatively weak on the power play and along the wings.

Chicago Black Hawks — Won the West Division easily, but may be in trouble for the playoffs. Tony Esposito is the only regular goalie available since Gerry Desjardins broke his arm and it's doubtful that coach Billy Reay would start a playoff assignment to an untested rookie. Keith Magnusson, young and tough, anchors an experienced defence in front of Esposito. Bobby and Dennis Hull will lead a strong attack. The Hawks have good balance and depth and experience and can score; weakness lies in backup goaltending and in playoff jinx that always seems to haunt them—if you believe in that sort of thing.

Philadelphia Flyers - Steady scoring from veterans such as Gendron, Andre Lacroix and Simon Nolet; fine rookie in Bob Kelly. Doug Favell does most of the goaltending but has an experienced man behind him in Bruce Gamble. Strengths lie in goaltending, hustle and checking; weaknesses in scoring punch and playoff experience.



St. Louis Blues—Accent on defence, but a mid-season trade which added centre Garry Unger helped the attack. But Blues will sink or swim with the defence and goalies Glenn Hall and Ernie Wakely. Strengths are defence, with the addition of Carl Brewer, coaching and playoff experience; weakness could lie in lack of depth.

Minnesota North Stars—An impressive attack with Bill Goldsworthy and rookie centre Barry Gibbs. Late-season trades added veterans Ted Hampson, Gump Worsley and Gord Labossiere. Gump Worsley gives the Stars strength in goal, but the weakness is on defence.

Habs Dealt Blow

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens' hopes for a strong showing against the Bruins in the opening game of their quarter-final round of Stanley Cup play Wednesday night in Boston received another blow Monday.

Already hampered by a groin injury to defenceman Jacques Laperriere and an ankle injury to right-winger Phil Roberto, the Montreal club wound up with Yvan Cournoyer on the limp after Monday's workout.

Laperriere and Roberto picked up their bumps against New York Rangers here Saturday afternoon. They missed Sunday's 7-2 loss to the Bruins in Boston.

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Expos of baseball's National League announced Monday night that outfielder Adolfo Phillips has been optioned to Winnipeg Whips, the Expos' International League farm team.

Phillips, 28, appeared in 92 games for the Expos last season and had a .238 batting average with six home runs and 21 runs batted in.

MONTREAL (CP) — The major league baseball season opens here one week from today and for the third consecutive year groundskeepers at Jarry Park are looking for an assist from nature.

But so far this spring nature hasn't been much help, so Lubie Veal and his groundskeeping crew have had to go it alone.

A record snowfall of more than 150 inches over the winter months left Montreal Expos home grounds buried under ice and snow less than three weeks ago.

However, by Monday afternoon Veal and his gang had removed all but a few patches of snow from the outfield and from all but the farthest reaches of the bleachers.

"All we need now is a couple of warm days and a warm breeze," a club spokesman said.

PORTLAND, Ore. (CP) — Edmonton will be the site of the 1972 Canadian Little League baseball championship.

The announcement was made Monday as 325 delegates representing 8,000 leagues in 32 countries met during the annual international Little League Congress.

The congress represents about 2.5 million boys around the world.

EDMONTON (CP) — Four men and two women were named Monday to the Canadian team that will compete in a British international swimming meet in London April 30-May 1.

The men are George Smith of Edmonton, Bill Mahony of West Vancouver, Mike Whitaker of Calgary and Byron MacDonald of Chicago, Ill., a Canadian citizen. The women are Angela Coughlan of Burlington, Ont., and Leslie Cliff of Vancouver.

Paul Savage, swimming coach at Simon Fraser University in Burnaby, B.C., will be the team's coach, manager and chaperone.

BOSTON (AP) — Roman Summer broke his left front ankle 70 yards from the wire but kept going on three legs to win the feature race at Suffolk Downs Monday.

Trainer Vinnie Blengs said the ankle was completely shattered, and he didn't think the 3-year-old colt could be saved.

Roman Summer, a 1-2 favorite, was leading the field by six lengths when he took a bad step and snapped the ankle.

LAUSANNE (AP) — A revised draft rule on Olympic eligibility, aimed at more stringent standards for amateur status, has been unanimously accepted by the 74 members of the International Olympic Committee. The IOC said the postal vote was 74-0 with no abstentions. A key clause would ban anyl athlete who has "directly or indirectly allowed his name, his photograph or his sports performance to be used individually for advertising purposes." It also provides for an IOC committee to examine each individual entry, even if the athlete has been accepted by his national Olympic committee and the international federation of his sport. Background to the revised rule 26 is a longstanding battle between 83-year-old IOC President Avery Brundage and the sport of Alpine skiing. Brundage has accused the International Ski Federation of "losing control of its sport which is completely commercialized." He is specifically striving to ban from the 1972 Sapporo Winter Olympics 10 Alpine ski stars who took part in a summer training camp organized by a U.S. ski boot manufacturer in Mammouth Mountain, Calif., last year.

Esposito Shows No Favorites in Record Spree

PHIL ESPOSITO

MONTREAL (CP) — Centre Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins has proven that he didn't pick his spots en route to his all-time high of 76 goals during the National Hockey League season.

Statistics issued by the league today show that on his way to the almost unbelievable record, Esposito scored more goals against the pre-expansion teams than against the new teams on a goal-per-game basis.

In 30 games against the old guard—Chicago Black Hawks, Detroit Red Wings, Montreal Canadiens, New York Rangers and Toronto Maple Leafs—the powerful Esposito scored 30 goals.

He had 46 goals in 48 games against the post-1967 teams.

Added to the rangy centre's 76 goals—18 more than the former mark set by Chicago's Bobby Hull in 1968-69—were 76 assists for a record 152 points, 13 more than runner-up Bobby Orr of the Bruins. Defenceman Orr was last season's individual scoring champion.

Esposito, leader of the Boston onslaught which resulted in the Bruins breaking 35 of the 47 league records established this season, earned $3,000 for his scoring binge.

He collected $500 for leading the scoring race each half of the season, plus $1,000 as over-all leader. Orr gained $1,000—$500 in each half as runner-up and $300 as over-all second-place finisher.

Esposito edged Orr by two points, 77 to 75, in the second half.

Of Esposito's 76 goals, 11 were scored against Los Angeles Kings; nine against Pittsburgh Penguins; eight each against Detroit and Montreal; seven against Minnesota North Stars; six against Toronto; five against Chicago and Buffalo Sabres; four against Vancouver Canucks, California Golden Seals, and Philadelphia Flyers; three against New York and two against St. Louis Blues.

He scored 42 goals at Boston and 34 on the road.

The closest goal-scorer to Esposito was left winger and team-mate Johnny Bucyk with 51, the first time a team has had two players with 50 or more goals in one season.

Esposito set 10 records himself and was part of the Boston line—with right winger Ken Hodge and Wayne Cashman—which broke the marks for goals and points in one season.

Four Bruins picked up at least 105 points each, the most 100-point men in one season, and they finished 1-2-3-4 in the scoring, the first time in NHL history one club has had the top four scorers.

Bucyk was third with 116 points and Hodge finished with 105. Cashman with 79 points, John McKenzie with 77 and Fred Stanfield with 76, helped give the Bruins seven of the top 11 players in the scoring statistics.

Orr, who set a record 139 points for a defenceman, also had 102 assists, 15 more than the mark he had last season. He had 37 goals, the most ever scored by a defenceman in a single season.

Meanwhile, the Rangers' goaltending pair of Ed Giacomin and Gilles Villemure won the Vezina Trophy, the first time New York has had the honor since Dave Kerr won it in 1939-40, the only previous time the Rangers won the award.

Giacomin and Villemure, who had a combined goals-against average of 2.28, picked up $1,500-$1,000 as winners, plus $250 for each half in which they led.

Chicago's Tony Esposito and Gerry Desjardins receive $750 as runners-up.

Meanwhile, playoff action begins on four fronts Wednesday, when the Bruins entertain the Canadiens in Boston; New York plays host to Toronto; Philadelphia visits Chicago and Minnesota travels to St. Louis.

Garrett Wins Berth on All-Stars

TORONTO (CP) — Top five teams in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series have swept all positions on the all-star team selections announced today by the OHA.

League coaches voted for players with Peterborough Petes, St. Catharines Black Hawks, Oshawa Gts, Montreal Junior Canadiens and Toronto Marlboros who finished season play in that order.

The other five teams, Kitchener Rangers, Hamilton Red Wings, London Knights, Oshawa Generals and Niagara Falls Flyers, did not place a player on either the first or second all-star teams.

Centre Marcel Dionne of St. Catharines anchors the first team with Steve Vickers of Marlboros on right wing and Richard Martin of Montreal on the left.

Modell Refutes Charges

CLEVELAND (CP) — Cleveland Browns' owner Art Modell said Monday that a federal grand jury investigating the National Football League is "on a fishing expedition" and would not find any wrongdoing in the league.

"They feel there is a dark conspiracy in the NFL to blacklist players, but there is no basis of fact for their presumption," Modell said after testifying for three hours Monday.

"I know the NFL is not guilty of anything they charge and that the NFL and all its members clubs will be vindicated once the investigation is completed," said Modell, a former NFL president.

He said that "someone has sold the department of justice a bill of goods," and added he can not understand why the jury is "so convinced that what they have been told is fact."

Modell said he believes the investigation, which began in November, was brought about by a small group of "malcontents, publicity seekers, people with axes to grind and people writing books who want to be vindicated."

He charged that former Browns' defensive backs Bernie Parrish and Walker Beach, who claim they were blacklisted, have "vendettas" against the NFL.

"Beach retired from football. Then when he couldn't make it the next year felt that someone plotted against him," said Modell.

Junior Canadiens Sweep Series With 4-2 Victory Over London

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Montreal Junior Canadiens defeated London Knights 4-2 Monday to complete a four-game sweep of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A quarter finals playoffs.

Canadiens, defending Memorial Cup champions, will meet St. Catharines Black Hawks or Kitchener Rangers in their semi-final round.

Robert Lalonde, Montreal's top point-getter over the season, scored the winning goal at 8:18 of the second period with London shorthanded.

Other Montreal goals were scored by Michel Latrielle and Ian Turnbull, the latter into an empty London goal after goalie Mike McIntyre was pulled.

For London, Bob Wright and Jack Kell were the only goal scorers.

ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING

BEN BLEECKER AUDITORIUM

7.30 P.M. – APRIL 14, 1971

There've been some changes made.

If you're a Corolla 1200 fan don't be alarmed. We didn't change the 1200's. We simply made the Corolla line longer. So now, among other things, you can get a Corolla with a great big brand new 1600 cc engine.

We've all grown to know and love the 1200 engine. (The 73 hp, rugged, reliable overhead valve.) The 1600 is something we've been working on a long time. Basically it combines the best of an overhead cam racing engine with the rugged overhead valve type. (Sorry if that's over your head.)

It's 102 hp.

That means you get a top speed of 105 mph (in a Corolla!) and a cruising speed of 85. It also means you get over 30 miles per gallon and an engine that runs so quietly and trouble-free you hardly know it exists.

To accommodate the bigger engine you get power assisted front disc brakes and a heavy duty suspension system. That's a lot of changes for a car that doesn't change much, but that's not all.

We also built for the first time ever, a 4 door Corolla. It's big enough for a small family, small enough to park easily and surprisingly enough sells for only $2250*—with everything. What do we mean by everything? Fully reclining bucket seats, carpeting, tinted glass all around, an electric rear window defroster and a 4 speed synchromesh transmission. The only things you don't get are a radio and an automatic transmission—they're optional.

Garrett Rates as Near Top as Potential Draft Pick

After Guy Lafleur and Marcel Dionne are swept up, likely by Montreal Canadiens and Detroit Red Wings, who else will be left to help stock National Hockey League clubs in their 1971 draft of over-age juniors?

The answer seems to be that most of this year's top junior talent, concentrated in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A circuit, will be gone before the second round of the June draft.

Most NHL scouts call this an "off-season" between the rich 1970 harvest of juniors and the promising crop of prospects who will be eligible for drafting next year.

Lafleur, star of the Quebec Junior Hockey League with a record 130 goals, 79 assists and 209 points, will likely be the first pick at the Montreal meetings.

But California Golden Seals, most-needy club in the NHL because of their last-place finish in the West Division with only 45 points, won't get him because their first-round choice is owned by Montreal by way of trades.

Detroit, finishing last in the East with 55 points, will still have an opportunity to pick a good young centre in Dionne who took the OHA scoring title this season with 82 goals and 81 assists.

Lafleur, despite the argument that he has been playing in a league much inferior to that of the OHA still ranks above Dionne in size.

Lafleur stands 6-foot-1 and weighs 190 pounds compared to Dionne's 5-foot-7 and 170.

One NHL general manager pointed out that Dionne may have trouble standing his ground in front of NHL goal creases and that Richard Martin of Montreal Junior Canadiens might be a better choice.

Martin was the top goal-scorer in the OHA this season with a record 71 and finished sixth in the points standings with 50 assists for 121 points.

Martin, a left winger, has good skating and puck-handling ability and a hard slap-shot, all of which earned him a spot on the OHA all-star team announced today.

With Martin and Dionne on that all-star first team is Toronto right winger Steve Vickers, 6-foot-1, 190 pounds, 43 goals and 64 assists.

Jocelyn Guevremont of Montreal Junior Canadiens and goalie John Garrett of Peterborough Petes are also listed on the first all-star team and both rank as top draft picks.

Guevremont, a 6-foot-2 defenceman, has a striking similarity to NHL rearguard Jacques Laperriere of the Canadiens.

Garrett was the OHA Junior loop's leading goalie with a 2.97 goals-against average.

Only two from the OHA all-star second team are eligible for the draft—Toronto Marlboros defenceman Steve Durbano and Peterborough rear-guard Rick Cunningham.

Other OHA players who could go in the first round include Murray Wilson, a 6-foot-2 left winger with Ottawa; Craig Ramsay, a strong defensive-type centre with Peterborough; and Hamilton right winger Tom Williams who has good skating speed and a strong shot.

Finishing third and fourth respectively in the OHA scoring race were Robert Lalonde of the Junior Canadiens and Brian McKenzie of St. Catharines.

The Western Canada Hockey League, the next major source behind the OHA, appears unlikely to repeat its yield of 1970 when four of its graduating juniors were picked among the first 10.

The teams likely to benefit most from the likes of Martin, Guevremont, Garrett and Vickers are Vancouver Canucks, Pittsburgh Penguins and Buffalo Sabres who have third, fourth and fifth choices.

Holloway Juniors Hold Reunion

By GEORGE CARVER

The middle-aged moppets of mid-fifties added another link to their reunion chain here Sunday.

The late "Toots" Holway's Belleville Junior hockey team of two decades ago marked their 21st consecutive annual get-together in Memorial Arena.

Nondescript uniforms... featured the ice-borne Mardi Gras. Hips, joints and muscles creaked protest. The "sides" wheezed to a ten-all tie.

There were humorous incidents but who cared if "Nobber" Day forgot his braces or Johnny Smark iced five minutes before he realized he'd left his skates in the dressing room.

Doug Green, London, who masterminds and organizes the reunions, shared goalie duties with brother Bobby. Up front it was catch-as-catch-can.

They came from the city, St. Catharines, London, Toronto, Stirling and other outside points.

The "reminiscence" period was held in the well-appointed "rec" room of Don "Junior" Barrett.

Here they recalled the days when a win brought them 25 cents for a ham sandwich and a loss 15 cents for a hot dog.

They paid silent tribute to the memories of their late coach and manager "Toots" Holway and those of the club who also have passed on.

Non-playing members of the club present were — Don Lee, referee; Jack Dorun, coach; Dr. Bob Allore, club physician, and George Carver, public relations

Members present were: "Nobber" Day, Johnny Semark, Huck Reeves, Bill Holway, Jackie and Al. Wardhaugh, Doug and Bobby Green, Al. and Bernie Meagher, Don Barrett, "Porky" Yorke, "Moe" Rollins and Bruce "Cue" Bishop.

Dick Beare accepts the Loyalist President's Trophy from Herbert Young, who donated the award for the top intramural sports group in the college. Beare represented the third year business students who captured the award for proficiency over the season in intramural athletics. A total of close to 200 students took part in the program this year.

Commercial Softball League Entries Balance Out

The Commercial Softball league figures to balance out pretty well in the entry column despite the apparent loss of two entries from last season.

Six teams were represented at the first meeting of the year, held at Ben Bleecker to discuss prospective entries for 1971.

Represented from last season's alignment were Richard Ellis Juniors, Rollins Construction, Point Anne and Stinsona Construction.

While neither Corby's Distillery or City Hotel indicated that they would return this season, the slack was taken up by the presence of Quinte Hotel and Howard and Robert Printing.

Definite entries were received from the two new teams, as well as Rollins and the Ellis Jrs.

An entry deadline of April 26 has been set and the next meeting will be held Monday, 8 p.m. at the Recreation Centre on Pinnacle Street. The election of officers will be the main item on the agenda, although general business will also be discussed.

Athletic Awards Banquet Caps Loyalist Season

Loyalist College put the finishing touches on a season of significant sports achievement last night with their athletic awards banquet.

Undoubtedly the biggest gains were in the field of intra-mural athletics which boasted close to 200 participants in its first year of operation.

Regularly scheduled games were contested in basketball, volleyball, badminton, table tennis and floor hockey, as periods being held in a number of other sports.

"I think you'd have to say that the program was a definite success in its first season", remarked athletic director Mike Dollack, "we hope to expand it in the future to the point where we can offer something for everyone."

In line with the policy of 200 students (about 30 per cent of the total enrollment) in the program, the college hopes to have a playing field finished by next season, which would permit competition in sports such as soccer, rugger and flag football. An outdoor rink may also be completed for sports such as intra-mural hockey and broomball.

All current intra - mural athletics are held at OSD, with the exception of table tennis, but it is hoped that in the near future facilities may be erected on campus for both intra - mural and varsity sports.

The Loyalist Presidents trophy was won by the third year business students with the group of 50 competitors, who accumulated the top points total in the organized intra - mural sports.

"It was a simple case of brains winning out over the muscle - bound tech types," noted one spokesman for the group, who naturally enough wished to remain anonymous.

Besides the intra - mural awards, 29 athletes received varsity letters for participation in basketball, track and men's curling.

Next season the college will also compete in varsity golf, women's and mixed curling, badminton and table tennis.

Two Teams Top Picks

MONTREAL (CP) — Four members of the Boston Bruins and two from the New York Rangers comprise the 1970-71 National Hockey League All-Star team selected Monday by Hockey News.

The weekly publication named forwards Phil Esposito, Ken Hodge and Johny Bucyk and defenceman Bobby Orr of Boston and goalie Ed Giacomin and defenceman Brad Park of New York.

Cheers!

If you're more of the sports car type maybe you'd be more at home in the 1600 Coupe. It's got a beautiful, fast windswept body to match its beautiful, fast 1600 engine.

It's got all the extras too. Its interior is even more luxurious than the other Corollas. With the Coupe you get everything you get with the 4-door Sedan plus a simulated wood grain steering wheel and shift lever knob.

And you get it all for $2299*.

With the wagon you get almost exactly the same list of extras. The same big 102 hp engine and the same good mileage. The important difference is that the Wagon has about 5 times the load capacity of the other Corollas. And it's for that you pay a little more: $2425*.

One by one, as the years go by, all of these things will change and improve. But one thing remains the same. The Toyota Corolla has always offered more performance, more luxury, more extras for less money than any other import on the road.

And that's something we'll never change.

Hardest Part of Teaching Career Today May Be Getting Job

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The toughest part of a teaching career may be just getting that first job.

At least, thousands of graduates from Ontario teachers' colleges probably will find that way by next fall.

A survey by The Canadian Press shows there are far more applicants for first-year teaching jobs than positions available.

An official in the teacher-education branch of the department of education said about 8,450 teachers will seek their first jobs in elementary schools this year, with another 3,500 or so looking for positions in secondary schools.

About 5,388 new elementary and 2,800 secondary teachers entered Ontario schools last year.

The official guessed that as many as 2,000 teacher graduates will be unable to obtain jobs in elementary schools next fall. He declined to estimate the number unable to find jobs in secondary schools, but indications are there will be plenty of them.

Spokesmen for the boards of education in Metropolitan Toronto indicated that the hiring situation this year looks gloomy for newcomers.

William J. Redford, responsible for elementary school staffing in the city of Toronto, said many established teachers were remaining at the same schools, rather than attempting to move and possibly ending up out of work.

He said his board has received about 3,000 applications for jobs in elementary schools, "almost double" the number received a year ago. In a normal year there would be about 2,000 available positions—including those for experienced teachers.

Donald Ryerson, Mr. Redford's counterpart for secondary teachers, said about 140 to 150 new teachers would be hired. Applications are "in four figures."

A spokesman for the Metropolitan Toronto Separate School Board said he has about 220 elementary and 60 secondary positions available. About 600 applications have been received for the elementary jobs, but no estimate was available for secondary positions.

Officials in the five boroughs also indicated that the number of applications for new teaching positions has increased but the number of openings has dropped.

An official in the registrar's office at the University of Toronto voiced the concern being felt by some officials of teachers' colleges. He said "quite a few" graduates of the university's college of education will not get jobs this year.

One of the more troubled areas in the province is Lambton County, where public and separate school boards have received about 1,300 applications from teachers for fewer than 300 job openings.

A separate school official in Windsor said 300 to 400 applications have been received for 35 positions. Last year, there was about the same number of applications but double the openings.

About 1,200 applications for elementary and secondary school positions have been received in Galt with about 100 jobs available.

The Simcoe County board of education has been swamped with applications, an official said, but there are only about 100 available positions.

F. A. Hamilton, director of education for the Lincoln County board, said few positions are available, although the exact number won't be known until May 31. He said about 1,800 applications have been received for elementary teaching positions and about 200 for secondary ones—"many more than usual."

Waterloo County board has had 1,150 applications for 125 elementary positions and 600 for 75 secondary openings. The county's separate school board has received 400 applications, with only 15 openings.

The Norfolk County board has received 400 applications for only two openings in elementary schools and 100 applications for about 31 openings in secondary schools. The area's separate school board has received 175 applications for only two openings.

Officials of the Frontenac County board said the number of resignations in the county has dropped sharply compared with a year ago. They could give no estimate yet as to the number of elementary teaching positions available, but said about 40 secondary teaching jobs should be open.

The Nipissing board has received about 400 applications for 10 to 12 elementary school jobs and 400 applications for about 20 secondary jobs. The Nipissing separate school board has received a flood of applications for jobs in its English schools, but the demand for positions in French schools is about the same as a year ago.

The Leeds and Grenville board has had about 500 applications for the 24 secondary and 11 elementary positions available.

Hastings County board of education says it has 30 openings in secondary schools and 20 in elementary schools. About 600 applications have been received for elementary teaching positions and about 200 for secondary.

About 700 teachers have applied in the Kirkland Lake area for jobs in elementary or secondary schools. Only about 10 jobs are open.

St. Catharines City Council Votes To Seek to Quit Regional Government

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — By a decisive 9-2 vote, city council decided Monday night to try to break away from the Regional Municipality of Niagara.

Council approved the introduction of a private member's bill in the provincial legislature permitting the city's secession.

The move was prompted by a letter from Ontario Premier William Davis, who said he would not be able to attend a meeting with St. Catharines council to discuss regional inequities "within the forseeable future."

Mr. Davis had told council March 10 when he visited the city with four of his cabinet ministers that he would meet with them.

But in the letter sent late last week the premier wrote: "As you know, the legislature is in session and my days are extremely crowded. . . ."

He said he would refer the matter to Dalton Bales, minister of municipal affairs.

"Obviously we are not important enough to warrant his attention," said Ald. John Martin. "It is obvious they just don't give a damn."

Mayor Mackenzie Chown, a vigorous opponent of secession in the past, did not vote on Monday's secession motion but made it clear he supported it.

The mayor said he was "shocked" by the Premier's letter. "I couldn't really believe what I was reading," he said.

Device Tests Driver's Sobriety

TORONTO (CP) — Starting a car in the not-too-distant future could be something like a baseball game — three strikes and you're out.

The umpire in this case will be a computer-like device unveiled here Monday following a year of experiments by General Motors' Delco Electronics division.

Called the physiological tester, or the physiester for short, the device is designed to check on a driver's condition and ability to drive before he even pulls away from the curb and so, the company hopes, make a significant reduction in the number of accidents caused by impaired driving.

A driver is given three opportunities to convince the physiester he is fit to be behind the wheel but if he flunks out he won't be going anywhere for an hour or so—not in that car at least.

It would work like this. When the driver wants to start off he punches into the physiester's keyboard a combination of numbers to "unlock" the system.

Then a random number of as many as five digits is displayed for a few seconds on the device's miniature scoreboard. When the numbers disappear, then the keys on the keyboard—something like a pushbutton telephone—light up.

The driver then has a short time in which to punch on the keyboard the exact number he has just seen displayed on the scoreboard. If he does it correctly in the time allowed he's off and away.

If he fails he has two more chances with each time a different sequence of numbers being displayed. If he fails on the next two occasions the car stays where it is.

The times allowed for the different operations can be varied on the protype, but experiments show the most satisfactory average times to be 1.5 seconds for observing the number, 4.5 seconds for punching it on and about an hour's delay before the driver can try again.

The Delco Electronics engineers say this test can quickly and effectively check four human faculties that are degraded by excessive amounts of alcohol: visual acuity, short-term memory, co-ordinated motor response and judgment.

Bank Robbed At Windsor

WINDSOR (CP) — Two armed men escaped from a branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce shortly before noon Monday with between $4,000 and $10,000.

A bank employee gave chase in a customer's car at speeds up to 80 miles an hour but the robbers, believed to be about 35, stopped their car a short distance from the bank, fired at oncoming traffic, and escaped in a second car.

Bullets pierced the windshield of a car driven by Mrs. Charles Schooley and hit a car driven by Michael Ganley. No one was hit.

'Most Influential Composer of Century'

Igor Stravinsky Dies in New York of Heart Attack at 88

NEW YORK (AP) — Igor Stravinsky, the most influential composer of the 20th century, died of an apparent heart attack today at his Fifth Avenue apartment. He was 88 and had been in failing health for several years.

Stravinsky had suffered several other heart attacks since 1967 and was in hospital for treatment of a pulmonary edema in March.

He was released from hospital "in good condition" last Tuesday and moved then from his previous hotel quarters to the new apartment on Fifth Avenue.

With him at his death were his wife, Vera, his associate, Robert Craft, and his personal manager, Lillian Libman.

The composer remained controversial as well as celebrated during the last 60 years, with a constant capacity to disturb and astonish listeners.

The composer, who remained controversial as well as celebrated during the last 60 years, died at his Fifth Avenue apartment.

Stravinsky, who was born June 18, 1882, near St. Petersburg, Russia, flashed to the attention of the musical world in 1910 with the performance of The Firebird in Paris.

An unknown of 27, Stravinsky was commissioned by Serge Diaghilev of the Ballets Russes to write the score for a ballet based on a Russian legend. After The Firebird premiere, Diaghilev said:

"Mark him well. He is a man on the eve of celebrity."

In 1913, he wrote for him The Rite of Spring, a score even more boldly polytonal than the other two, with intricate rhythmic innovations and explosive dissonances.

The Rite nearly touched off a riot at its premiere in Paris. The savage primitiveness of the music led listeners to beat on each other with canes and drown out the orchestra with boos and catcalls. Stravinsky fled out of the theatre through a backstage window.

By the next year, however, when The Rite was repeated, it scored a triumph and was hailed as a break with the sentimental, romantic past.

Pierre Boulez, the French composer-conductor who has been named music director of the New York Philharmonic, says: "One finds in it (early Stravinsky music) a point of departure for a new conception of rhythms and esthetics. In general, the work of Stravinsky has been indispensable in the establishment of contemporary language and style in music."

Stravinsky is said to have influenced every composer writing at the time of The Rite of Spring—except Ravel. He never wrote in the style of his flamboyant "Russian period" again.

He moved to Paris in 1914 and began writing in a delicate, sparse, dry style, harking back to the 18th century. His so-called neo-classic period lasted through his first full-length opera, The Rake's Progress, in 1951. After that, he began using the 12-tone system of Arnold Schoenberg. Stravinsky, the spiritual father of atonality, though his writing output was small, is considered Stravinsky's nearest rival as the 20th-century's most important musical influence.

Stravinsky's fragile, bird-like appearance belied his seemingly indomitable physical and esthetic strength. When he was 70, he travelled a great deal, to conduct. He always considered himself the best conductor of his own works and wrote strict metronome markings in his scores, to prevent "interpretations" of his music by other conductors, which he abhorred.

When he was at home, in a hillside house in Beverly Hills, Calif., he worked 10 hours a day on music and did vigorous daily exercises.

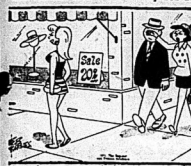
Stravinsky celebrated his 76th birthday with the premiere of Agon, which had been commissioned by the New York City ballet. It was Stravinsky's 33rd piece of music.

His first score for television, The Flood, was shown four days before he turned 80. He received a medal from President John F. Kennedy at the White House on that birthday. He went on a conducting tour of Africa the spring before he was 80 and a tour of cities in America, Israel, Russia and Europe the fall after.

The visit to Russia, at the invitation of the Soviet Composers Union, was his only visit to Russia since he left there in 1914.

After 80, Stravinsky gradually cut down his activities. At 84, he was spending only about 3½ hours a day composing, on "a good day." At 85, he conducted sitting down for the first time. Also at 85, he suffered a stroke which partially lost him the sight of his left eye, but the sight came back.

Stravinsky was born in Oranienbaum, Russia, the son of Feodor Stravinsky, leading basso of his time at the St. Petersburg Opera. He studied under Rimsky-Korsakov, composer and orchestrator. He wrote Fireworks in 1908 for the marriage of Rimsky's daughter and it was that piece of music which brought him to the attention of Diaghilev.



Stravinsky became a citizen of France in 1934. He and his wife had four children born there. She and one of the daughters died in 1939.

In 1940, Stravinsky married Vera, a Russian-born widow who was a painter for Diaghilev's ballet. They came to the United States in 1940 and settled in Beverly Hills. In 1945, Stravinsky became a U.S. citizen. They left California in the spring of 1969, intending to move to Paris, but remained in a New York hotel, where Stravinsky composed, listened to music and read, in unpredictable health and mood, seeing few people, talking little and often in a private world of the mind.

Although Stravinsky turned down all offers to write movie music, he did write a few "pop" things. He wrote a polka for circus elephants, Scherzo a la Russe for Paul Whiteman and Ebony Concerto for Woody Herman. The Rite of Spring was used in the Walt Disney movie Fantasia, though Stravinsky didn't like the result.

Stravinsky never suffered critics gladly and made some stinging comments about those who didn't appreciate him. However, most of the musical world conceded him to be the greatest and most important composer of the century.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

1971 A Critical Year for Japanese Economy

TOKYO (Reuter) — A confident and bustling Japan has entered 1971 firmly entrenched in the world's No. 3 spot behind the two economic giants, the United States and the Soviet Union.

This new status has already brought about a subtle change in its relations with the United States, since the two countries now are, in the main, friendly, economic competitors rather than donor and debtor. . . .

The surface which looked in 1970 was a protracted quarrel over textiles, which drags on unsettled into the new year.

The two sides are expected shortly to resume negotiations in Washington and on an Americian demand, for restraint in Japanese non-cotton textile exports, the rapid growth of which are said to be damaging the U.S. domestic industry.

Premier Eisaku Sato told a year-end news conference that the deadlock must be settled in a spirit of give and take. Textiles, only a small part of the general trade picture, must not be allowed to sour relations elsewhere, he said.

Both sides have talked ominously at times in terms of a trade war that could spread until it damaged worldwide free trade. Failure of the U.S. Congress to pass a trade quota bill eased the pressure, but collapse of the textile talks could quickly revive such fears.

Japan's tough attitude in the textiles negotiations is symptomatic of the new Japanese attitude to the world at large.

Japan in 1970 "continued to emerge slowly from its shell to take a larger role in world affairs. Its highly protected domestic industries were gradually forced to face international competition by the removal of trade and financial restrictions.

In April, 1971, the important car industry—eagerly eyed by the American giants—will be opened up for foreign capital investment, although, as with most other liberalization moves so far, enough restrictions remain to prevent any foreign domination of a Japanese firm.

Such protectionism has encouraged the Japanese economy to grow at a staggering pace. Foreign capital reserves continued to set new records every month, along with the gross national product and the over-all balance of payments.

For 1971, an economic slowdown is expected, with growth in real terms set at a mere 10 per cent.

Japanese and foreign experts predict that some time in 1971 the yen must be revalued upward. Some estimates place the revaluation at between 10 and 20 per cent.

Meanwhile, the average Japanese hopes more of his wealth will flow to him in the coming year. Housing, roads and public utilities long far behind demand, and a sudden public outcry against environmental pollution has forced government and industry to start a new view of Japan's longstanding program of economic development.

In the last days of the year, parliament armed the government with tough new powers to set environmental standards for industry and punish transgressors.

Politically, the conservative government of Sato remains secure in power, since a general election 18 months ago, the governing Liberal Democrats have held a solid parliamentary majority.

During 1971, Sato won an unprecedented fourth two-year term as his party's president and therefore automatically as premier, but this is expected to be his last term.

Showbiz Retirements Very Seldom Stick

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Can Frank Sinatra make his retirement stick?

His recent announcement that he was quitting show business for "reflection, reading, self-examination and the need which every Bernbaum man has for a fallow period" brought a response of dubiety from the entertainment crowd.

The response is natural. Anyone with a sense of show business history can call to mind the unending "farewell tours" of Sarah Bernhardt, Harry Lauder and, more recently, Maurice Chevalier.

In 1946, Fred Astaire announced at the finish of Blue Skies with Bing Crosby that he was hanging up his dancing shoes forever. After two years of minding his race horses, he became bored. All it took was for Gene Kelly to snap an ankle in rehearsals for Easter Parade, and Fred Astaire agreed to replace him.

Astaire has been dancing ever since.

"If I ever retire again, I won't tell anyone," says the reticent Astaire.

The first winner of the Oscar as best actress, Janet Gaynor, bridged the talkie period and thrived until 1938, when she retired to be the wife of designer Adrian. But she was back in 1957 to play Pat Boone's mother in Bernadine.

Shirley Temple experienced a number of retirements during a career that began at the age of two. In 1950 she proclaimed her final retirement, only to return in 1957 as star of a television series.

Others have stuck by their decisions to retire.

Cary Grant ago, James Cagney tired of the movie grind. He gathered his Irish actor friends Spencer Tracy, Pat O'Brien and Frank McHugh, and told them of his intention to quit.

No enticement, including the offer to play Audrey Hepburn's father in My Fair Lady, could induce him to return. Last year he turned down $3 million worth of contracts. He prefers to paint and relax.

Mary Pickford said recently: "I always said I would retire when I couldn't play little girls any more, and when I couldn't do what I wanted to do." That time came in 1933, when she was 40.

"But Roger! Is having a sense of humor enough for a relationship?"

Drugs with Music Losing Popularity

"In times past we've seen countless groups walk in here just bombed out of their minds," says Curb, 25. "Some groups didn't like it, but felt they had to be on them to be more in."

Rawdon

RAWDON — Mrs. Raymond McConnell recently entertained a few neighbors and friends at her home to honor Miss Gerda Vanderkooy, who will be a bride this month. The co-hostesses were Mrs. Mrs. Claude Tucker and Mrs. Jack Doran. Many gifts were received by the guest of honor. The guests included two former neighbors from Mount Pleasant, Mrs. O. Sharp and Mrs. M. Sharp.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen attended a birthday dinner in honor of their daughter, Mrs. Sid Desormeau in Marmora on Wednesday evening.

Kenneth Sharp spent a few days in Toronto with his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Kalvin Sharp.

That's changing, he says. For one thing, the Federal Communications Commission has warned broadcasters against playing records which may "promote or glorify the use of illegal drugs."

Curb announced last November that MGM "will not release any records advocating the use of drugs" or "lionizing" any hard drug acts to the label regardless of their commercial potential."

He was motivated, he says, by the drug-related deaths of stars as Jimi Hendrix and Janis Joplin.

He dropped some recording groups—he won't say which or how many. The trade press has put the figure at 18.

In Washington Monday, the Recording Industry Association of America asked the FCC to withdraw a March 5 notice placing liability for the broadcast of drug lyrics with station owners.

The industry group contended the notice violated constitutional guarantees against free speech and failed to provide adequate standards for a determination of language which might promote the use of illegal drugs.

TV Roundup

NEW YORK (AP) — It was Bob Hope's last show of the season and Diahan Carroll's first special. NBC's Monday night line-up was an interesting study in contrasts.

Hope's show followed its traditional format—the monologue, then two or three comedy sketches separated by musical numbers. Hope's magic with audiences makes it work.

The Diahan Carroll, as the second hour was rather awkwardly called, was an almost solid hour of music, given musical excitement by all sorts of camera and editing effects that ranged from split motion sequences to fast cuts and tricky lighting of the television screen. That worked well, too.

Hope's monologue seemed a little shorter and more subdued than usual, with his best quips reserved for the demise of the SST—"the first plane that ever crashed before it took off."

There was a spoof of Lassie, with Bob playing an overgrown Timmie after 32 years refusing to give up his role as a six-year-old. Diahan Carroll's special used a similar idea—what would happen if her children, Julia, graduated for 12 years. Bill Cosby appeared in a cameo as her son.

Password, after a three-year rest, returned to network television Monday—ABC's choice to replace the campy horror serial Dark Shadows.

The daytime game show is back with a new host, a new signature tune and a few small changes in the rules, but essentially it is the same old Password with Allen Ludden at the helm.

OFF THE RECORD — By Ed Reed — MR. TWEEDY — by Ned Riddle

"I think we should have settled out of court."

Quebec and Ontario Waging Lively Chicken and Egg War

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The "Chicken and egg" war between Quebec and Ontario intensified Monday with Ontario putting teeth in new laws involved in the poultry-marketing dispute and Quebec threatening reprisals.

A bill introduced in Toronto by Agriculture Minister William Stewart would allow marketing boards to seize products coming into Ontario in contravention of marketing regulations.

One product is broiler chickens, which Ontario producers say have glutted the provincial market. Quebec produces a surplus of broilers.

In Quebec City, Agricultural Minister Normand Toupin said Quebec will resort to reprisals if Ontario introduces further hindrances to entry of Quebec agricultural products.

He said, however, he doubts Ontario has power to seize cargoes of broiler chickens entering that province. He was answering questions in the national assembly.

The row over broiler chickens and eggs arose last year after Quebec set up a marketing board to supervise distribution of eggs in the province. Producers from other provinces found they had trouble selling their eggs through the board.

Other provinces responded with similar provisions. The reprisals and counter reprisals quickly became known as the "chicken and egg war."

In Regina, Highways Minister Dave Boldt questioned the right of the federal government to remain in office because of its handling of a rail dispute that he said will cost Saskatchewan farmers $30 million.

He was speaking during second reading of amendments to the Essential Services Emergency Act which contains provisions for compulsory binding arbitration on all employees and employers under provincial jurisdiction.

Mr. Boldt placed some of the blame on labor. He said the Americans who head the unions are political too. They want to sell American wheat so every time there is a strike the Americans benefit.

However, Provincial Treasurer D. G. Steuart and Opposition Leader Allan Blakeney sent telegrams to Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey congratulating him on the settlement.

Another highways minister, Gordon Taylor of Alberta, said there is no punishment too harsh for "pushers" who sell drugs to young people.

The former minister of youth said drug pushers were having a tough time selling to more knowledgeable high school students and had turned to 11, 12 and 13-year-olds.

Introduction of a drug-education program in junior high schools was helping to solve the problem, he said in the legislature.

The Nova Scotia legislature discussed tourism and possible moving of the annual international tuna tournament from the Yarmouth area. The government will decide on the move on the basis of what happens this fall.

Two tuna were caught in the waters off Cape St. Mary in 1970, one was boated in 1968 and none was caught in 1969.

At Charlottetown a group of about 60 young people demonstrated in front of the legislature building to back up demands that a rock concert go on as scheduled.

But Attorney-General Gordon Bennett told the house the government will not permit the concert this weekend. There was the possibility of drug abuse along with problems of inadequate washroom facilities, enough sleeping accommodation and adequate policing.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Cancer Not Usual In Thyroid Gland

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I guess I'm more worried about my thyroid gland than anything else—And the worry is about cancer.

I am 47 and have felt well except for a slight cough and pressure in my throat. My doctor has stuck a needle into the swelling and assures me it isn't cancer. He calls my condition Hashimoto's disease.

I have just begun to take pills for it. Is an operation necessary? I suppose I shouldn't be so anxious, but seeing the swelling in my neck every time I look in the mirror does not help. — Mrs. E.

COMMENT: The most common disorders in the thyroid gland are either underactivity or overactivity — called respectively hypothyroidism and hyperthyroidism. (At various times I have discussed these conditions here.)

In some rare cases enlargement of the gland or a nodule in the gland may be due to cancer. However, Mrs. E., as your doctor has made a laboratory examination of your enlargement and has come up with the diagnosis of Hashimoto's disease better believe him when he says you do not have cancer.

Hashimoto's disease is a chronic inflammation of thyroid—not too commonly found. It occurs most often in middle-aged women and is supposed to be caused by some "auto-immune" disorder.

As-in your case, it may produce pressure symptoms such as cough and heaviness in the throat. If the gland becomes quite large it may interfere with normal swallowing and even produce hoarseness.

The usual treatment is giving thyroid extract (which is probably what your pills contain). Often the thyroid gland becomes smaller after months of such treatment. But if the pressure symptoms remain, sometimes surgery is used to relieve the condition. I hope what I have said relieves your anxiety about cancer.

* * * * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: To settle a disagreement and for all, I would appreciate your comment regarding the nutritional value of asparagus. Some seem to think it is of great value to the kidney function, while others say it is harmful. Thank you.—Mrs. G.

COMMENT: I know of no specific reasons why asparagus is either especially helpful or harmful to the kidneys.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I hope you will print this in your column to bring comfort to women who think it's impossible to become pregnant after they have had an operation for the removal of an ovary and a tube. I had such an operation six years ago.

Three months later I became pregnant and had a 9-pound baby boy. Two years later I had an 8½-pound baby girl. My cycle was just good enough that a woman with only one ovary and tube can have boys as well as girls. — Mrs. W.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: For the past year I have been having severe numbness in my right lower arm, hand and fingers. It may last for several minutes or for hours. I awaken at night with it. I've found it comes more often lately. No other part of my body is affected. It may occur while I'm sewing, writing or just reading. The arm is not cold to the circulation must be good. Is this a rare ailment? Do you advise medical attention? — Mrs. H.

COMMENT: Yes, it's time for an investigation. See an internist or your family doctor first. Later, you may have to consult an X-ray man and an orthopedist. I can only guess at your trouble.

But I believe your doctors will want to rule out nerve pressure in the neck and wrists regions. Whether the required treatment is medical or surgical will depend upon what they find. Most often it is not serious.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Minority Elects Rulers

If all the U.S. citizens who didn't vote in the 1968 Presidential election had gone to the polls and voted for Tiny Tim, he would have been elected President of the United States.

Put that in your civics class pipe and smoke it. Here is the greatest, freest, most powerful nation on the earth holding an election for the most important post in the world — and the number of citizens who stayed away from the polls was larger than the number who voted for the winning candidate.

Something has got to be wrong here. And there is no point in blaming the people who stayed away; such moral recriminations are futile. They simply weren't motivated to cast their vote for any candidate. Whether they were lazy, cynical or indifferent, something in the system failed to touch their nerve of self-interest, much less their sense of civic duty.

How can any President claim to speak and act for his country, when he beats his opponent by only a percentage point or two — and when both of them could have been beaten if the non-voters had united behind another candidate? Apathy is the real ruler in such a case, and we have to discover what causes the apathy.

Nobody is doing this, of course — except perhaps John Gardner and his "Common Cause" movement, which I suspect is a little too clean-collared and goody-goody to get down to the dirty roots of the whole problem. Meanwhile, the winners exult and the losers excuse, and both get ready for the next confrontation of electing a President by default.

The most significant survey the pollsters could take would be one to determine not why or how people are voting, but why they aren't. What turns them off? Is it the quality of candidates? The mechanism of registration and voting? The sense of individual futility in the face of political machinery? Or some deep-seated anomie that makes social norms and values seem equally irrelevant to one's personal needs?

We simply don't know right now. What we do know is that the decisions made by any U.S. administration affects everybody in the world today, and not just ourselves; that many people will thrive, or starve, or die, in odd corners of the globe because we have passed a bill or not.

This is a terrifying power to possess without full responsibility behind it; without a stand-in and turned - on electorate who care about the implications of our acts and attitudes. Something run by a minority is always in the interest of that minority, whether it calls itself the Central Committee of the Communist Party or the Fat Cat Mafiate. When the majority stops caring, all forms of government are equally bad.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For April 7

Your birthday today: Clearance of past and passing problems occupies much of your energy in the year ahead. Your efficiency increases as you analyze more astutely, select more carefully, talents of others are nearly always shown warm, useless to you can be put to good use elsewhere.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Something of the past returns now, perhaps a resumption of neglected social ties or the return of friends from a long journey.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): You have the chance to clear the air on some long-standing issues which have likely never been really openly expressed. Persist, but gently, until you get truly satisfying answers.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): This is a day for fishing or cutting bait — do one or the other, but don't switch back and forth or dawdle.

LEO (July 22 — Aug. 22): Vexation is normal in your personal concerns; give it thought and search for less complex schemes.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 — Sept. 22): It's a quick-paced day. Take what is handy from what is offered you. See the forest instead of individual trees.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Daydreaming gets you nowhere at the moment; although some work just might. Think where you're headed; adjust if need be, but keep going.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Find the short cut; get to the core of the matter. Forebearance makes the difference in keeping action simple.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Trying to rush matters ends mainly in create confusion rather than progress. Seek positive approaches.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Your tendency now is towards too few words, shortage of communication. Doubt or conflict complicate your expressions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Either stay close to your base and keep track of your work or have it very well settled before you start traveling.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Unfinished business persists. The older, the further away its origin, the more important it is to get it squared away.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is now in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a potentially serious cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Schreyer Has Majority Now

NDP Wins Two Seats In Manitoba Elections

WINNIPEG (CP) — Premier Ed Schreyer's NDP government captured two seats from the Opposition in provincial byelections Monday, raising the prospect of cabinet days ahead for the torrid Manitoba political scene.

The byelection victories in the Greater Winnipeg constituency of St. Vital and in rural Ste. Rose will give the 20-month-old NDP government a majority in the legislature for the first time since it came to power after the June, 1969, provincial election.

A triumphant Premier Schreyer told cheering party supporters in St. Vital that "unless forced into a general election "we will go the full term," thus squelching speculation that he would follow up successful byelection bids with a general election call.

But the premier, who has frequently declared he would not call a general election until a four-year term or until he is defeated in the house, added: "If a general election were forced upon us we would win from 40 to 45 seats."

Jim Walding, a 35-year-old optician, won the St. Vital seat with a 390-vote majority over a Liberal challenger. He lost by a narrow margin to a Conservative, in 1969. The Conservative member later resigned.

In Ste. Rose, Pete Adam, a 56-year-old rancher and businessman, ended 44 years of Liberal domination with his victory. For the last 17 years, the Western Manitoba constituency was represented by ex-Liberal leader Gil Molgat, whose appointment to the Senate last October created the vacancy.

When the two new NDP members take their seats in the legislature, it will give the government a total of 30 in the 57-member house. There are 21 Conservatives, three Liberals, one Social Crediter and two independents.

The new members will not be in their seats when the legislature opens Wednesday, because of an Election Act requirement that there be 16 days for an official recount or appeal before an MLA can assume his seat.

However, even without the new-found support, there is little likelihood the government can be toppled in the first 38½s of the session since the vacancies would leave the government and the opposition in a 27-to-27 standoff, with the vote of a yet-to-be-appointed Speaker breaking any tiel.

Two Children Die In Kingston Fire

KINGSTON (CP) — Two children were killed early today when fire ripped through a two-storey house, leaving two families homeless.

Stephen Townes, 18, and Joseph Townes, 6, were found dead by firemen in their second floor bedroom.

Wesley W. Townes, 74, suffered burns to 40 per cent of his body and was in critical condition in hospital.

Four members of another family sharing the home were in satisfactory condition at another hospital. They are: Audrey Black, 31, and her children, Lillian, 7, Marsha, 9, and Richard, 10. All suffered from smoke inhalation and lacerations caused by flying glass.

An eighth person in the house at the time escaped injury.

Adaptability Key To Job in Future

OTTAWA (CP — Versatility and adaptability are keys to the kingdom of jobs in future and the education system had better learn that quickly, says the author of a Science Council of Canada manpower study.

Dr. Frank Kelly, whose report to the council of the prospect for scientists and engineers was made public Monday, said the versatile and adaptable graduate "is exactly the kind the universities are not turning out."

He forecasts that the system will produce many more graduates that can be effectively used for at least two years. Perhaps half the estimated 14,000 science and engineering graduates leaving university this year would be in this category.

"I think we face a very, very difficult three or four years," Dr. Kelly told a news conference at which he was questioned about the social consequences of having so many highly-trained persons with inadequate outlets for their knowledge and energy.

Dr. P. D. McFargart-Cowan, council executive director, told the news conference the council feels it has insufficient knowledge and understanding to publish a report containing advice to the government. He acknowledged that the council wrote privately to the treasury board, but declined to reveal the contents.

However, word has leaked out that the letter dealt with possible social dangers from the bleak outlook for graduates, including the effects in Quebec where job opportunities seem even more limited than in English Canada.

Dr. Kelly said most university students and recent graduates feel society has violated a social contract by failing to provide well-paid, interesting jobs they had been led to expect would be available after graduation.

"They are rather bitter," he said.

Society must quickly redefine what education is for and make it clear that "is it not about jobs" at least.

The sense of paranoia or persecution would grow in those leaving universities under present job prospects and under-graduates would tend to see the faculty as the enemy, accopying positions that the students themselves might aspire to.

Among the effects foreseen by Dr. Kelly were the "bumping" or displacement of high school graduates by university graduates in many current jobs, discrimination by industry against women graduates in science and engineering and increasing difficulty among graduates in meeting more restrictive requirements for postgraduate schools.

Trudeau Undecided About Quebec Request

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau refused to say Monday whether the federal government will meet Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa's request and maintain "special measures" after the Public Order Act expires April 30.

"What cabinet will decide is something I can't predict," Mr. Trudeau said in the Commons, replying to Eldon Woolliams (PC—Calgary North).

The cabinet would study Mr. Bourassa's request "along with other input" before making a decision.

Hees Asks Trudeau About Greene's View

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Monday Energy Minister J. J. Greene was speaking for himself when he stated Sunday that the federal government may have to play a greater role in the management of Canadian banks.

The prime minister added in a Commons reply to George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) that Mr. Greene was not making any particular statement of government policy.

Mr. Greene was speaking on a taped CBC interview.

Mr. Hees asked whether the government would tell Canadian banks to lower their interest rates as banks in most parts of the world had done.

Mr. Trudeau said such a move is not contemplated now.

David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North) asked Finance Minister Edgar Benson whether the government is considering legislation to provide for "public representation" on the chartered banks' boards of directors.

Mr. Benson said the boards are made up of "members of the public."

He also said he had read the prepared texts of the statements of various bank presidents for speeches they made in New York two weeks ago on foreign investment in Canada.

Mr. Benson said he found, in reading the texts, that "the press was misrepresentative in stating that the opinions of one or two of them were the general opinions of the bankers at this meeting."

UNIROYAL TIRES

ONCE A YEAR OFFER

TAKE A MINUTE AND READ THIS - IT MAY BE THE MOST REWARDING 60 SECONDS OF YOUR LIFE . . .

A REAR TIRE FOR TRACTION

A FRONT TIRE FOR STEERING

DUE TO BAD WEATHER CONDITIONS THIS OFFER IS EXTENDED UNTIL APRIL 10th, 1971

UNIROYAL MASTERS

Your front wheels steer the car. Your rear wheels push the car.

Designing different tires for both places makes a lot of sense, doesn't it?

First, the front tire. It has nine tread rows, so you always have an enormous amount of biting edges in contact with the road, for excellent steering control. Also, because the outside grooves on either side of the tread are straight, cornering is just about as smooth as it can be.

Now, the rear tire. It's wider than the front, so right off the bat you have the benefit of more rubber on the road. Also, the combination of the regular tread pattern and the deep-lug pattern gives you superb traction on any kind of surface.

The biting edges on the tread of both tires (except for the deep-lug section of the rear tire) are at ninety-degree angles from side to side. You get excellent road bite when you hit the brakes, even on wet roads.

Both tires have extra strength nylon casings, reinforced with 2 ply hi modulus rayon belts underneath the tread — for hazard protection (as well as extra mileage). And if a nail does manage to get through all that, there's a special liner inside that cuts off virtually all air leakage.

Uniroyal Masters may very well be one of the most revolutionary tire developments in tire history.

BRIDE'S EDITION

happy the BRIDE

AND THE GROOM WHO, IN THESE LIBERATED TIMES, HAVE FOUND SELF FULFILLMENT IN THE AGES-OLD SACRAMENT OF MARRIAGE. MAY THESE PAGES HELP TO ENRICH THEIR LIVES, "FROM THIS DAY FORWARD".

Careful Preparation Worthwhile If Wedding Is to Be Enjoyable

With the wedding season just around the corner, many starry-eyed young brides-to-be (and their ardent knights in shining armor) are probably dreaming moonlit dreams as they pass the last few months before the great day. Of course every bride wants her wedding day to be perfect, a flawless jewel of a day that can be treasured forever among her most precious memories.

But such an event naturally requires hours of careful thinking, discussion and planning which should begin several months before the day. And in the mean time, often till the very last day, the career girl bride-to-be has to go through her usual hectic schedule — work all day, shopping, cooking and all the other chores connected with running an apartment.

So it was specially with these busy young girls on the go in mind that the following checklist was prepared. There is a whole host of minute details to be attended to, details that can be easily overlooked in the rush and bustle of everyday life but which can make the difference between a perfect wedding and a near-perfect one. So keep this clipping in your purse. It will help you as you make your wedding plans.

Two months Before —

Decide where your wedding is to be. At home? At Church? Will it be formal? Informal? Large? Small?

Choose the church and engage the clergyman. Arrange for decorations and get an estimate of the costs of the flowers, carpet, canopy, etc.

Arrange for the reception — the place, caterer, music.

Choose your attendants and list their sizes. Set a budget for your trousseau and start shopping. With your fiance, make up your guest list. Order the invitations and announcements.

Make an appointment with your photographer and discuss with him the kind of wedding also give you some tips on makeup, and on choosing a color scheme for your wedding which will appear to advantage in color photographs.

Select your patterns in silver, crystal and china and register them at your department store.

One Month Before —

Spend a quiet evening at home to address and stamp your invitations. Mail them during the first week of this month. Try to finish your shopping now for linens and lingerie. Bridal party costumes should be delivered one week before the wedding. Have fittings of your wedding gown. Now is a good time for your photographer to take a formal pre-wedding portrait.

Decide on the flowers for the bridal party and let your fiance know, so that he can order yours. Acknowledge each gift as it arrives. Order wedding cake and go over the menu for the reception with the caterer. Buy gifts for your bridal party. Arrange quarters for out-of-town guests.

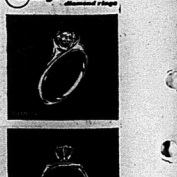
ONE WEEK BEFORE

Check over your trousseau. Has everything been delivered? Do they all fit properly? Confirm your appointment with your hairdresser. Pack your suitcase two or three days ahead.

THE BIG DAY

You're the bride and this is your day. Don't be afraid to ask someone to be on hand for last-minute errands. Take your time dressing. Let the photographer begin the 'Story of Your Wedding' with a picture of you adjusting your veil. From then till you leave for your honeymoon amidst whirling showers of confetti, he will follow you around quietly and unobtrusively, recording the story in pictures.

Now go ahead, you and your Prince Charming and live happily ever after!



A Good Husband Defined in Poetry

A master of a house (as I have read)
Must be the first man up, and last in bed:
With the Sun rising he must walk his grounds;
See this, View that, and all the other bounds:
Shut every gate, mend every hedge that's lorne,
Either with old, or plant therein new thorne;
Tread o'er his glebe, but with such care that where
He sets his foot, he leaves rich comfort there.
— Robert Herrick (1591-1674)

Money Management Vital to Happiness

Before the receipts are scattered and misplaced, the bill payments overdue and large balances run-up at the department store — Stop and Think what mismanaging money can do to your marriage!

Now fantasize for a moment! Put yourself in the shoes of Jane and Harry who were married last month. Jane's annoyed because Harry hasn't told her what he's making. Jane just doesn't understand finances, says Harry. Harry has no idea about the costs of buying women's clothing and shopping in the supermarket, says Jane. And neither has ever discussed the word "budget!" Problems! After only one month!

Let's face it. If you're going to make your marriage work, both of you must know the amount of money available to live on.

Be up - to - date! Talk over your finances together! That means estimating your total income for the year. In other words, husband tells wife how much he is earning and working wife does the same. An understanding will be reached about what you can afford and then you can plan a budget. Think of the fights you won't have.

Why not pay your bills together the first few times. Really! See where your money is going and understand what bill paying involves.

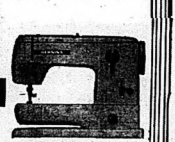
Do you both understand what balancing a bank statement entails? As you write each cheque, are you filing away the actual bill and marking "Paid" and noting the date of payment on it? Are you checking the bill against the purchase receipt? Or did you forget to save it? Do you keep a supply of envelopes and postage stamps on hand to mail your bills?

If both of you know the answers to all of these questions, both will become budget conscious and overspending problems will diminish.

Simplify bill paying and purchasing. Easier said than done? Not at all! One way of doing this is by using an all-purpose bank charge card. With it you may buy everything from pots 'n' pans to poodles and get only one bill at the end of the month for all your purchases. It's the time-saver that you've been looking for. The charge card system cuts down paper work and the number of cheques you have to write And if you think you may get tired opening up a mail box full of bills — this is one sure way-to ease the psychological effect!

Where can you get a bank charge card? At your local bank of course!

There is no fee for the card. Credit-worthy citizens need only ask for one.



The card can be a real budgetary aid, if you use it wisely. It particularly comes in handy when you want to take advantage of the local fire sale and you just don't have the ready cash. But remember! Each individual is given a credit limit and if you go beyond this, you will be prevented from making more purchases. Generally, a manager will telephone a central clearing office to authorize your credit — and find out if you're over your limit.

Budget your savings. This is not very complicated but it does take discipline. Think of it this way. If your honeymoon was idyllic, how about a repeat! It will only happen with money you save. Decide upon a percentage of your salary that automatically goes in the savings account. And put it there monthly! Put all windfalls in the account, also. Keep this up and your dreams will come true.

Living together means working things out. And money does not have to be a problem — if approached intelligently.

Windblown Coif Sensible

Whoever said you can't take a dazzling, romantic and windblown coif on your honeymoon? Gone are the days when the short, simple, sculptured hairstyle was the best traveling - "do". Now you can look supercchic and professionally-styled, whether you're skiing in the Alps or sunning in the Caribbean. Here's the secret.

A few days before you fly away, have your tresses cut and shaped into a style you like. Remember, this year the bouncy, swirling, soft, luxurious, feminine, natural, curly look is in. Straight hair is "dead". Teasing is out. The structured look is passe.

With that in mind, why not try an upswept style that looks carefree during the day, but so romantic at night? Soft, flowing tendrils cascade toward your neck, while wispy bangs accent eyes. The crown is loose and fluffy.

To get this look and keep it - pack a beauty bag with a portable hair dryer or blower, a few rollers, brush, hair set tape, shampoo and conditioner.

To style, brush a small section of your tresses at forehead, sides and nape forward. Make loose curls, holding in place with hair set tape that's skin-concerale and easily removed. Brush rest of your locks away from face, winding backward — ever so loosely — in rollers.

When hair is dry, remove plaked tape and rollers. Brush tresses upward, gathering in a gentle high chignon and holding with a rubber band. Then let hair gently fall over rubber band onto the crown. Brush wispy bangs on forehead and dangling, flowing tendrils at nape and sides.

Once you've set and brushed this look into shape, you can forget it! This style is so naturally soft that no matter how the wind blows, your coif will appear perfect, because it's supposed to be wispy, free and natural.

Lots Of Experience

Helen Reddick has been making and decorating wedding cakes at Reddick's Bake Shop on Front Street, for 35 years. Designs for cake toppings are varied and this cake contains small cup for fresh flowers. However icing trim remains consistant through the years.

Why Do Brides ?

— wear orange blossoms?

. . .for good luck and happiness. It is believed that the orange was the "golden apple" given Jupiter and Juno on their wedding day.

— have a tiered wedding cake? . . .

For prosperity. It was an Anglo-Saxon custom for wedding guests to bring little cakes and pile them into a mound over which bride and groom attempted to kiss. A French chef conceived the idea of icing cakes into a solid mass.

— wear a veil? . . .

This is a reminder of the Egyptian customs forbidding the groom to see the bride's face until the wedding day.

For everlasting love. There are many beliefs about the origin of the ring, but one of the loveliest is this: Primitive man wove a cord and bound it 'round the waist of the woman he loved. He believed her spirit thus entered his body and she was bound to him forever.

Anything Goes

The peasant look complete with kerchief, worn by Betty Young, is is the latest in fashion. Printed voile or even gingham is proving popular with the young people who wish to part from tradition.

Marriage's Origins

The origin of marriage has a most interesting background. At present, the tradition has gone through three changes. The first one is marriage by force or capture; second is through contract or purchase and the third is the one supposedly practised today in most countries — marriage through mutual love.

The practice of sealing the engagement with a ring has been a custom for many centuries, even though it has been practised in different manners. Bracelets of human hair have been used to seal the pact instead of ring or bracelet are in the shape of a circle which symbolizes the union as "unbroken and without end".

The bride's veil symbolizes her submission to her husband, although many brides today fail to wear one. This can be explained by the new fashions. Since pantsuits have invaded even the churches, many brides feel that a veil would not complement their mod apparel, and as a result wear only a ribbon or bow to adorn their hair.

One custom that still stands today is the honeymoon. Newlyweds find a vacation away from everyone very enjoyable before returning home to the more serious side of marriage.

Charming Gown May Require Waist Trim

What's in the mind of the most modern bride, do you suppose? IS she planning a space - age wedding, complete with white satin jumpsuit and crystalline bouquet? Don't bet an it — the chances are that she has her liberated - female heart set on an heirloom wedding, and is even now ransacking the attic trunk for family treasures of generations past.

Ever mindful of the unique charm of hand-made objects, the 1971 bride plans to wear her grandmother's lace veil along with Mother's traditional long wedding gown . . . a full-skirted sweep of ivory satin. The fitted bodice probably has 50 satin-covered buttons leading to a nipped-in little waist designed to look as if the lucky groom could span it with both hands.

Hmmmmmmm. . .maybe the bride-to-be ought to try on that wedding gown several months in advance to make sure she's in shape — literally — for the great day. It's a sure way to discourage overeating at parties between now and then, and if she needs to shed a few pounds to fit into that old-fashioned waistline — now's the time!

Mother will probably want to try on her own wedding gown, too, for sentiment's sake. Do not be surprised if the pre-wedding shape-up turns into a family plan! Particularly if Mother has a big anniversary party of her own on the social horizon. It's only natural for every woman to enjoy showing off a slender figure, and fortunately, it's easier than ever to get and keep one. These days tedious diets are as outmoded as whalebone corsets. One smart, modern way to shape-up is with diet food. Mix one packet of a delicious powder with 6 oz. nonfat milk for a 154 calorie minute meal that can be substituted for one or more regular meals as needed. Or, if you'd like the ultimate in convenience, try the diet food in its ready-to-drink pull - top can. Spend your time on invitations and shower lists, while modern diet foods take care of the diet details for every generation.

When the wedding day comes, just smile. Let the guests think the bride inherited her tiny waistline — as well as her grown — from the lithe and lovely mother-of-the-bride.

Costumes Can Blend

A romantic era. That's the way the fashion pendulum is swinging — back to soft, feminine, demurely pretty clothes— and wedding dresses reflect the image.

This spring even the bride - groom gets a chance to share star billing. For a bride dressed in charming Victorian gown of white organza with pale yellow satin ribbons run through Valenciennes frills, why not a matching yellow turtleneck to wear with his tuxedo? Strictly non-New York, but this may get quite a play outside of the great Eastern city.

One designer makes the perfect bridesmaid's dress to complete this picure. It's a simple A line shaft of lemon yellow — a linen-look fabric — frosted with a Val lace jabot and narrow rows of the same outlining neckline and sleeves.

Princess or high-waisted effects hint at the shirtwaist influence on bridal finery. Back fullness is often a detachable train; dirndl gathers below taut little high - waisted bodices narrow down the line a bit to point up frill-edged sleeves.

Some wear just the lightest, briefest train; three's a wide swoosh of chapel and cathedral-length trains; short bouff a n t bridal veils are also seen.

Peau d'ange lace fashions the tiny bodice, sleeves and long formal train of a Watteau wedding gown with pearl embroidered lace appliques scattered over a full organza gown yoked and sleeved in lace.

The Bustle Is Back

Back interest is the feature of this latest fashion in pink, with white velvet circular scroll design, modelled by Ruby Morton of Belleville.

Dishes All Done

A bride's first kitchen can be a place of joy for her if she has the latest gadgets and equipment to prepare the special meals that sound so glamorous in all the fancy cookbooks she has gathered from showers and friends.

Cleaning up after the feast is not much fun unless there's a handy dishwasher. A portable takes all the drudgery away. It not only washes superbly the fine wedding-gift china and crystal, but a sticky casserole or a burned pie pan comes out of the dishwasher without a crumb on it.

And the grubby pans don't even need rinsing. Some models have a handsome hardwood top which provides extra counter space for preparing or serving food.

Handygal's Helper

Tool Kit for Emergencies Is A Useful Item

An original gift that's sure to be used—A Handyman Kit for a Resourceful Gal, The Bride.

Solving the age-old problem of what to get for the bride that someone else won't think of is not as difficult as it would seem. With a little imagination, the perfect original (and useful) gift can be found.

For example, frayed lamp won't always wait for the groom's attention. That means household repairs sometimes fall into feminine hands. And when a project won't wait, it won't wait for a dash to the hardware store for the tool she needs — especially when even a minor public appearance means a pat to the coiffure, a touch of lipstick and a change of clothes.

To avoid last-minute hardware hunts — and broken fingernails — there's a strong case for a maxi-purpose, mini-item tool kit for the prospective bride or any other woman. What should go into it?

First off, no housewife wants to sort through 40 sizes of ratchets and wrenches to find a pair of pliers. So the feminine tool stocked with versatile tools that can be used for a variety of tasks. Inventiveness, usually springing from ignorance of tools, has been the mark of feminine repairs anyway.

The average woman may not know that "pointy thing" is called an awl, but she does know it is equally useful to mark a spot for a drill as it is to punch a new belt hole for her husband's expanding waistline. Also, a pair of slip-joint pliers is as helpful for loosening a stubborn nail polish cap as it is for tightening a bolt on the dining room table. Wire snips, which come in handy for hanging pictures, also can be used to make flower arrangements.

But over-zealous misuse tools can lead to headaches, too. The basics — hammer, screwdriver, steel tape measure and slip-joint pliers — should be supplemented by a few special tools. In addition to three different sizes of regular screwdrivers, every home toolchest should contain a Phillipshead screwdriver. The standard screwdriver is useless on appliances and cookware held together by screws with crossed centre slots.

Likewise, standard pliers will not take care of all household jobs. The needlenose-type work better for hard-to-get-at places and loose appliance plugs. For painting and refinishing: brush in three sizes, various grades of sandpaper, a putty knife and some steel wool. A small chisel is a good idea for sticky paint can lids or other light prying jobs that might snap the shaft of a screwdriver.

Other useful miscellany might include a hand drill with an assortment of bits, an all-purpose knife and small hacksaw. No tool box is complete without the oft-used odds and ends: nails, screws, white glue, masking tape, tacks, thin wire and picture hangers.

Husband Seen In Dream

Tradition says that on this night a young Swedish girl may obtain a prophetic glimpse of the man she will marry. To conjure up this vision she must gather, in utter silence, a magic bouquet of nine different flowers plucked from nine different fields and sleep with it under her pillow. In her dreams her future husband will appear, take out the bouquet, lift it to his lips and then gently replace it.

A Style For Every Mood

The many whims and desires of the bride can be satisfied at Artistic Ladies Wear as shown by their window display. Whether it be headdress or gown, all styles are available.

Earrings Make Fashion Comeback

The longer skirts and girlish lines that swept away the almost architectural look of recent fashions have put new emphasis on the face, the hair — and even ears. Earrings are more popular than ever and many of the most versatile earrings are designed for pierced ears.

First stop for this fashion: your doctor. Call him and inquire about ear piercing. The process itself is an easy one-two-three. First, your doctor will sterilize the skin with antiseptic. Then, he'll measure and mark the middle of the lobes, where the holes should go. Finally, he'll pierce the lobes with a needle or the stem of your new earrings.

Your first earrings are called "buttons" or "posts." They should be made of real gold, at least 14karat in quality. Other metals and cheaper gold are not recommended as they oxidize and can cause a slight irritation of the lobes.

You should wear the initial pair of earrings for a month to six weeks. If you remove them too soon, the skin will not be accustomed to its new shape and reinserting the earrings will be needlessly difficult. Throughout that time, cleanse the lobes twice daily by dipping a cotton swab in hydrogen peroxide. Using a cotton swab is both the safest and the easiest way to apply peroxide —swabs are always clean, and are tossed away after a single use.

Even after the mouth has passed, don't omit earrings for more than a few hours. Since stem sizes vary, you might have trouble getting them back in. Never force an earring; trying to jab the stems through will surely irritate your earlobes. If the stem seems too large for your ear, apply a dab of petroleum jelly to the stem.

Sailor Adopts Nephew, Niece

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — A 19-year-old bachelor who has four years of service remaining in the United States Navy Submarine Corps has adopted two children.

Robert Sturdevant Jr. of Vancouver received court approval to adopt Stephen Donald, 3, and Betty Ann, 5. They are Sturdevant's nephew and niece.

"This has been the happiest day of my life," the tall seaman said when he learned of the approval Thursday by Clark County Superior Court.

Until last year, the legal minimum age for adoption in the state of Washington was 21.

Sturdevant began looking after the children when their parents' marriage broke up. He visited them regularly and took them on outings.

"I loved those kids, and I was tired of seeing them so confused," he said. "They never really had a home.

"My friends told me I was crazy and everyone said it couldn't be done."

Sturdevant's friends and relatives describe him as compassionate, responsible and determined "almost to the point of being stubborn."

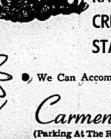
Good Apartment Meal

Most marriages start out with big hopes and big plans for the future. That is as it should be! Too often, though, marriage also starts out with the happy couple encumbered by too many "big" gifts — items that create a space problem in an apartment.

Since apartment living, whether in a multiple dwelling or a two-family house, is the way in which the majority of couples begin, it is a good idea to think in terms of dimensions when shopping for a wedding or shower gift. The bride-to-be, when making a checklist of household necessities, should think about it, too, specially when it comes to kitchen appliances.

Apartment kitchens with their limited counter and storage space can be wonderfully small. It's wise, then, to select appliances that are not only compact, but can perform more than one function. One compact electric appliance is a toaster, an oven and a top browner. And it's only 15" long, 8¼" deep and 7½" high! The unit toasts thick or thin breads of various shapes as well as frozen waffles and pancakes. The bride can't fall into the burnt toast pitfall, either. When toasting is completed (there is a control for the degree of browness desired), sliding out the toaster rack and turning the appliance off.



As a top browner, it produces muffins, toasted cheese sandwiches and hors d'oeuvres.

CREAMY MACARONI BAKE FOR TWO

½ cup mayonnaise
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
1 tsp. prepared mustard
2 tsps. finely chopped onion
1 tsp. parsley flakes
⅓ cup milk
2½ cups cooked elbow macaroni
½ lb. process cheese grated
Buttered bread crumbs or grated cheese

Preheat appliance at 400 deg. Fahr. for 10 min. Combine first six ingredients. Gradually blend in milk. Add macaroni and cheese. Place in two greased, individual casseroles (about 1½ cups capacity). Sprinkle with breadcrumbs or additional grated cheese. Place on oven tray and set on toaster rack. Close door and bake for about 20 min.

Flowers Set the Scene

By SUSAN KORAH
Women's Reporter

Like a host of pretty starlets who support the main actor and his leading lady, flowers play a decorative but important role in every wedding. Fresh - faced daisies, blushing roses, exotic orchids and fragrant gardenia, all enhance the beauty of the bride and form moments in a couple's life. Flowers figure everywhere, in the bridal bouquet, church decorations, corsages and boutonnieres. But a perfect wedding with fabulous floral arrangements that linger in everyone's memory long after the event itself requires hours of careful planning that should begin several weeks before the wedding.

The bride is of course the star of the show and her choice of flowers should reflect her tastes and personality and the colors should be in keeping with the color scheme of the whole wedding. Her attendants' flowers should complement hers and in order to make sure the floral arrangements would be flawless she should visit a florist at least a month before the big day and discuss all details with her. A skilled and experienced florist should be able to offer expert advice and suggestions before the bride-to-be places her order. Often, a future bride drops in at a flower shop expecting to finish the ordering in five minutes and then finds herself spending an hour or more discussing all sorts of important details with the florist.

For the bridal bouquet and those of the attendants there is a choice of four basic styles with variations of each that depend on the skill, experience and imagination of the florist.

The cascade style bouquet is an elaborate creation of flowers, leaves, fern, ribbon etc. arranged to give a falling or flowing effect. This style and its variations are about the most popular for brides' bouquets since it is elaborate and majestic and shows up beautifully against the gown.

Basket style bouquets are also popular especially in spring and fall. Sprays of flowers and foliage trailing over the sides of brown or white wicker baskets can have a charming effect.

A third style is the round bouquet, round as its name suggests and not quite so elaborate as the cascade or basket styles. These are generally popular for the bride's attendants' bouquets.

A nosegay bouquet is almost identical to the round bouquet except that it has a frill or ruffle round it. The frill or ruffle is generally made of a fine, lacy material called lacelon. This is an old style which is now regaining its popularity in the world of wedding styles together with high - necked Victorian style gowns. This is also often used by the bride's attendants.

If the attendants include a flower girl, her flowers are generally a smaller version of the bridesmaids' bouquets. The florist can also provide matching flowers for the bride and her attendants to wear in their hair.

Judie Rae, a local flower designer who has done the flowers for innumerable weddings in the course of her fascinating career, suggests that there should be a theme in the floral decorations throughout the event from the church service to the moment when the newlyweds leave for their honey moon. For instance, if roses are predominant in the bride's bouquet, the rose theme could be carried out in the church decorations, and in the reception hall too. A relatively new idea is to decorate the cake top and possibly the tables and candelabra with arrangements of the theme flower.

Another idea Miss Rae suggests is to have but a boutonniere matching the bride's flowers for the bridegroom and the best man's boutonniere "pairing off" with the maid of honor's bouquet.

Cascade Bouquet

Basket Bouquet

Penny Barber displays a basket bouquet, another popular style in bridal bouquets.

"And it came to pass, when men began to multiply on the face of the earth, and daughters were born unto them,

"That the sons of God saw the daughters of men that they were fair; and they took them wives of all which they chose."
Genesis; VI, 1-2.

The ring, symbolizing union and eternity, is placed on the only finger which, according to an ancient fallacy, has a vein running directly to the heart.

Cannifton Boy, 11, Drowns in Moira

Chum Rescued By Elderly Man

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

The swollen waters of the Moira River yesterday claimed the life of an 11-year-old Cannifton boy while a school chum was saved only by the quick thinking of an elderly village resident.

Brian Taite Carter was drowned in the rushing river current a half mile above the Cannifton dam and opposite his home near the Cannifton-Corbyville public school.

His 11-year-old school chum, Eugene Johnston, was saved by villager Roy Pound who, by chance, was at the riverbank watching the spring breakup when the mishap occurred a short distance upstream.

Provincial police said the two boys had gone to the river after being let out of school for the afternoon recess just after 2 o'clock.

The first anyone knew that anything was amiss was when Mr. Pound was attracted by the feeble calls for help from the two boys as they were being carried downstream by the fast running current.

"I could just see the heads of the two boys above the water," Mr. Pound said.

The one boy was only a few feet out from the bank and Mr. Pound was able to reach him with a loose branch of willow and pull him to safety.

The Carter boy was 30 feet out in the river and Mr. Pound had no chance to save him.

"I called for assistance but no one heard me," Mr. Pound said.

Suffering from shock from the ice cold water, the rescued boy was taken by ambulance to Belleville General Hospital. After emergency treatment for a bump on the head, he was allowed to go home.

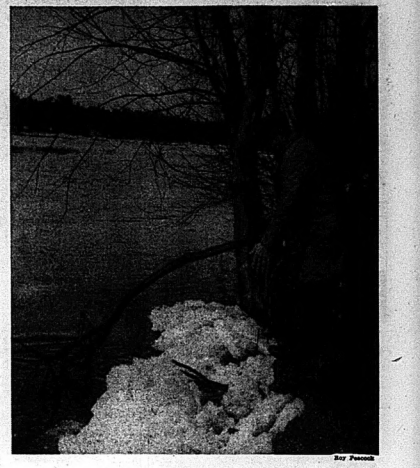
It is surmised the two boys may have ventured onto a slab of shore ice which broke off with their weight and they were carried downstream.

Thurlow volunteer firemen and one fire truck crew from Belleville answered the alarm.

Throughout the afternoon, villagers and area residents kept a close lookout downstream from the scene of the mishap watching for Brian Carter's body should it be carried to the surface or over the Cannifton dam.

Heading up the search were three police scuba divers who worked until dusk in an attempt to locate the boy's body.

Scuba divers returned toe the search this morning, but with the strong current it was difficult to judge where to look.



When last seen, the Carter boy was seen being carried downstream 200 feet from where the Johnston boy was rescued.

Tuesday's drowning in the Moira was the first of the year and recalls a double fatality 20 years ago in the same section of the river just below the Cannifton dam.

Drowned at that time were Raymond Holgate and Lester Ewing, an 11-year-old neighbor boy.

Holgate had constructed a cable car for crossing the river just below the dam and was taking the Ewing boy for a ride when the anchors gave way and allowed the cable car to drop into the river.

Mr. Holgate attempted to carry the Ewing boy to shore but both were swept away in the rushing current.

Evacuees Describe Massacre

'All Hell Is Loose' In East Pakistan

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — Foreign evacuees arriving in India are telling grim tales of atrocities in East Pakistan, following the Pakistan Army's crackdown on Sheik Mujibur Rahmans secessionist movement.

The evacuees spoke of "bloody massacres" but said the blame could not be placed on one side alone. Both were guilty of brutal, inhuman deeds, they said.

The evacuees spoke to reporters after sailing into Calcutta Tuesday night from the major East Pakistani port of Chittagong aboard the British ship Clan McNair. There were a total of 120 evacuees of 17 nationalities on the ship, including eight Canadians.

A majority of the evacuees said they preferred not to speak or give their names as there were "more people back in there."

The evacuees said Chittagong was deserted. Most of the population left for the countryside after "all hell broke loose" Friday, March 26.

British evacuees spoke of bodies scattered all over Chittagong, East Pakistan's second largest city. Dogs and crows were stripping the bodies, some of which had been lying rotting for nine days, they said.

A jute mill manager from Dundee, Scotland, said: "It has been a bloody massacre. You cannot pin the blame on one side. Both sides have been inhumanly brutal. Several Punjabis were killed in cold blood by Bengalis."

Another Briton said government troops went to every house looking for Bengalis.

"Two Bengalis were tied to the back of a truck and dragged along with their legs bound together and their heads banging along the road."

John Martinussen, a Dane who was studying at Dacca University, said the crew of the Clan McNair told him they counted 400 bodies floating in Chittagong harbor April 2.

Meanwhile, the Press Trust of India, quoting reports reaching Calcutta from across the border, said Bangla Desh forces controlled the whole of the eastern region of East Pakistan from the outskirts of Chittagong in the south to Sylhet near the Assam border in the north.

The reports said West Pakistani troops had retaken a military base and other parts of Chittagong after a big fand, sea and air counter-offensive, but the districts of Noakhali, Comilla and Mymensingh were in the hands of Sheik Mujib's followers.

Terrorists In Ceylon Face Armor

COLOMBO (AP) — Ceylon's government has thrown armor into its battle against insurgents and claimed heavy casualties among them in fighting in the countryside, the state radio reported today.

At the same time, the announcement spoke of "a few pockets of resistance" still being dealt with.

The government also announced it was reimposing for another 24 hours the 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. curfew which had kept the capital and its suburbs silent and deserted. All offices were ordered closed from noon today.

The radio said an armored column had rolled down the main trunk road connecting Colombo with the hill capital of Kandy, 72 miles away, and "wiped out terrorists" in the vicinity of the road.

Attacks on many public buildings, chiefly police stations, have been repulsed, it added. The insurgents used mainly homemade bombs and firearms.

The government said that all resources of the armed services have been drawn upon to cope with the situation emergency, including mobilization of volunteers.

No official figures of government casualties were released but informed sources said these were considerably fewer than those of the insurgents.

Although no legal censorship has been enforced, the government information department has administratively ensured that matters relating to national security are not being published. Minor censorship did not appear but they plan to bring out evening editions today for restricted circulation.

Secret Talks on Israel Held by Britain, Russia

LONDON (AP) — The foreign office disclosed today that high British and Soviet officials have had secret talks in London on the Middle East situation including problems of implementing big power guarantees to underpin any Arab-Israel settlement.

An unannounced one-day conference last Friday brought together British and Soviet diplomats who head the Middle East departments of their respective foreign ministries, a British spokesman said.

The British representative, Anthony D. Parsons, is assistant undersecretary of state at the foreign office and he was accompanied at the conference by five or six advisers.

The Soviet official was identified as a Mr. Sytenko, head of the Near East department of the Soviet foreign ministry, and he flew in for the talks from Moscow with about four aides.

The United States, Britain, France and Russia for some time have been trying to reinforce the peace-making mission of UN envoy Gunnar Jarring.

Israel's Labor Party Wants Border Changes

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israel's governing Labor party early today backed its leaders' refusal to withdraw from the occupied territories and demanded "substantial changes" in Israel's pre-1967 borders.

The final resolution at a three-day party convention was considered a slap at U.S. State Secretary William Rogers, who has been urging the Israeli government to agree to only "insubstantial border adjustments."

The resolution, adopted by an overwhelming show of hands, said: "Substantial changes will have to be made in these former border lines, because past experience has proved that they cannot provide Israel with vital security."

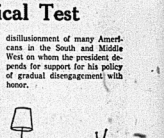
Figures Disagree

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canadian and American officials apparently found themselves with a difference of opinion Tuesday about their trade figures and Finance Minister E. J. Benson of Canada said he decided to have his department look into the problem.

Benson said the Americans are worried about the present imbalance in U.S. current accounts, which take in trade and other financial dealings among nations.

The Canadians quoted figures which showed that the current accounts—involving some $10,000 million each way between the two countries—are roughly in balance after years of Canadian deficits. U.S. officials replied that their figures showed Canada currently has a surplus of about $600 million annually in trade between the countries.

The minister said he had agreed to have his officials check the U.S. figures and see whether a common figure could be arrived at.



Nixon Will Go on TV, Facing Critical Test

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — President Nixon faces a critical political test tonight when he goes on television to announce how fast he intends to bring U.S. troops home from Vietnam.

A substantial increase in the rate of the U.S. withdrawal is regarded as certain, perhaps going as high as 20,000 men a month compared with the present rate of 12,500.

Public tolerance for continuing the war is at a low point. Only 50 per cent of the people believe Nixon is doing a good job as president, and demands have mounted in Congress for the U.S. to get out of Indochina come what may.

The outcry over the conviction of Lieut. William Calley has added a new element to the confused picture, increasing the disillusionment of many Americans in the South and Middle West on whom the president depends for support for his policy of gradual disengagement with honor.

Engineers May Form Canadian Union

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers were back to work at all points today with Canada's two major railways attempting to catch up on the backlog of traffic.

The 2,300 engineers at Thunder Bay were the last to return to work, doing so at midnight Tuesday, following the 230 CNR members of the union in Winnipeg who went back to work earlier in the day.

Workers at both points returned to their jobs "under protest" while in Edmonton engineers adopted a work-to-rule approach when they went back to work Monday night.

Many of the more than 4,000 union members in Canada expressed annoyance about a union bylaw under which members do not have a say in ratification of the contract agreed upon by union negotiators and CP Rail and CNR Monday.

With the men back at work, a CPR spokesman in Calgary said they are "pulling out all the stops" to move loaded grain cars to Vancouver terminals from points between the Pacific Coast and Saskatchewan's western boundary.

About 1,000 cars of grain are sitting at CPR points between Field, B.C. and Vancouver with a backlog of another 2,300 on four Alberta divisions.

In Toronto, meanwhile, about 150 locomotive engineers held an emergency meeting and agreed to consider the formation of a Canadian union.

The men rejected a motion of a wildcat strike, but formed a committee to consider the next step. Robert McCallum, a spokesman for the group, said, "We have got to have Canadian autonomy or we will never be able to run our own affairs."

Ontario Growers Back B. C. Protest

TRENTON (Staff) — In their meeting here yesterday, members of the Ontario Apple Marketing Commission threw their weight behind British Columbia growers in a fight to block shiploads of Australian apples expected to flood the Canadian market in the next 10 days.

"We will support the BC growers to picket and discourage the movement of Australian apples in any way possible," Gerry Long, chairman of the commission said here yesterday. Ontario growers will help finance the blockade, he explained.

The resolution of support was accepted by about 60 local apple producers in a regional meeting of the OAMC held at Trenton's Legion Hall.

Mr. Long said he considers the support for BC growers quite significant.

"This is the first time in the history of the Ontario apple industry that we have become this militant but, for survival, we are of the opinion that this is what we have to do," he stated.

The London, Ont. resident said that Pacific coast apple men will man picket lines in an attempt to block entry of the Australian apples into the country.

Canadian growers are facing an ever increasing threat from countries in the southern hemisphere, particularly Australia, New Zealand and South Africa. Last year alone, he mentioned, 500,000 boxes of apples entered the domestic market from these lands.

"We have no use for them . . . . . this is not free trade, they ban Canadian apples," he said.

If the chairman is against the large importers, he is not against shipments to Ontario of apples from Canadian provinces.

"There is no axe to grind with them . . . we have no God - given right to the Ontario market," he said.

Mr. Long urged producers attending the meeting here to improve the quality of their apple crops and the packaging techniques now in use, so the home-grown harvest will stand up strongly in the face of competition.

River Watchers

Cannifton area residents kept a sharp lookout downstream from the scene of yesterday's Moira River drowning in case the body of the boy lost in the spring-swollen waters should be carried over the Cannifton dam. Police scuba divers are continuing their search for Brian Carter. His school chum, Eugene Johnston, was saved by an elderly villager, Roy Pound, who happened to be along the river bank watching the spring breakup at the time the incident occurred.

Hastings Pays Up — Finally

CAMPBELLFORD (Staff) — A three-year-out-and-mouse game between the village of Hastings, six miles west of here, and the Lower Trent Conservation Authority is over, Hastings Reeve Carl Heath indicated today.

Officials of the conservation authority disclosed Tuesday they were proceeding to take court action against the Percy township hamlet that straddles the Trenton River just east of Rice Lake.

The portion of Hastings to the north of the river is in the Otonabee Conservation Authority, that south is in the LTRCA.

Since the Lower Trent Authority was formed in 1968, the village has "not paid a pittance" to support it and Reeve Heath has only turned out for two Authority meetings over the three-year period — the last two.

A series of 30-day notices were sent to officials of the municipality over the years demanding money, but no payments were made.

"They were well aware of what they were up to," says one authority member and Mr. Heath himself minces no words about it.

"We just ignored it for a while — we wondered if we could withdraw, but got the polite brush off," he said.

The Hastings reeve contends that the Lower Trent Authority has been "moving awfully fast without giving us much consideration — besides we have a new dam up here and I did not think they had much to offer."

Hastings council decided Monday night to send out a cheque — the community's share of LTRCA operations for the past three years. Only residents of the village's south side pay to support the Lower Trent Authority; those to the north contribute to the Otonabee authority.

Referring to the decision to take legal action against Hastings, the reeve stressed "that was not the reason we paid".

Although he said "there is no way a municipality can do what it likes anymore", Mr. Heath told The Intelligencer his council had concluded it can "work things out" with the LTRCA.

Hastings has been asking itself what the authority can do for it and has decided an island in the middle of the village should be turned into a "real little historic site".

It is "a hell of a looking place now", according to the reeve. It used to be a pleasant beauty spot with lots of willows and soft maples, he said.

Sidney Township's Complaint Noted

Sidney township council has expressed dissatisfaction with the service provided to the eight township fire hydrants maintained by the Belleville Public Utilities Commission.

Council was advised of an increase in the yearly cost from $48 to $120.

Clerk J. Byron Harder noted that the hydrants were not all properly dug out of heavy drifts during the past winter. "They didn't really do any job of removing the snow," he said.

Council's position was duly noted by the Belleville commission at their regular monthly meeting yesterday.

"We maintained them and dug them out just like our own," said PUC assistant manager Ned Britton. He noted several days may have passed before snow was cleared away during one severe storm.

Sidney township council will consider obtaining a flat rate on water to the hydrants, with service to be carried out by township employees.

Open House Tonight

TRENTON (Staff) — Trenton High School's 325 night school students finish off their winter session tonight with an open house that begins in the auditorium at 8 p.m.

The Citizens' Band will get the program under way with a short concert and a 45 - minute fashion show follows, featuring outfits made in night school sewing courses through the winter.

Various displays will be set up in the school cafeteria. These include the handiwork of art and ceramics classes as well as the crafts of trade courses taught in the evening sessions, particularly woodworking, electronics and welding.

Night school principal, Doug Livingstone, says this year's annual open house is bigger and better than ever.

IN MEMORIAM

BATEMAN, Annie Elizabeth — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother and grandmother who passed away April 7th, 1966.
Memories are treasures no one can steal.
Death is a heartache no one can heal.
Some may forget you now that you're gone,
But we will remember no matter how long.
— Lovingly remembered by husband Percy and family.

WILLIAMS — In loving memory of Howard G. Williams who passed away April 9, 1966.
There is a link death cannot sever.
Love and remembrance last forever.
Sadly missed by wife Ruby, daughter Enid and Howard Jr.

CHAPMAN — Treasured memories of our dear father, Charles Chapman who passed away April 7, 1970.
We mourn for him in silence,
For words can not express,
But many a silent tear is shed,
For those we love the best.
— Sadly missed by wife Laura, family and grandchildren.

WILLIAMS — To a wonderful brother, Howard G. Williams who died April 7th, 1966.
Beautiful memories are wonderful things,
They last till the longest day,
Our thoughts ever sad, they never get dim,
And memory never be given away.
We have some pictures to treasure,
To others a part of the past,
But you are the one we loved and lost you.
Your memory will always last.
— Ever remembered Barbara, Jim and Janet.

STONE — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Charlie H. Stone who passed away April 7th, 1970.
Our hearts are sore,
Our tears are few,
We can think of Mom and Dad,
Though Dad departed many years ago,
He waited up there for Mom, when she got home.
As time goes by we cried our way,
But we'll meet you both some day.
God bless you Mom and Dad up there.
— Lovingly remembered by son Donald, Wife and Family.

CARDS OF THANKS

I wish to thank Dr. O'Boyle Kelly and the nurses of the Belleville General Hospital for their special care during my stay in the Belleville General Hospital.
Dorothy Balch,

Designer Addresses Sales and Ad Ladies

Last night members of the Women's Sales and Ad Club filled the lower room of the Sun Luck Gardens to be told by a representative of the Robert Simpson Co. that a lot of junk is passed off as furniture.

Eric Gray, interior design consultant for the Robert Simpson Co., spoke to the group, discussing color, design and how to have fun decorating the bathroom.

Mr. Gray said simplicity was the keynote to good decorating and later said that once a room is completed it need never be moved again.

Mr. Gray travelled throughout the home, discussing what could be done in each room to make it a little more exciting to live in.

The speaker said that unless you have a mansion, you should not buy a matching chair with your chesterfield.

He said a chair must be very special, that it must fit you and your room, and this chair must hug you and make you feel loved.

As well as calling the globe - shaped lighting fixtures, fly cemeteries, and saying that any piece of furniture with latex backing was junk, he said that many people have no idea how to decorate.

He also said that professional cleaning of a carpet was the worst thing that you could do to it because of the scum left on the carpet from the cleaning process. He mentioned that the carpet would need to be cleaned each would need to be cleaned each following year.

Mr. Gray spent a large amount of time talking to the ladies on how they can let their hair down while decorating the bathroom.

He recealed when he had suggested that the owner paper the bathroom walls with the joke pages and centre folds from Playboy magazines.

He said this technique had quite an effect on female guests.

Oil paintings, high fashion furniture, and advertising all received the wrath of Mr. Gray during the evening.

Mr. Gray, who was unopposed in his attack of modern furnishings, answered questions on personal problems that the ladies had in decorating their homes.

Designer Speaks Mind

Eric Gray, interior design consultant for the Robert Simpson Co., spoke to the members of the Women's Sales and Ad Club last night in the Sun Luck Gardens. Mr. Gray spoke at length on how to have fun while decorating the home, mentioning that you can really let your hair down while brightening up the bathroom.

Mayor Attacks Resolution

Mayor J. Russell Scott yesterday attacked a resolution of the personnel committee of the newly - formed Quinte Area Planning Board.

The resolution, to advertise for future planning staff, was passed at the Thursday night committee meeting.

"This is a bad breach of good faith if it is carried out and approved by the planning board," Mayor Scott told the press yesterday.

He based his objections on a previous policy meeting held in Trenton. "The resolution passed there said that the Quinte Area Planning Board, when organized, would take on all present employed planning staff," he said.

The mayor termed this agreement a "moral and legal obligation. No way can I support that new resolution."

However, there may be "justification . . . it may be that members on this committe weren't present at the Trenton committee meeting."

"You can't start off without the present planning staffs," he concluded.

Belleville Alderman Arnold Orr, vice - chairman of the Quinte Area Planning Board and chairman of the personnel committee, this morning explained that "all positions for director and planners would be advertised."

However, he stressed that "we will give everybody a chance, particularly in the area . . . and preference to the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board employees.

"I can't comment on that previous meeting with any special knowledge," he said, "although, I am told the committee passed this resolution" to include present planning staff.

As member of the Belleville board, Mr. Orr recalled a previous motion which dealt with the BSPB employees. The motion stated that "present members should be engaged at at least their present salaries."

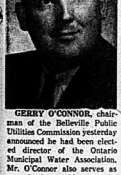
Sidney Township Reeve Jack M. Bush, chairman of the Quinte Area Planning Board expressed dissatisfaction with the Mayor's public announcement of the committee meeting's resolution.

"This is purely speculation," said Mr. Bush this morning. It's premature.

"The planning board has to ratify this decision; nothing is final."

He said both the Trenton meeting recommendation and the April 1 motion were "recommendations" and he termed the mayor's public chargin was simply "jumping one step ahead when it comes out of a committee meeting.

"I think it's wrong that we publicize committee negotiations," the Reeve said of his fellow planning board member.



"It's the prerogative of the board to either accept the motion or turn it down."

The second motion passed recommended that four area consulting firms make submissions to the personnel committee by May 4 asserting the needs of the planning area as to how many staff and what positions are required.

Britton To Attend Conference

Belleville Public Utilities Commission yesterday allotted funds of $160 to send assistant manager Neil Britton to the Summer Conference for Management to be held at Lakehead University in Thunder Bay, June 9-11.

The conference is operated by the Association of Municipal Electrical Utilities and is designed to compare problems in utility commissions.

GERRY O'CONNOR, chairman of the Belleville Public Utilities Commission yesterday announced he had been elected director of the Ontario Municipal Water Association. Mr. O'Connor also serves as second vice-president of the Eastern Ontario Municipal Water Association. He was elected to the position in October, 1970.

Dr. Potter Says—

Economic Nationalism Needs Careful Handling

WINDSOR — The whole issue of economic nationalism must be approached with greater care, Minister without Portfolio Dr. Richard Potter cautioned here last night.

"It is imperative that we continue to build job opportunities in Ontario and that we nurture the continual expansion of our economy," he said. "At the same time, we . . . must ensure that we retain the ability to direct the course of our country's economy and culture."

A prime concern of the Ontario government is the present "severe" unemployment situation, he told the Windsor West Progressive Conservative Association.

"In a province such as ours, whose strength and vitality are so apparent, this situation is intolerable." The government is pledged to pursue every possible avenue", to provide jobs, he said.

Other issues discussed by Dr. Potter included:

Pollution — Contamination of the environment must be brought under "strict control — the whole process of pollution reversed. Our future depends on this." Ontario is "well out in front" in the fight, but even greater efforts are needed to conquer pollution.

Urbanization — Ontario's population will double by the year 2,000 with 80 per cent concentrated in towns and cities. This will compound pressures on government to provide adequate and "reasonably - priced" housing, medical care, transportation, recreation. Many prefer a rural environment where job opportunities may be limited. Current incentive programs have helped spread industry to such areas which in turn will encourage more even population distribution.

The primary task of the Davis government will be to determine directions and priorities for Ontario in the next decade. Such decisions must consider not only the individual but society as a whole in Ontario and Canada.

Ontario has experienced 25 years of expansion, but the social emphasis must now take new directions, Dr. Potter indicated.

"Now we must become more selective, and concentrate our efforts on human problems which are beyond the scope of individual ability alone," he said.

Northern's London Strike Continues

A continuing strike at Northern Electric's London, Ont., plant has had no effect on the company's Belleville operations, a company spokesman said today.

The strike, by 900 production workers, continued after they turned down a tentative memorandum of agreement reached between company and labor negotiators last week.

Meantime, the strike has brought an accusation of discrimination against the Unemployment Insurance Commission because it disqualified Northern Electric office workers from benefits affected by the dispute.

Robert Nickerson, an international representative of the United Auto workers, said about 120 office workers were released March 19 for what the company termed a "temporary interruption" because of the strike.

Mr. Nickerson said none of the office workers are taking part in the strike personally, financing the strike or is directly interested in the dispute or its outcome.

Foster Ward Station Needed

A new power substation for the Foster Ward district has been proposed by the Belleville Public Utilities Commission.

The substation is needed to handle the general power use buildup noted in that area and portions of the downtown district, notably the Memorial Arena.

"I feel we can get through this next year without any difficulty," said Neil Britton, PUC assistant manager, "but we'll need it in the future."

At present, the PUC will undertake a costs study to determine what is required for the new station, to be built in the style of a house.

The new unit couldn't be constructed for at least six months. "There's about a six-month delay in equipment," he said.

Main Tenders To Be Called

A letter from representatives of the Quinte Mall Simpsons - Sears store received by Belleville Public Utilities Commission stated that their new outlet would be finished sometime in July.

The PUC yesterday passed a resolution that they will call tenders for an east - west watermain along Bell Blvd., subject to Ontario Municipal Board approval, as soon as they have access to the property. Utilities commissioner Mayor J. Russell Scott, said this property would be expropriated from North Belleville Realty.

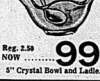
Tow Truck Thief Put on Probation

Terry Nelson, 22, of 47 Lemoine Street, was placed on probation for two years after appearing in provincial court yesterday. He had pleaded guilty earlier to a charge of theft of a tow truck from Trudeau Motors.

Judge T. Y. Wills said, in passing sentence "your problem is alcohol," and ordered the young man to seek the help of Alcoholics Anonymous.

Judge Wills said he took into account Nelson's 30 days in custody when passing sentence.



L. D. BRONSON has been appointed sales manager of the aggregate equipment department of Stephens-Adamson company here. Mr. Bronson joined the company in Belleville in 1956 and later moved to Toronto, where he concentrated on servicing the aggregate and ready - mix concrete industries. Aggregate equipment is an important product line with the company that serves sand and gravel operators and the ready-mix concrete industry.

Strike Averted

The rail strike has been averted, but like Premier Thatcher of Saskatchewan there are many who are concerned about the calamity that might have been, and about the morality of the strike weapon when it threatens the entire economy of the nation.

In other words, should the "right to strike" which was enshrined in legislation passed by the Pearson government be allowed not only to cripple a vital means of communication, disrupt movement of freight for both home and overseas markets, but also bring major industries to their knees?

Must genuine grievances among workers in vital services such as this be settled only after arduous bargaining and — as in the case of the recent postal dispute — weeks of disruption? Is there no way labor and management, having regard to the economic circumstances of the day, can come to mutually satisfactory agreements? Or is the country so psychologically geared to the strike thing that tension and dissatisfaction among workers must be permitted to build up first — and then, and then only, let the negotiations begin?

There is this cliff-hanger mentality about the whole thing — and maybe it is the natural order of things at work. Why precipitate a confrontation, or even dialogue, on the subject of working conditions, money and so on, until the pressure wells up among the workers concerned?

Nevertheless there remains the need for some more fullproof system of preventing the sort of national disaster that has just been averted. So the railways are still doing their thing; perhaps it has taken another strike scare to make Canadians realize that they need the trains. Of course we need them; we need the service they provide — and better. By that we mean up-to-date rolling stock and onboard services, and including labor which are mechanically sound. We need train service that people will want to take advantage of, and not just something that is there, and take it or leave it.

Nixon's Image

In trying to be all things to all people President Nixon may be endearing himself to none. Beset with many problems, by many critics of his policy, by general public disenchantment with the Southeast Asian situation, Nixon still keeps popping up with statements and explanations on television when he might be doing himself and the nation a greater favor by staying more in the background.

Two particular episodes — history may well record them as blunders — were his slip of the tongue in the early stages of the Manson trial in California, when he inadvertently referred to defendants as "guilty," while speaking on a law and order theme, and only last week his intervention in the Calley case. These have been damaging to the presidential image.

The effect of Nixon's statements, interventions or whatever, have often been to make a bad situation worse, to create confusion in the public mind, and to compromise himself and his office.

Mr. Nixon, moreover, has found that his peace offerings toward the North Vietnamese have been as impotent as those of his predecessors, Lyndon Johnson, having rejected with frustrating regularity. Still, U.S. troop withdrawals continue and if there is anything which Americans can see occurring according to presidential plan it is this. With what consequences the course cannot be predicted. The South Vietnamese on their own are still a fighting force of dubious quality and a Communist victory is a distinct possibility in the event of a complete U.S. withdrawal. But that is another matter. Meanwhile, a second term as president for Richard Nixon must remain open to question having regard to the mood of Americans today.

Page Girls

That was a smart move by Premier Davis in having girls hired as pages along with the boys in the Ontario legislature. Now Manitoba has followed suit and British Columbia is toying with the idea. Mode of dress has been the subject of comment. In Manitoba uniforms for the girls consist of white blouses and navy vests, with either navy skirts or pants. B.C., meanwhile, has a woman Minister Without Portfolio, Grace Jordan, and she, looking ahead, said the girls could wear some "very handsome, very feminine pantsuits." This drew a put-down from Premier Bennett: "If you want to have girls," he said, "they should look like girls and wear dresses." Politics in Canada certainly are changing these days. And for the better. For one thing, members will now have to watch their language more carefully. But what about the federal house? Will page girls be introduced there too?

If an Election Is in the Cards Davis Is Not Saying

By JOE DUPUIS

TORONTO (CP) — If a picture is worth 1,000 words, the smiling features of Premier William Davis should tell much.

One observation making the rounds at Queen's Park is that as the smile grows thinner, the day of a provincial election draws nearer.

It's not really an indication, however, because Mr. Davis has a lot more in the Buddha-like smile and reputation for unflappability to confuse even the most astute political observer about his moves.

The latest was the throne speech last week to open a new session of the legislature.

And it did not contain expensive spending programs — in the cost-conscious Davis era, which has already placed curbings on education spending and laid emphasis on stimulating the economy through a wiser distribution of funds.

The other throne speech proposals, such as streamlining of government departments to fight pollution and cope with urban development have been criticized by opposition members as complicated window-dressing, requiring no great outlay of funds.

Both opposition leaders, and many other observers, after reading the speech, were convinced Mr. Davis has opted for a fall election.

But since taking over as government leader March 1, Mr. Davis has kept his own counsel. His major reshuffling of the cabinet, and his decision to take the unprecedented step of suing Dow Chemical of Canada Ltd. for pollution damages, are examples of this. Both moves caught nearly everyone by surprise.

Other observers point to these signs as indicating a June election:

—Mr. Davis would still have time after the budget April 25 to issue writs — as late as May 17—for a June 24 election.

This would fulfill the requirement for 37 days of campaigning from the time of issuance of the writ to the day of the election.

—Seventeen of 21 cabinet ministers are new to their jobs, and he would not want to risk possible political embarrassment by having them submit to a detailed examining of their estimates during a long legislative session.

—He has set current sitting of the house to unveil deals of programs to assist various segments of society.

Despite Isolated Terrorism Ireland's Peaceful Atmosphere Predominates

Beverly Gray in
The Globe and Mail

The first thing anyone asks about a trip to Ireland is: What about the troubles? Troubles there certainly are, but a visitor is unlikely to encounter them. Although news reports give the impression that the whole island is in turmoil, the troubles are confined to two (or three isolated spots in Belfast and Derry (Londonderry). During ten days in Northern and Southern Ireland, the only evidence of trouble I saw was two bored young soldiers in Belfast, leaning on their machine guns. When leaving Canada, my suitcase was X-rayed in Montreal just in case I might be a hijacker, and examined again in Belfast in case I might be a terrorist.

Aer Lingus took off from Montreal to the strains of a lively Irish reel. We were welcomed aboard in soft Irish, then in English; all flight announcements were made in both languages. The study of Irish is compulsory in schools in the south, although it is only spoken in some villages.

The two countries added up to one big cliche — everything one had ever read about them was true. We landed at Shannon in soft sunshine and the smell of clover. The countryside was a green and lovely, emphasized by the purple of crocus, the gold of daffodils. White (gorse) lay like a sunny benediction on the hillsides. Fields were marked off by stone walls; whitewashed cottages were veined with vines; cliffs of cherry blossoms softened the harsh stone outlines of ruined castles. Once we drove for miles through an avenue of rhododendrons (still only in bud) and holly trees.

Life and progress were leisurely. Once, I clocked a two hours of driving without meeting another car. People exercised greyhounds in galaxies of twos and fours; cars stopped on the edge of the road to let cows and drovers pass; horses gossiped companionably over low stone walls. It is hard to imagine anyone in Ireland being mad enough at anybody else to hate bombs.

Ireland is a pleasant place for visitors. Hotels are good (and inexpensive), food is excellent, comfort is everywhere. Roaring open fires warm the atmosphere in restaurants and even hallways. Bath towels are draped over hot water pipes. My first night in Ireland I could not find my nightgown, decided I had forgotten to pack it — then found it cuddled cosily around a hot water bottle in my bed.

Everywhere, one is aware of horses. Signs say Beware Horses Crossing. Turf Accountants (bookies) have prominent shop-front offices. Horses are still used on bread wagons and farm wagons; there are innumerable riding schools; businessmen sometimes go for an hour's riding before work. A line of horses and riders came over a hill; even at 10 a.m. they were natilly dressed in caps and breeks. At the National Stud Farm mares and their colts gambolled in a pasture.

Sunrises are a sort of hobby of mine (when I'm away from home) and one morning I went out to watch the sun come up over Upper Lough Erne creeping quietly down the estuary, pursued by a man who directed his vacuum cleaner for a few minutes of conversation.

"I'm not expecting to see anyone so early on a Sunday," he said.

"When you're away from home you never know what day it is," I said.

"I'm away from, too," he said, I come from Newry."

"It's a lovely day. I was there yesterday," I said, establishment instant rapport.

He let me go, and I stepped out into the Irish countryside, overwhelmed by the peace can be, with blackbirds and crows making an infernal row. Across the lough, a cow was bellowing cry from something unseen. I went down to the wharf and sat on a cold, wet mooring post. As daylight came, all around, in a way to madden any angler, fish were surfacing with little plops and vanishing again, perhaps thinking to taunt me. A heron stood on a bare branch of a tree; a flock of ducks updated themselves in unseemly manner, mostly tail-first. The water was so still that it was impossible to tell where a line of trees on the opposite bank stopped and their reflection began. The valleys were streaked with mist, and there was a promise of sunlight instead of yesterday's rain. Everything was so peaceful in Ireland, the thought of troubles seemed ridiculous.

Nixon Moves Seen as Precipitate and Prejudicial

Calley Case

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon's hasty intervention in the Calley drama is being interpreted by critics as the gut reaction of a politician in the face of near-unanimous public displeasure over the young lieutenant's conviction in the My Lai massacre case.

In decreeing that Lieut. William Calley should be released from the military stockade to await appeal in the comfort of his private quarters, and by emphasizing that he himself will personally review the case, Nixon seemed to many to be acting precipitately and thus creating a prejudicial atmosphere.

Even many Nixon supporters apparently were taken aback by this change of heart by the president, who insisted during massive anti-war demonstrations around the White House that he would not bow to intense public pressure, and that policy would not be influenced by street demonstrations.

Yet hardly had the decision convicting Calley of the murder of 22 civilians and sentencing him to life in prison been made when war protesters in mid-town combined to bombard the White House with protests over the outcome.

The sheer volume, bringing together in common cause such divergent figures as segregationist Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama, war critics Dr. Benjamin Spock and Senator William Fulbright, and Vice-President Spiro Agnew, was unexpected.

Throughout the trial, Calley maintained a stiff eyes-front demeanor, displaying neither wit nor humor, and didn't seem to emerge as a particularly sympathetic or popular figure.

Yet the subsequent public protest was "the strongest, most nearly unanimous reaction I have seen since I have been in the Senate," said Senator Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts.

What concerns many observers now is that President Nixon may have cast a shadow over the traditional legal process by speaking up as he did—and when he did.

As some critics have suggested, his actions only make sense in a political context—there was no need for them otherwise. Certainly Calley was being treated as no convicted murderer before him had been treated.

If it was felt appropriate that Calley be released to his private quarters, this could have been done on authority of the commanding general at Fort Benning, Ga. I didn't need an executive order from the White House.

As for Nixon going out of his way to emphasize that in response to "widespread public interest" and to provide "a different quality of review," he himself would review the case after it has gone through all the traditional phases of appeal, this too seems unnecessary.

Under generally accepted practice, it would be quite proper for Nixon, as commander-in-chief, to review such an important case at the end of judicial proceedings.

"The precipitous manner in which Mr. Nixon publicly intervened over the heads of military authorities," said the New York Times, creates an atmosphere "affecting all intermediate steps in the appeals process."

The Washington Post, terming Nixon's act "a calculated public intrusion at the highest level into a process that should have been allowed to run its course," adds:

"It was done with fanfare from the White House, so you have to assume the president must have wanted his hand to show in it because he thought it made political good sense."

One Search Ends, Another Begins

TRENTON (Staff) — One search ended successfully yesterday and another started this morning.

A 424 Squadron Dakota from CFB Trenton piloted by Capt. Robert Crowell, spotted a missing helicopter and its pilot, James Gillsdorf, 10 miles east of its destination at 2:50 p.m.

The chopper, owned by Sky Rotors, Inc. of Arnprior, had been on a 240-mile flight from Nakina, Ont., north to a camp on the Ekwan River Saturday and had not been heard from since.

Mr. Gillsdorf was found in good condition and a civilian aircraft moved in during the afternoon to refuel his aircraft.

The pilot had run low on fuel and had put his helicopter down in bad weather.

Two Trenton Dakotas participating in the search left Thunder Bay this morning to join a pair of Otters from St. Hubert and a Voyageur helicopter from Ottawa in a new hunt for a missing student pilot in Northern Quebec.

A man identified only as Mr. Godbout departed the air port at Mattagami, Quec., 100 miles north of Val d'Or at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday for an hour and a half of recreational flying, but did not return. He has about 30 hours of flying time to his credit.

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

ANNUAL BANQUET

MARMORA — The Annual Cub and Scout banquet was held recently with approximately 70 boys and their parents present. The delicious turkey dinner prepared by the ladies of St. Andrew's Church was enjoyed by everyone, but especially the boys who tucked away enormous amounts of food.

The head table guests were introduced by committee chairman Clarence Shannon. They were District Commissioner, Don Marchand, Assistant District Commissioner, Ernest Harvey and Canadian Legion President, Percy Gray.

In Mr. Marchand's address, he pointed out with regret that enrolment is down 10 per cent in the Moira Valley district over last year. Although membership in cubs and scouts remains at a good level, the venturers (15-18) have declined, mainly through lack of leadership. He challenged the local committee to take action and find leaders.

A s istant Com missioner Harvey recalled some of the happy days he spent in Marmora as a scoutmaster.

Legion President Gray said the Legion members were proud to sponsor the local scout movement, as they were intensely interested in promoting youth activities.

Scoutmaster Ronald Rhines presented badges to several scouts who had earned them. The winning team of a bowling tournament received small trophies.

Cub Leaders, Mrs. John Van Volkenburg, Mrs. Don Leonard and Sid Bartle awarded badges and stars to the cubs who had worked for them during the year.

Scouts Steven Smith and Rick Lynch were presented with flashlights by Clarence Shannon for being the best salesmen on Apple Day. Cub, Rick Airhart received a flashlight for selling the most cards at Christmas.

Cubmaster Syd Bartle voiced the appreciation of everyone to Mrs. Van Volkenburg for her 15 years untiring service as a cub leader. A plaque, that was to have been presented to her, was unfortunately delayed but will be presented at a later date.

Everyone enjoyed the film entitled "World in a Marsh" shown by Mr. Hans Van Rosen of the department of lands and forests and the question and answer period that followed.

Awards were also presented for participation in a St. John Ambulance First Aid course sponsored by the company.

Survey To Determine Program

MARMORA (Special) — The formation of a figure skating club in Marmora would only come as a result of a survey sent to each family enrolled in the program. If enough interest was shown from the survey the club would be formed.

James (Scotty) Cook, the recreation committee, announced the resignation of Francis Rothermel, as treasurer. This was unanimously accepted.

Stephen Potter reported on the activities of the Young Adult Club. They had held a number of successful dances and bookings were being made for future ones. Also on the agenda, was the Youth Sports Program, which was organized as part of the community school program and according to senior school records, attendance was on the rise.

The meeting ended with discussions on a summer program and the establishing of a sub-committee for a parks board.

GILMOUR G. SWEEZEY, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilmour B. Sweezey, formerly of Capreol, Ont., was called to the Bar and was admitted to the degree of barrister at law at ceremonies held at O'Keefe Centre in Toronto on March 26. Mr. Sweezey received his BA degree at McGill University, Montreal and his LB at Osgoode Hall Law School, Toronto. Mr. Sweezey is presently practising law with the law firm of Harries, Houser, Brown and McCallum in Toronto.

Plastic Model-makers Organizing

Model building hobbyists are organizing themselves into a society here to exchange hints and tips on their interest — building model aircraft, armored vehicles, ships and everything else from plastic kits.

"Helping to develop this interest in younger members is very rewarding, and putting glue to its proper use is a whole lot better than just sniffing it," says Rick Johnson, organizer of the club.

Mr. Johnson, who moved to Belleville from Ottawa recently, is the moving force behind organization of the local chapter of the International Plastic Modellers' Society.

It is a non - profit organization composed of people whose hobby is building objects from plastic model kits and had its origin in England about 1960, when a group of modellers decided they had need for a means to communicate and exchange information.

The Society has expanded rapidly to a membership of about 3,000 in more than 20 countries. Six national branches now print regular magazines. The Canadian publication, Random Thoughts, is printed by The Intelligencer in Belleville and has a circulation of 600.

"Before you dismiss IPMS as a bunch of overgrown kids playing with toys, bear in mind that a good proportion of the members are professional men whose models can be termed historical replicas," says Mr. Johnson.

"In today's climate of increasing leisure time, a hobby that develops a manual skill and a keen interest in various phases of history and at the same time provides a chance to meet many other interesting people all over the world can be satisfying," he adds.

Those wishing to join a local chapter of the Plastic Modellers Society may call Mr. Johnson at 968-3638 for further details.

Former Bellevillian Out of East Pakistan

A former Belleville resident living in Dacca, East Pakistan during the civil war there left the regional capital over the weekend to join his family in Malaysia.

Ted Smith, who had worked in Belleville for Ontario Hydro and Loyalist College, departed Dacca by Pakistan International Airways and was in Karachi April 4, says A. C. Shaness, a director of the Niagara Falls engineering firm, W. J. Loundon, with which he is now employed.

Mr. Shaness told The Intelligencer today in a telephone interview he had received a telegram from Mr. Smith in Karachi. He is well and indicates the situation in the east is not as bad as Indian news reports indicate but considerably worse than West Pakistanis concede.

It was necessary for him to fly out to Karachi by PIA because no east bound flights were available. However, he was able to secure air passage from Karachi to Bangkok, telephoning Mr. Shaness from there Monday to advise him that a party of company employees were proceeding to Penang, Malaysia to join their families.

Mrs. Smith and the couple's three children were evacuated to the Malaysian resort town in mid-March.

Only one representative of the Loundon Company, Les MacKay, a project manager, remains in Dacca. The company built hydro transmission lines in East Pakistan from 1962 to 1967 and a team of employees stayed on to instruct natives in power grid operational methods.

Fined $258

A man whom police described as difficult to handle yesterday was fined a total of $258 in provincial court.

Derek Lawday, 29, of RR 6, Belleville, pleaded guilty to impaired driving and failure to give a sample of his breath for alcoholic content analysis following his arrest March 20.

After his arrest, the court was told the accused pulled a handle from the door of the police cruiser and attempted to kick out a window. Similar scuffles followed inside the police station.

As well as the fines, Lawday's licence was suspended for six months.

Good Idea

TORONTO (CP) — Day care centres in high schools are "a good idea," the chairman of the royal commission on the status of women said in Toronto recently. Florence Bird Ottawa broadcaster Anne Francis said such centres could serve a dual purpose. They would care for children of working mothers and sole-support parents and, at the same time, be used to educate high school students in the care of children and in other aspects of family life.

Awards Presented For Safe Driving

Ninety awards were presented last night in the banquet room of the Club Canara to honor safe drivers and participants in St. John Ambulance course, employed by the Bell Telephone Company.

Brian Turner, OPP constable and accident prevention co-ordinator for the Belleville area, was the guest speaker for the evening.

Other dignitaries at the head table were J. N. Taylor union representative, Harold Reid, deputy chief of police, R. A. Campbell, district installation and repair manager, Peter White, construction manager, and Tony Diorio.

Films and discussions on accident prevention preceded the presentation of awards.

For safe driving, W. H. Stone received a certificate acknowledging 32 years of accident - free driving.

C. W. Mosley, R. J. McGugan, D. A. Pierson and J. R. Wing each received recognition for 22 years of safe driving, and H. G. Meagher, J. R. Neal and J. N. Taylor received 20-year awards.

Altogether there were 43 awards given for safe driving. There were 375 years of accident-free driving represented by the awards.

J. N. Taylor received recognition for 23 successive years as an active member in the St. John Ambulance first aid course.

A. D. Bocking received similar recognition for 20 years and F. K. McRae for 19 years.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Jimmy spoils our dinner hour most of the time, but I don't know what to do about it. He is so cranky by 6:30 that he doesn't want to eat and he won't be pleasant. After dinner he seems to feel better."

Surprisingly, small children who are too hungry may shun food and then feel frustrated because they don't really know what is wrong.

Small children often get too hungry and tired to eat if they wait for the regular dinner hour. If your youngster is chronically cross at dinner time, give him his meal early in the kitchen while you prepare dinner.

Former Teacher Awarded Honorary Life Membership

TWEED — A former teacher at Napanee District Secondary School was recently awarded an honorary life membership in the Ontario Business and Commerce Teachers' Association.

Cecilia M. Oster was presented the award in recognition of distinguished service to commercial education in Ontario.

The life membership certificate was presented during the annual convention of the OBCTA at the Royal York Hotel, in Toronto.

Miss Oster taught French and business subjects at NDSS for twenty years before she retired in 1969 due to her health.

Successful Living

Sons Want to Be Proud of Mom

By DORIS CLARK

Our youngest son, 10 years old, was having a verbal battle with a roommate. Maybe in hope of delivering a low blow, the other boy said, "Your mother looks funny because she's fat." "Well," Jerry told me he answered, "she can lose weight if she wants to, and be slim, but she's pretty; and no matter what your mother does, she can't become pretty."

Now I have to remind you that this was a very prejudiced little son answering. He thinks I'm pretty, and that suits me just fine. But my obesity was a target through which someone else could hurt him. I owe him, our three other children and my husband a moral responsibility to make them proud of me.— Theresa McL, Canadian Calorie Counters.

Isn't it the truth! The effect we have on our own family by the appearance we cultivate, is terrific. Not to mention the health which obesity threatens.

• • •

Dear Doris: My husband resists everything I say around, uses obscene language and calls me names. Doesn't care how badly things are run down in the house. I am willing to do a lot of things myself such as making new drapes and painting, but he always puts a stop to it.

He has a favorite sister-in-law who wouldn't like it if I accomplished anything worthwhile. His brother and she who have such control over him and won't let him grow up and have a mind of his own.

After my last letter to you I went to the family agency as you suggested. I had a nice talk with one of the young ladies and I felt a great deal better after I spilled everything off my chest. I may go to see her again, and I would also like to hear from you with your opinion of this situation. — Rough Time

Dear Rough Time: And the more you object the rougher it is? If your husband, your brother and his wife have formed a combine against you, you can't win.

How did you and your husband get going in different directions, in the first place? Have you unconsciously been shutting him out of home management, until his only reaction is to object?

Go again to the counsellor and do more than just blow off steam. Work together to find out how you can change and help him to change, toward happier times for both of you.

• • •

Dear Doris: I want to take this opportunity to thank you for the advice you gave me. I will take steps now to remedy the situation. It is certainly my lack of knowledge that makes me feel the way I do about sex.

Would you please send me your list of books on Sex, Marriage and Birth Control? Enclosed you will find 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope. — Grateful Wife

Dear Grateful: The list is on its way. Knowledge is power, Write again about any old thing at all, if you are still puzzled when you get delving into the recommended books.

• • •

Do you wonder why the people you care about act as they do? Let Doris shed light on your particular human problem. And remember that stamped envelope.

Ann Landers

Vivid Anticipation Spoils Realization

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 20-year-old bride, married only three months, and my problem is one I can't bring myself to discuss with anyone. I'm an old-fashioned girl who saved myself for marriage. I looked forward to my wedding night for years, fantasizing by the hour about how glorious it would be. Well, folks, it was a huge disappointment. And it hasn't gotten any better. I'm beginning to think maybe we are doing something wrong. There must be more to it than this.

I've mentioned my feelings to my husband and he says I should grow up. According to him I've read too many novels and seen too many movies. He claims married sex isn't all that great and anyone who says it is is either lying or bragging. He also let me know I expect too much from a guy who has to get up in the morning and go to work.

Right now I'm so confused I don't know what to think. Is he right, Ann? I'm depending on you to tell me the truth. — DISENCHANTED IN CHAPEL HILL .

DEA RDIS; Well, dearie — the truth is somewhere in between. Married love isn't all-wonderful — but neither is it ragweed. It can be on occasion, either — or both. My advice is to take your fantasies so that they come up more closely with what you have. Your lovemaking is falling between the chairs of a dream man and the guy you married.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently you printed a letter from a widow who complained because her friends had suddenly disappeared after she is alone. When her husband was alive, she said, they led a very active social life, but now that she can no longer entertain, "nobody wants a fifth wheel."

I'm a widow in my mid-60's and many of my friends have lost their mates. I've observed the happy widows and the lonely ones, and I know why the lonely ones are considered social liabilities. They are depressed all the time because they feed on self-pity and want their friends to commiserate with them.

One woman in particular used to complain incessantly about her husband when he was alive. She was a terrible stick-in-the-mud — "never wanted to go any place, tight with money, hard to get along with." Now that he is gone, suddenly he was a dreamboat. They had the most wonderful marriage in the world. Never a cross word. (She forgot about the time she threw a bowl of potato salad at him at a DAR picnic and he got mad and drove off without her and she had to hitch a ride home.)

The women who had the best marriages adjust very well to widowhood. They can make little jokes about the oddities of their dear departed mates. They do so easily, with no self-consciousness and no feeling of disrespect because they know they had a good marriage, and their friends know it, too. Print this, Ann. Everyone who is honest will admit that he sees him/self in your column at some time or another. I wonder how many women will see themselves in your column today — ALONE BUT NOT LONELY.

DEAR ALONE: Interesting how death improves people. Isn't it? I'm printing your letter but I can promise you that few women who see themselves today will admit it. Thanks for writing.

The Experts Say

Many Women Maltreat Their Hair

EDMONTON (CP) — It takes a long time to "cure" unhealthy hair, says Robert Spencer, who teaches hairdressing and beauty culture at the Northern Alberta Institute of Technology.

Yet many women maltreat their hair—mostly by the type of products they use on it.

A good diet, plenty of rest and good general health are the basics of healthy, shining hair, the former hairdresser said.

"But most of the hair problems a woman has depends on the hair products she's been using and how she's been using them."

Probably hair coloring is the biggest problem for most women, he said.

"It's certainly the one that most women come to hairdressers to get fixed."

And it isn't a problem that can be fixed in one afternoon if the woman has been mistreating her hair for months.

The trouble is that, most women put on the color over and over, he said. "That's like re-dying a piece of cloth over and over, damaging the fabric and getting muddy colors.

"When professional hairdressers put on color, they mainly re-touch the hair—doing only the root areas."

Hair coloring isn't the only problem, the 29-year-old expert said. Shampoos cause a lot of the trouble.

"Hair is composed of amino-acids—the basis of all protein," he explained. "In its normal state, hair has a slightly acid reaction." But many shampoos and other hair products have an alkaline reaction—some of them strongly alkaline.

"Alkalines are harmful and damage the protein structure of the hair," he said. "They affect chemically the normal acidity of the hair and continued use causes breakdown of hair and often leaves a dry, itchy scalp."

Then women try to combat their dry, tangled, split hair problems by putting on after-shampoo rinses. This, too, can be damaging, depending on the product.

"For example, if a woman has bleached hair and uses a strongly alkaline soap, it's disastrous to use a strongly acid rinse after. This just squeezes the hair both ways and hair is fragile and won't stand up to that kind of chemical treatment."

Mr. Spencer, who has taught beauty culture and barbering at NAIT since it opened in 1963, recommends that a woman find a good product—"one that she has success with, because each person is an individual"—and that she stick with it.

Many women switch products too often—"just because a friend says she's found a new product that gives mounds of lather."

"You don't need a lot of lather to get clean hair. All you do need clean hair to get a good set."

He suggests that a woman ask her beauty parlor operator to recommend a good, acid-balanced shampoo or at least one that is not strongly alkaline. His pupils—up to 35 in the beauty culture course at one time—all have courses in how to test shampoos and other chemicals used on the skin and hair. And the course stresses how to keep hair healthy.

Solutions used in permanent waving and in hair-color products are alkaline, too. Therefore they should be used carefully.

River Valley WI Holds Annual Meeting

Mrs. George Grills was elected president of the River Valley WI at their annual meeting held on Thursday, April 1 at the Centre. The other officers elected were Mrs. Vernon Harry, 1st vice-president; Mrs. Glenn Bush, sec. and vice-president; Mrs. Gerald Brooks, secretary; Mrs. Ernest Carr, assistant secretary; Mrs. J. L. Donohoe, treasurer; Mrs. Ross Bush; district director; Mrs. R. D. McIntosh, alternate district director; Mrs. J. R. Donohoe, Mrs. Claude Tuttle, Mrs. Vernon Harry, and Mrs. Norman Rosebelle, branch directors; Mrs. Percy McMullen, PRO; Mrs. Roy Bush, curator; Mrs. Roy Tucker, assistant curator; Mrs. Alex Bush and Mrs. Raymond McConnell, auditors; Mrs. Sheldon McIntosh, pianist and Mrs. Philip Conley, assistant pianist.

A number of officers were also elected to be in charge of various committees including agriculture and Canadian Industries, home economics and health, historical research and current events. The 4-H club leaders are Mrs. Gerald Brooks and Mrs. Francis Sager. Mrs. Ernest Carr was in charge of the election and installation of officers.

Prior to the meeting, 27 members enjoyed a delicious luncheon provided by members of two groups. Mrs. Roy Tucker chaired the meeting and each outgoing officer gave a message about her year's work. The retiring president was tendered a vote of thanks.

The membership fee was paid and each member was asked to bring a wrapped parcel for sale to the May meeting. This is to augment the penny fund.

A resolution regarding snowmobiles was given the second reading and will be forwarded to the district annual meeting which will be held on Thursday, May 11 in Pinthorn United Church with the Pinegrove WI as hostesses. A committee was appointed to cater for a wedding in May.

The public relations donation sheet stated that $969.75 had been spent for four departments of work. A total of $93 was donated by members for special gifts. It was not included in Institute funds.

Mrs. Alex Bush conducted a short program consisting of group singing and readings.

MR. AND MRS. L. WANAMAKER

Rossmore Couple Observe 50th Wedding Anniversary

An enjoyable event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Loral Wanamaker, "Windy Willows", Belleville RR 1 on Sunday April 4, when they marked the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary with an "At Home".

The ceremony, 50 years ago, on April 5, was performed by Capt. Rev. W. G. Clark in the Methodist manse at Trenton. Mrs. Wanamaker is the former Mildred Parliament, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hartford Parliament, who when three years old moved with her parents to Mountain View. She attended school there, later became operator for the Sprague Telephone Co. until she married. Mr. Wanamaker, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Grant Wanamaker was born at Crofton and moved to Mountain View two years later. He attended school there and at Bloomfield, later attending OAC at Belleville. He worked for the old Standard Bank and served overseas in the first World War from 1914 - 1918.

Considering wages at that time Mr. Wanamaker compared army pay at $1.10 per day in comparison to the 25 cents per hour for a ten-hour day on highway work. The couple moved to Belleville in 1927 when Mr. Wanamaker tried his civil service exams and meantime worked for Hart Bros. decorators until he joined the staff of the Belleville Post Office in 1930 as a letter carrier, where after 20 years, was promoted to postal officer in charge of letter carriers' staff. He retired in 1957 and both have enjoyed retirement at their cottage at Rossmore for the past 14 years.

In going back 50 years the couple recalled that it was an early spring that year, and remembered that they drove to Trenton in a model "T" without side curtains and no jackets. They went by train to Toronto and when they returned a week or so later the farmers were finished sowing and much of the grain was up.

At the celebration on Sunday their only child Mrs. Al (Jean) Reid and son-in-law received the guests at the door where the guest book was attended by a granddaughter Miss Karen Lynn Reid.

Pouring tea were: Mrs. P. Parliament, Mrs. J. Thompson, Mrs. W. Woodcott, Mrs. W. Phillips, Mrs. Hodges, Mrs. Clark Sprung, Mrs. M. Lockhart and Mrs. T. Morden. Serving were Mrs. Elmer Thompson, Mrs. Shirley Watson, Miss Lola Lee Reid, (a granddaughter) Mrs. Lyle Thompson, Mrs. Mervin Thompson, Mrs. Dawson Maclean and Miss Doris Waddell.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

AT HOME

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Bradshaw, 96 Bertram Blvd., Belleville will be "At Home" to friends, relatives and neighbors on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary to be held Sunday, April 11, from 2.30 - 4.30 p.m.

Medical Secretaries Hold Clinic Day

A successful clinic day, Belleville's first, was held at Education Hall BGH. The meeting of over 75 medical secretaries was opened by the president Mrs. Diana Maxwell. Mayor Dr. J. Russell Scott welcomed OMSA members and guests from Prescott, Kingston, Napanee, Belleville, Trenton, Frankford and Toronto.

The first speaker for the morning session, Dr. P. O'Boyle-Kelly, obstetrician and gynecologist BGH, was introduced by Mrs. Mae Cathcart. Dr. O'Boyle-Kelly spoke on Cancer of the cervix and showed the film "It's Up to You". He concluded that it cannot be over emphasized the importance of Pap. tests and the necessity for early detection of cancer. A question and answer period followed after which Dr. O'Boyle-Kelly was thanked by Mrs. Aileen Conley.

The next speaker, Edward G. Roy, president of Richards-Roy of Canada, came from Toronto via San Francisco and Ottawa to speak on otology, the study of the ear; and was introduced by Mrs. Doreen Ware. Aided by a cast of cartoon characters, Mr. Roy showed a slide presentation which he had produced and directed. An enlarged model of the stapes (middle ear bones — hammer, anvil, stirrup) was on view, the actual size of which is equal to a cube of sugar.

Mr. Roy explained the principles of sound resonance and that sound is increased proportionately as it travels through the ear canal. The thinnest membrane and the hardest bone in the body are found in the inner ear. In comparison, birds do not have outer ears because they produce too much drag.

After coffee break Mr. Roy assisted by John Kelly explained the surgical management of obliterative otosclerosis. The secretaries then saw a colorful film on the performance of a stapedectomy, the microscopic surgical procedure corrective for obliterative otosclerosis. A question and answer period followed and was joined by Dr. R. F. Miranda, otolaryngologist, who explained the different types of deafness. In humans, the sense of hearing and the ear apparatus is completely formed at about ten weeks of age, in comparison to the rest of the body. Mrs. Beth Cunningham expressed thanks on behalf of the secretaries; and the morning session adjourned.

A luncheon was prepared and served by the Mountain View Women's Institute.

The afternoon session began with a concise telephone skit. Mrs. Marg. Belsky of Bell Canada and Mrs. Mae Cathcart of Drs. J. N. Hartt/E.A. Manderville, demonstrated the right's and wrong's of telephone answering. The telephone should be answered on the first or second ring in a sweet and charming voice and utmost interest should be taken in the problem of the person that's calling.

Dr. Kenneth M. Douglas, general surgeon BGH, was introduced by his secretary Mrs. Gene Potter. Dr. Douglas spoke on vein surgery and aided by projected diagrams explained the directional flow of blood and the complications of varicose veins. The secretaries were shown veinographs which demonstrated the effects of dye in the blood under pressure. A movie in color on the methods of vein stripping followed.

Dr. Douglas was thanked by Mrs. Jacki Vivian.

Dr. R. S. Smith, pathologist BGH, was introduced by Mrs. Peggy Parsons. Dr. Smith emphasized the importance of blood determinations in the diagnosis of leukemia and explained the breakdown of the white cells in the blood to the acute and chronic stages of myeloid and lymphatic cells. The remission and relapse shown on the leukemic graph is controlled with either specific or supportive treatment. The ability to understand the effects and side effects of drugs in the treatment of leukemia is defined in the advancement of research that will determine the destruction of the last few remaining cells of leukemia.

Dr. Smith was thanked by Mrs. Barbara Lewis.

The next regular meeting will be held in education hall April 14 when the guest speaker will be Mrs. Elizabeth MacLeod, secretarial teacher from Loyalist College.

Mary Gives Roasting Chart for Smoked Ham

By MARY MOORE

The train seemed to be full of candidates returning from the Progressive Conservative convention and Oshawa Peewees on their way to Ottawa to play hockey that Saturday night.

I entered the coach carrying an overnight bag which I dared not check because it had two large precious glass dishes in it. I was scanning the overhead rack for a place to hoist it when a dark-spectacled, bearded, long - haired, lanky young man took it from my hand and said "Mam may I put this up for you?"

On my return trip I was carrying some fragile pastries and a bearded boy with long blond hair noticed my uncertainly and carefully placed the box on the rack.

At Easterime I want to hereby pay tribute to our hippie-looking travellers. Lots of them have hearts of gold under all that hair.

To get on with Easter cooking I am giving a roasting chart for smoked ham.

SMOKED HAM

These times are for ham with rind on, taken directly from refrigerator. Roasting Temperature is 325 deg. Fahr. for all.

12-15 lb. - 16-17 min per lb., total time, 3½ hrs.

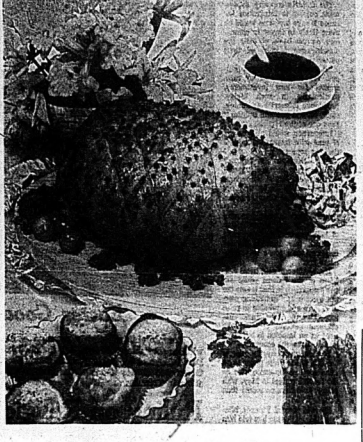
Under 10 lb. - 20 min. per lb. - total time 3 hrs.

Half hams - 22 min. per lb., total time 2½ hrs.

After ham is baked pour off all drippings (they dull the glaze). Remove skin. Score fat into diamond shapes with sharp pointed knife.

GLAZE: Stud scored ham with whole cloves. Mix together ¾ cup peach juice (or juice from pickled peaches), ¾ cup liquid honey, 1 tsp. dry mustard, 2 tbsps. vinegar and shake of cayenne. Carefully spread over top and sides of ham. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for 15 min. or until well glazed, basting once or twice with pan juices.



At present I am enthusiastic about Canadian canned asparagus. The canners have done a wonderful job processing it and still retaining its bright green color.

Dress it up with

GENUINE HOLLANDAISE

½ cup butter
2 egg yolks
½ tsp. salt
Speck of cayenne pepper
1 tbsp. lemon juice

Melt the butter in a saucepan gently. Beat the egg yolks until thick and lemon-colored. Add the salt, cayenne pepper, and 3 tbsps. melted butter, 1 or 3 drops at a time, beating. Then add remaining butter, slowly, alternately with the lemon juice, until all has been added. Store in the refrigerator until ready to use. This sauce melts readily when served on hot vegetables such as asparagus or broccoli or spinach.

Enticing Ham for Easter

You can have a handsome ham, bone-in or bone-out, for your Easter dinner for there will be thousands for sale this week in every possible shape. Try scoring and glazing your ham following Mary Moore's suggestions today.

Special Line At Cafeteria For Dieters

EDMONTON (CP) — When the cafeteria line comes to a stop beside the banana cream pie, it's often responsible for the extra weight on the waistlines of would-be dieters.

But at the Misericordia Hospital cafeteria, those playing the count-the-calories game can go directly to the diet line. They do not pass the high-calorie foods and do not collect those extra 200 calories.

The idea originated with the hospital's director of food services, Edith Hughes, who was under doctor's orders to reduce.

She then started noticing that a lot of staff on diets brought their own lunches instead of using the hospital's cafeteria. She decided this was a good place for dietitians to put their knowledge to work right in their own environment.

"One shy fellow came up to me recently and said: 'This is the best thing you've ever done in this hospital. I've lost 15 pounds.'"

The foods on the diet line are attractive and nourishing: French onion soup, broiled open-face cheese-and-tomato sandwiches, tossed or chef's salad with ham and turkey, fresh strawberries, sherbet, jelly, baked ham, small steaks, french-cut green beans, turnips, fresh fruit cup are some of the foods displayed.

Absent, but not noticeably so, are the tempters: cream soups, french fried potatoes, shepherd's pie, gravy, pies and cakes.

A large ideal height-and-weight chart is posted near the beginning of the line.

As interest grew, short talks were arranged for staff so that questions could be answered, Mrs. Hughes said.

As well, a weight reduction program was put into effect for patients in the hospital if their doctors referred them. Family members were invited to participate in the educational talks.

The foods prepared for the diet line make up about 100 of the 3,200 meals served daily at the hospital to patients and staff.

"It is hoped through this program that more people will become aware of the importance of weight control and good food habits," Mrs. Hughes said.

Federal Relief Advocated

McKeough Urges Selective Tax Credits

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Treasurer Darcy McKeough said Tuesday the federal government should give financial relief to low-income persons by adopting a system of selective tax credit by July 1.

"Immediate reductions in taxes on low-income Canadians without other tax increases is possible and fully justified in terms of both social and economic requirements," the treasurer said in the Ontario legislature.

He also called on Ottawa to:

—Bring in incentives for new investment that would stimulate employment while helping businesses expand without inflationary price increases.

—Drop any idea of integrating personal and corporate tax.

—Present a separate capital gains, revised estate and gift tax system for federal-provincial discussion.

He said federal-provincial cooperation "from the constitutional talks to the most routine relations depends heavily on decisions on the federal white paper on tax reform."

"We can't think we can go on forever separating the esoteric things of a new constitution from the bread-and-butter issues," he added later at a news conference.

In the house Opposition leader Robert Nixon asked whether possible integration of the personal and corporate income tax by the federal government would affect suggestions in former treasurer Charles MacNaughton's 1969 white paper that the province might bring in its own personal income tax.

"If the federal government decided to proceed with what we believe to be unworkable and unwise legislation, then certainly that would have a very large bearing on the decisions which we might make in this government," the treasurer said.

Vernon Singer (L—Toronto-Downsview) asked if it was impossible for the government to take its own tax remedial steps in absence of action from Ottawa.

Mr. McKeough said it was "not impossible" but "very difficult" for Ontario to take steps to stimulate the economy immediately.

At the news conference Mr. McKeough said the province is not interested in running its own income-tax system for the sake of having its own or for blackmailing Ottawa.

However "if they reject everything we suggest out of hand we would have to take a very serious look at putting in our own income-tax system."

Mr. McKeough tabled part three of Ontario Proposals for Tax Reform in Canada called Taxation of Corporations and Shareholders, and a study on the white paper's proposals for integrating corporate and personal taxes.

The reports reject as "unsuitable and unacceptable" any form of direct integration of personal and corporate tax.

Department officials said integration is based on the principal that corporation profits should be taxed once and that the corporation should be the collector of the taxes. At present the government collects from the corporation and again from the shareholder on his dividends.

Under the integration scheme, the corporation would pay taxes on dividends for shareholders, taking them off his dividend statements, and send him a credit for tax paid on his behalf.

The white paper proposed that closely-held corporations such as family companies or others not traded on a stock exchange be taxed on a "full integration" scheme while widely-held companies be allowed only half integration.

(The federal government taxes corporations about 40 per cent and the provincial government another 12 per cent.)

The Ontario treasury department objects to integration because it says investors would be more likely to invest in companies on the basis of their tax classification instead of their potential.

"It would make it more difficult for corporations to raise capital for new investments, particularly in such highly-productive industries as mining, steel, oil and gas and utilities," says one of the reports.

Integration would also be out of tune with international practice, the report says.

Mr. McKeough also objected to the system because it would impair the ability of the federal government to make fast tax changes to slow down or speed up the economy.

And integration would require excessive federal centralization of both personal and corporate systems, thus limiting further the province's scope to use income tax.

Mr. McKeough said basic criticism of the federal white paper's approach is that it saw the tax system as "something pristine, pure and equitable to raise money" while the Ontario government believes it should be used as an impetus to speed up or slow down the economy.

The treasurer says he expects the fate of the white paper to be announced at the same time as the federal budget in May, with reforms effective no sooner than Jan. 1, 1972.

He said federal Finance Minister Edgar Benson has told him he will not consult with the provincial treasurers on the May legislation before it has been brought down.

Mr. McKeough said he does not think all the decisions on the white paper have been made in Ottawa yet.

Loans to Industry Said Hurting Some

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government was accused of spending money to create unemployment as a special debate on unemployment continued in the legislature Tuesday.

Ian Deans (NDP—Wentworth) said the government has loaned money to private industry only to see other industries put out of business by the loan.

Another opposition speaker suggested a period of national service in the Canadian forces for youth as a means to create jobs while government spokesmen continued their attack on Ottawa's fiscal policies.

The debate was expected to end Tuesday but was adjourned until a later date.

Still not voted on its government resolution expressing "grave concern" about unemployment in Canada and two opposition amendments charging the Ontario government with failing to create more jobs.

Mr. Deans said loans to Domtar totalling nearly $1 million resulted in a branch plant being closed, costing 276 jobs.

Another loan of $500,000 to Abitibi Paper Co. to create 71 jobs resulted in 85 more being put out of work in another phase of the company's operation.

"You're creating unemployment—you're buying your way into it," he said.

George Ben (L—Toronto Humber) suggested a two-year period of service for Canada's youth. Many of the recruits could be used to open up the north to mining and secondary industries through road-building programs.

Another suggestion was to give rebates on corporate taxes on profits earned on exported products. This would also lower the cost of Canadian products abroad.

Trade and Development Minister Allan Grossman urged a go-slow approach to the issue of economic nationalism.

"To relsist or discourage foreign investment solely to satisfy our national pride when there are some 700,000 Canadians out of work, including 200,000 in Ontario, surely would be at the very least most unwise," he said.

Ruling on Religion Coming

TORONTO (CP) — Education Minister Robert Welch said Tuesday boards of education will be provided with guidelines for teaching religion in schools by next fall.

The committee on religious education, headed by the late J. Keiller Mackay, recommended in March, 1969, abolition of twice-daily periods of religious instruction and replacing them with information on religions of the world.

It also recommended that an optional course on comparative religions be offered in Grades 11 and 12.

Ontario to Hire 14,100 Students

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government's student-job program will provide a total of 14,100 jobs at a cost of $18 million, Premier William Davis told the legislature Tuesday.

The number of jobs created in the program is 3,000 more than in 1970.

In giving details of the program he also called on private industry to accept "continuing responsibility in this area as well."

Bulk of the jobs will involve the government's regular summer program of hiring 12,000 students at a cost of $14.7 million.

Many of them will be employed to replace regular staff during their summer vacations, and there will be the regular hiring of 2,502 in the junior forest ranger program.

Others will be employed in special programs such as highways, water and geological surveys and the tourist industry.

A new employment category, outlined in the throne speech will be Students Working in an Environmental Enhancement Program (SWEEP). This will employ 2,000 and cost $2.4 million.

One thousand jobs will involve expansion of department of lands and forests activities in cleaning up parks and planting trees. The other 1,000 jobs involve employment in the 37 conservation authorities throughout the province.

Employment in the SWEEP program is limited to students over 18 years of age. They can apply by writing SWEEP in care of either the department of lands and forests or the department of energy and resources management.

Another $900,000 will be spent to create jobs for a further 1,100 students outside the civil service.

The students will be hired for such jobs as co-ordinating community learning activities, working in social and health fields or with municipal agencies where their salaries would be shared by the province and the municipality.

The premier said other programs will be provided to assist young people in summer studies of art, theatre and music.

Another provincial program is devoted to swimming and track and field.

For youths in the 12-to-15 age bracket, the government plans an urban-to-rural exchange program where city youngsters would spend part of their holidays on farms and rural youngsters come to the city. Students will be hired to co-ordinate the program.

The premier said corn companies in southwestern Ontario will hire 4,500 students for one month in a special corn-detasseling program.

Mr. Davis said that in some cases being a student would not be a prerequisite for a government summer job.

Asked by Tim Reid (L—Scarborough East) about aid to non-students, he said the program is not intended to take care of all young peole in the province and more help is needed from private industry.

Asked by Stephen Lewis, New Democratic Party leader, how many students would be seeking employment in Ontario this summer, the premier said he didn't know but the government has increased its jobs program by 27.2 per cent over 1970.

Liberal leader Robert Nixon asked if any of the $18 million would be used to employ young people in Ontario hospital schools. Mr. Davis said some would be employed but he didn't know how many.

Committee Make-up Approved

TORONTO (CP) — Make-up of the Ontario legislature's seven standing committees won house approval Tuesday but note before opposition members criticized the fact that cabinet ministers are serving on them.

Donald Macdonald (NDP—York South) said a new substitution rule would result in more flexibility but he criticized the use of cabinet ministers because committees are intended "to balance the legislature from the growing powers of the cabinet."

Premier William Davis said that since he was elected to the legislature eight years ago it has become common practice to use cabinet members on committees.

Under the substitution rule, members can sit on committees other than those to which they have been assigned only when estimates are being discussed. They will not be permitted to substitute when bills and other matters are being dealt with.

The number of committees has been reduced to seven this session from 13 last year.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 7, 1971

By Maurice Switzer
Sports Editor

Things are getting simpler at Stanley Cup time. We no longer have to puzzle over who will win. It's only a matter of which team gets the opportunity to be beaten by Boston.

That's what the 1971 National Hockey League season boils down to.

Bookmakers were not even taking first-round bets involving the Bruin-Montreal first-round series, so obvious do they foresee the outcome!

The 1971 Bruins set 35 records en route to what has to rank as the most devastating season ever launched by an NHL entry. If the Bruins have a weak spot, it's their mathematics, because nobody could possibly keep those 399 goals and 605 assists straight over the course of the year.

Strong points? Well, none outside of ten 20-or-more goal-employees, including a centre who feels obliged to score every time out, and a defenceman who's never where he should be yet always in the right place at the right time.

The Bruins will first dispose of Montreal — who lack goaltending and have injury problems to key personnel such as defenceman Jacques Laperriere and explosive forward Yvan Courtoyer. Canadiens won only one of six meetings with Boston this season.

Next it will be St. Louis Blues, who will have swiped Minnesota North Stars from the playoff slate. The Blues should fare no better against the Bruins than they did in losing four straight Cup final contests to the Boston machine last spring. If there is a difference, it will be that the Bruins will outscore the Blues by more than the 20-7 margin they enjoyed last year.

Leafs Lack Experience

There will probably be more interest on the other side of the seedings. Chicago will easily trounce Philadelphia in their opening joust, but experts differ on the outcome of the New York-Toronto series.

In Jacques Plante and Bernie Parent, the Leafs probably have hockey's best goaltending tandem. Plante's 1.88 goals-against-average was the best among 30-odd NHL goalers this year, and Parent held New York's mark last year while a member of the expansionist Flyers.

In Dave Keon and Norm Ullman, 34 and 38-goal scorers, respectively, the Leafs also enjoy the league's best pair of two-way centres.

However there are a lot of big gaps between the strong points in the middle and at the back of the Leaf lineup. Experience is a big playoff factor. Somebody figured out that the Leafs have 528 games of playoff experience, with 378 games of it owned by just four players — Ullman, Plante, Bob Baun, and sparsely-spotted George Armstrong.

The Rangers, who beat the Leafs in five of their six meetings this season, total 699 games of playoff experience, and are the only established NHL club to make the playoffs the last four years running.

The Leafs hope to keep another Ranger record intact: the Blueshirts have not advanced past the first playoff round in those four seasons.

One big overlooked Ranger plus is their home ice record, more impressive than even that of the Bruins. The Rangers lost only two of their 39 home games during the schedule and, as coach Emile Francis says: "If we play good in my house on my pool table, I'll bet you more easily than I would playing on your table."

Sporting the talents of forwards like Jean Ratelle (28-46-74) and Walt Tkaczuk (28-46-65), and defencemen Tim Horton, Rod Seiling, and steady Jim Neilson, the Rangers should move past the Leafs, although it could take them six or seven games.

Rangers Have Appetite

This year's key series, and possibly most enjoyable one, could be a Chicago-New York semi-final.

With a pair of 40-goal Hulls in the lineup, the Hawks have to get the offensive edge. But Tony Esposito has a reputation for inconsistency that isn't the hallmark of a playoff goaltender.

The Rangers gave up 177 goals, fewest of the 14 NHL teams, and goalies Giacomin and Villemure don't deserve all the credit. Momentum gained from advancing past the first playoff round for the first time in five years — and an appetite for the club's first Stanley Cup in 30 years — could make the difference. New York in six games.

But unless you're a Boston fan, the only good thing about this year's playoffs is the fact it marks the first time since the 1967-68 expansion that the Stanley Cup final automatically pits one club from each division. In other words, the best two teams WILL decide the championship.

Only Bobby Orr's advancing age could stop the Bruins from marching to their second straight Stanley Cup in more than 15 games.

He did, after all, turn 23 last month.

TV Coverage Alternates

Television coverage begins tonight with the Boston-Montreal game being carried on the CBC's Major network, including Kingston and Peterborough channels at 8 p.m., Toronto channel 6 will carry the Leafs-Rangers opener beginning at 7.30.

Thursday night all area channels will carry the second New York-Toronto game.

The alternating pattern on the major network will continue for the remainder of the quarter-finals, with games next Saturday and Sunday.

Hockey Night in Canada plans to stick with a Canadian team (Montreal or Toronto) if one should advance to the semi-finals, and alternate between the two if both advance.

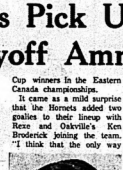
All Stanley Cup final games will be carried on CBC-TV.

Vezina Vintage

The "good old days" for Dave Kerr included playing on the last New York Ranger team to win a Stanley Cup in the 1939-40 National Hockey League campaign. That year Kerr, who now operates a hotel in Belleville, was selected to the league's first all-star team and became the first Ranger to have his name inscribed on the Vezina Trophy.

Hornets Pick Up Rexe As Playoff Ammunition

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter



Despite the fact that the Belleville Mo-Hawks beat a hasty retreat from OHA Senior A playoff action over three weeks ago, one member of the team will be hauling his hockey equipment out of storage.

Goalie Steve Rexe has been named as one of the five players who will bolster the ranks of the Galt Hornets in their quest for the Allan Cup.

The Mo-Hawk star was both surprised and pleased to learn of his selection by the Hornets, who had eliminated Belleville from the playoff picture in four games. "After the poor season we had it would sure be nice to wind up with my name on the Allan Cup."

Rexe is no stranger to Allan Cup action having competed in a similar role with the Kingston Aces in the 1966-67 season. The red - headed backstop blanked Drummondville 1-0 for Kingston's only win against the eventual Allan Cup winners in the Eastern Canada championships.

It came as a mild surprise that the Hornets added two goalies to their lineup with Rexe and Oakville's Ken Broderick joining the team. "I think that the only way that they can do it is to drop their spare goalie", offered Rexe. "The Aces picked up two goalies in '67 when I played with them."

STEVE REXE

Also bolstering the OHA Senior A champions will be defenceman Doug Kelcher and left winger Tom McCarthy from the Orillia Terriers, who were ousted in five games by Galt. Barrie Flyer right winger Pete Panagakko will complete the five player allotment for the Hornets.

Rexe and Broderick will be used to back up regular netminder Boat Hurley who led the OHA loop with a 2.38 goals against average. Rexe finished with a 3.76 mark for the fourth - place Mo-Hawks, while Broderick posted a 4.20 average with the sixth-place Oaks and was selected to the second all-star team.

The Belleville netminder has not yet been contacted by Galt but will definitely report to the Hornets for the playoffs. He has managed to get in two workouts since the Mo-Hawks were eliminated from OHA action.

Galt's opponent in the opening round of play will be the Thunder Bay Twins.

As Ranger Goalies Go, So Go Playoff Hopes; Well, It Worked Once!

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

One might say "As their goalkeepers go, so go the New York Rangers".

One might say that on the basis that the last time their goalkeeper won the Vezina Trophy, the Rangers won the Stanley Cup.

That was in 1939-40 and the Rangers have not won all the National Hockey League's marbles since.

The man who had his name inscribed on two NHL trophies in that most memorable of Ranger years — goalkeeper Dave Kerr — thinks the current edition of the Broadway blueshirts are capable of ending a 30-year-old champagne drought.

"Hockey's a funny game — if you get good goaltending and a couple of players get hot, anything can happen," said Kerr, the hospitable operator of the Queen's Motor Hotel.

There were no welcome mats on Kerr's doorstep back in '39-40, when he logged one of the best seasons ever by a big-time goalkeeper. In 48 regular-season games he gave up a mere 72 goals for a stingy 1.61 goals-against average. If the following dozen playoff games Kerr only allowed 20 goals, and posted three shutouts in compiling a 1.67 average.

Not coincidentally, the Rangers won their third and, although they didn't realize it, last Stanley Cup. For three decades since people have been wondering what it takes to get them another.

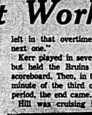
As might be expected, Dave Kerr thinks the missing ingredient has been goaltending, and he feels that in Ed Giacomin, the second Ranger to win a Vezina Trophy, the Rangers have the best.

"He's the class of the league and the Rangers have more depth than they've had for a while," says Kerr.

"They should get by Toronto (their Rangers' first-round playoff opponents). If they get by that first team and, with momentum, it's possible they could beat Boston."

Kerr, like the rest of the world, sees the 1971 Stanley Cup shaping up as a series between Boston Bruins and Montreal. He hopes that somebody is his old alma mater.

"At one time, it was always the Rangers and Boston — Boston and the Rangers — one-two, back and forth for the Cup," Kerr recalls.



He particularly remembers a 1938 — 39 series with the Bruins that Boston won in seven games. Four of the games went into overtime, with Boston's Mel "Sudden Death" Hill coming out of obscurity to win three of them.

Kerr was the victim of Hill's overtime heroics. It was a 1-1 game and early in the first overtime period the Ranger backstop was rammed into his goalpost by Boston's Roy Conacher. Torn ligaments and a shoulder separation would sideline Kerr for the remainder of the series, but not until he finished that game.

"We didn't carry spare goalies in those days," Kerr explains. They stopped the game and took me off while they re-hung the net. Then they just tacked on the time left in that overtime to the next one."

Kerr played in severe pain, but held the Bruins off the scoreboard. Then, in the final minute of the third overtime period, the end came.

Hill was cruising in front

DAVE KERR

of the New York goal when a high shot from one side came his way. "Alex Shibicky lifted Hill's stick," Kerr recalls. "The puck hit it and I was deflected past me. And everybody said what a great scorer he was!"

The following year, it was New York's "turn." The Rangers disposed of the Bruins in a six - game series, with Kerr posting three shutouts. They went on to win their third Stanley Cup in the 16th year of their existence.

If the 1971 Rangers can win the fourth, Kerr hopes a couple of things change in their favor.

"We didn't get any more than $200 a game for winning the Cup," he says. "But that wasn't as bad as it sounds. "You could buy a gabardine suit for $28 and a new Chev or Pontiac for $900.

There were no bonuses in those days. Nothing extra for winning the Vezina Trophy (today's winner could take home $2,000) and Kerr received a gold key-ring for being selected to the first all - star team.

And the affable veteran wouldn't wish his post-Cup celebration on anyone.

"We won the Cup in Toronto on a Saturday night," he recalls. "We had an all-night party at the Royal York and another one at our hotel when we got back to New York Sunday.

"Then Monday morning, myself, Muzz Patrick, and four others of the team went down to hospital to have some minor repairing done that we'd arranged before the season ended.

Kerr had a common goalkeeper's ailment — elbow bursitis — that he thought would benefit more than fleeting medical attention.

A week later, he was discharged from hospital, barely capable of combing his hair, or brushing his teeth.

He literally couldn't bend an elbow for a month.

Leafs Land Hard

NEW YORK (CP) — The Toronto Maple Leafs got off to a rocky start in their National Hockey League quarter-finals even before they played New York Rangers.

The Air Canada flight on which the Leafs travelled to New York Tuesday ran into a rainstorm and was forced to land in heavy crosswinds at Newark, N.J., airport after circling New York City for an hour.

About two inches of slush covered the wind-swept Newark runway and the aircraft's pilot was considering returning to Toronto before landing.

Willie Doesn't Waste Time!

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Willie Mays wasted no time getting into the swing of the 1971 baseball season. He rocked the first pitch he saw for his 628th career home run Tuesday night, triggering San Francisco Giants' 4-0 victory over San Diego Padres in their National League opener.

Elsewhere in the National League Tuesday, Los Angles Dodgers shut out Houston Astros 2-0, Chicago Cubs shaded St. Louis Cardinals 3-1 in 10 innings, Pittsburgh Pirates trimmed Philadelphia Phillies 4-2 and New York Mets defeated Montreal Expos 4-1 in a game ended by rain in the fifth inning.

Mays, one month away from his 40th birthday, unloaded on Tom Phoebus' first pitch to him in the opening inning and gave the ex-Baltimore hurler an instant, if unpleasant welcome to the National League.

Later, Mays doubled and scored the Giants' third run, giving Juan Marichal all the offence he needed. The high-kicking San Francisco ace limited the Padres to five hits.

In Chicago, two other aces, Bob Gibson of St. Louis and the Cubs' Ferguson Jenkins, hooked up in a classic pitcher's duel. Billy Williams ended it with a 10th-inning homer to win it for Jenkins, the Chatham, Ont., native gunning for his fifth straight 20-victory season.

Joe Torre's seventh-inning homer—one of only three hits allowed by Jenkins—had tied the game.

"The difference between Gibson and Jenkins," said Torre, "is that Gibby challenges you and Jenkins doesn't.

"Jenkins has such good control that he gets ahead of you and doesn't need to overpower you the way Gibson does. Jenkins had me 0-2 the first three times up, and I struck out twice before I hit that 1-2 pitch for my homer."

Billy Buckner's first major-league homer produced both Los Angeles runs and Claude Osteen's four-hit pitching carried the Dodgers past the Astros.

Tom Seaver limited Montreal to four singles and the Mets topped the Expos in their rain-abbreviated opener.

New York hopped on Carl Morton, last year's NL Rookie of the Year, for a pair of unearned runs in the second inning and that turned out to be the difference.

Dock Ellis scattered eight hits and Pittsburgh took advantage of four Philadelphia errors to whip the Phillies.

Expos' Opener Slap in Face

NEW YORK (AP) — For most of the Montreal Expos and New York Mets, the opening game of the 1971 baseball season was a singularly forgettable experience—a cruel, cold, stinging-wet slap in the face.

For Tom Seaver, however, it was just short of spring lark—except when he tried to wriggle his toes.

"If you handle it correctly, today's the kind of a day to be a pitcher," Seaver said Tuesday after hurling the Mets to a rain-abbreviated 4-2 victory over the Expos in a game played in blustery winds, frigid temperature and a steady downpour.

"My feet got pretty cold, but as windy as it was, my hands stayed warm."

Seaver checked the Expos on four singles and the Mets capitalized on a pair of unearned runs to win their first home opener in five tries.

The rain fell continuously, delaying the start for 50 minutes and finally forcing a halt with the Mets batting in the fifth inning. The biting winds, with gusts up to 40 miles per hour, played havoc with balls hit into the air.

And the biting 40-degree temperature took its toll on the players—as well as the chilled, soaked crowd of 26,062 that included Mayor John V. Lindsay and National League president Chub Feeney.

"We wouldn't have played it in Montreal," said manager Gene Mauch. "We've had some bad days up there—some really bad days. But never anything like this."

"Please talk in my left ear," said Art Shamsky, the Mets' right fielder. "I'm deaf in my right ear. That's the one that was closest to the wind.

"I've played on muddier fields and wetter fields, but altogether, this had to be the worst ever."

"I was just trying to survive out there—nothing else," added New York centre fielder Tommie Agee.

"What can you do about it?" said Expos' pitcher Carl Morton, the 1970 NL rookie of the year, who was victimized by shortstop Bobby Wine's throwing error in the second inning, when the Mets scored twice for their winning margin. "It was the same for them out there as it was for us."

"The rains and the day it-self has taken something away from the usual feeling of opening day," said Mets manager Gil Hodges. "But it's always nice to be on the winning side in a game like this.

"It makes the day a little less rotten than it really is."

Bullets Slow Down

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tired but game, Baltimore Bullets put on a spirited show in the opening game of their National Basketball Association Eastern Conference final Tuesday night before bowing to New York Knicks 112-111.

The Bullets, who came off a seven-game series with Philadelphia 76ers during the weekend "emotionally drained," according to coach Gene Shue, wilted under a late charge by the defending champion Knicks.

Centre Willis Reed's jump shot with six seconds remaining was the decisive score although New York's Dave DeBusschere brought the Knicks back with three clutch baskets in the closing minutes.

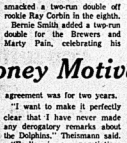
In the only other NBA action, Los Angeles Lakers finally settled their Western semi-final with Chicago, pulling ahead in the final minutes for a 109-98 win over the Bulls and a 4-1 series victory.

Walt Frazier finished with 24 points and DeBusschere added 21 for New York. Earl Monroe had 29 and Jack Marin 23 for the Bullets. Gail Goodrich, shortest man on the floor, and Wilt Chamberlain, the tallest, paced the Laker attack with 29 and 25 points, while Happy Hairston, contributed 22.

The victory sent the Lakers into the Western finals against the Bucks in Milwaukee starting Sunday.

Kosco Swings Loudly

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS



Andy Kosco and his loud bat accounted for four runs batted in with a home run, double and sacrifice fly in Milwaukee Brewers' 7-2 rout of Minnesota Twins in their American League opener Tuesday.

The win left the Brewers in what is expected to be a short-lived tie for first place in the American League West with their expansion brethren, Kansas City Royals, who trimmed California Angels 4-1.

Four other American League teams also opened their seasons. Ray Culp hurled a five-hitter as Boston Red Sox topped New York Yankees 3-1 and Detroit Tigers made a successful debut under manager Billy Martin with an 8-2 trouncing of Cleveland Indians.

The Brewers jumped on Jim Perry for seven hits and three runs in 4 2-3 innings.

Kosco, an ex-Twin who had brief trials with Minnesota in 1965-67, homered off Perry in the third inning, brought home a run against Jim Kaat with a sacrifice fly in the sixth and smacked a two-run double off rookie Ray Corbin in the eighth.

ANDY KOSCO

Bernie Smith added a two-run double for the Brewers and Marty Pain, celebrating his 28th birthday, scattered nine hits.

The Brewers acquired Kosco from the Los Angeles Dodgers during the off-season for pitcher Al Downing.

Dick Drago checked the Angels on six hits and Cookie Rojas drove in two runs with an infield out and a sacrifice fly in Kansas City's victory. The only run off Drago was unearned.

Boston's Culp was working on a one-hitter through seven innings but needed Reggie Smith's fine throw to get out of trouble in the eighth against the Yankees.

Doubles by Smith and Carl Yastrzemski in the fourth and Culp's run-scoring grounder in the seventh gave the Red Sox a 2-0 lead.

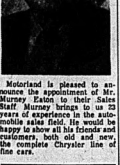
A record opening day crowd of 34,000 in Detroit saw Mickey Lolich pitch a six-hitter and Jim Northrup slam a two-run triple for the Tigers.

More Money Motivated Joe

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (CP-AP) — Joe Theismann, Notre Dame's all America quarterback, said Tuesday money and security motivated him in chosing Toronto Argonauts over Miami Dolphins.

He signed with the Canadian Football League club Sunday after entertaining offers from the National Football League team which drafted him fourth.

"I don't know what will happen or what can happen," Theismann said. "I have signed a legal document with Toronto. I did not sign a legal document with Miami Dolphins."



Neither Theismann nor the Argonauts would discuss how much the contract was for, but speculation has ranged as high as $200,000. Argos did say the agreement was for two years.

"I want to make it perfectly clear that I have never made any derogatory remarks about the Dolphins," Theismann said.

"Earlier in our negotiations there had been some discrepancies in legal terminology. But they were resolved as of last week. Since that time, I have given a lot of thought to the difference in security and money involved.

"Toronto offered me more money, more security for my family, I'm still shooting for NFL stars, but not as an individual any more. I have a family now and I can't think only of my self."

Starters Kept Secret

Goaltending Seen as Key to Cup Hopes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

One thing could be said of the coaches of the two Canadian entries in this year's National Hockey League quarter-finals—they're consistent when it comes to keeping secret the names of their starting goaltenders for tonight's series openers.

Both Al MacNeil of Montreal Canadiens and John McLellan of Toronto Maple Leafs refused to say which of their goalies would get the call in their respective openers at Boston and New York.

"I've got firm ideas in my mind about how my lineup will look for the first game . . . and that's where it's staying—in my head," MacNeil said Tuesday after the Canadiens' worked out at the Forum before leaving by plane for Boston.

McLellan met with his two goalies, Jacques Plante and Bernie Parent, along with several members of the Maple Leaf executive and admitted they were made aware of who would get the starting assignment in New York tonight. But nobody else knows.

"At this stage, you don't want to give anything away," said McLellan whose Leafs rate as Underdogs against the Rangers, Plante, who may come to the club feel has recovered sufficiently from a facial infection to resume goaltending duties he's ready. But Parent has enjoyed some of his best games in New York.

Both series openers at Boston and New York past East Division rivals. They continue their playoffs on the same ice Thursday night.

In the West, Chicago Black Hawks and St. Louis Blues are in their respective home rinks against Philadelphia Flyers and Minnesota North Stars to open their divisional playoffs.

MacNeil has three goaltenders, but the only one who to distinguish himself in recent games has been rookie Ken Dryden, the former Cornell University ace who has won six straight real Voyageurs of the America League.

Veterans Rogatien Vachon and Phil Myre have been shelled in their most recent starts, albeit by powerful Bruins. Vachon 6-3 in Montreal last week and Myre 7-2 to close out the season schedule in Boston Sunday.

Dryden's last start for the Canadiens was a 7-2 win over New York in Montreal last Saturday.

After watching his charges Tuesday, Boston coach Tom Johnson said "Cheevers Wednesday, Johnston Thursday," when asked about his starting goaltender for the grueling series openers with four games scheduled in five nights.

The Bruins are overwhelming favorites for tonight's game. Local bookies give them two goals and Toronto bookmakers aren't even accepting wagers on either the Boston-Montreal or Chicago-Philadelphia series.

"Chicago and Boston are so strong they're what we call an out bet," One Toronto operator said. "Nobody wants to bet against them in these quarter-finals."

Cheevers, who held the fort for the Bruins in their last two games with Montreal has the reputation of being a money player.

He registered a record 10 straight playoff victories last year as the Bruins won their first Stanley Cup championship in 29 years and, despite the awesome Boston offence, is considered a key to their chances this season.

But Cheevers issued a terse warning to his team-mates Tuesday.

"You've got to put out 110 per cent in the playoffs, because everybody else is going to be putting out 110 per cent."

Johnston agreed, adding: "I'm glad I'm in the barrel Thursday."

"Our goaltending has been darn good all season," said coach Johnson. "Maybe their average isn't the best, but remember we had a lot of 4-1 and 7-1 games where the team let up in the late stages."

Plante and Parent should provide Toronto with their only advantage in a simple position with the Rangers, who had their best season ever after chasing Boston to the East Division title.

Plante was the individual leader among goalies although the Vezina Trophy, going to the team allowing the fewest goals during the season, went to the Ranger tandem of Ed Giacomin and rookie Gilles Villemure.

Plante, 42, has played spectacular hockey this season, even going as far as to admit it has been the best of his lengthy career which in Montreal, where he won six Vezina trophies, New York and St. Louis.

Saving Face

The paint-scarred mask worn by goalie Gerry Cheevers of Boston Bruins is constant reminder of protection it gives. Every time he's hit during a game he decorates his face mask with the cuts and stitches he and trainer Figure he would have received if he hadn't been wearing it. Cheevers will see action for the Bruins in the National Hockey League playoffs which start tonight. (CP Wirephoto)

But because of Plante's age, Parent is likely to see most of the action in the series against New York for two reasons: his success against the Rangers in recent years and Plante's inactivity late in the season because of the facial infection.

Chicago appears to be a shoo-in in its series opener.

The team won four and tied one of six games with the Flyers this year and Philadelphia has never won a game in Chicago since it joined the NHL in the 1967 expansion.

"You can't get me to predict anything," Chicago coach Billy Reay said Tuesday. "There are too many variables in any series, mainly whether a team is up and what sort of goaltending it gets.

During the regular season, Chicago outscored the Flyers 19-11 with Dennis Hull scoring five and Bobby Hull three.

The Hawks, however, have no depth in goal where the burden will fall entirely on Tony Esposito. His regular alternate, Gerry Desjardins, was sidelined for the season late in the schedule with a broken arm.

St. Louis, meanwhile, hopes to end three years of Stanley Cup frustrations in which the team has reached the final three times but lost 12 straight games.

The North Stars, who had a season-ending slump in which they were tossed out for the third playoff spot by Philadelphia, have a hex over the Blues this year. They won three and tied two of their six games.

Despite their late-season woes, the Minnesotans' defence has shown an over-all improvement and will be bolstered with playoff-wise Gump Worsley in goal.

The Blues are expected to counter with veteran Glenn Hall, the steadiest of their two goalies during the last 12 games in which St. Louis won seven.

Starting Times Same as Usual

MONTREAL (CP) — In most cases, starting times of games during the Stanley Cup playoffs will be the same as those observed during the regular season, an NHL spokesman said Tuesday.

The quarter-final round gets under way tonight on four fronts and the only exception for the round so far is an early Sunday start in Minnesota and an afternoon game at Philadelphia.

Montreal Canadiens go against Bruins in Boston tonight and Thursday night at 8:05 p.m., EST, with the same starting time when the clubs return here Saturday and Sunday.

Toronto Maple Leafs visit New York tonight and Thursday and will observe the normal 7:35 p.m. EST Rangers' start. The time reverts to 8:05 p.m. EST when the two return to Toronto Saturday and Sunday.

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Hockey League announced Tuesday that Sunday's Stanley Cup playoff game in Philadelphia between the Flyers and Chicago Black Hawks will be televised by the CBS network starting at 1 p.m. EST.

The NHL said a minimum of four other Stanley Cup games would be telecast on Sunday afternoons.

St. Catharines Black Hawks knocked Kitchener Rangers out of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A playoffs Tuesday night with an easy 6-3 win, their fourth consecutive victory in the best-of-seven quarter-final. In Tuesday's only other game, Ottawa 67's blanked Hamilton Red Wings 5-0 to take a 2-1 lead in their quarter-final with one game tied. In Kitchener, Marcel Dionne led the Hawks with three goals while Mike Bloom added a pair. Clyde Simon scored the sixth. They now move into semi-final play against Montreal Junior Canadiens.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Herve Fillion tries again tonight to reach a milestone attained by only one sulky driver in harness racing history. He was snowed out Tuesday night. Fillion has won 2,999 races during his 18 years in the bikes. He needs just one to make it 3,000, a mark reached by Billy Haughton in the ancient sport of trotting and pacing. The 31-year-old Fillion, who drove in his first race at the age of 13, battled three times Tuesday night to gain his 3,000 victory. Science Council Says--

Canadian Agricultural Research Inadequate

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture research in Canada is inadequate in scope, badly co-ordinated, exempt from regular critical analysis and weak in some areas such as economics, the Science Council of Canada said today.

It recommended that the federal agriculture department be stripped of its research establishment, which should be transferred to a new national agricultural research co-ordinating council composed of federal and provincial government, university, agricultural organization and industry representatives.

The new agency should have control over major sources of federal funds spent in agricultural research and should plan, budget and allocate the money to support federal, university and industrial research.

The science council said research agencies should find solutions for problems such as those identified by the task force on agriculture in a report it made to the government last year.

Problems of rural poverty and the farm dwellers who live on uneconomic farm units should be handled by socially-oriented government departments, not the agriculture agencies.

Assessing current agriculture research, the council found statistics and data inadequate but indicating research growth had been stopped by federal government austerity.

The National Research Council provides twice the direct support to universities for agriculture research that the Canada department of agriculture does.

Under the proposed new setup, funding of individual professors by NRC would continue but it would becoming a progressively diminishing proportion of total spending.

The department's support of universities now was at best modest and industry research almost non-existent. Very little co-ordination was given to the national research program.

The council notes that for more than 100 years the only external evaluation of the department's extensive research operations was made by the Glasco commission in the early 1900s.

It adds that ("a formalized system to provide the benefits of regular informed criticism of program content and direction is long overdue."

There is little or no effective co-ordination of economics and market research programs. Economic research "appears to be largely irrelevant to the major issues." Marketing research was too little and too late.

In addition to the powerful national co-ordinating agency, the council calls for a regular technical audit of programs by a body that includes users of the result in government departments, universities and industry.

The proposed research co-ordinating council should be modelled on the Defence Research Board and should report directly to the minister of agriculture.

The council would be responsible for a series of research centres placed strategically across the country and associated with one or more universities. Each would specialize in two or three areas in addition to their general programs.

Universities also would do research for the council under contract and industry should be encouraged to do research, also through contracts.

"Essentially the move is one of centralization of broad planning and funding, combined with decentralization of the research operations."

Historian Sounds Alarm for Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Historian D. G. Creighton said Tuesday that Canada faces imminent division and collapse, plus entry into "what is effectively a continental system."

The University of Toronto professor, a biographer of Sir John A. Macdonald, called for an end to the process of constitutional review and an attempt to "save what is left" of the British North America Act.

In a provocative, outspoken appearance before the Commons Senate joint constitutional committee, he also suggested that the cultivation of French in the federal public service has gone too far.

And he cautioned that efforts to maintain national unity can be carried to the point where they prejudice the survival of a viable state.

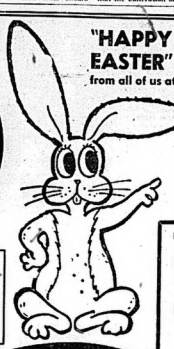
Prof. Creighton said he doesn't think the present government is much interested in the subject of Canada's economic independence.

"Else, why would it have allowed things to drift as long as they have?"

When questions of foreign ownership in key industrial areas arise, as they did last year in the case of uranium mining, the government "suddenly has to patch up some kind of solution because it doesn't have any views on the matter."

Prof. Creighton, who has frequently expressed alarm over trends in Confederation, maintained that the United States can "do what it wants" with Canadian resources, with the Canadian economy, with Canada's foreign policy and defence policy.

But because it was not in U.S. interests to take over the country, Canada could survive indefinitely as a semi-independent state.



Canada was losing control of its resources, losing the fight against inflation and didn't know what to do about pollution. Yet these vital issues had failed to come before the federal-provincial constitutional conference.

The constitutional review that began in 1968 was a "terrible mistake," he said, and the committee should abandon its efforts to help evolve a constitutional formula for Canada.

"It would be far better if you . . . ceased the attempt to push this thing further."

Bill Protecting Textile Industry Given Approval

"I was jailed for my principles. I believe in stealing money."

Levesque Critical

QUEBEC (CP) — Rene Levesque, leader of the separatist Parti Quebecois, Tuesday accused students of seeming to prefer the prospect of violent revolution to working for the democratic transformation of their society.

In an address to students at Laval University, Mr. Levesque said his challengers were more inclined to criticize than to take action involving them in society.

"It's not enough to be opposed," he said. "It's necessary to think of alternatives."

OTTAWA (CP) — Sensitive legislation intended to strengthen and protect the Canadian textile industry cleared its final Commons hurdle Tuesday but left a number of MPs apparently uncertain about its future effects.

Max Saltsman (NDP—Waterloo) was one of several opposition spokesmen who said it is impossible to tell from an examination of the bill whether it will be a protectionist device used to maintain inefficient domestic textile firms or a method of rationalizing the troubled industry.

The Commons would simply have to wait and see, Mr. Saltsman said.

Basically, the bill, which now goes to the Senate, gives the government full power to control imports of textiles and clothing whenever such action is recommended by a textile and clothing board set up by the measure.

One of the largely overlooked aspects of the bill is a clause that would allow the government to limit imports of any material found by the federal anti-dumping tribunal to be damaging domestic industries.

The Commons also gave second reading Tuesday to a proposed young offenders' act and sent the legislation to the justice committee for study before going on to debate the government's proposed reorganization bill. The debate continues today when the House is also scheduled to adjourn until Monday, April 19, for an Easter recess.

Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin noted that the textile bill requires the textile board to request all firms seeking government protection to present a plan for rationalization.

A somewhat similar bill passed last year by the United States House of Representatives created wide controversy. It failed to get Senate approval before the end of the year.

Mr. Pepin said the main intent of the bill was to provide protection from low-priced imports for those domestic textile firms that had a plan for becoming more competitive.

Gordon Ritchie (PC—Dauphin) said he felt sure the minister would honor his commitment. But what about future ministers?

The debate, which began slowly at second reading when only one MP spoke against the bill, has pitted the free-trade interests of the West against the more protection-conscious interests of Central Canada where most textile industries—employing about 200,000 workers—are located.

The bill still needs Senate approval and royal assent to become law.

The young offenders' bill, which also has a stormy Commons history, has been denounced by critics as overly legalistic and a criminal code for children.

Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer withdrew it from second-reading debate earlier this year to hear private submissions from social and judicial bodies.

Robert McCleave (PC—Halifax-East Hants), an outspoken opponent of the measure, said there now appears some chance Mr. Goyer will accept proposed amendments during committee consideration of the measure.

The Commons defeated 186 to 72 an amendment by John Gilbert (NDP—Toronto, Broadview) that would have prevented second reading. Only the Liberals voted against the amendment.

The bill received second reading by a vote of 107 to 72, with voting along party lines.

The young offenders' bill, the government says, is intended to imitate as closely as possible the methods used by most parents in dealing with children involved in misdemeanors.

The Commons returned late Tuesday to committee-of-the-whole stage on the reorganization bill, which has been discussed in the House for a total of 30 days.

Liberal MPs groaned each time an opposition member rose to speak.

Under discussion is a clause of the bill that would allow the cabinet to appoint up to five ministries of state—members of cabinet, presumably on a temporary basis—without reference to Parliament.

James A. McGrath (PC—St. John's East) said the opposition objects to "increasing use of discretionary power by this government," a theme that has been used fairly regularly.

Andre Fortin (Creditiste—Lotbiniere) said the government's determination to create new ministries is another step in removing government from the people.

"We've now come to a government by technocrats," Mr. Fortin said. It grew larger through the growth of departments, Crown agencies, royal commissions and task forces.

Treasury Board President C. M. Drury said Mr. Fortin was confusing proposed ministers of state with existing departments. The new ministries would implement policies in assigned areas and then disappear.

In the Senate Tuesday, Senator E. A. Hastings (I—Alberta) renewed his pressure to end the practice of using the RCMP as investigators of former offenders who have applied for pardons.

Bell Says Rate May Go Up

TORONTO (CP) — The chairman of Bell Canada says higher rates may be needed to keep up with Canadian demands for better service.

Marcel Vincent's explanation of the profit squeeze was not sufficient for many shareholders who complained at the annual meeting Tuesday bout the company's profit margins. Some questioned the efficiency of management.

He told shareholders the company needs improvements in earnings to get favorable rates for new financing.

Mr. Vincent said he could visualize a waiting list of 500,000 requests for new telephones or improvements if financial problems develop.

Nixon's Action Criticized

WASHINGTON (AP) — Capt. Aubrey M. Daniel III, prosecutor in the trial of Lieut. William L. Calley, has written President Nixon that his intervention in the case—"in the midst of public clamor"—has damaged the system of military justice.

Reached by telephone at Fort Benning, Daniel refused to discuss the letter, saying "publicity was not my purpose in writing it."

Daniel said in a letter to the president, with copies to six senators, that he was shocked and dismayed at Nixon's action. He said it opened the system of military justice to charges "that it is subject to political influence. . . ."

He asked also whether Nixon had considered the effect of his intervention on the six military jurors who convicted Calley of premeditated murder.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I'm sure you've heard everything by now, so what I say probably isn't anything new—or shocking to you.

When I was 21, I saved all my money and had an augmentation mammoplasty — a breast implant of silicone. I never regretted it because I was so sick of being flat-chested and wearing padded bras.

I felt like a new person from that day forward; self-assured and for once, womanly. I see no crime in people having their noses bobbed or wrinkles removed if that's what makes them happy.

Now, at 22, I've become engaged to a wonderful man. I fear that he would feel gypped if he knew my breasts are "falsies". He's also sure to find out because they are very hard and the scars remain. In fact, I think that's the only thing plastic surgery hasn't perfected about the operation. Tell me, Dr. Steincrohn should I swallow my pride and confess before we marry? Please reply as soon as possible. I'll be waiting for your answer. — Miss X.

* * *

COMMENT: Whatever the illness, whatever the problem, there should be one basic rule before marriage. As the saying goes: "Come clean." If you don't you'll live in anxiety that will begin before the marriage ceremony, continue into the honeymoon and maybe become a slow time bomb to blow up your marriage later.

Tell him now of course, Miss X. In this instance, confession is a good test of his love. You'd better know now than later. Readers may recall that I have advised that both bride and groom have premarital medical checkups. For example, if one is found to have heart trouble or any other unsuspected illness, I believe it is the duty of either (or both) to inform the other.

Your husband - to - be will not feel "gypped" if you tell him about your operation before the marriage ceremony. But he has a right to feel so if you withhold the information.

Incidentally, does your friend have an exceptionally nice profile? It's possible, you know that he may be getting up enough courage to tell you that he has had a "nose job." Wouldn't that be something! That would solve your problem by making "confession" much easier.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: There is a woman in my office whose tongue wags constantly. She never seems to stop. It is a strain to work with someone like this, especially since she gossips too much. Is there any cure? — Mrs. K.

COMMENT: In some persons, the tongue is the strongest muscle in the body — due to constant exercise. Some persons are compulsive talkers. I'm not aware of any way to apply the brakes. The following quotes may interest you:

"His tongue is like a pig's tail, going all day long, and nothing done." — Spurgeon.

Surely human affairs would be far happier if the power in men to be silent were the same as that to speak. But experience more than sufficiently teaches that men govern nothing more with difficulty than their tongues." — Spinoza.

So you see, Mrs. K., you're up against an obstinate problem.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: We are going to be spending some time this summer in the region of Regina, Saskatchewan and wonder if you can give us any information about the Prince Albert National Park.

ANSWER: Prince Albert via Provincial Hwy. 2. National Park covers 1,496 square miles of forest in central Saskatchewan. The eastern boundary is 51 miles north of the city of Prince Albert Waskesiu, the park's only townsite and most developed recreational centre, is 4 miles further west. Lying in the northern forest belt, just north of the agricultural lands of the Great Plains, the park is the fourth largest in the Canadian National Park system.

The park is rolling hills and ridges, many lakes, ponds, streams and bogs — is a legacy of the glacial age. Notable lakes are Sandy, Waskesiu, Kingsmere, Crean, Namekus and the Hanging Heart Lakes. There are also several hundred smaller lakes and ponds, rivers and streams and many sand beaches.

The park is open throughout the year, but complete facilities are provided only from May to September. A resident superintendent in Waskesiu has information, maps and literature.

Motor roads traverse much of the park and lead to Waskesiu, Namekus, Sandy and the Hanging Heart Lakes to the Kingsmere River. Although no roads lead directly to Kingsmere and Crean Lakes, access is easy by boat. A light railway with handtruck facilities portages around the unnavigable stretch of the Kingsmere River.

A motor launch offers daily summer excursions around Lake Waskesiu. Boats, canoes and outboard motors may be rented. Boat-launching and berthing facilities are available at the Narrows on Waskesiu Lake, Hanging Heart Lakes and at the Waskesiu Lake Marina, near the mouth of the Waskesiu River. There are tennis courts, bowling greens, and an 18-hole golf course at Waskesiu.

Park naturalists present a free interpretive program to help visitors understand and appreciate the park's natural environment. Conducted walks are led on nature trails; car caravans are taken on park roadways. Illustrated talks are presented at the outdoor theatres at the Narrows and Beaver Glen campgrounds. A self-guiding pamphlet is available for the Mud Creek Nature Trail. The Park Nature Centre contains exhibits on the park and is open in July and August.

A maintained trail 2½ miles long begins at the boat dock on the north-west shore of Kingsmere Lake and leads to the home of Grey Owl. Born Archibald Stanfield Belaney, this controversial Englishman arrived in Canada in 1905. Adopted by the Ojibway Indians and later married to one of their daughters, he turned his life to nature to the re-establishment of the beaver population, which had been decimated by hunters and trappers. As a wildlife conservationist, Grey Owl wrote many articles expressing his abhorrence of cruelties to wild animals. These articles contributed to the eventual establishment of preserves devoted to protecting all wild creatures. Grey Owl is buried near Ajawaan Lake.

Wild animals are plentiful. Big game most often seen are moose, elk, white-tailed or Virginia deer, mule deer and black bear. Many fur-bearing animals, such as beaver, muskrat, mink and fox, are seen, as are a limited number of wolves and coyotes. A small herd of American buffalo, or plains bison is maintained by park-in a fenced paddock near the south entrance. Early morning or evening hours offer the visitor the best chances of seeing wildlife along the park roads, especially the Narrows road and the Scenic Drive along the north side of Waskesiu Lake. Though some of these animals may seem tame, they are, nevertheless, wild and should be observed from a safe distance.

Summer hotels, bungalow camps, apartment courts and large public campgrounds are available in the Waskesiu area. Additional campsites are at Sandy, Kingsmere, Namekus, Crean Lakes and on Lake Waskesiu at the Narrows fee for use of camping facilities.

The best way to get there from Regina is by Highways 6, 5, and 2 through Prince Albert.

Mammoth Flood Revives Australia's 'Outback'

ADELAIDE (Reuter) — A mammoth flood is sweeping the Australian outback, bringing the promise of revival for much of the country's dead area.

With floodwaters racing across western Queensland, northwestern New South Wales and northeastern South Australia, cattle and sheep stations brought close to bankruptcy by drought are expecting a bumper season.

Properties in an area of 350,000 square miles have been drenched by rainfalls described by one authority as the best in at least 15 years.

Some stations around the junction of the three state-borders have reported falls of 10 inches or more, twice the annual average for the last 100 years, and enough to break a seven-year drought.

Others in western Queensland have received the first rain their school-age children have ever seen.

Many cattle and sheep stations now lost beneath the inland ocean were left with only the nucleus of a herd as the scorching sun and rainless skies of the 1960s' turned the land into a tortured dustbowl.

But now the rivers are running wild and the first of the new crop of grass is appearing on high ground, growing almost miraculously from seed virtually unnourished in a decade.

The floods have cut off homesteads, undermined inland railway lines and turned bush airstrips into quagmires. But by mid-April most of the water will have drained away into South Australia's Lake Eyre, leaving behind rich new pastures.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For April 8

Your birthday today: Creative forces in your life come on stronger this year, requiring changes in your plans and home situation, perhaps a switching of profession. Choose the more dramatic solution where you can. Today's natives are gifted with latent powers of concentration. Many have been fine actors, dancers, orators.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Thoroughly attend that urge to get something done, with definite appeals for co-operation. Avoid overtime if feasible.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Surfaces could today; put on a good appearance, rearrange your schedules to take advantage of important opportunities.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): The earlier you start the better. Where you have plenty of time and space, clear off the important matters.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Expecting everything to run smoothly isn't realistic. Have a good try at what is handy.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Instead of trying to carry the whole battle yourself, get some backing. Try to learn more.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Take stock of where you are; think of your goals. Careful planning is needed.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Definite, prudently selected work makes the difference today — just be sure it comes to attention where it counts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Something can be settled that has been bothering you for a while. Get it all attended to quite early.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Talk is emptying. Surely among the many bids for your attention some of the actions suggested will make sense.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Better knowledge of what you really want to achieve may change everything.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Reactions to your criticism run deeper than you suspect — tact is essential.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Morning decisions hold well, later problems are best postponed. Expect breaks in local conditions.

Guards off Guard

OTTAWA (CP) — Two Carleton University co-eds caught the military with its guard down Tuesday night when they applied for summer jobs in the Governor-General's Foot Guard.

Posters advertising the positions stipulated only that applicants be university students, Canadians, physically fit and five-feet-eight tall.

Obviously fit, Julia Weller, 21, and Lin Dickson, 22, applied with several amused male applicants who were not opposed to the idea of female barrack-mates.

Both girls said they would cut their hair to military length if accepted. They were told they would soon be called for medical examinations.

Use by Hospital for Retarded Of Caged Cribs Given Support

ORILLIA (CP) — Richard Wilson, administrator of the Ontario Hospital school for the mentally retarded here, has received support from other hospital officials and relatives of patients for the use of caged cribs.

However, Mr. Wilson said in an interview Tuesday that if the hospital's staff was increased by about 300, it would be able to do away with the caged cribs.

He said the cribs are used to confine patients who are hyperactive and may hurt themselves otherwise.

C. D. Halpin, administrator of Cedar Springs Hospital near Chatham, agreed with Mr. Wilson. He said about 40 of the 2,150 beds at his hospital were caged.

Dr. D. E. Zarfass, director of mental retardation services with the Ontario health department, said the enclosed cribs are used in many Western countries. He said patients kept in them were usually organically damaged.

Claire Wilson of the Toronto suburb of West Hill, whose 23-year-old son is a patient at Orillia, had nothing but praise for the hospital.

"I know of no people I could praise more highly than the staff at Orillia," said. "My boy was in a bed with sides but no top for some time, but only because he had to be.

"He was frustrated and had to be protected from hurting himself."

Violet Lynch of Toronto, who has a daughter at the hospital, said she was "hopping mad" at critical remarks about the use of the caged cribs.

"Those cribs are absolutely necessary," she said. "I knew one mother who kept screaming to get her child out of one. But when she saw how he was falling, cracking himself on the head, she was soon screaming to put him back in the crib."

The barred cribs were described in the Ontario legislature Monday by Dr. Morton Shulman, New Democratic Party member for Toronto High Park, and Patrick Lawlor, NDP member for Toronto Lakeshore, who said they visited the hospital Sunday.

They said many of the hospital facilities were antiquated and overcrowded and that one child was tied to a wheelchair.

Mr. Wilson said that although only about 10 of the hospital's 1,972 patients were regularly confined, the caged cribs "are definitely not a desirable thing."

Mr. Wilson did, however, deny reports that children at the hospital were being used as "guinea pigs" for various types of vaccines.

The charge was made in the legislature Tuesday by Tim Reid, Liberal member for Scarborough East, who showed a copy of a letter sent to the children's parents asking permission to include the children in tests of a rubella German measles vaccine.

Mr. Wilson said the rubella program, the only one children have been included in, was conducted in 1969 under the approval of the Ontario department of health.

The hospital is interested in rubella because the retardation of many patients resulted from their mothers contracting the disease during pregnancy.

M. E. Clarke, vice-chairman of the residential care committee of the Ontario Association for the Mentally Retarded in Kingston, was critical of the hospital's procedures.

She said in an interview that patients at the hospital were not being treated "like human beings."

"It's about time that the public became aware . . . of these problems . . ."

Meanwhile, Health Minister A. B. R. Lawrence was applauded by all parties in the legislature when he promised "to open the doors" of Ontario mental institutions for inspections by members of the legislature and the press to speed up the transfer of patients to small, regional health centres.

Most People Are Prepared to Pay for Control of Pollution

OTTAWA (CP) — In one of the more thorough surveys undertaken by a member of Parliament, Gordon Blair found that 7,200 of his constituents in Grenville-Carleton were overwhelmingly in favor of the War Measures Act, they are willing to pay more to fight pollution, and they are strongly opposed to proposals in the white paper on taxation.

The Liberal MP also discovered that 2,986 of those replying decided that the record of the Liberal government since 1968 has been generally satisfactory, while 2,575 said it wasn't. Another 1,411 were undecided.

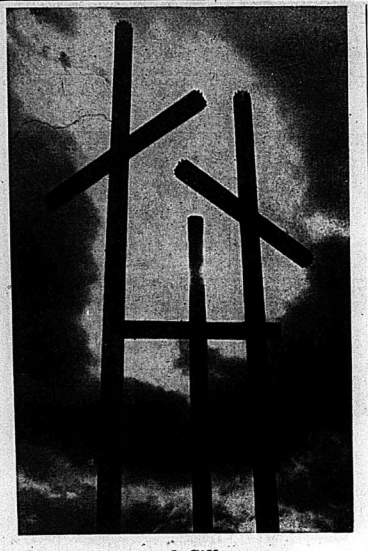
The Grenville-Carleton riding cuts a wide swath from Ottawa to Brockville in eastern Ontario. More than 90 per cent of its 90,000-odd residents are English-speaking.

Mr. Blair said Tuesday he sent out the questionnaire to about 31,000 homes so he would know how his constituents felt on a wide variety of issues. Some 23 per cent of those canvassed replied to the questions.

Asked whether government policies on bilingualism are generally satisfactory, the replies were: Yes 1,600; no 3,653; undecided 1,659.

Use of emergency legislation to deal with Quebec terrorism was approved by a margin of 5,681 to 869 with another 423 undecided.

Strongest support of all came for this question: "Are you prepared to pay, as a taxpayer and consumer, for essential measures to control pollution?" Yes 5,949; no 703; undecided 636.



Mr. Blair said he was "startled" by the approval given to the question: "Should wage and price controls be instituted if necessary to govern serious inflation?" It was yes by a margin of 5,593 to 887.

Mr. Blair's constituents voted by a margin of more than 3 to 1 against reducing Canada's commitments in NATO and North American air defence and the response was 4,191 to 2,265 against giving public servants the right to strike.

While the replies to many of the 28 questions were predictable, Mr. Blair said, he was surprised that there was such a close vote on the question of giving MPs higher salaries. An increase was opposed by a margin of 2,963 to 2,771 with 1,318 undecided. Mr. Blair said he expected much stronger opposition.

There was strong support for relaxing abortion laws and for banning cigarette advertising, and strong opposition to relaxing laws on marijuana.

On whether Canada should increase its aid to underdeveloped countries, there were 3,007 in favor and 3,091 against.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Easy Words Are Difficult

One of the problems with "communication" is that people don't know what is "hard" and what is "easy," and are always confusing the two. For in verbal symbolism (which is all that speech is), the easy often sounds hard, and the hard easy.

For instance to the layman, this sentence is not only "hard" but incomprehensible: "One advantage of orthogonal polynomials is that the estimates of the regression parameters are independent."

To someone who has studied applied statistics, however, it is a simple statement of fact, because each of the "hard" words in it has a precise meaning that is neatly linked with the other "hard" words. The idea itself is easy to grasp, once you know the technical terms.

But a phrase everyone knows, like "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal . . ." is, far from being simple, one of the most difficult ideas to elucidate. Its familiarity, and its deceptive simplicity, conceals a host of metaphysical problems it might take years to untangle or agree upon.

What are "truths"? Beyond this, what is a "self-evident" truth? In what way are all men "created equal"? How are we "created"? What does "equal" really mean, if anything?

We either fool ourselves into imagining that these questions are easy, and that any sol-disant philosopher can answer them with a facile definition or two; or we go to the other extreme of the fashionable linguistic analysts, and suggest that such questions are "meaningless" and therefore "unanswerable."

So we leave what we think is the "hard" language to the technicians, and we ignore what we think is the "easy" language of everyday values and norms. The consequence of this is that our technicians keep constructing problems that pose a moral decision for us, while we lack the thinking and language tools to make these decisions on a rational basis.

This is the spot we are in. We don't understand what the technologists are planning or doing, and when their plans materialize, we are suddenly faced with the necessity for judging the social and moral implications of their work. But we lack the tools they have so painstakingly forged for their own craft, and we can only fumble around with a few familiar abstract words that mean different things to different people.

The language of science is international; the language of lay people is fragmented, not only nationally, but individually. We cannot even agree on the things we are disagreeing about, because we have no common terminology; no place to start from. "Communication" on our basic problems is impossible until we see the "hardness" of "easy" words.

Indian Forces Said Poised

From REUTER-AP

Pakistan charged today that Indian armed forces were poised for possible intervention in East Pakistan after announcing that air force planes went into action in four areas of East Pakistan.

Radio Pakistan said information reaching Rawalpindi, the central government capital in the Western province, indicated Indian air force bases round the western and northern borders of East Pakistan had been issued combat readiness orders. It said Indian border security force battalions around East Pakistan had been deployed for infiltration operations and four other such units already were engaged in East Pakistan.

East Pakistan is bounded on three sides by Indian territory and the other by the Bay of Bengal.

The radio, in what was believed to be the first Pakistani confirmation of other reports, said Pakistan air force planes had gone into action in Sylhet, Rajshahi, Mymensingh and Rangpur.

Previous reports by the radio said the situation in East Pakistan was "calm" and "under control."

The Pakistan reports came as Indian news media said the Pakistan air force had carried out heavy retaliatory bombing

Hold-line Budget Below Ontario Limit

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Separate school supporters in four municipalities will pay no elementary school taxes this year, under the Hastings - Prince Edward county Roman Catholic Separate School Board hold-the-line budget of $2,684,713 for 1971.

Because some former boards had surpluses to their credit when the county board was established, tax reductions will result in 20 of the 32 former zones, these including the four in which there will be no taxes at all. Increased tax rates will be levied n the other 12 zones.

The 1971 budget is an increase of $134,182 over 1970 costs, provincial regulations would have allowed the board to spend up to $2,857,120.

Separate school rate payers in the town of Picton, those in the township of Hallowell, those in portions of the townships of Richmond and Tyendinaga who formerly supported the Read school and those in Herschel township who formerly supported the Bancroft school will have no elementary school taxes assessed against their properties this year.

Separate school ratepayers in Trenton will have a decrease of slightly more than 3 mills this year and in no area except Belleville, Tweed - Hungerford and Maynooth will there be an increase of more than one half an equalized mill over the rates that were charged in 1969.

The increases are caused by the provincial regulation that requires the board to charge back to the zones 15 per cent interest on the deficits that these former boards had when they entered the county system. The charge - back of interest amounts to $28,556 and is divided as follows: the former Belleville area $20,777; the former Tweed - Hungerford area $5,200 and the former Maynooth area (including portions of the townships of Herschell, Bangor and Monteagle) $681.

The deficits on these areas amounted to $177,426 and the province has agreed to pay back during the year 1971, one-third of this amount to the county board. It is anticipated that the province will also pay back to the board a further one-third during 1972 and the balance during 1973. As all other former boards either had surpluses or were in a near balanced position in 1969, the differences vary considerably across the counties.

The board will be budgeting for a balanced budget in 1971 by reducing costs to a bare minimum and providing no additional services or programs unless cuts can be made from existing programs to finance them.

The budget will be appropriated as follows: debt charges 12 per cent, maintenance and plant operation 11 per cent, teachers' salaries 65 per cent, transportation 6 per cent, tax write-offs, tuition fees, attendance and business administration 6 per cent.

Provincial grants this year pay for 58 per cent of the operating costs of the board, leaving the remaining 12 per cent of the budget to be raised by direct property tax levy.

Residential mill rates for elementary schools this year, except for those municipalities paying nothing are: Hungerford 41.34, Tweed 40.47, Bangor 65.16, Herschel (for the former Bangor, Wicklow and McClure board) 50.92, Monteagle 51.02, Belleville 14.96, Ameliasburg 5.14, Trenton 25.01, Bancroft 14.92, Faraday 24.31, Dungannon 17.32, Marmora 15.02, Marmora and Lake 29.69, Delora 29.69, Murchison and Lyell, 71.74, Tyendinaga (for the former No. 2 Tyendinaga, Thurlow and Richmond board) 6.14, Thurlow (for the former Tyendinaga, Thurlow and Richmond board) 21.54, Thurlow (for the former Belleville board) 52.96, Richmond (for the No. 2 Tyendinaga, Thurlow and Richmond board) 4.58, Sidney (for the former No. 11 Sidney board) 35.75, Sidney (for the former Belleville board) 51.15, Sidney (for the former Trenton board) 35.42, Frankford 17.25, Murray (for the former No. 11 Sidney board) 24.56, Murray (for the former Trenton board) 31.43, Asy 5.37.

Separate school supporters pay the same mill rates as public school supporters for secondary schools.

Russia Sends Arms to Egypt

From AP-Reuter

The Soviet Union is sending more men, jet fighters and arms to Egypt, and a new missile buildup is suspected, Western diplomatic sources in London report.

Increased air shipments were first detected 10 days ago, they said, and Soviet military manpower in Egypt has increased lately by 2,000 men. The authoritative British Institute for Strategic Studies reported about 16,000 were there last year.

The report came Wednesday from diplomats whose governments are represented in Cairo. Informants said it gave these other details:

—The number of surface-to-surface air missiles, SAM-2s and SAM-3s, has increased, although by how much is not certain. Last month the institute estimated Soviet forces were manning up to 60 SAM-3 sites and an unspecified number of SAM-2s.

—Soviet jet fighter deliveries have been increased along with amphibious trucks and other equipment. The institute estimated Soviet pilots were manning up to 150 MiG-21J jets at six Egyptian airfields last December.

Nixon Refuses to Set Vietnam War Deadline

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — President Nixon refused to bow to mounting pressure to set a date for complete U.S. withdrawal from the Vietnam war, but did announce Wednesday night the pullback of another 100,000 servicemen by Dec. 1.

In rejecting demands from the peace movement to call a halt to American troop involvement in the war, the president said such a move would mean surrender to the Communists.

Speaking in an earnest, sometimes emotional manner, he told a television audience that he was disengaging in a way which would lead to a generation of peace, avoid a precipitious retreat and would leave the South Vietnamese strong enough to defend themselves.

The speech was widely viewed in the United States as a display of political courage as it contained no dramatic measures to offset his falling popularity in public opinion polls.

The speed-up in the troop withdrawal schedule, however, fell short of predictions that he would increase the average rate of withdrawal up to perhaps 20,000 men a month.

The new rate will average almost 14,300 men a month, compared with the 12,500 a month during the last year or so. Under the new program, the number of American servicemen in Vietnam will drop to 184,000 by Dec. 1, compared with the high point of 535,000 in mid-1969.

This would leave the president free to order a significant acceleration in the withdrawal rate in the spring of 1972, just before the presidential election campaign starts to gather steam, observers said.

The president, again put his political future on the line, telling the American people "you should hold me accountable if I fail."

Democratic doves were quick to attack the speech as not going anywhere near enough to meet the national yearning for peace.

All Mill Workers Beaten to Death

LONDON (Reuter) — "It was plain murder," said an English engineer today as he told of the terror he witnessed before leaving the East Pakistan port city of Chittagong.

"There was a terrible massacre in the town. The Bengalis were being killed in the thousands and the corpses . . . left to rot in the streets.

"The army men were rounding up people and machine-gunning them down. There were no attempts at questioning. If they ran away they were shot down from behind like dogs."

The engineer, who arrived here today by airliner, declined to give his name for fear of reprisals against friends still in war-torn East Pakistan.

A Scottish jute mill manager who also declined to be named, said all his employees had been battered to death.

"Food and medical supplies must be gotten to these areas somehow, otherwise it will be no use the United Nations sending their family-planning experts. There just won't be any families."

The Englishman said:

"There was the most terrible destruction. If the men with guns couldn't find anyone on the Big Show Possible

TRENTON (Staff) — Although details have not been worked out, it was learned yesterday that CFB Trenton can expect a mammoth Armed Forces Day this year to coincide with the 40th anniversary of the founding of the air station here.

One possibility now being investigated by defence department officials is to hold the annual open house at the base on September 1, a Wednesday, to coincide with the rehearsal performance of the Canadian International Air Show.

Last year, the rehearsal included only Canadian aircraft participating in the show but invitations may be issued this year to foreign entries, asking them to join the dry-run to be staged over the Bay of Quinte rather than just showing up for the airshow days at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto.

A CFB Trenton spokesman told The Intelligencer that co-operation of other commands of the Canadian Armed Forces can be expected for special anniversary celebrations and that "a better than average Armed Forces Day can be expected this year."

Cadets View Marine Display

Members of the Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps Quinte of Belleville view fish display during a visit at the Glenora Fisheries Research Station. A large number of Quinte area residents took in the open house program at the Glenora station Wednesday afternoon and evening.

Belleville Sea Cadets Visit Research Centre

GLENORA (Staff) — The marines landed at the Glenora Fisheries Research Station last night when 30 Belleville sea cadets toured the building during an annual open house. Members of the Royal Canadian Sea Cadets Corps Quinte, Belleville, led by Capt. Barry Bevans were enjoying their first visit to the research station.

Capt Bevvan noted that the cadets were discovering that "there's a lot of life beneath the waters they sail in the summer months." He added that the tour of the fisheries research station provided cadets with an opportunity to question various scientific methods used by staff members in their work. The cadet group examined all of the many informative displays during their evening visit to the research station.

Also attending open house was a group of cub scouts belonging to Bath, first pack. They were accompanied by 10 boy scouts during their tour. It was the first time the Kingston area youths had visited the Glenora Fisheries Research Station.

The research station was opened to the public from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. yesterday afternoon and from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. last evening. A large number of Prince Edward County residents enjoyed this opportunity to familiarize themselves with the work programs implemented by the staff. The research station's aquarium containing a wide variety of fish found in Quinte waters was one of the most popular areas of the tour.

Nixon

nounced candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, dismissed the speech as "more of the same."

Senator Edmund Muskie of Maine, who might be the presidential opponent in 1972, expressed disappointment that Nixon had refused to set a date for ending American involvement in the war.

Senator Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts also expressed deep disappointment and said the South Vietnamese and American people could no longer bear the war.

But Senator Robert Byrd of West Virginia, assistant Democratic leader in the Senate, said the speech gave him the distinct impression that Nixon has a definite date in mind for a complete withdrawal from Vietnam.

Senator Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, Republican party leader in the Senate, also commented: "I know he has a timetable, but for obvious reasons he cannot tip his hand to the enemy."

CARDS OF THANKS

The Ward family wish to express their deep appreciation to Dr. Tetzlaff, Macintosh, Dr. Crook, Dr. C. W. Darcy and the nursing staff of the Belleville General Hospital for the many acts of kindness during the illness of the late Mr. Leonard E. Ward. Thank you.
Sincerely, Leonard F. Ward.

I would like to thank friends, neighbors, relatives, staff of Norgan Foods Ltd. and Wesley United with latter for their many acts of kindness while I was a patient in Belleville General. Special thanks to Rev. Lee to Dr. F. R. Rose and Dr. H. Crook, nurses and staff of 4th floor.
Ann Gilbert

We would like to thank the community of Wallbridge for the lovely wedding gift given to us at the time of our marriage.
Mr. Danielle and Dennis Marshall.

BIRTHS

HALL — Richard and Caroline (nee Baker) are pleased to announce the birth of their son, Andrew Richard on Saturday, April 3, 1971 at the Belleville General Hospital. Weight 7 lbs., 6½ ozs.

IN MEMORIAM

ALFORD — In loving memory of our dear wife, Ida Alford, who passed away April 10th, 1970.
Always a smile, never a frown,
Always a head when one was down,
Always firm, thoughtful and kind,
Wonderful memories she left behind.
—Sadly missed by her husband John.

ROY — In loving memory of our dear father, Roy Alexander Murray Roy who passed away one year ago today April 8, 1970.
The heavenly gates were opened,
One year ago today,
And angels welcomed someone,
Quite dearly loved, they say.
You didn't say goodbye to us,
You knew it's just as well,
We never could have said goodbye,
To leave us for a while.
—Sadly missed by husband Jim, daughter Betty and son-in-law Ron and grandchildren.

LOUGH — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Beatrice Lough who passed away April 8th, 1970.
To sorrow we saw you sinking,
We watched you fade away,
Our hearts were almost broken,
But we could not make you stay.
But God in love saw you drooping,
So gracefully free from pain,
He took you and with you took,
To suffer that again.
—Ever remembered by husband and family.

LOUGH — In loving memory of dear grandmother, Victoria Lough who passed away April 8th, 1970.
Loving and kind to all her were,
Upright and just to the end,
Sincere and true, in her heart and mind.
Beautiful memories she left behind,
—Always remembered by grandchildren.

SARGEANT — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Joseph St. Barthavi who passed away April 8, 1965.
Dad, on this special day,
A song you to mind,
For the days we do not think of you,
Are very few to find,
If all the world were ours to give,
And all the years were mine,
To ask for you, dear dad, to live,
Is more than I could do.
—Remembered by Florence, Robert, Walter, Conrad, David, Joe, Jorelle and grandchildren.

Quinte-area Grads Awarded Fellowships

Three Quinte-area university graduates are among the 1,000 Canadians this year awarded Canada Council doctoral fellowships.

They are: Roy Alastair Rickard, 27, son of Rev. and Mrs. Roy Rickard, 255 Foster Ave., Belleville, Mr. Rickard now is in his last year of studies at Waterloo University for a master of philosophy degree.

John Charles Weaver, 24, of Madoc, a Queen's University honors graduate in history and politics now at Duke University, N.C. His father, Owen Weaver, is a geography teacher at Centre Hastings Secondary School.

Marion Camm, of Stirling, now concluding work for her master's degree at Queen's. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Camm, both teachers at Centennial Secondary School.

The fellowships are worth $3,500-$5,500, Canada Council announced.

The awards help train Canadians for careers in university teaching and research in the humanities and sciences.

Besides the new fellowships, the council also awarded 1,300 renewal grants to previous award - winners continuing work on their doctoral programs.

Total of all awards is $11,200,000.

Heart Fund Over Top

The Belleville and District Heart Fund has surpassed its 1971 goal by more than $1,500, Mrs. Isabelle Hurst, campaign chairman announced this morning.

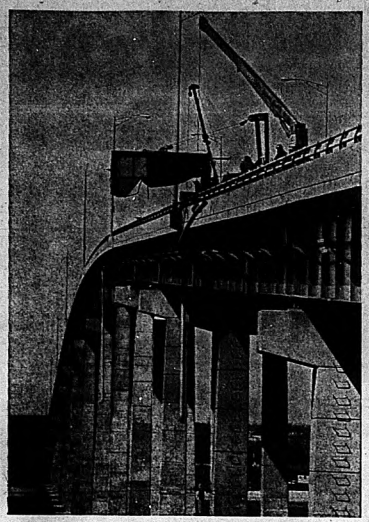
With an objective of $15,200 set for the Feb 27 - March 14 campaign, the Heart Fund volunteers collected a total of $11,600. Of this, $1,774 was raised in outlying districts — Marysville, Marlbank, Stoco, Madoc, Marmora, Tweed, Deseronto and Foxboro-Corbyville. Belleville's contribution amounted to $9,826, $1,326 more than the city goal.

"We were a bit worried, we've heard that other cities haven't reached their goal, what with unemployment, but we've just thrilled," she said.

"Exceeding the objective by $1,800 is, in my opinion, a reflection of the enthusiasm and efficiency of all those who worked as organizers and canvassers as well as the generosity and support of those who gave and set a very worthy cause," she concluded.

Homebuilder Seeks Approval

TRENTON (Staff) — The Trenton and Suburban Planning Board received notice last night from the department of municipal affairs that it is considering an application from Penalas Construction of Trenton for a new 31-home development.



The department requested information from the board on the project to be built just north of the Brett Park subdivision but board members knew nothing about it.

Involvement of the TSBP in decisions on the development will be minor because it will not involve rezoning.

Board member, Paul Tripp quipped, "this is the first time we have had a subdivision going in where it is supposed to be."

Museum Reopens Late in May

WELLINGTON (Staff) — A popular Prince Edward tourist attraction, the Wellington museum will reopen May 24 for the 1971 season, Curator Mrs. Walter Nind said Wednesday that the museum will be opened weekends only until July 1 when it will begin to welcome visitors daily up until Thanksgiving weekend. This historic building also will remain open Saturday and Sunday evenings from July 1 to the close of the summer season.

A Case of Kingsize Plumbing

Getting natural gas to Picton across the Bay of Quinte has meant a kingsize plumbing chore — slinging a pipeline under Quinte, Skyway near Deseronto. It's taken eight days, with welders at times working 95 feet above water to join 2,700 feet of pipe. The 14-mile pipeline project — in progress all winter — will feed gas to Lake Ontario Cement plant.

Townhouse Project Approved

TRENTON (Staff — The Trenton and Suburban Planning Board here last night approved the application of a Toronto firm, Ack Construction Ltd., to build 63 units of condo northeast Trenton.

The proposal was first revealed by an Ack spokesman, Sam Diamond, at a board meeting Feb. 8. Location of the planned townhouse blocks is a 4½-acre site east of Sidney Street opposite Ack Court.

In approving the project, the board requires that an additional entrance to the northeast of the property be provided by the developers. Only one access road to the housing area was featured in the original draft plans — a right-of-way between homes on Sidney Street.

Mr. Diamond pointed out to planning board members that there are condominium developments in Toronto with three and four hundred units served only by one entrance. The board was also told Ack has run into problems trying to acquire land for a second access lane.

Moe Karten, a Trenton businessman involved in the project, said that one of the owners with which Ack had bargained "thinks the property is at the corner of Queen and Yonge".

Units built by Ack will be feet, and finished in brick veneer and wood, with each unit selling for about $16,000. On-site parking will be provided for 79 cars.

Maintenance of the condominium park will be in the hands of a committee of homeowners — the cost being borne in a monthly fee levied against owners by their management committee.

In its approval decision, the TSPB requires that Ack build a paved road system in the development and point out to prospective unit buyers the maintenance arrangements, particularly the fact that the cost of snow removal and garbage collection will be the responsibility of homeowners.

The condominium plan will now be forwarded to town council for its consideration and residents of the area will be advised of the project.

Mr. Diamond said "four and a half months could see the units finished. . some of them may even be ready in 10 to 12 weeks."

County Education Board Juggles Limited Budget

Hastings county board of education cleaned up the tag ends of its 1971 budget last night by reshuffling appropriations from one department to another.

As a result, it squeezed out an extra $30,000 or $3 more per pupil for elementary school library supplies and 21,000 for site improvements at Centennial Secondary School in co-operation with the Belleville Parks and Recreation boards; found $35,000 to meet retirement gratuity requirements and allotted $28,000 for programs trustees had feared might be curtailed this year due to low spending ceilings.

To find the money to appropriate to these functions, trustees agreed to shave allotments for business administration (down by $16,000), computer services ($4,000), instruction ($81,950), education services ($8,500), attendance, health and food, plant transportation and sports and recreation ($31,550).

Of the total increase of $2,275,000 this year over last year's actual expenditures, $1,824,000 or 80 per cent is accounted for in instruction and educational services.

But some trustees were unhappy with the budget and the economies effected.

Nelson McGibbon asked for a recorded vote on the transfers, saying he had reservations as to whether the budget should have been set at the maximum level permitted by department of education guidelines.

"This year there is little or no milk subsidy for large portions of the county," he said. "But in 1972 we will not have the amounts due to arbitration and over- and underlevies over the last two years that we have this year. In 1972 we will not have a grant formula to compensate for this either."

Raymond Rowe observed that these objections should have been raised when the board accepted its $20,353,351 budget.

On the vote, five trustees recorded their opposition in the ceiling budget. They were Milford Waller of Thurlow, F. John Fidlis of Ameliasburgh, Emerson Robinson of Maynooth, Mr. McKibbon and Robertson Collins, separate school representative for Belleville.

Other trustees were concerned about lack of appropriations in the budget for plant maintenance. Last year the board spent about $600,000 on this item and this year will have only about $700,000 for the purpose.

"We're facing a deteriorating situation: in five year's we may have buildings falling in on our heads," commented chairman Donald Williams.

Director of education Eric Rumacres agreed that "we have not put the money into maintenance in the past in this county that we should have.

"I'm not optimistic about the picture," he said.

Everett Fairman asked plant controller Keith Hawkins if it were true that the roofs of some schools were leaking.

When told they were, Mr. Fairman commented that savings on maintenance was "false economy".

MacDonald Smith of Belleville noted that the 1971 budget makes no provision for an educational services building.

"We can't operate efficiently and effectively under these conditions," he said in reference to the splitting of the board's administrative staff into separate units operating out of several buildings inherited from previous boards.

Clean Up Program

Last week's throne speech indicated that some 14,000 students will be employed by the Ontario government this summer, including 2,000 to work on a special program to clean up land, parks, streams and lake shores.

The latter is a small force if it is intended as a province-wide fight against the whole gamut of litter and pollution. As it is, just where the young people will be pressed into action is not stated. Will it be undertaken at the local level, in connection with the recently announced student summer program, or what?

Certainly, there is not a community in Ontario, emerging only now from the winter snow, that does not offer an ample sphere of endeavor in this regard. For as the grass appears and the melting snow combines with mud and rushing stream there is the familiar sight of last year's discarded beer bottles, paper and assorted other junk all around.

The 'Scene'

Happy are the families where there is mutual respect, where there is firm but not overly tight discipline, where there is love, where the teenagers realize they do not know everything, as so many of them imagine they do, and realize also that the so-called "scene" in life is a much bigger thing than the narrow and corrupt concepts of a 23-year-old teacher, in a letter to her 18-year-old sister, on how to deal with their parents (see today's Ann Landers column), bigger too than the arrogance and sickness of those among contemporary youth who are on drugs (see The Globe and Mail's series on the drug thing in Cobourg, booze in Bancroft, and more of the same right across the province). Happy too are the parents who are knowledgeable (so the kids have no excuse for believing otherwise), intelligent, firm and who yet exercise moderation in all things. And for the kind of situation that is the antithesis of this, read the second letter in today's Ann Landers column.

Teacher Supply

How come if Canada is producing many more science and engineering graduates than can be fully used (according to Dr. Frank Kelly, an adviser to the Science Council of Canada) there is a shortage of good secondary school teaching candidates in maths, pure chemistry and pure physics?

Linton Read, principal of the new Bayside secondary school, attested to a shortage in the latter categories following a recent recruiting visit to Toronto. He and two colleagues had 800 applicants from which to select only 60 teachers for the Hastings county system.

In the United States, space scientists affected by cutbacks in the U.S. space program have turned to teaching. Would there be room then in the schools for our surplus Phds?

Easter

All mortal things shall pass, but the earth and its seasons are forever. And if Easter's coming commemorates Christ's rebirth, it means also His resurrection and, eternally, the hope of this world. As warmth returns to the land we recall the words from Solomon's Song:

"For lo, the winter is past, the rain is over and gone; the flowers appear on the earth; the time of the singing of birds is come, and the voice of the turtle is heard in our land.

Vandalism

Vandalism is one of the most reprehensible forms of youthful conduct. We say "youthful" because it is perpetrated almost exclusively by young people. Two more cases occurred in Belleville last weekend, involving breakage of windows in a church and a service station. Weekends are a time for increased vigilance by police in this regard, as well as by members of the public who should cooperate by reporting any untoward incidents that may be observed.

Letters

Letters to this newspaper should be as brief as possible and preferably no more than 500 words. While for publication purposes a pseudonym may be used, letters must also bear the handwritten signature and address of the sender. Letters may be subject to editing.

NDP's Tommy Douglas

From 'Cow Palace' Inaugural to Grand Ottawa Exit

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Thousands of delegates who have come in the last quarter century from all across the land to Ottawa for scores of political leadership and party policy conventions will remember the smell.

The rich, earthy odor of the livestock barn.

It was the ammoniacal aroma of Ottawa's Coliseum, and soon it is to be no more.

Perhaps it was symbolical that clinging scent of "ecu de Coliseum," should be associated in the memories of so many delegates — Liberal, Conservative, New Democratic — with the selection in what was known as the Canadian Capital's own "Cow Palace" of champions in the world of livestock and politics.

Prize bulls were beribboned and political leaders crowned in the same ring — tanbark for the one occasion, wooden planking for the other.

Now the historic old Coliseum where Louis St. Laurent succeeded Mackenzie King and John Diefenbaker took over from George Drew and Robert Thompson became first and only leader of the national Social Credit Party, since dismilled and splintered into a Quebec-only Creditiste sliver, is going to take the final hammering from the wreckers' swinging two-ton ball.

There, in the now - to - be-crumbled "Cow Palace," 10 years ago Thomas Clement Douglas, returning to the Capital from Saskatchewan where he had been CCF Premier, took over the leadership of the newly - constituted New Democratic Party.

This month, just 50 yards, but 50 construction years away, in Ottawa's new and glittering Civic Centre, Tommy Douglas will be passing on the mantle of socialist power.

The crowning will come in much more posh surroundings. But looks can be deceiving. For while the new Centre may shimmer and shine with tinsel and gilt, it surely is not all that wonderfully new - worldish. The roof has leaked on some inconvenient and important occasions, and the new "Palace" has suffered from other woes that seem to come built-in with the new jazzy construction concepts.

It does not smell, though: not of prize cattle, sheep and swine, anyway.

But political memories are made of this "eau de Coliseum" for the literally thousands of delegates and alternates, wives, observers and assorted professional and amateur partisans of politician — watchers who have come to Ottawa to the party leadership and policy and platform conventions since the first of them back in 1948.

That was the time, little more than a year before he died his lonely death in his little cottage amid the ruins he collected from half-way round the world and brought to his beloved Kingsmere in the nearby pine-scented Gatineau Hills across the Ottawa River from the Peace Tower, that Mackenzie King proclaimed Louis St. Laurent heir to the Liberal power and glory.

It was one of Ottawa's truly great political occasions, for it marked the first time that the hilarious hysterical whoop-and-holler of American - style political conventions was instituted into a Canadian party leadership rite.

Insinuated is the word for it. Paul Martin did it, almost with an air of embarrassment if not of guilt, for such it was the awe in which the party held Mackenzie King.

And Mackenzie King, handing down a ukase from the inner sanctum of federal power in the East Block, had promulgated what was party law, perhaps holy Liberal writ, that Louis St. Laurent would carry on with what after all those years had all but become the divine right of Grit rule.

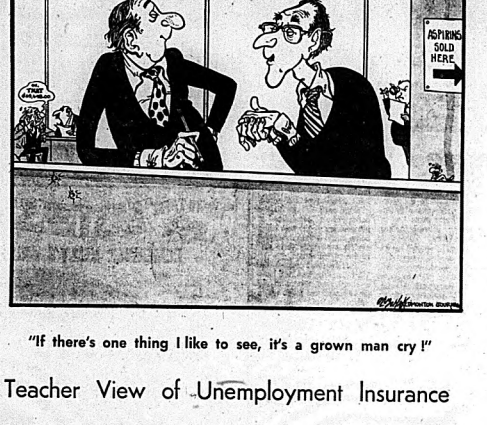
As the convention settled back in its flimsy makeshift boxes and bleachers, after applauding the pre-ordained succession of Louis St. Laurent, there came a thumping and an oom-pah-pah from the back hallways.



And in marched Paul Martin, followed by a brass band, a bevy of beauties with buttons, banners, bunting and all that brazz.

He did not win, of course. But he did come close to giving Mackenzie King apoplexy. And you should have heard the tisking and tushing.

It intimidated the brazen bad boy from the Border Cities to the point that he, too, meekly joined the obedient parade, and like "dummy" candidates Douglas Abbott, Brooke Claxton and Stuart Garson, in Mackenzie's "withdrew". Only toughly seasoned, gutsy Agriculture Minister Jimmy Gardiner was for real as a candidate and ran — taking a terrible licking — against "Uncle Louis".

Ah yes, the "Cow Palace".

It will be missed in fond memory from coast to coast by nostalgic thousands.

"If there's one thing I like to see, it's a grown man cry !"

Teacher View of Unemployment Insurance

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

To begin, let me state that I am not one of those who has never experienced the frustration of unemployment; but that was before the advent of Unemployment Insurance. I have contributed to unemployment insurance since its enactment into legislation. Except for two brief periods I have not been in a position to receive any direct benefit from it.

The indirect benefits have been numerous. The main thrust of the benefits of unemployment insurance is bridging the gaps in the employment of manpower during the transition from inventories created by manpower and inventories produced by mechanization. Unemployment insurance helps to distribute the gross national product of a market economy. That portion of the GNP that has been generated by our individual position in the work force and is divided among the people of the country.

The producer is also a consumer and although the consumer is not always a producer, in a market economy he plays a very important role in stabilizing that economy.

The inevitable fact of sound market economy requires that sales and inventories be adjusted to a reasonable balance. The use of mechanical and automated equipment creates layers in inventories requiring fewer and fewer man hours in production. The producer-consumer is then becomes a consumer only.

If the consumer only is not supplied with a means to share in the existing inventories, the inventories become larger, and to maintain the sales versus inventory balance more workers are relieved of their positions on the production line. They too are now 'consumers' ad infinitum.

School teachers are among those who indirectly affect the accumulation of inventory. The training of our youth has been oriented towards achieving greater production potential. Most of that potential will be directed towards creating large inventories with the least in manpower requirements. Therefore school teachers are among those who indirectly affect the stability of manpower production ratio and should contribute to the financial aspect of the checks and balances required to stabilize the economy that affords them a position in the system.

The argument that the contractual nature of their agreements should eliminate them from contributing to the unemployment insurance benefits is not a valid one, unless it applies to more than a million other Canadian wage earners whose terms of employment are virtually a contractual agreement.

SANFORD S. EVES

Canada's Beneficence Abroad

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Canadians owe a vote of thanks to those MPs and members of the média who are objecting to the continual handout of the taxpayers money by way of loans to so called "underprivileged" countries.

With the spectre of unemployment haunting hundreds of thousands of Canadians and poverty afflicting a third of the country there can be no justification for image-making gestures abroad.

There is reason to doubt the long-term value of these loans. All too often we have seen the recipients bite the hand extended to help. Sometimes the money is used for purposes other than intended and it is not unheard of for loans to be written off or become delinquent and unpaid. The installing of the governments of emerging countries causes their politics to change along with government and it is easy to dismiss such trivialities as debts to the friends they have incurred by the "former government" and so cease to be our baby.

The first duty of any government is to look after its own people first. In this respect Canadians and the British must rate as the world's worst. Both countries are guilty of handing out huge sums of money to countries that show their acceptation by denigrating and belittling their benefactors at every opportunity.

To mind comes General De Gaulle's marching orders to his former American and Canadian allies when he kicked us off the bases our money had so generously helped to build in the cause of NATO. To date, there has been no offer of settlement.

Recall the activities of the Jamaican students at the George Williams university and the harassment of Canadians in the Caribbean along with the destruction of Canadian property. Think of the hundreds of thousands of colored immigrants from the emerging countries that find their way to the United Kingdom seeking a new way of life and then on arrival do all they can to weaken and destroy those that made it possible in the first place.

By the same token, isn't it time the government stopped all immigration until the unemployment situation improves? It looks very nice to the rest of the. world to see Tibetan refugees being made welcome to Canada and our Mennonite centres doing somersaults to find them jobs. But it has to be remembered that (as John Bey, or any other immigrant takes, leaves a Canadian unemployed. While we have our backs to the wall and need every cent we have to look after Canadians, let's stop being so damned charitable until we have money to spare for such things. As columnist Jackson noted "Charity begins at home".

Drug Addicts Can Kick Habit

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The pathetic letter of a Cobourg student published recently in The Intelligencer in which he describes his dread experiences with LSD should be a lesson for others who are inclined to experiment with the drug. The physical and mental suffering and the fear of insanity drove the boy to prayer as his last resort. Happily, he was freed and now he is anxious to warn others.

Other drug users have similar stories to tell. One young man, a heroin addict, had to admit that his "wild life" did not pay, except in "misery, sickness and fear". Reaching the end of his rope and thinking of taking his life, he changed his mind and instead he went to see a preacher. "To get me prayed," he confessed. "I asked Jesus to save me from my sins and come into my heart." The job was set free.

Drug addiction among young people seems to be more widespread than most parents would care to believe. Surveys show that hardest hit are those kids who are separated from their parents or where parents themselves are addicted to alcohol or to something else.

To know more about this affliction and if possible to find a remedy, a young Canadian lady recently took the task to interview former addicts, who were able to get "unhooked". —How did they do it? She went to see one of the largest rehabilitation centres, where former addicts are trying to adapt Jesus to come into their hearts. Those young people themselves are eager to tell others of their experiences.

Crosswalks Proposed

One of the chief aims of the Downtown Businessmen's Association is to do something about the traffic problem. The latest suggestion to come from the group would be to place stop signs in four proposed locations.

These locations would be Walker's Store, Campbell St. and McAnnany St.

The association feels that these signs would make it easier for pedestrians to cross the street, and therefore would result in better business.

To employ signs of this nature, said Alderman Donald Soutter, bylaws would have to be passed to create cross - walks before the stop signs were positioned.

This would make a total of eight mandatory stops for the motorist in an already congested street, said a retail spokesman.

The urban renewal program came under discussion, and although it is unlikely that the plan will resemble any of the initial concepts, members of the association feel that there are great possibilities in any downtown area.

Parking, cleanup and minor development are needed now, state the members of the association, and should not have to wait for formal approval of the plan which could mean costly delay.

A peak period is coming up and unless action is taken soon full advantage will not be made of the season, it was stated.

Loyalist River Run Set for Sunday

All systems are go for this Sunday's Loyalist college Mohra River Rapid Run, to commence at 1:30 p.m. Easter Sunday.

A spokesman for the rapid runners said this morning that the 10-by-8-foot rafts are being constructed behind the college. Although only a handful of enthusiasts have signed the official forms for the trip, many more are actively participating.

"I guess they're waiting for the last minute," the spokesman commented, "they'll probably be signing up on Saturday."

He said the final decision for the run would not be made until Saturday, depending on the conditions of the river.

"But I don't think we'll have anything to worry about," he said.

For the past two years, students have braved the rapids of the Moira River in almost anything that would float, and sometimes they didn't, which was all part of the fun.

Launch time, 1:30 p.m., will be at Cannifton, with rubber inner tube-lashed rafts being released at regular intervals. The most spectacular part of the run will be the rapids at Lazier's Dam. It was at this point in 1969 and 1970 that most of the trouble occurred.

Extensive precautions have been taken. City police, ambulance attendants, Emergency Measures Organization volunteers and college safety crews will be standing by in case of emergency. Lifelines will be stretched across the most dangerous portions of the river.

However, no serious problems are expected. No damage occurred last year, and minor bruises were the only injuries experienced during the first run when several vessels were badly damaged.

The rafts may not provide as spectacular an event as canoes, but the thrills will be there as the students and one staff member ride the waves, arms and legs tangled and bodies soaked to the skin.

streets they threw mortar bombs through the windows of houses. There were hundreds of dead children."

"The workers in the factory were killed not by troops but what we call miscreants who have been running wild," the Scotsman said.

"They beat my men to death with iron bars. Suddenly I was the only person left in the mill. I grabbed an Awami League (secessionist) pass, painted my flag with a mixture of mauve, green and cream colors and set off by car.

"There were dead bodies everywhere. Suddenly I was stopped by a massive bulldozer and my car was confiscated. So I walked seven miles into the jungle and found a village.

"I stayed there for a week and then continued on the 45-mile journey to the Indian border. The need for aid is so urgent as to be unbelievable.

Development Conference Here

During the week of April 19, the Belleville Industrial Commission will be host for the first Ontario department of trade and development business development conference, to be held at the Sun Valley Motor Hotel.

"This is a first for Ontario," said Lloyd Breen, Industrial development officer for the province, in a telephone interview yesterday.

"We're trying it out to see if it is a useful tool to industry. Everything we're bringing to Belleville has been available but it's just a matter of seeing if it is a convenience."

During business development week, the Ontario trade and development department will present literature and discussions on new products, inventions, and contracts available from across Canada, the United States and Europe.

"This descriptive literature from our office files, several hundred files in all, will prove to be an advantage to people in the area," said Mr. Breen.

The representative of the trade and industry division expressed interest in meeting with representatives of Belleville and area plants. "We hope to meet with people from the plants; often after our first interviews we get invited to view their facilities."

Fred Bemis, Belleville industrial commissioner explained his department's role as simply that of co-ordination between the provincial government and local industrialists.

"This could develop into something that could carry on . . . a pilot in this field," he said.

Mr. Breen noted that his department decided two months ago to bring the program to Belleville. "We haven't contacted any other centre," he said.

If the results of this business development week are good, it is Mr. Breen's hope to bring similar programs to other cities across the province.

strikes after a string of successes by the rebellious Bengalis of the east. The Press Trust of India news agency and All-India radio said the strikes killed nearly 200 civilians in one area alone.

PTI, quoting reports from across the East Pakistan border, said Sheik Mujib's forces had taken the cantonment (military base) in the northeast town of Sylhet.

The last 24 hours also saw the fall of the northwestern town of Rajshahi and the eastern town of Comilla, near the Indian border, to the Bangla Desh (Bengali nation) liberation army, the agency added.

Reports from East Pakistan quoted by PTI said the Pakistani air force also bombed and strafed Kushtia, Narayanganj, Bogra, Comilla, Feni (in the Noakhali district) and Iswary Bazar and Laksam (in the Chittagong district).

Reports reaching Sonamura said battered Chittagong town was almost deserted. Only about 8,000 to 10,000 inhabitants out of a normal population of one million were still there.

Another army garrison is reAmericans taken out of Dacca by airlift to Karachi, West Pakistan, said Wednesday Pakistani troops still were systematically mowing down densely populated Hindu areas of the city in belief that Hindus were behind the separatist movement.

Orchestra Seeks Support

The Eastern Ontario Concert Orchestra, many of whose members are residents of Belleville, is appealing to the public for financial help this year.

At present, the group has many inexperienced members and if they could get at least one experienced player for each section it would be a great help. Not only would it improve the orchestra as a whole but it would give individual members the confidence needed, conductor Stephen Choma said.

Many of the young people have gained experience in being a member of the orchestra and now have left to pursue a career in music at university.

This orchestra has provided Belleville with a great deal of excellent entertainment while at the same time serves as an educational function to its members and to the public, the conductor stated.

Mr. Choma asks any experienced musicians who are willing to join the group to please contact him.

Lahr Shut Down For Runway Work

TRENTON (Staff) — Transatlantic flights of 437 Squadron stopped flying into CFB Lahr, West Germany this week and will not resume service to the military installations there until the end of June.

All regularly scheduled flights to Lahr have been rerouted through Baden-Solingen, 35 miles to the north, while a program of runway maintenance is carried on at the Lahr field.

Those travelling from Lahr to Trenton may still go through Canada Customs on the base but must now check in 3 hours and 50 minutes before departure. A shuttle bus service between the two bases has been established while the runway is shut down.

Oil Prices Probed

OTTAWA (CP) — Energy Minister J. J. Greene said Wednesday increased gas and oil prices in Eastern Canada are being looked into by his department and the National Energy Board.

If any entrepreneur applied for permission to build a pipeline from Western Canada into Montreal, the application would be considered "very quickly," he told the Commons.

Louis Comeau (PC—South Western Nova) had asked the minister whether western oil would be allowed into the eastern market — now reserved for foreign petroleum — in the light of the new increases.

Mr. Greene said a pipeline is being considered in light of the increases.

PCs Support Tough Bill to Control Fishing

OTTAWA (CP) — A government bill to toughen enforcement of an international agreement on fishing on the high seas got support from Conservative MPs in the Commons Wednesday before the House adjourned for an 11-day Easter recess.

The Commons will sit again Monday, April 19.

The bill—an amendment to the Northwest Atlantic Fisheries Convention Act—received second reading and was sent to the Commons fisheries committee for detailed study.

Fisheries Minister Jack Davis said the bill would permit Canadian government inspectors to board foreign fishing vessels outside territorial waters to inspect gear and catches. Foreign inspectors could do the same with Canadian ships.

John Lundrigan (PC—Gander-Twillingate), James McGrath (PC—St. John's East) and Louis Comeau (PC—South Western Nova) vouched Conservative support for the bill.

Tom Barnett (NDP—Comox-Alberni) also welcomed the measure.

Shortly before the Commons adjourned Treasury Board President C. M. Drury offered a government compromise in a key section of the reorganization bill, which has been under heavy opposition fire for 21 days of debate.

Mr. Drury suggested an amendment to the clauses authorizing the prime minister to appoint up to five new ministers of state. The chance would permit the House to debate the appointments after they are made.

A negative House vote would kill a new ministry, even if it already had been established.

The section has been one of the most contentious in the bill, which would also create a new environment department.

Conservative House Leader Gerald Baldwin (Peace River) promised better co-operation and goodwill in the Commons following the government move to soften the section.

Mr. Drury said the government was also prepared to change the title of the proposed environment department to department of environment and fisheries, as strenuously demanded by Atlantic-area Conservatives.

Sources said the Conservatives will likely agree to limit the length of debates on new ministries in return for a firm government commitment to bring the proposals into the Commons for approval.

In the Senate Wednesday, legislation increasing the disability pensions and allowances of veterans was given royal assent by Chief Justice Gerald Fauteux, acting as deputy to Gov.-Gen. Roland Michener.

Pensions increase by 10 per cent and allowances by 15 per cent retroactive to April 1.

Assent was also given to a bill making the metric system a legal measuring system in Canada—this paving the way for eventual conversion from inches and pounds—and a measure requiring federally-incorporated investment companies to report more fully on their operations.

In the debate on the Atlantic fisheries bill, Mr. Lundrigan said overfishing by foreign vessels had left catches by Newfoundland fishermen a totally disastrous failure in the last three years.

Mr. McGrath called Denmark the real culprit, saying that without immediate changes in Danish fishing practices, the Atlantic salmon would be extinct in 10 years.

The salmon spawn and hatch under Canadian protection, then swim into the Atlantic to be "scooped up by the thousands of tons by the Danes."

Since past efforts to limit the Danish catch had been unsuccessful, economic sanctions should be considered. "That is the only language they understand."

Mr. Barnett said that without adequate management of marine resources, the human race was doomed.

Mr. Comeau said stocks of many species had been dangerously depleted by extravagant fishing by foreign vessels on the high seas.

He called the bill a step in the right direction.

Guaranteed Income Talks Are Possible

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government is prepared to discuss with the provinces, if they so wish, the subject of a guaranteed annual income, Welfare Minister John Munro said Wednesday in the Commons.

He added in reply to T. C. Douglas, the New Democrat Leader, that the possibility of such discussions with Ottawa now is under consideration in some provinces.

Mr. Munro also told Keith Penner (L—Thunder Bay) that the question of legislation for national day-care for children is under consideration with the provinces.

Kierans to Make Telecommunications Open to All

OTTAWA (CP) — Three-dimensional television for everyone?

Well, three dimensional TV is unlikely to hit the market until 1990, but if Communications Minister Eric Kierans has his way it will be available to everyone.

He threw his weight Wednesday behind the principle of universal access to telecommunications facilities expressed in a special report he had just tabled in the Commons.

The name of the game is that all Canadians are going to have access, not just to telephone service but to all services such as television," he told reporters.

This takes planning and co-operation among all levels of government and the special report on telecommunications had a good deal to say about that.

It could mean a shake-up in the federal government itself with responsibility for regulating telecommunications carriers transferred to the Canadian Radio-Television Commission from the Canadian transport commission.

This was one of several proposals for re-organizing federal duties contained in the 256-page report prepared by a government-appointed body.

Mr. Kierans told the Commons the report contains no official recommendations. The government would be consulting with provincial governments, private firms and individuals before presenting a white paper probably in September.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield and David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North) said they would not comment until they had a chance to study it more closely. Andre Fortin (Crediliste—Lotbiniere) said the government is turning out research studies as an excuse for inaction.

The report bulges with futuristic ideas like three-dimensional television through use of lasers and electronic roads which would include fully automatic driving and traffic control.

There could be immense benefits for Canadians but there are dangers as well, says the report.

It adds that "without orderly planning the vision may turn into a nightmare, the wired city into an electronic spaghetti factory."

One of these dangers is the intrusion on individual privacy through computers.

Mr. Kierans told a news conference Wednesday the communications and justice departments are spending $125,000 on 11 different studies of the impact of computers on individual privacy.

The studies are a part of research being carried out by a computer communications study group appointed by Mr. Kierans, and whose recommendations will be tabled in the Commons later this year.

Mr. Kierans said that whatever agency is made responsible for telecommunications should be allowed to carry out research and planning as well as set rates.

The transport commission now only deals with rates charged by the telecommunications carriers.

The report also:

1. Suggests creating a nationwide digital data communications network, preferably run by a co-ordinating body. Mr. Kierans said this organization could be entirely run by private companies or a mix of government and industry.

2. Urges a strong research and development program in Canada to enable Canadian telecommunications manufacturers to meet foreign competition.

3. Says that better broadcasting and two-way voice communication services are essential in the north.

4. Recommends consideration of a Canadian network of libraries where information in books would be stored in computers or video-cassettes and sent out electronically to distant readers.

2. March is the time to apply So-Green White Grub Killer to insure against "dead" patches in a lawn.
3. Lawns should be watered often enough to keep the soil moist to a minimum 4" depth.
4. If a lawn had crabgrass last year So-Green Crabgrass Preventer should be applied during April.
5. Fertilizer application with a rotary spreader gives a more uniform growth.
6. To get rid of weeds in a lawn, So-Green Weed and Food should be applied in May.
7. Newly seeded lawns should not be mown until the grass is 3" high.
8. So-Green Turf Builder 10-6-4 can be applied to a lawn during the hottest days of summer, since it will not burn.
9. One fertilizer is as good as another.
10. A lawn should be given a feeding of So-Green All-Purpose 7-7-7 early in the Fall in order to prepare it for winter.

First Year Report from Hundreds of Farmers:

Lasso 4 with Atrazine gives season long control of annual grasses and broadleaf weeds

Last year Lasso 4 was a brand new herbicide and we made a lot of promises. Now the promises have been proven.

Lasso 4/atrazine mix needs no incorporation.

Lasso 4/atrazine will not damage your crops or ruin your rotation plans because there is less carryover.

Lasso 4/atrazine controls both broadleaf weeds and grasses (including crabgrass, fall panicum and barnyard-grass) in corn.

Lasso 4 is available from your local farm supply dealer.

THE BEAUTIFUL BUY FROM JAPAN

Mazda . . .

Import

Paul Ainsworth, of Ainsworth Motor Sales on North Front St., says that the Mazda is going to change the small car image. The Mazda, which comes in 11 models, 8 of which are now on display on the Ainsworth lot, are also orderable with the widely publicized Wankel engine. The German-designed engine is capable of pushing the little Mazda past the 145 mile an hour mark. Although a high performance engine is expected to use more gas, said Mr. Ainsworth, this engine is equipped with an after burner to eliminate the high pollution factor. General Motors has currently bought the rights to use the engine and Ford Motor Co. is in the process of following suit. The car is a little more expensive, said Mr. Ainsworth, but it has a little more to give.

Medical Centre Believes In Natural Remedies

TORONTO (CP) — Branson Hospital, one of, the smaller medical centres in Metropolitan Toronto, places a special emphasis on nutritional and therapeutic health.

Located in the borough of North York, the 800-bed hospital is operated by the Seventh Day Adventists, who believe strongly in natural remedies for treatment and prevention of disease.

One of the busiest units at Branson is the physiotherapy department. A staff of 10 therapists, under Peter Hamley, handles about 30,000 patient visits each year. Patients include new-born infants, accident and stroke victims.

"We can tell what the weather is like without ever setting foot outdoors from the number of elderly ladies needing treatment after a fall on the ice," Mr. Hamley says.

"The therapeutic gymnasium looks after shoulder, knee and wrist classes as well post-natal exercises for young mothers. Both warm-water whirlpool tanks and an ice machine are well used.

"There is a trend in therapy to cold." Mr. Hamley says. "It gives astonishing relief to the pains of muscle spasms.

"Apply ice and you can almost watch muscles relax. And for rheumatoid arthritis the pain rell is quite dramatic."

"Our aim," occupational therapist Eileen Graham says, "is to get patients back to normal living—not provide them with diversion."

Stroke patients are retaught to dress and feed themselves and to cope in the kitchen. Others, such as auto accident victims, are prepared for return to work through workshop therapy which can stimulate movements needed in their jobs.

The Adventists, who prefer to get protein from vegetables rather than meats, make vegetarian diets available to patients.

Elsie Sokol, director of food nutrition, says she sees a vast need to guide eating habits, especially among young people.

"I feel badly to see so many patients too young to be in the shape they're in," she says.

Mrs. Sokol tempts patients on restricted diets with fresh fruits and vegetables, even in winter. About 60 per cent of the Branson patients are on special diets.

SIDNEY SOUTH WI

Mrs. Dorothy Blakely, a member of the Hastings County Board of Education was the guest speaker at the March meeting of the Sidney South WI which was held at the home of Mrs. J. Caddick with 19 members and three guests present.

Mrs. Blakely spoke on children with learning disabilities and stated that there is now a service available for children who need extra help along with regular school work. She said that when a teacher notices a child is particularly slow at his lessons, he should be referred to a special teacher for the extra help he needs.

The earlier this is done, the better, she said.

She explained the great need for speech correction teachers and noted that in this area there are teachers in nearly every school who deal exclusively with children who need extra help in adjusting to regular classroom routine.

She also stated that there was help available in higher grades with the secondary school development reading classes where students are taught at their own learning pace. Help is also available for children who are confined to their homes with a long-term illness so that they may keep up with their class work.

Mrs. Blakely's talk was followed by a question and answer period. Earlier, the guest speaker was introduced by Mrs. J. Ray, convener for citizenship and education who was in charge of the program.

During the first part of the meeting reports were given by Mrs. Short on health and homemaking and on citizenship and education by Mrs. J. Ray. Mrs. Means gave the consumer's report. It was decided that members would again canvass for the cancer society in June. Tickets were sold on a cushion cover, hand made and donated by Mrs. H. Regenburg. The winner was Mrs. K. Bush. The meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. J. Campbell.

At the close of the meeting lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants Mrs. K. Bush and Mrs. C. Dafoe.

A Groovy Fashion Show

Some of the models who took part in Abraxas - 2000 a show of fashion sponsored by the student parliament of Quinte Secondary School, swing in time to the fast music while they show off the latest young world fashions. A fast-moving show with a difference, it was highlighted by the swinging style of modelling that replaced the conventional style which is generally backed by a commentary.

Swinging Fashion Show Presented by Students

By SUSAN KORAH
Women's Reporter

Groovy music, mod dancing in place of a more conventional style of modelling and the absence of any running commentary characterized Abraxas - 2000, a show of fashion sponsored by the Quinte Secondary School student parliament and held at the school on Wednesday evening. The message "do your own thing loud and clear and in the swinging discotheque-like atmosphere 13 girls and four boys did their own thing while showing off a number of young, happy-go-lucky styles in daywear, casual and sportswear.

A number of midis, maxis, sizzling hot pants, fringed suede jackets and bathing suits in dazzling hot colors and gay prints made their appearance to please the turned on were the mod accessories — metal hip belts, leather belts, outsize earrings and chokers, high boots, square-toed block-heeled shoes and flatfeet — up sandals that looked like Roman thongs. Some knicker suits and pant suits with midi vests were also shown as well as a number of mini cover ups that whipped off to reveal hot pants underneath. Specially eyecatching was a bronze Indian Princess outfit consisting of a fringed poncho and complete with a matching headband.

In the second half of the show which took place after the intermission, the mood was changed to one of graceful romanticism and quiet femininism. Soft music replaced the upbeat numbers and the models glided gracefully down the ramp in liberal gowns accented by ruffles, bows, laced - up bodices, billowing skirts and full gathered sleeves. A few peasant inspired formals with checked gingham skirts were shown, as well as a few wide brimmed hats - framing hats with lace textures. The piece de resistance was a bridal gown with a full length veil enhanced by a lace panel down the front, a ruffled high collar, and by a full, frothy skirt.

The girl models were Kathy Dundas, Carol Ripley, Jane Dainard, Jo Skinkle, Janice Lapp, Kathy Trumpour, Nancy Heard, Sharon Rombough, Rene Burkholder, Mary O'Connor, Ruby Morton, Penny Rose and Phyllis Cronkright. The male models were Paul McQuaid, Don Morton, Tim O'Connell and Gary Nicholls. The convener was Phyllis Cronkright. The stores which contributed fashions and accessories were Artistic Ladies Wear, Studio 10, The Leather Bag, Jack Fraser Men's Wear and Avon Jewellery. The hair styles were by the French Salon of hair design.

Ann Landers

Discovery of Letter Heartbreak to Mom

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a heartsick mother who needs to know what to do about a letter I found on my daughter's dresser. She is 18 and will be going away to college next term. The letter was written by her 23-year-old sister who graduated from college two years ago and is now teaching in another state. Here it is :

"Dear Little Sis: You wanted advice on how to handle the folks. Well, I've made the scene and can give you the straight poop. Here it is: Play it cool. Get all the financial help out of them that you can. Stay in school and earn your degree no matter what. You can tell them to go to hell later.

"When you come home for a vacation sleep a lot, stay in your room and pretend to study.This will enable you to avoid chores. It's awful to be home on 'vacation' and get stuck with housework (Ick!)

"At mealtime stuff cotton in your ears to drown out the banalities and dumb chatter. (It will be mostly about drugs, sex, and bad companions.) Mom and Dad don't know one damned thing about the issues of our time. They are stupid, uneducated and unbelievably square. It's just scarey that they are so freaked out about 'a good reputation' that they live in fear that one of us will stain the family name.

"For God's sake always ask for extra money often! You never know when you'll need it. Extra scratch can be vital. I've been able to bail friends out of the can and help my roommate to pay for an abortion in advance, which is the only way those attic docs work. If you need more info, call on me, Sis. I've been there. — Love, — SENIOR CITIZEN."

ANN LANDERS

Ann, I have not shown this letter to my husband. Should I? He never misses your column and if you print it he wouldn't guess in a million years that it came from our daughter. Tell me what to do. — HEARTSICK MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER: Don't show the letter to your husband. It's enough that you saw it. Rebellious children have been known to outgrow their hostility. When your daughter begins to think better of herself she will think better of her parents. Be patient. And chin up, dear.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Because of my husband's job (he's an executive in a large and important firm) we are invited out a great deal, invariably to cocktail parties, and I loathe them. In my opinion the cocktail party is the most insidious form of torture known to modern man. By the end of the evening my feet are killing me, my girdle is cutting me in two and my face is stiff from smiling. Invariably, I am trapped in a corned by the biggest bore in the room.

People lean on walls, trying to look engrossed in conversation. How could they be? It's mostly idle chatter, two bit gossip and drunken gibberish. As the evening goes on, the talk becomes increasingly unintelligible and senseless, until it finally sinks to the level of the dirty joke.

My husband asked last-night when we are going to give a cocktail party and pay back the people whose parties we have attended this past year. I hate to be a drag but I despise cocktail parties and I don't want to give one. Must I? — RATHER BE HOME WITH A GOOD BOOK.

DEAR RATHER: Try to sell him on small dinner parties. They are more work, more expensive and more time-consuming, but a lot more fun. Good luck .

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a senior in college and going with a wonderful young man who is a graduate school. We plan to be married this summer. He wants to give me a ring for my birthday, which is next month. Rod works part time and has very little extra money. His mother has some beautiful jewelry and she wants me to have one of her large diamonds. I don't want a large diamond. I'd rather have a small pearl — something Rod bought himself. My mother says I'm crazy. What do you say? — SIMPLE STELLA.

DEAR S.S.: Since it is Rod you are marrying, and not his father, I say you should have a ring he can afford. Hold out for the pearl, girl.

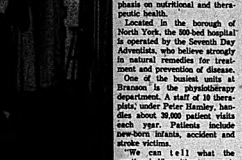
Tweed Student On Pilgrimage To Lourdes

TWEED — Richard Whalen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Whalen, of North Victoria Street, Tweed, and a former student of Tweed-Hungerford High School, left from the St. Augustine's Seminary, Toronto, by bus for Montreal where he will take a plane with many other students for Lourdes, France. These students will be from both Canada and the United States are on a Pilgrimage to Lourdes for Retarded Children.

Richard went to St. Michael's College in Toronto for the first year after graduating from Tweed-Hungerford High School, where he majored in French.



In the religious view and from the educational point, it is felt this noted and religious Shrine of Lourdes, will be a great experience and religious lift to these boys and girls. They will remain there for the entire Easter vacation. Richard intends to stay in France for the summer months and will be working with Jean Vanier, son of the former Governor - General Georges Vanier (late). The work will be in the interest and with the retarded children there.

On Mother's Day?

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Abortion Campaign Committee announced that it will hold a Mother's Day abortion march from Queen's Park to city hall on May 9. "On the one day in the year when our attention is focused on mothers, we must also realize that many women become mothers against their will," said Liz Barclay, speaking for the committee.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Terry: "I told Jimmy we could watch the late movie on TV if he stayed up last night. His mother always lets us.

Mother: "Well, I suppose if you've promised, I'll have to let you, but Dad is tired and it's hard for him to sleep when the TV is on."

Don't let children impose the house rules of their friends on you. Simply say, "This is the way we do it here."

Mother: "We always turn the TV off at 10 o'clock because your father has to get up early and he needs his sleep. There are some good programs on at six and seven o'clock that you would enjoy. You may have your dinner on trays in front of the TV as a special treat."

Home Recipe Plan Takes Off Ugly Fat

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drugstore and ask for Neopan. Pour the into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoonfuls twice a day as needed and follow the Neopan Reducing Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly flabby fat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Lemon Cake Roll Dessert for Easter

By MARY MOORE

Someone remembered an Easter Lemon Cake Roll. I gave here nine years ago and requested a repeat.

I expect our new readers will enjoy it too because of its timeliness, wonderful flavor and attractive appearance.

LEMON COCONUT CAKE ROLL

Sponge Cake (as for Jelly Roll):

¾ cup sifted cake flour
¼ tsp. salt
½ tsp. baking powder
4 eggs
¾ cup sugar
1 tsp. vanilla

Beat together salt, baking powder and eggs in large bowl until eggs are very thick — about 10 min. Add sugar gradually, while beating. Beat until mixture is smooth as marshmallow syrup and all grains of sugar have dissolved. Add vanilla. Fold in flour very, very gently, until batter looks creamy and smooth. Do not beat. Pour batter into greased and wax-paper-lined 13½ x 9 x 1½" jelly roll pan. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. 13-15 min.

While cake bakes, sprinkle a clean towel with a generous coating of icing sugar and make the Lemon Filling below. When your cake is baked, turn it out on the towel, immediately peel off waxed paper and roll towel, sugar and all up tightly. Let cool 10 min. Unroll carefully and spread with lemon filling (below). Roll again, but wrap in towel this time and cool on a rack.

LEMON FILLING

¾ cup sugar
5 tbsps. flour
¼ tsp. salt
2 eggs
2-3 cup cold water
1-3 cup fresh or canned lemon juice
1½ tbsps. butter
Juice and grated rind of 1 lemon

Combine sugar, flour and salt in double boiler. Beat eggs slightly and add to sugar with water and lemon juice (first amount). Place over boiling water. Cook stirring constantly until thick — about 10 min. Remove from heat. Add butter and lemon juice (second amount) and rind. Beat again. Cool. If desired, frost cake roll with a lemon buttery icing or

SEVEN MINUTE FRUSTING: (do not frost ends)

1 egg white
¾ cup granulated sugar
2½ tbsps. water
¼ tsp. cream of tartar
½ tsp. vanilla

Mix all ingredients except vanilla in top of double boiler. Beat with rotary beater to completely blend and place over rapidly boiling water. Beat mixture constantly with rotary beater for about 7 min. or until it is fluffy and will hold its shape. Remove from hot water. Blend in vanilla. Beat 1 min. longer.

When spread on top and sides of roll sprinkle generously with moist flaked coconut.

Adopted Aunt and Uncle Work A Miracle

By DORIS CLARK

At nine and eight, Rob and Gerry were the youngest children in a fatherless family with a long history of trouble.

Concerned about the boys growing up without a good male model, their social worker sought a volunteer uncle.

It was just a year ago when she persuaded Gordon and Pat Woodcock to become Rob and Gerry's "aunt and uncle".

"It's been just great seeing the kids change," says Gordon. "Rob would hardly talk to us at first; now he treats our place like his second home, and he usually phones us a couple of times between our weekly visits too.

"And Gerry — he used to show off all the time, but he's cut that out entirely now. I guess he knows he doesn't have to act silly to get our attention."

Pat Woodcock, who grew up on a farm and knows a lot about the outdoors, is delighted that the boys have become so much more aware.

"I don't think they'd ever been on a picnic before," she says. "We went everywhere; nature walks up the mountains, beach - combing, camping. When the weather changed we switched to skating and indoor swimming."

The extra stimulation seems to be paying off for the boys at school; according to their mother, their last report cards were the best they've ever had. — C.A.S. News, Vancouver.

Dear Doris: I'm a failure as a mother. I don't have the ambition to improve myself.

My problem is that I'm an introvert in some ways and my husband is ashamed of me because I can't think of witty things to say like other wives. I force myself to go anywhere with him, and as a result I'm a nervous wreck. We get on fair when we are alone but it's disastrous when people are around; I just get numb all over and start to shake.

I have discussed this with my husband but he refuses to understand or discuss it. I want to be alone so all this will be avoided. I get along fair at work so my own with people; it's just his friends that seem to bother me. — Just A Failure

Dear Failure: You had the ambition to write to me didn't you? You must at least have a desire to improve.

I am guessing that your husband's lack of interest, and your anxiety to make good with his friends make the problem worse. An understanding husband could give you the self assurance you need.

The fact that you get along all right on your own suggests to me that his very expectation of you leaves you unnerved.

Moral support will have to come from somewhere. I'd suggest a counselling interview at the Family and Children's Services of Hastings County, 311 Front Street Belleville.

If you are where there is a branch of Recovery Incorporated, this could be your lifeline to more poise. Write me for details.

Dear Doris: Please send me instructions about putting wax on the eyebrows to pull out the fine hairs — temporature, kind of wax, how thick.

The hairs around my eyebrows are so fair they are hard to see for plucking. — Clean Up

Dear Clean Up: I am sending you the name of a good depilatory wax. But my beauty consultant prefers the following method where the growth is not heavy:

Rub cold cream into the eyebrows to soften the root area and leave it on for 15 minutes. Remove cream with hot water and bathe with cold water. Dry and dust the area with baby powder.

This makes fine hairs stand out so they can be easily seen and the cream treatment makes tweezing easy.

Lewis Says NDP Government Would Pay Eighty Per Cent of Educational Costs

TORONTO (CP) — Stephen Lewis estimated Wednesday that the Ontario New Democratic Party he leads could raise the province's share of education costs to 80 per cent from 54 per cent, through tax reforms, within four years.

In rebuttal of the speech from the throne read last week, Mr. Lewis also said the health department could cut its costs by $278 million a year through community preventive-health clinics.

The NDP leader introduced a motion expressing lack of confidence in the Conservative government. Together with a similar motion from the Liberal party, it will put to a vote when the legislature completes the throne speech debate.

Mr. Lewis said his party will fight the election it expects this year on the issue of tax reform.

Education costs rose 105 per cent from 1965 to 1969, he said, but grants from the province increased only to 48 per cent from 45 per cent with the municipalities, through the property tax, paying the rest. This year the province pays per cent and has set a goal of 80 per cent.

He estimated "the province would need to put in $1,400 million in additional grants by 1975 to reach 80 per cent.

He said the money would come from tax reforms that would include a capital gains tax at full income rates, an additional three-per-cent tax on mining production and the rest from increased revenue from an expanding economy.

Mr. Lewis questioned the education department's method of cost cutting, through ceilings on board spending. Cuts are needed, he said, but they should be made in specific areas: administration, buildings, education television and the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education.

He urged the province's 30,000 secondary school teachers not to strike May 3 as they have threatened.

He said the government is "on the ropes" over the cost of education and a strike would enable Premier Davis to "divert and deflect" the issue to his advantage.

Mr. Lewis said community clinics in Saskatchewan, New York, Sault Ste. Marie and St. Catharines have shown health costs can be halved using the preventive approach.

The NDP leader closed with a motion condemning the government for its failure to amend laws to provide disclosure of operations of foreign-controlled subsidiaries; establish a revamped development corporation; set up a board to examine proposed takeovers by foreign corporations; step incentive grants to foreign-based corporations; spur the development of secondary industry in the north; lower the voting age to 18 and bring in universal no-fault public auto insurance.

In other business Wednesday:

The house was told negotiations are continuing with Ottawa for a federal-provincial system of financial assistance to municipalities installing equipment to eliminate phosphates from sewage.

Rene Brunelle, minister of lands and forests, told the house he will make public a study showing the amount of Crown land in Ontario sold for cottage lots in the last 20 years to both Canadians and non-Canadians. He said findings in the study led the government to its decision to stop all sales of Crown land, letting cottage lots by lease only with preference for Canadians.

Sylvanus Appa, minister of correctional services, announced that selected offenders will be eligible for leave of absence from correctional institutions on humanitarian grounds, for five-day periods. The limit now is three days.

Dalton Bales, minister of municipal affairs, will meet St. Catharines officials soon to discuss the city's request to secede from Niagara regional government, the house was told. Premier William Davis said that if the meeting does not resolve the problem he will meet city officials himself.

Mr. Davis told the legislature details of the government's program of aid for municipal transit systems will be revealed in the budget speech April 26.

Provincial Secretary John Yaremko told Elmer Sopha (L—Sudbury) there is little likelihood of beer, wine or liquor companies distributing their products in plastic containers, although all are examining new types of bottling.

Mr. Davis rejected a proposal by Stephen Lewis, leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party, that he ask major oil companies to justify proposed increases in the price of gasoline.

Arthur Wishart, minister of financial and commercial affairs, declined to release the interim report of a committee which studied franchising. The report is for internal use of the department, he said.

Four bills were introduced by private members of the opposition, and although they will be debated in the house they will not come to votes under legislature rules.

Tim Reid (L—Scarborough East) moved an amendment to the Landlord and Tenant Act that would prevent landlords from cutting off electrical power to tenants; Ian Deans (NDP—Wentworth) sought to amend the same act to provide for a standard lease form and a rental review board; George Ben (L—Toronto Humber) introduced a bill to control the giving of medicine to children in schools; and Fred Burr (NDP—Sandwich-Riverside) introduced a bill to regulate driving schools.

Stanley Farquhar (L—Algoma-Manitoulin) said in a speech that too little attention is paid to rural municipalities in government plans to fight unemployment. Larger centres are getting "the bonanzas" from senior governments because "that's where the votes are," he said.

Rodger Says Sense of Duty Led Him to Ignore Order

TORONTO (CP) — Staff Superintendent Archibald M. Rodger, charged under the Police Act for failing to carry out a commissioner's order, testified Wednesday he ignored the order out of a sense of duty.

Ontario Provincial Police commissioner Eric Silk gave a verbal order in August, 1968, that members of the force were not to associate with Oakville businessman George Clinton Duke after he had learned Duke had spent 12 years in prison. Staff Supt. Rodger ignored that order and visited the Duke home for a barbecue.

Earlier, a former assistant to Commissioner Silk, John L. Whitty, testified he told Staff Supt. Rodger to attend a gathering at the Duke home because he "didn't want Mr. Duke to know Mr. Silk had given the order."

"I told Rodger this sudden cutoff would be rather obvious," Mr. Whitty said.

Staff Supt. Rodger said he attended a barbecue at the Duke home for both business and social reasons. He said his department bought lawn equipment from Mr. Duke's firm and he needed to learn about the equipment.

Aid Promised in Fighting Phosphates

TORONTO (CP) — Energy and Resources Minister George Kerr said Wednesday he hopes soon to announce federal and provincial assistance to municipalities which have to install new equipment to eliminate phosphates from sewage.

He made the statement in the Ontario legislature in reply to Richard Ruston (L—Essex-Kent) who asked whether help would be forthcoming.

Mr. Kerr said negotiations still are continuing with Ottawa but it was hoped the money would come in time to meet deadlines established last year.

Regulations call for removal of 80 per cent of phosphates from effluent at municipal and institutional sewage-treatment plants.

Facilities to remove phosphates at treatment plants in the Lake Erie basin are to be installed by the end of 1973, and in the Lake Ontario basin by the end of 1975.

Fred Burr (NDP—Sandwich-Riverside) asked whether the treatment program, which he said would cost $40 million, meant the government is abandoning plans to recycle sewage as fertilizer.

Mr. Kerr said that project, still in the experimental stage, is continuing.

Increase in Grants Depends on Reform

CHATHAM (CP) — Any increase in unconditional grants to municipalities will have to be integrated with the province's ongoing program of tax reform, a municipal affairs department official told municipal clerks and treasurers of five counties Wednesday.

Larry Close said some municipal officials believe the province is firmly committed to more unconditional grants in the future because of interpretations of statements by former premier, John Robarts, and Municipal Treasurer Darcy McKeough.

He said such interpretations are in error, adding that "any trend toward unconditional grants depends heavily on other changes that will take place."

Plastic Liquor Bottles Unlikely

TORONTO (CP) — There is little likelihood of liquor companies distributing their products in plastic containers in the near future, Provincial Secretary John Yaremko said Wednesday.

He made the statement in the Ontario legislature in reply to Elmer Sopha (L—Sudbury) who asked Monday whether the idea was feasible.

Mr. Yaremko said beer companies have no plans to switch to plastic containers, wineries are unlikely to change from glass bottles although one Canadian sherry is marketed in a clear plastic bottle and spirits are more unlikely to come in plastic containers for some time.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For April 9

Your birthday today: You now embark upon a three-year drive to achieve personal and vocational change. Some current activity has to be consolidated, some cut back. Today's natives tend to go all-out for their projects — the keyword is intensity.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Keeping your own counsel brings you learning opportunity, protection from mischief makers as well.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Tidy up the loose ends before you wade into an even bigger job. It can wait, even if you don't feel so disposed.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Rather than just making motions and doing extra things, concentrate on inner harmony.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Your friends now show unsuspected sids of their natures. Patience, tact and acceptance make all the difference.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Partial recognition comes for past efforts. You have no excuse for complaint or letting down in your current program.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Look about you; reach for understanding, embankment support, particularly with children or young people.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Energy - scattering tendencies are predominant. Pause and decide what is most important.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Knowing your limits, seeing how much property and responsibility you might be able to carry is the insight promised today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Your friends cross you up today, no matter what sort of arrangements are afoot, or which direction you'd prefer to move.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Your sense of timing and organization runs contrary to reality. Take the opportunity to learn something new.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Past promises opened doors for you then, promises, but now certainly bring obligation, perhaps a problem.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): You are disconcerted by something happening at work, but it is likely that you will just have to go ahead with the chores at hand.

For April 10

Your birthday today: The year brings lively incidents, strong and resourceful competition, much stress in partnerships of all sorts. There's no great chance of keeping any big secrets. Today's natives have a predilection for adventurous travel, dangerous situations and can usually spin a long yarn about them.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Settle your routines and terms early, without haggling or squabbling, and get down to serious productive effort.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Your home and its improvement take up much of your energy — and it is unlikely you'll get through soon.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Supplies and materials for creative projects become critical, requires special consideration.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Your money has wings. There's so much to buy, so much encouragement to stock up on what seem to be bargains.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Everything you do now involves a certain amount of stress and conflict. Tact is essential.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Public attention comes to you. The only thing to do is take it in stride and continue your normal pattern.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Today is stressed for learning. What comes to you is pertinent to the near future — pay attention.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Reflect carefully on what you hold and manage before you think about swapping it for the untried and unknown.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Watch to see what happens when you don't rush in to supply the means. Compare notes, news.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): There is a serious gap in your information. Wait for things to straighten themselves out somewhat.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Some things have to be released, put out of your life today. People are restless — give them enough space to react.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Retelling an old family event may bring fresh inspiration, new understanding of human nature.

Envoy Critical

STOCKHOLM (Reuter) — Yugoslav Ambassador Vladimir Rolevic fought for his life in a hospital respirator today, the victim of renewed violence by Croatian separatists which threatens to disrupt Swedish-Y[illegible] relations.

Doctors at the Karolinska Hospital here said Rolevic's condition was still critical after a four-hour emergency operation for the extraction of two bullets from the brain.

THE BETTER HALF — By Bob Barnes

Newscast Limited To Good News

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — An experimental television newscast limited to "good news" has met with divided public reaction.

Larry Maisel, news director for WDBJ-TV, said the 30-minute newscast, which supplemented the normal Tuesday night format, was an attempt to respond to complaints from listeners about never hearing enough good news.

"It took a couple of us almost 12 hours to put the program together," Maisel said. "That much good news is not easy to come by."

Public telephone reaction, he said, was about evenly divided between those who approved of the idea and those who said, among other things, it was "childish and small."

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Many people are not only too diet conscious, they have developed a fixation on vitamin intake. Are they taking too much? Is it harmful?

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I admit I'm a diet nut. I'm one of those persons who believes that health and longevity depend more upon proper vitamin intake than upon anything else. You would be correct in assuming I'm a good customer of the health-food stores. Now my question is this: Are vitamins as important as I think they are? Can they actually be harmful? — Mrs. J.

COMMENT: Vitamins are essential. However, they can be found in necessary amounts in a normal well-balanced diet containing proteins, fats, starches, minerals — such as whole grain cereals, meats, fowl, fish, green and yellow vegetables, milk, eggs, fresh fruits or juices.

This is a roundabout way of saying that special diets "rich in vitamins and minerals" are — in many cases — superfluous.

Vitamins are divided into the water soluble and the fat soluble. The latter, classification are B vitamins and vitamin C. And in the latter, vitamins A, D, E and K. Briefly, vitamin A is important in controlling growth, normal vision and a healthy skin. Vitamin D is necessary for the healthful formation of teeth and bones. In addition to diet, sunlight contributes by its action on the skin. Vitamin K is necessary for blood-clotting Vitamin C promotes healthy teeth and gums.

Among the group of B vitamins is niacin which prevents pellagra, thiamin which is an nerve tissue and riboflavin, which is important in many cell enzyme reactions.

Vitamins harmful? Not vitamin C, for example, which is not stored in the body. This is the reason why it is important to replenish it in the diet every day. But vitamin A, on the other hand, is stored in the liver. Overdosage may produce liver enlargement and interfere with normal growth in young people.

For example, I've advised young people to rely on normal diet and not take hundreds of thousands of units of vitamin A daily (over long periods) in trying to control acne.

What it all comes down to, Mrs. J., is that for the majority of us the answer to the vitamin problem is inherent in what I said in the beginning: eating a normal, well-balanced diet. If you still admit you are a "diet nut," then I suppose the only one who can talk you out of it is your own family doctor.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am a diabetic and full of gout. My big toe swelled so badly recently I actually thought the flesh would burst. I suffered untold agony. Can you give me a prescription to take and advise me on what special diet I should have? Please help me. — Mrs. S.

COMMENT: Diabetes and gout! In my guess correct that you haven't been in your doctor lately? If you had, I'm sure he would have prescribed medicine that would have cut short your attack of gout and prevented future attacks from occurring frequently. As a diabetic, you also need a special diet in addition to low prine foods for your gout. I'm hopeful that you realize that only your own doctor can prescribe for you. Why not see him before the next attack comes along?

For Mr. C.: I think experts will agree that it is risky for an alcoholic who has abstained from drinking for three years to partake of a social drink occasionally. They will also be far as to say—and I agree—that even one drink is risking throwing the alcoholic back into "hell again".

Saskatchewan Requires Unions to Accept Binding Arbitration

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Farmelich Saskatchewan, which suffered heavily during the recent federal rail dispute, has cracked down on labor unions and recalcitrant employers.

Under a new law, unions under provincial jurisdiction will be subject to compulsory binding arbitration in disputes which the Saskatchewan cabinet considers emergencies.

Over the protests of labor leaders, third reading was given Wednesday to amendments to the Essential Services Emergency Act, which places virtually all employees and employers in the province under such compulsory law.

Heavy fines if either labor union or employer concerned do not comply with the arbitration award are provided in the amendments.

The Liberal government also has the power to order an employer to cease operations in the province if he does not comply with the award.

Wednesday the final vote on the bill was 33 to 19 in the 59-member house with the NDP opposition members opposing it. House standings are 34 Liberals and 24 NDP with one seat vacant.

The Opposition leader, Allan Blakeney, asked the government not to proclaim the legislation as law until an emergency arises. But Labor Minister D. G. MacLennan said outside the house the bill will be proclaimed just before the current session prorogues.

Mr. MacLennan, who introduced the amendments, said "the people want this legislation and want it now."

The NDP, meanwhile, was creating precedent in another legislature.

Manitoba's NDP government in the speech from the throne Wednesday proposed an integrated income-security system which Premier Ed Schreyer said "takes us into the whole question of the guaranteed annual income."

The speech, read by Lt.-Gov. W. J. McKeag, gave few details but said the government felt "existing piecemeal social-welfare programs should be transferred into an integrated income-security system."

Outside the house Premier Schreyer said: "This takes us into the whole question of the guaranteed annual income—the negative income tax. We're suggesting . . . we should really go at it . . . and see if we can set up pilot programs in Manitoba, and hopefully other provinces will want to do the same thing."

At Edmonton, a bill to establish an Alberta police commission with jurisdiction over all municipal police in the province was introduced.

In Quebec City, the Liberal government voted Wednesday against a proposal aimed at applying its policy of establishing French as Quebec's working language.

Liberals and Creditistes joined ranks to vote down a Parti Quebecois proposal that a bill to aid industrial development in the province be amended to require firms seeking financial assistance from the government to make French their language of work.

Munro Urges Health Tests

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister John Munro told the provinces Wednesday night to get moving, at least with trials, on a new kind of health care worker who will see most of the cases that now go to the doctor.

He told a national conference on assistance to the doctor that the federal government has achieved a surprising success in the north by using nurses with four months of special training.

They handle 95 per cent of all the cases that come to them in remote, northern areas.

"A province could well test this thesis in the south," he said.

Mr. Munro said it is time that many specific procedures were turned over by doctors to other health care workers.

He specified them, including case histories, screening out of minor ailments, well-baby care, stitching, simple fractures, preliminary identification of cavities and gum disorders, large-scale public health programs and school health checkups.

The objective would be to see that "in all instances when a problem is presented to the professional (medical doctor) it is appropriate to his training."

It would save up to half a doctor's time if these duties were handled by a nurse.

The department was prepared through the existing grants structure to help finance institutions to train special paramedical personnel. The provinces should take advantages of various grants programs to develop new methods of providing health care.

He asked the conference, sponsored by his department and attended by about 130 government, health-care association, university and professional representatives, to set up a committee to write training standards and function for a program which could be discussed with the provinces and medical, nursing and hospital associations.

Mr. Munro warned that variations in availability of health services to rich and poor must not be perpetuated by relegating to lower income groups the paramedical care while the rich use the physician-specialists.

In reviewing the problems of the present system, Mr. Munro conceded that by removing financial barriers to health care through medical care insurance demand has outstripped capacity to meet the need.

In effect, he was acknowledging the truth of warnings issued years ago by the medical profession that this would happen.

Hotels Stockpile Beer, Ale

TORONTO (CP) — Hotels are beginning to stockpile beer as a split between union locals is hindering contract negotiations in the brewing industry.

Local 304 of the Brewery, Flour, Cereal, Soft Drink and Distillery Workers of America, representing workers at two Toronto breweries and brewery transport workers is carrying on separate negotiations while other locals meet jointly with management. In the past all unions have bargained jointly.

Should any of the union's nine bargaining units reject a settlement and call a strike, it would lead to a shutdown of the industry.

An April 18 strike deadline has been set. Mediation began Monday.

Negotiators for the 3,000 brewery workers are seeking $1.35 an hour increase in wages over the next two years. The management has offered 93 cents an hour over three years.

The present average salary is about $4 an hour.

Soviets Admit Adopting More Rugged Canadian Tactics

OTTAWA (CP) — Russian hockey players are beginning to adopt the more bruising style of play favored by Canadian professionals, says an article in this month's Soviet Union Today.

The article says Moscow Dynamos now are favored to win the Russian national championship over the former powerhouse teams of the Central Army and Moscow Spartak because of their aggressive play in the attacking zone.

The army and Spartak teams in the past have produced the bulk of players for the Russian national team. Many members of this year's championship team come from these two clubs.

But Dynamos this year have lost only two games thus far while the others have lost at least five.

A change in Russian hockey rules, allowing "power play" in the attacking zone, is most suitable to the nature of the Dynamo boys," says the article.

"After losing the puck in the attack zone, they (the Dynamos) have no intention of rolling back or ceding the initiative.

"On the contrary, they attack the player in possession of the puck the way the Canadians do, wrest it from him and the attack is resumed.

"Though Dynamo's hockey is not such a pretty sight, it is quite effective. The results of Dynamo speak for themselves."

Nikolai Epshtein, who was a trainer with several Russian teams touring Canada, is quoted as saying that the Dynamo team plays almost the way the Canadian pros do.

"Rationally, tough. However, they preserve speed and love of passing."

The article says it was these talents—speed and quick passing, coupled with high physical fitness—that allowed the Russians to dominate world hockey.

All three came naturally to Russian youths who played the game of bandy—described as hockey with a ball.

Many of the Russian bandy stars were able to adapt to hockey and the Russians decided to stick to this style of play rather than borrow the Canadian brand which called for a "high brand of individual mastery and to wage tough power play."

Eastern Openers Cross Up Forecasters

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The goals were supposed to come in bunches at Boston Wednesday night while the battle of the goaltenders was to take place in New York.

But Boston Bruins, who bombed Montreal in their last two National Hockey League regular-season meetings, had trouble finding the trigger Wednesday as they nipped the Canadiens 3-1 in the opening game of their East Division semi-final series.

And New York's Ed Giacomin and Toronto's Jacques Plante failed to live up to their regular-season goaltending feats as the Rangers edged the Maple Leafs 5-4 in their East Division opening game.

The Bruins, defending Stanley Cup champions and East Division title-holders, had beaten the Canadiens 6-3 and 7-2 in the closing week of the regular schedule.

"We didn't play as well tonight as in those games," said Bruin coach Tom Johnson. "But then again, they didn't let us."

Johnson, who played with the Canadiens for 13 seasons before joining the Bruins in 1963, said Wednesday's game was "the most physical" he had seen the Canadiens play in two years.

"Maybe if they think they have to hit us to beat us, they will hit," Johnson said. "We don't care. . . . We're a pretty good hitting club ourselves."

Despite the new-found aggressiveness of the Canadiens, Boston held a 1-0 lead before four minutes had elapsed in the game when Boston superstar defenceman Bobby Orr scored with Montreal's Pete Mahovlich and Terry Harper in the penalty box serving minors. Pete's brother, Frank, was also off with a misconduct.

The Canadiens evened the score early in the second period when John Ferguson scored with the Bruins a man short.

Wayne Cashman put the Bruins out in front 2-1 midway through the period and Fred Stanfield notched the insurance marker at 8:47 of the final period.

Referee John Ashely hit the Bruins with nine nilpors and the Canadiens with seven minors. Each team was tagged with two misconducts.

Montreal coach Al MacNeil was particularly upset at Ashley's failure to give Orr a game misconduct in the third period after the Bruin defenceman left the penalty box to argue an Ashley ruling that not him there.

BOBBY ORR

Orr had been given a minor for holding Montreal right winger Yvan Cournoyer, then penalized further with 1 misconduct for arguing the call.

Orr entered the penalty box, then stormed out after Ashley finally being physically restrained by his team-mates before leaving the ice.

Orr said in the Bruin dressing room that Ashley "could have called a lot more penalties before that. I just asked him about the call and he gave me 10 minutes."

The two goalies with the best individual NHL goals-against average—Jacques Plante of Toronto with 1.88 and New York's Ed Giacomin with 2.15—become human slaves in the hard-hitting game at New York.

The Maple Leafs held two-goal leads twice then watched as the Rangers got untangled in the final period to sew up the game.

Vic Hadfield scored twice for the Rangers but Bob Nevin's goal with three seconds left in the second period that brought New York to within one goal of Toronto proved to be the deciding factor.

"Nevin's goal was the turning point," said Emile Francise, New York's general manager-coach. "We never lost our momentum after that.

Toronto coach John McLellan agreed.

"Nevin's goal did us in. They really turned it on in the third period although we expected that."

But McLellan reserved judgment on the goaltending of the veteran-Plante.

"I've seen Jacques Plante sharper," he said, "but I won't criticize him after the way he played for us."

The Bruins play host to the Canadiens tonight in the second game of their series while Toronto has another crack at the Rangers in New York.

Were Bruins Worse?

BOSTON (CP) — Coach Tom Johnson of Boston Bruins wasn't quite sure whether his club had let up somewhat Wednesday night, despite the fact they beat Montreal Canadiens 3-1 in the opening game of the National Hockey League quarter-final playoff.

"They (Canadiens) played a lot better tonight than they did against us in the last couple of games . . . or were we worse?" Johnson asked.

However, he was sure of one thing. He got a great game out of his goaltender, Gerry Cheevers, who stopped 30 of 31 shots the Montrealers fired at him.

Cheevers was particularly brilliant as he stopped Yvan Cournoyer on three separate occasions within the little Montreal right winger had clear access for shots at the Boston goal.

The Bruins, defending Stanley Cup champions, had trimmed Canadiens twice in the closing week of the regular schedule, 6-3 and 7-2.

"We didn't play as well tonight as in those games," Johnson said. "But then again, they didn't let us."

West Won by Power Plays

Chicago Black Hawks and Minnesota North Stars capitalized on manpower advantages Wednesday night for opening-game victories in the National Hockey League's West Division semi-finals.

BOBBY HULL

The Black Hawks scored three power-play goals, two by Bobby Hull, to crush Philadelphia 5-2 and maintain their home-ice mastery over the Flyers. Philadelphia has not won a game in Chicago since joining the NHL in the 1967 expansion.

And Danny Grant scored once on the power play and engineered another as the visiting North Stars snapped a 1-1 tie in the third period for a 2-1 upset win over St. Louis Blues.

Hull scored the first of his power-play efforts at 2:50 of the opening period with Flyers' defenceman Larry Hale in the penalty box as the Black Hawks held a 2-1 scoring margin in each of the first two periods.

The Golden Jet scored what proved to be the eventual winner at 6:24 of the second with Philadelphia captain Ed Van Impe off.

Defenceman Doug Jarrett fired Chicago's third power-play goal later in the second period to make it 4-2 after Flyers' rookie Bob Kelly had cut the Black Hawks lead in half.

With Grant supplying the late-game scoring thrust, the North Stars were held together by goaltender Cesaar Maniago's heroics.

hockeists Jude Drouin of Minnesota and Fran Huck of St. Louis exchanged first-period goals which stood up until Grant went to work in the final period.

The former junior star with Peterborough Petes set up linemate Jean-Paul Parise with the go-ahead goal at 2:57 of the third period that matched the winner less than four minutes later.

The Blues continued to press and Garry Unger brought them close with just six seconds left in the game.

Leafs Get Early Start

TORONTO (CP) — Sunday night's Stanley Cup quarter-final game between New York Rangers and Toronto Maple Leafs will go off at 7 p.m., an hour earlier than the original starting time at Maple Leaf Gardens.

The third game of the best-of-seven Stanley Cup series here Saturday night has the usual 8 p.m. starting time.

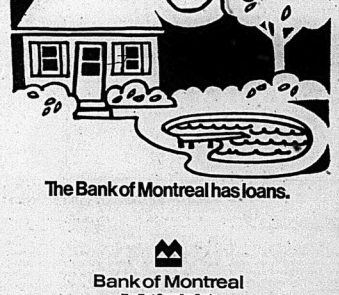
Late Goals Vital

NEW YORK (CP) — Both coaches agreed after Wednesday night's Stanley Cup quarter-final opener here that last-minute goals were the key to the 5-4 New York Ranger victory over Toronto Maple Leafs.

Ranger general manager-coach Emile Francis said the unassisted Toronto goal by Dave Keon with five seconds remaining in the first period was reflected in erratic play by Rangers in the second period. But the goal by Bob Nevin with three seconds left in the second period gave Rangers the lift that carried them to victory in the third period.

"Nevin's goal was the turning point," said Francis. "We never lost our momentum after that."

In the other dressing room, Toronto coach John McLellan was saying: "Nevin's goal did us in. They really turned it on in the third period, although we had expected that."



Nevin said the goal went in off Toronto defenceman Bob Baun. "I was trying to pass the puck back to (Dave) Balon at the other side of the net when it bounced in."

McLellan announced that Bernie Parent would start in goal for the Leafs tonight.

Parent enjoyed a strange mastery over Rangers when he played for Philadelphia Flyers before being traded to Leafs this year.

McLellan said the Leafs would otherwise have the same lineup. Paul Henderson suffered a cut finger and Baun had a stick in the face, but they would not be out of action.

"I've seen Jacques Plante sharper," said McLellan, "but I won't criticize him after the way he has played for us.

May's Homer Nullified by Baseball's Most Feared Blooper

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Nineteen While Sox passed home plate Wednesday night as Chicago swept an American League doubleheader from Oakland Athletics but only 18 remembered to touch it.

Carlos May, whose long ball into the seats with two mates aboard in the first inning of the nightcap touched off a 12-4 Chicago win, stepped over the plate and saw a two-run homer dissolve into a two-run triple after a ruling by umpire Jim Odom.

The White Sox won the first game 6-5.

In other games, Baltimore Orioles edged Washington Senators 3-2, Minnesota Twins blanked Milwaukee Brewers 4-0 and California Angels dumped Kansas City Royals 7-3.

They battled from a 4-0 deficit in the opener. The winning run scored when centre fielder Rick Monday booted the ball.

Jay Johnstone's homer got the Sox started in the nightcap and May's hit made it 3-0. Oakland caught up in the fourth but Mike Andrews delivered a two-run tie-breaking double in the fifth, and a grand slam by Bill Melton highlighted a five-run sixth.

The world champion Orioles had to wipe out a 2-0 Washington lead, built on RBI singles by Joe Foy and Elliott Maddox.

Baltimore scored in the third on two singles, a sacrifice and an infield out; in the fourth on an error, wild pitch and Ellie Hendricks' single, and won it in the fifth on singles by Dave Johnson and Boog Powell and Frank Robinson's double.

Dave McNally scattered nine hits and whipped the Senators for the 20th time in 24 decisions.

Bert Blyleven, who turned 20 Tuesday, dazzled Milwaukee on four hits and Harmon Killebrew belted his 488th career homer—a two-run shot in the first inning —to pace the Twins. Blyleven also struck Phil Roof on the batting helmet with a second-inning errant pitch that led to some heated words between general manager Frank Lane of the Brewers and skipper Bill Rigney of the Twins.

Allan Cup Back'

Spring once was a time of keen interest not only in the professionals' Stanley Cup playoffs but also in amateur hockey's Allan Cup and Memorial Cup championships.

But structural changes in the amateur organization last year and regional rebellion has led to confusion and a downgrading of the national playoffs now under way across the country.

One happy note that emerges from the confusion is that the Allan Cup, emblematic of senior hockey supremacy in Canada, returns to the country after it was captured last year by Spokane Jets, a United States team participating in British Columbia's Western International league.

The Jets have already been defeated in this year's WIHL playoffs by Nelson Maple Leafs.

The Memorial Cup, however, has lost its lustre. The cup was the pride of the country's top junior team but there will be no national playoff for it this year.

The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association last year reorganized its amateur members into two separate levels.

The first level consisted of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Series, the Quebec Junior Hockey League and the Western Canada Hockey League which returned to the fold after two years on its own.

But because the Western league was allowed to rejoin the CAHA using players older than those allowed elsewhere, the OHA says it refuses to play off with the West for the Memorial Cup.

The OHA now says its champion will play off with the Quebec league to decide the winner of the Memorial Cup. The CAHA hasn't said yet whether it will send the team to such a winner, hoping instead that it can still arrange an East-West playoff.

The OHA is already almost through its quarter finals while the Quebec league is into the semi-final playoff stages. The Western circuit also is into its quarter-final playoffs.

Such confusion at least appears not to have affected the second-level junior teams who now are playing off for the CAHA's new Centennial Cup.

The process of elimination for the Centennial Cup now has reached the semi-final stages in the Eastern and Western regions.

Detroit Red Wings, champions of the Southern Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Series, now are playing off against Ottawa Rangers of the Central Junior League in one Eastern semi-final.

New Home for Phillies

The Veterans' Stadium in Philadelphia, Pa., is the new home of the Philadelphia Phillies baseball team and the Eagles football team. The stadium seats 53,000 for baseball and 65,000 for football. The Phillies previously played at Connie Mack Stadium and the Eagles at Franklin Field. (CP Photo)

MONTREAL (CP) —Three members of the league champion Quebec-Remparts were chosen to the Quebec Junior A Hockey League's first all-star team, the league announced Wednesday. Defenceman Pierre Roy and forwards Guy Lafleur the league's scoring champion, and Jacques Richard were the Remparts named to the first team. Other members were Michel Deguise, goaltender from Sorel Black Hawks, centre Richard Leduc of Trois-Rivieres Dukes and defenceman Richard Campeau of Sorel Black Hawks.

OTTAWA (CP) —Ottawa Rangers made it two in a row Wednesday over Detroit Junior Red Wings, winning 4-2 in the Eastern Centennial Cup junior Eastern Centennial Cup junior hockey semi-final. The Rangers now lead the best-of-seven series 2-0 with the next three games scheduled in Detroit Friday, Sunday and Monday.

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa 67s goaltender Bunny Larocque Wednesday posted his third straight shutout over Hamilton Red Wings in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A quarter-final play, spurring his team to an 8-0 victory. The win gave Ottawa a 3-1 lead in games in the best-of-seven series. One other game ended in a tie. Larocque heaped seasoning on his shutout salad by coping with six Red Wing attackers for more than half of the third period. Hamilton coach Billy Harris lifted goalie Mike Veisor at 8:08 of the final period, put him back in following an Ottawa goal by Denis Potvin at 8:58, then pulled him for the duration at 10:08 of the period.

NAGOYA, Japan (AP) — United States table tennis players have volleyed their way into a visit to China. China invited the U.S. contestants in the 31st world table tennis tournament Wednesday and the Americans accepted. Canada and Britain earlier accepted similar invitations, but both have diplomatic relations with Peking. The U.S. invitation may have echoes in diplomacy. State department officials in Washington said Wednesday they welcomed the visit as a possible breakthrough in efforts to smooth the path to better relations with Peking. They said the U.S. would view with favor a reciprocal visit by an athletic team from China. Washington officially does not recognize the People's Republic as the ruler of China.

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — J. P. Bordeleau scored an unassisted goal 4:51 into sudden-death overtime Wednesday night to give Dallas Black Hawks a 3-2 victory over Omaha Knights. The goal squared the Central Hockey League's best-of-seven final series 1-1.

Old Rivals Meet

GLASGOW (CP) — Celtic qualified to meet Glasgow Rangers in the Scottish Football Association Cup final May 8 when they beat Airdrieonians 2-0 in a semi-final replay here Wednesday night.

Celtic, winner of the cup on 28 occasions, made hard work of winning. The home team went in the 31st minute when Jimmy Johnstone netted.

Jesus Alou, Houston outfielder who's in an unaccustomed reserve role this season, came off the bench in the third inning and ripped three singles, including the game-winning hit in the eighth, as the Astros topped Los Angeles Dodgers 2-1 in National League action Wednesday.

Elsewhere, St. Louis Cardinals crushed Chicago Cubs 14-3, Atlanta Braves topped Cincinnati Reds 2-1 and San Francisco Giants dumped San Diego Padres 7-3. Wet grounds postponed the Montreal Expos-New York Mets contest.

Alou broke into the lineup after Jim Wynn sprained his back while at bat. He got three singles off Dodger ace Don Sutton, including the go-ahead run that scored Cesar Cedeno.

The Dodgers had trouble from the start. First catcher Bill Sudakis lost his contact lens. Then infielder Bill Russell lost Cedeno's pop fly that set up the unearned, winning run.

Joe Morgan's sacrifice fly moved Cedeno to third and his Cedeno scurried home on Alou's safety to right.

George Culver saved the victory for Wade Blasingame, getting pinch-hitter Richie Allen to hit into a game-ending double play.

HANK AARON

Jose Cardenal and Joe Hague each drove in four runs as the Cardinals capitalized on five Cub errors. The losers gave up nine unearned runs as third baseman Ron Santo and first baseman Joe Pepitone committed two errors each.

Southpaw Steve Carlton, a 19-game loser last year, checked the Cubs on three hits.

St. Louis, aided by three errors, scored five unearned runs in the third, and Hague delivered two of the runs with a single in a six-run sixth for the Cardinals.

Hank Aaron struck his first home run of the season and 382nd of his career and Cleto Boyer knocked in another run in a two-run seventh that carried Atlanta over Cincinnati. Until the Braves' rally, they had been able to reach Reds' starter Jim McGlothlin for only one hit.

Dick Dietz, Ken Henderson and Willie Mays unloaded homers and Gaylord Perry pitched a four-hitter for San Francisco.

Nate Colbert was the whole San Diego offence, knocking in all the runs with two homers.

Batting—Bill Melton, White Sox, socked two homers, one a grand slam, and a single and drove in six runs as Chicago swept Oakland Athletics 6-5, 12-4 in the first opening-day twin bill in major league history.

Filion Records Win No. 3,000

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — World champion harness driver Herve Filion of Angers, Que., reached the 3,000-victory milestone Wednesday, but he said he didn't think it was such a big deal. He has two other records he values more.

The 31-year-old Filion drove an 11-year-old claimer into the winner's circle in the fifth race at Liberty Bell Park to become the second sulky driver in harness racing history to record 3,000 victories. Billy Haughton, who now has 3,358, reached the 3,000 mark Nov. 18, 1958.

While Filion was pleased with his accomplishment, he said his feat last year of driving five winners on one program, each under two minutes for a mile, and setting a world record of 46 winners in a single year were more satisfying.

"I feel pretty good, because I think it's the ambition of every driver to win races, and 3,000 is quite a number to win in harness racing," Filion observed.

"I hope someday though," he added, "to become the No. 1 man and let somebody else be second."

Then, Filion said: "I think that the 3,000 is a great achievement and I feel real proud of it, but those five races under two minutes, I don't believe that will be done for a long time to come to be honest with you.

"Those 3,000 might be beat, but I don't think they'll get five races under two minutes in a single program, and the 406 in one single year. There's two records that are pretty tough to beat. The 3,000, another driver can come along and beat it, but the other record will be tough to catch."

Filion, who as a comparative unknown eight years ago almost begged to get stall space at Liberty Bell, says he doesn't feel he is the greatest driver in the world.

"I do believe I'm as good as the next guy," he said. "You've got to have the horses. Good horses make you look good and bad horses make you look bad. And the breaks. I've been very lucky in this business. I got confidence in myself, which is my biggest asset. But I'm only as good as the horses."

Argo Debate Over

TORONTO (CP) — To clear up any misunderstanding, it's Thighs-man, not Thees-man.

If that's not exactly earth-shattering information, it was about all there was new to come out of the news conference at which Toronto Argonaits introduced quarterback Joe Theismann, late of Notre Dame and almost of Miami Dolphins.

Joe came through as an urbane, witty young man; shocks, a responsible family man and one who defers in all things to his coach.

He's six feet tall and weighs 180 pounds; has cold, blue eyes and a nose like the prow of a Viking long ship.

He also has been known to sneak out for the odd game of pool.

"I had my own cue, until broke it against a stone wall," he says.

Does this indicate a temper?

"No—I never get excited on the field. I just slam the ball down and stamp away," he says.

Will he not regret giving up the sand and surf of Miami for the less temperate climate of Canada?

"I suppose, if I were a bachelor, those Florida beaches with girls in bikinis might be a factor," Theismann said. "But I'm married and with a family on the way. I must consider what's best for my family. My first responsibility is to them."

Theismann, who was 5-foot-10 and 160 when he entered Notre Dame, admitted to a modest aversion to running with the ball when not strictly necessary:

"But I'll play any position if it will help the club—even running back punts if I can get the insurance. I don't think they want me for my punting, though. I have a kicking average of 28 yards."

Theismann admitted candidly that he had agreed to terms with Miami Dolphins and then "I changed my mind."

No one factor or person changed it for him, he said. Nor was it as hasty a decision as it appeared.

He has no agent, but consulted "three or four" lawyers in Canada and the U.S. before signing his two-year contract with the Argos on Sunday.

Salary—he wasn't talking. Neither was coach Leo Cahill.

"I have a pool engagement," he said.

BCI Girls Perform Toughest Stunt

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

The BCI girl's gymnastics team had to receive full marks for "degree of difficulty" after yesterday's Bay of Quinte championships.

After a dismal showing in the 1970 meet, the Collegians met the difficult challenge of building a contending team in just one season by winning the team championship at Centennial Secondary School yesterday.

The team itself presented different views on the reasons for the BCI resurgence. "It was hard work that won it for them. They really put a lot of effort into it," lauded Collegian coach Sue Davey.

"Our coach made the real difference. She's been just tremendous," exclaimed star performer Janice Cook, who won the individual advanced title.

The 15 - strong Collegian team has been practising since December for the meet, which was captured last season by Prince Edward Collegiate.

Picton received some consolation when Ann Keskula won the individual championship in the intermediate division. The blonde Prince Ed. ward performer took first place in the uneven parallels and collected 28.2 total points to pace her division.

Centennial's Chris Jones topped the novice section, collecting 31.3 total points. A grade ten student, who has been competing for two years, she placed second in the balance beam and floor exercises.

It was BCI's Janice Cook however, who came up with the outstanding individual effort to win the advanced title. First place finishes in the balance beam, floor exercises and uneven parallels coupled with a fourth place finish in the vaulting competition gave the grade 11 contestant a winning total of 31.3 points.

"The meet was a tremendous success," said Centennial coach Connie Williams, whose charges looked after organizing the competition. "We had a large number of spectators and the judges (phys - ed students from Queen's University) remarked on how much the quality of the performances has improved."

The top four finishers in each division are eligible to compete in the COSSA championships to be held April 17 at Sir Thomas A. Stewart in Peterborough.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Pollyanna Must Be Cynical

Thoughts at Large:

Actors and actresses generally make such bad husbands and wives because they are working at marriage without a script or a director, and don't know who they are supposed to be; the performer's emotional problem is not lack of fidelity, but lack of identity.

• • •

An overly-polite policeman who gives you a traffic ticket is more infuriating than a rude one, for he gives the impression that he is sadistically enjoying your discomfiture beneath his irreproachable mask of courtesy.

• • •

If you want to be a Pollyanna these days, you have to be cynical at the same time — like reflecting on how much worse the population explosion would be if it weren't for the automobile fatalities.

• • •

The unyieldingness of our convictions was neatly punctured by Bernard Berenson, when he pointed out: "What people call their 'consistency' requires them to be as ignorant today as they were a year ago."

• • •

Very few pretty women are in the vanguard of the "Liberation" movement, for pretty women know that "equality" would be a reduction in their status.

• • •

A man who imagines that because he runs his business well, he could run the government equally well on similar lines, is as deluded as the bachelor who imagines that he will control his life in the same way after he has a wife and children; in both cases, the irrational smoothes moments far outweigh all others.

• • •

Speaking of government, when it was learned that many states have appointed some of the worst pollsters to their "anti-pollution" commissions on the grounds that they knew the field, I was reminded of Harry Truman's shrewd warning when he was President: "You don't set a fox to watching the chickens just because he has a lot of experience in the hen house."

• • •

A "well-informed man" is someone who is able to support my position with arguments I never took the time to assemble.

• • •

The mother who tries to force her children to eat is not evincing love; more likely, she is substituting food for love, and persuasion for understanding.

• • •

Just as a fool can always find a bigger fool to admire him, so a scoundrel will eventually always find a bigger scoundrel to take him.

Life is unfair in that it's such a short step from the sublime to the ridiculous, but such a long climb up again.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE

SPECIAL OFFER FROM SHAWANO

All winter, our work crews have been staking out new lots in this 1,600-acre paradise vacationland. Now, we have a large selection of lots you can choose from.

There will be a big rush for these new lots as soon as the snow clears away. You can avoid this rush by reserving your special lot now while the best ones are still available. That makes sense, doesn't it?

A $100 deposit now will hold the lot of your choice until May 24, 1971. If the property fails to meet your expectations, your deposit will be refunded or transferred to another lot of your choice, whichever you prefer.

What's So Special About Shawano?

- Shawano's 1000-acres is right in the heart of the Highlands of Hastings, — clear, crisp, dry air, 1,100 ft. above sea level.
- It's an unspoiled area — and we aim to keep it that way. Shawano encompasses four crystal clear lakes, miles of idyllic shoreline, vast expanses of virgin forest, woodland trails. It's a sportsman's paradise.
- Our roads are carefully maintained all year long. Because of this, you can enjoy Shawano winters for ice-fishing, snowmobiling, tobogganing, as well as the spring, summer and fall good times.
- If all this sounds expensive, you're wrong. Big ¾-acre lakefront lots start at $4,000 with 10% down and low 8½% mortgages. You can buy a lot and fully-serviced cottage for as little as $11,977 - with $1,200 down and excellent mortgage arrangements.
- We have 15 architect-designed cottages all styled to complement Shawano's landscape. They are built of the finest materials and many have today's most-wanted features, such as big cedar decks, sliding doors — and fantastic free views from large picture windows.

Don't miss this special offer. That $100 deposit makes sure you get the lot you want.

Come and see for yourself, it's just 24 miles north of Madoc on Highway 62, and then seven miles west (follow our signs). We'll be glad to show you around and answer your questions.
